Rival Film Unions Weigh Mass Elections Proposal

Efforts are being made to settle in a single stroke the CIO-AFL battle over jurisdiction at film companies' home offices. The single stroke would be the holding of shop elections within a 48-hour period at all the New York home offices where CIO's Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild and AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63 have been vying for the bargaining representation favor of hundreds of "white collarites."

Heretofore, it has been regarded as unlikely that a settlement of the contest could be brought about under National Labor Relations Board auspices before next summer or fall. Were the two disputants to agree soon on the proposal for mass shop elections, which is currently being

Goetz Cites Films' Two Aims for 1949

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2.—In 1949 the motion picture industry will have to scrutinize more carefully than ever the American public's preference in screen entertainment, and the production of films will have to be geared to what the public wants to see rather than a producer's opinion of what the public should see. This was Universal-International production chief Wil-

Kearns Report on Coast Labor Is Due

Washington, Jan. 2.—Hollywood will be in the spotlight when the new Congress convenes tomorrow with the expected publication of the long-delayed report on the Coast labor situation based on hearings conducted here and in Hollywood by the House Labor sub-committee headed by Congressman Kearns (Rep., Pa.). The report went to press this weekend and is due to be issued tomorrow or Tuesday.

Happy Birthdays to You, Loew's, Col., Para., U.A. and Mono.

Five companies will mark major anniversaries during 1949. They are: Loew's-MGM, Columbia, Paramount, United Artists and Monogram.

Paramount will come to its 35th birthday, Paramount Pictures Corp. having been formed by W. W. Hodkinson in 1914, although Adolph Zukor's Engadine Corp., which Paramount subsequently acquired, antedated it by two years.

MGM will observe its 25th anniversary throughout 1949, the company having come into being during 1924 with the successive acquisitions by the late Marcus Loew of Metro, Samuel Goldwyn and Louis B. Mayer enterprises. Loew's, Inc., was incorporated five years earlier, in October, 1919, thus bringing it to its 30th anniversary this year. It, too, however, was antedated by Loew's Consolidated Enterprises, formed in 1910.

Film Actors Double Relief Fund Gifts

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2.—Screen Actors Guild members will double their contributions to the Motion Picture Relief Fund beginning immediately, allocating one per cent of their earnings instead of one-half of one per cent as heretofore, the Guild has revealed in a weekend report.

The report informs the membership that large expenditures will be required to organize the television field. It mentions a decrease in the number of dues-paying SAG members, together with increased operating expenses due to inflation as contributing to the financial problem the Guild must solve.

Financial statement shows the Guild assets as $608,264, liabilities as $22,329, and surplus as $585,935.

$3.60 Per to See Theatre Telecast

Miami, Jan. 2. — First telecast from Miami to be picked up in the Olympia Theatre was given yesterday. Station WGBS televised the Orange Bowl game from the Rodney Burdine Stadium. RCA sent 10 technicians from New York to assist. The use of "the world's largest television screen" necessitated the removal of a portion of the orchestra seats to make room for it. Also prices were advanced to $3.60 per person and included the regular stage and screen show.

Films Unthreatened As Assemblies Meet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Twenty-five state legislatures will convene this week, with another 19 scheduled to open in the succeeding weeks of 1949, according to Jack Bryson, MPAA legislative expert.

Four state legislatures—Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Virginia—will not meet at all this year.

Bryson said that at this time he knows of no proposed legislation in any of the states that will be harmful to the industry, but added that the Association will keep a watchful eye out for censorship and admissions tax bills.

Para. Wins Delay on FCC Video Decision

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Paramount has been given an extension until Jan. 21 by the Federal Communications Commission to file exceptions to the proposed FCC ruling that Paramount controls DuMont, thereby ruling out applications by the two companies for six new television stations. Original deadline for filing was Jan. 5.

MPAA-World Commerce Tie Continues

Good Results Shown in 'De-freezing' Currencies

Highly satisfactory results—considerably better than were anticipated—were produced during 1948 under the so-called "compensation deal" negotiated late in 1947 between the Motion Picture Association of America and the World Commerce Corp. for the purpose of unblocking U. S. film earnings in Europe's "soft-currency" countries.

A current check-up on the nature of developments since World Commerce —international trading organization with offices in principal cities of the globe—disclosed earlier that its "commission" arrangement with MPAA is suceeding, shows that MPAA itself has come to regard the deal as an important wheel in its money-unfreez-

BBC, British Press, Feature 'Fame' Poll

London, Jan. 2.—The results of the Motion Picture Herald - Fame international poll of exhibitors to determine 1948's top money-making players were broadcast at seven, eight and nine o'clock on Friday morning over British Broadcasting's network in conjunction with regular news bulletins.

Additionally, the results, which put Bing Crosby, Anna Neagle and Margaret Lockwood, respectively, in the first three places, received nationwide newspaper coverage here.

Bulk of U. A. Product for Video To Be Non-Theatrical

Standard theatrical films will be substantially outnumbered by film productions specially designed for television in the United Artists catalogue of product which it intends to make available to telecasters beginning this month.

Company's new video department, at work on preparations since its formation was announced a few months ago, is about ready to swing into actual distribution in the new field—and, it is believed by company executives, will have its operations rolling to the extent that actual profits will be entered on the books within three months from starting time.

UA will charge a distribution fee of 32½ per cent, which is about 2½ per cent under the standard rate in the television distribution field, it is said.

Personal Mention

ALFRED CROWN, vice-president and foreign sales manager of Samuel Goldwyn Productions, will leave New York for London by air tomorrow.

THOMAS E. MCGRATH, associated with Eastman Kodak since 1926, has been appointed manager of the company's new distribution center which is now under construction in Rochester, N. Y.

JACK ZIDE, Realart Pictures franchise holder in Detroit, and MRS. ZIDE are the parents of a girl, CAROL LILLIAN.

L. F. GRAN of Standard Theatres has returned to Milwaukee after a Chicago visit.

HARRY FISCHER has been named manager of the Strand, Westfield, Mass.

St. Louis Scales Cut To 75c as Tax Goes

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 2.—Theatres here will reduce top admissions from 78 to 75 cents and reduce other prices proportionately in consequence of the repeal of the city's five per cent amusement tax, which was scheduled to be signed yesterday by Mayor Kaufmann.

With a companion cigarette tax, the amusement tax netted the city some $800,000 in 1948, but was condemned by the public as a nuisance tax at a city election last April. Theatres opposed the tax last year but took no part in the actual campaign for repeal.

Tax Ruling Due Today On Benny-CBS Deal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Bureau of Internal Revenue is expected to announce tomorrow its ruling barring capital gains tax treatment on deals such as the one under which Jack Benny has been switched to Columbia Broadcasting System. The expected ruling, which will affect other top radio talent as well as Benny, will be couched in general terms. Amos 'n' Andy will not be affected, since the Bureau believes they can make out a case for having sold a property, and not just a person.

'Red' Prober Resigns

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Resignation of Robert Stripling, chief investigator for the House Un-American Activities Committee and widely regarded as the sparkplug of the investigation of Communist activity in Hollywood, has been confirmed here by members of the House committee.

Many Increases in New Postal Rates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Postage rate increases, which will add an estimated $125,000,000 to the country's annual mailing bill, went into effect yesterday. Involved in the increases are several services including air mail and parcel post. Letters, magazines and newspapers are not affected unless they go by air mail.

Under the new rates, air mail is increased from five to six cents on each ounce up to eight ounces. Basic rates for circulars and the like are increased from one-and-a-half cents to two cents for the first two ounces. Each additional ounce costs one cent.

Other increases cover catalogs, heavy packages, odd-sized pieces, etc. In addition a new fee of $10 a year for bulk mailing permits has become effective. Special delivery charges have risen from 13 to 15 cents on first class mail, and special service fees are also up, as well as registry, insurance and C. O. D.

'Brotherhood' Drive Co-chairmen Named

The appointment of several territorial exhibitor co-chairmen for "Brotherhood Week" has been announced by Ed Lachman and Gael Sullivan, national exhibitor co-chairmen.

The new co-chairmen are: Boston: E. Harold Stoneman, Interstate Theatre Corp., and Daniel J. Murphy, of Independent Exhibitors of New England; Washington: A. Julian Brylawski, Warner Brothers Theatres, and Lauritz Garman, MPTOA of Maryland; Seattle: Frank L. Newman, Evergreen Theatres Corp., and L. O. Lukan; Kansas City: R. R. Biechele, Kansas-Missouri Theatre Ass'n, and O. F. Sullivan, AITO; Indianapolis: Trueman Rembusch, Associated Theatres of Indiana, and Ken Collins, Indiana Theatre; San Francisco: Roy Cooper, Golden State Theatre and Realty Co., and Ben Levin, General Theatrical Corp.

Morosco Memorial Service Tomorrow

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2.—A Christian Science memorial service will be held at Forest Lawn Tuesday afternoon for Walter Morosco, producer, who died in a Coronado hospital Thursday. The body was cremated Friday at San Diego.

Morosco, 49, the son of the late impresario, Oliver Morosco, suffered a stroke Monday. Under contract to 20th Century-Fox for the past 10 years, he produced such film successes as "Margie," "Thunderhead, Son of Flicka," and "Give My Regards to Broadway." His last picture, "Mother Was a Freshman," has not yet been released. He entered the industry as a producer of two-reel educational films and was later associated with United Artists and Paramount.

Survivors include a son, Tim, and the mother of the deceased, Mrs. Anne Morosco.

ing machinery. The MPAA-WCC operation, it is now disclosed, will be a permanent fixture, and is expected to become increasingly successful.

MPAA Withholds Figures

Meanwhile, MPAA is closely guarding its figures relating to the amount of earnings which have been unfrozen under WCC. It is said that while some company presidents are willing to disclose the 1948 European earnings which were unfrozen, others advise withholding the information lest other American industries faced with frozen-fund problems in Europe invite the WCC to close similar deals, which perhaps would serve to syphon off dollar benefits accruing to the MPAA companies. At least that is the way one usually reliable industry source explains it.

It is understood, meanwhile, that in one country alone—Italy—some $200,000 was unfrozen in 1948 under the WCC deal. This figure is based on estimates made earlier this year by John A. R. Pepper, WCC executive vice-president, in New York. Little or nothing was gotten out of France, it is believed, because of the extremely unstable financial condition of that country.

'Several Million Dollars' Netted

The deal was conceived by Gerald Mayer, MPAA Continental chief now in Paris, when he was director of the MPAA international division. In a statement issued last month on the occasion of Mayer's leaving here for France, MPAA said that as a result of Mayer's efforts during 1948 toward procuring dollar income from "soft-currency" territories, remittances have netted member companies "several million dollars." This is interpreted in some industry circles as a direct refereence to the MPAA-WCC deal.

The arrangement calls for WCC to allot dollars for increasing a European country's commodities export business, on the provision that the country release an equal amount of blocked American film earnings. Part of WCC's profit under the deal comes in the form of "commissions" from U. S. film companies, through the MPAA.

Swedish Taxes May Cut Production 50%

By SVEN WINQUIST

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 28. (By Airmail)—Sweden's usual production total of some 50 features a year, is expected to fall to 25 or 30 in 1949 as a result of the government's taxation program.

When admission taxes were increased in February 1948, ticket prices went up correspondingly, with the result that attendance decreased. While an ordinary worker here earns around 150 Kronor ($42) a week, it is difficult for him to pay around 10 Kronor ($2.80) for a cinema visit (including theatre tickets, railway fare, etc.).

On the other hand, an average Swedish film costs the producer around 310,000 Kronor ($86,800). For the producer to get his money back, it must be seen by about 700,000 persons. At the same time, the government gets nearly 500,000 Kronor ($140,000) in taxes. The government refuses to give financial help to the film industry while governments in other Scandinavian countries are helping film producers.

It is said that producers lost 2,000,000 Kronor ($560,000) on films produced in 1947.

Stahl Starts Filming Of 'Beautiful Doll'

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2.—For the first time in his 34-year film career, director John Stahl has rolled the cameras on a musical comedy, "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," the George Jessel production for 20th Century-Fox.

Stahl used 100 extras in the opening scene, shot in a set representing a Child's restaurant in New York. Mark Stevens and June Haver head the cast. Picture is a film biography of composer Fred Fischer.

discussed by them, the companies involved and the NLRB, there would be a strong possibility of clearing up the jurisdictional trouble before Feb. 1.

Companies around whose "white collarites" a series of NLRB meetings has centered during the past two weeks are Columbia, Loew's, Republic, DeLuxe Laboratories, 20th Century-Fox and Paramount. It was SOPEG's long-standing refusal to comply with the non-Communist affidavit provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law that opened the way for H-63 "invasions," since the companies had refused to "do business" with a non-complying SOPEG. Meanwhile, of course, SOPEG has complied.

At this point the score is tied in the jurisdictional battle: one election victory for H-63 at United Artists and one for SOPEG at RKO Radio.

Allied Artists Sets Releases for Five

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2.—Allied Artists has set the following releases for the next four months: "Strike It Rich," Jack Wrather Prod. starring Rod Cameron, Bonita Granville and Don Castle, Jan. 1. "Bad Men of Tombstone," produced by King Bros., and starring Barry Sullivan, Marjorie Reynolds and Broderick Crawford, Jan. 22. "Bad Boy," produced by Paul Short, and starring Jane Wyatt and Audie Murphy, Feb. 22. "When a Man's a Man," produced by Windsor Pictures, and starring Guy Madison and Rory Calhoun, April 1.

Also "Stampede," produced by John C. Champion and Blake Edwards, for May 1.

Review

"Shep Comes Home"

(Screen Guild)

ALL the elements of emotion and humor that are traditionally bound up in stories about a boy and his dog are neatly blended in this smooth little Robert L. Lippert production designed for family audiences and the Saturday trade. Told in a running time of 58 minutes, the boy-and-dog story is integrated with a melodramatic angle about bank robbers and the immigration service, and for good measure, there's a routine romance in the background.

Billy Kimbley plays the boy, and Flame is the dog. When Billy learns, on his mother's death, that he is to be sent to an orphanage, and deprived of his dog, he and Flame run away and hitch-hike to a small town near the Mexican border, where Robert Lowery is in charge of border immigration and J. Farrell MacDonald is sheriff. En route they are befriended by a Mexican, played by Martin Garralage, who has lost his passport and winds up sharing a cell with Billy, who is held pending investigation. With Flame's aid, they break jail and hide out in a ghost town to which two bank robbers, fleeing the law, also come. When a posse arrives the gangsters manage to get the Mexican arrested for a shooting they have committed, but later on Billy, with Flame assisting by overpowering the bandits, brings the bank robbers to town and justice.

Ron Ormond produced, with Ira Webb as associate producer, and Ford Beebe directed from an original screenplay by himself.

Running time, 58 minutes. General audience classification. Release not set.

Split Stage Policy For RKO Boston

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—An agreement with the musicians union to guarantee at least 10 weeks' work in the current theatrical season has resulted in a policy for the RKO Boston under which stage shows will supplement a feature film for four weeks, then revert to double features for four weeks, according to Ben Domingo, New England district manager for RKO Theatres. The stage shows will be booked in groups of four, each to run one week. The policy was initiated on Dec. 24.

liam Goetz's New Year keynote, delivered yesterday in a special American Broadcasting program embodying speeches by U. S. industrial, governmental and educational leaders.

"Not only will the producers have to make motion pictures which will interest the public," said Goetz, "but the exhibitors will be required to play a more important part in attracting patrons to their theatres if the entire industry is to prosper and increase its domestic revenue."

The exhibitor, Goetz held, "will have to disseminate more carefully and emphatically the facts concerning the motion picture he is showing in order to assure substantial attendance."

Goetz said it was his opinion that the industry will achieve "these two most important objectives" in 1949. Thus, he said in conclusion, the industry "will find itself not only in a sound financial condition but able to provide the theatre-going public with many pleasant hours of worthwhile entertainment, which, of course, is its goal not only this year but every year."

would file separate proposals has been virtually dismissed.

The system as it now stands, among other things, provides for damages up to $5,000 for an exhibitor as a result of proven arbitrary refusal of run by any single distributor and subsequent non-compliance with the award determined by the arbitrator. Some phases of the plan are expected to be altered before it is presented in the majors' proposed decree to the Department of Justice on Jan. 31.

There is no indication yet that the plan meets with the approval of the Little Three, Republic, Eagle-Lion and Allied Artists-Monogram, who also have been invited to participate in the discussions.

UNITED

Flight Facts

There's one thing that never fails to surprise first-flighters on "the Hollywood," United's onestop New York-Los Angeles flight.

Just about 10 minutes after taking off in the gray gloom of midwinter, our giant DC-6 Mainliner 300 suddenly emerges into clear blue skies and dazzling sunlight!

It's a remarkable change, and many passengers ask me about it. I thought you'd like to know, too, that "the Hollywood" (and United's other DC-6 Mainliner 300s) fly at the sunshine level—thousands of feet above winter weather. The air is really smooth at the sunshine level. It takes us only a few minutes to reach this altitude, and we stay there for the entire trip, except for our one stop at Chicago.

I think you'll agree when you fly "the Hollywood"—it's the finest way to travel coast to coast.

Deadlock Ends Exchange Pay Raise Parleys

'IA' Demands Rejected; Federal Gov't Alerted

First business day of the New Year yesterday found the industry facing what threatens to become a desperate labor-management situation. Top-level negotiations here between IATSE president Richard F. The Federal Mediation Board in Washington has been notified by "IA" assistant international president Thomas J. Shea, chairman of the "IA" negotiating committee, that an impasse has been reached in the bargaining.

It is understood that the companies have refused flatly to agree to any wage raises for the exchange workers,

N. Y. Runs Big But Expected 'Eve' Boom Fizzled in Sleet

The impressive array of holiday product at New York's first-runs failed to produce the maximum income expected at the New Year weekend and theatremen blamed the bad weather. Sleet and cold impaired business considerably on New Year's Eve but grosses picked up on Saturday and Sunday.

This marks the second successive time that the weatherman played havoc with theatres over the like holiday period. Last year's record snowfall cut revenue from 25 to 50 per cent. The elements were not so severe this time, but the unanimous opinion of operators was that clear skies and dry streets would have meant uniformly top grosses. Because of the varying degrees of business registered at first-runs, the extent of the damage done at box-offices by the weather could not be determined.

A full house was reported for the Fulton on Friday night when the tar-

BOSTON, Jan. 3.—All district managers offices of American Theatres Corp. and New England Theatres have been discontinued henceforth. This was done so that closer supervision over the theatres can be effected. All district managers will work out of the home offices of their respective companies.

The discontinuance grows out of last week's sales of Paramount's interest in Netoco Theatres to American Theatres.

Capital Tax Deals Ruled Out by U.S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue today came out flatly and firmly against capital gains tax treatment of deals like that made by Jack Benny with the Columbia Broadcasting System wherein sale of personal services is the main factor.

As expected, the Bureau ruled—without mentioning any names—that such deals must be taxed at ordinary income tax rates.

Bureau chief George J. Schoeneman made the ruling in a brief two-paragraph statement, issued, he said, "in response to numerous inquiries as to the tax treatment of sales by radio artists and others where personal services are involved."

Said the statement: "The tax effect of any business transaction is deter-

Supreme Court Bans Closed Union Shops

Washington, Jan. 3.—The U. S. Supreme Court today upheld the constitutionality of state laws banning the closed shop, union shop, and other similar forms of unions requiring workers to be members.

taking the position that a business recession has hit the industry and that, therefore, raises are not in order at this time.

"IA" opened the negotiations early last month with a reported bid for a 15 per cent general wage increase and a cut in the work week from 40 to 37½ hours. A similar wage raise was included in the one-year contract which recently expired. It represented an exchange workers' pay hike totaling more than $1,500,000.

It is expected that an offer by the government of the services of a mediator will be accepted by both parties. However, there is little hope prevailing that a Federal mediator would succeed in bringing about a settlement since a bitter determination to hold out has been expressed by both sides, according to one close observer. It is reported that even before a mediator arrives from Washington "token walkouts" may be expected in exchanges across the country as an expression of resentment over the impasse.

Others on the "IA" negotiating committee are vice-president Louise Wright and international representative Joseph D. Basson. Clarence Hill of 20th Century-Fox heads the distributors' committee, which also includes Anthony Petti, Universal-International; C. J. (Pat) Scollard, Paramount; Charles O'Brien, Loew's; Henry C. Kaufman, Columbia; Leslie Thompson, RKO Radio; Sam Schneider, Warner, and Harry Buckley, United Artists.

Extra Vacations for Buchanan Employes

As the first step in a program of extended employee benefits, Buchanan and Co. has instituted special six-week "travel leaves" with full pay plus travel allowances, for all employes who have completed five years or more of service. The agency handles several industry accounts.

The plan, which went into operation yesterday, was developed by management at the instance of John Hertz, Jr., chairman of the board, who has long espoused the principle of "broadening-through-travel" for all ranks of employes. The six-week periods are conditioned upon their use "exclusively for travel of an extensive and not local nature."

Elaborating on the plan, Rudolph Montgelas, president of the agency, stated that subsequent six-week leaves will be available to eligible employes every three years thereafter. He also pointed out that the new system would in no way interfere with the regular two-week vacation with pay due every employe not eligible for the plan.

Sale of Hughes Tool Firm Is Called Off

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3. — Howard Hughes has informed employes of his Hughes Tool Co. that the proposed sale of the Texas corporation to a syndicate headed by Dillon, Read and Co., New York investment bankers, had been called off because of "legal and technical obstacles."

$27,500 in Prizes To E-L Branches

Members of the Eagle-Lion sales organization in 21 of the company's 31 domestic branches have received $27,500 in prizes for the recently-concluded company sales drive in honor of William J. Heineman, E-L sales vice-president.

Leading money-winning branch was Boston, which, under the leadership of branch manager Harry Segal, won $3,400. Other leaders in order were Clair Townsend's Detroit, $2,600; Wallace Rucker's Seattle, $2,600; Arthur M. Jolley's Salt Lake City, $1,700; Harold Keeter's Charlotte, $1,500; Martin R. Austin's Denver, $1,500; Lloyd Katz' San Francisco, $1,500; Gordon Craddock's Indianapolis, $1,300; Harry Goldman's Chicago, $1,250; Harry S. Alexander's Albany, $1,100; Des Moines, managed during the drive by F. J. Lee, now St. Louis branch manager, $1,000; Abbott M. Schwartz' Minneapolis, $1,000. Following these leaders in the distribution of prizes came Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Portland, Atlanta, Kansas City, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Washington and Cleveland.

Top individual district manager's prize went to Edward Heiber, Midwest, who received $1,000; second district manager's prize of $500 to Tom Donaldson, former New England district manager; and third prize of $250 was awarded to Southern district manager Grover Parsons.

Named "best branch manager" was Fred Rohrs, Washington, who received $250. John Leo, of the San Francisco branch, was hailed "outstanding salesman" with an award of $150, and Sam Levine of Boston was declared best booker, receiving $100.

Ellis To Distribute Foreign Films Here

Jack Ellis, former Eastern district manager for United Artists, is entering distribution on his own here and will handle foreign and independent product. He already has American distribution rights to a new Italian picture.

N. Y. Runs Big

iff was increased from $2.40 to $3.60 and where "Joan of Arc" is now in a third week on a reserved-seat basis. This is the highest admission seen in these parts in recent years. The film figures to do $18,000 for the week at the Fulton and about $44,000 for an eighth week at the Victoria.

"Words and Music" with a holiday stage presentation at the Music Hall seemed actually to benefit from the storm. House took in $31,250 on Friday, setting a new mark for New Year's Eve despite the weather which so adversely affected other spots. Hall probably will do $160,000, a tremendous take in this current and fourth week of the show.

Roxy Scale Raised 30c

The Roxy, which raised its scale to $1.80 top, from $1.50, took in $102,000 Wednesday through Sunday, indicating $120,000 for the second week of "That Wonderful Urge" with an ice show featuring Barbara Ann Scott on stage; that is big business but more was looked for.

"Enchantment" is likely to do about $39,000 in a second week at the Astor, which is good enough, and about $1,000 over the previous week. "One Sunday Afternoon" failed to stand up against the weather at the Mayfair, with only $11,000 in a second week.

Others which faltered were "Whiplash" with $11,000 in a second week at the Globe, and "Angel on the Amazon" with $8,000 for a second week at the Gotham.

"Rogues' Regiment" is moderate at the Criterion with $18,000 seen for a third week. At the Park, "Hamlet" should ring up a lofty $24,000 in a fourth week during which eight extra performances were added, bringing the total for the week to 25. "Red Shoes" also is continuing big with about $19,000 apparent for the 11th week at the Bijou.

At the Paramount where the New Year's Eve top was $2.20, "Paleface" accompanied by Benny Goodman's orchestra on stage tonight will conclude a rousing third week's business getting in the neighborhood of $92,000. "Snake Pit" looks good for $37,000 in a ninth week at the Rivoli, probably having derived good support from the New York Film Critics' award to Olivia De Havilland for her performance in the picture.

Upswing at the Capitol

"Every Girl Should Be Married," the Capitol tenant with Burt Lancaster and Skitch Henderson's orchestra on stage, is greatly improved in a second week with $102,000 indicated. This is the biggest week in many months for the Capitol, and about $14,000 over business for the opening week of the show.

At the Strand, "Adventures of Don Juan" with Tommy Dorsey on stage reaped a good $40,000 during Friday through Sunday, and on that basis should finish a second week with $75,000. Heavy returns for the second week of "Force of Evil," hitting $55,000, are in view at the State. The film did $62,000 in its opening week.

The Palace will resume its first-run policy on Jan. 12 with RKO Radio's "The Boy with Green Hair." Other new films on schedule include Film Classics' "Unknown Island" at the Rialto on Friday and United Artists' "My Dear Secretary" which is to follow the current "One Sunday Afternoon" at the Mayfair.

Review

"Angel in Exile"

(Republic)

A REAL effort to get away from the sterotyped format is made by Republic in "Angel in Exile." It concerns stolen gold, a thief who goes to the secret hiding place to recover the cache after he is released from prison, and the attempts of rival gangsters to hijack the loot.

The plot's novel turn comes when the gangster has a change of heart about the gold because the villagers, near where the gold is hidden, think him a miracle man because he has "discovered" gold in an abandoned mine. Allan Swan and Philip Ford turn in a competent direction job from the original screenplay by Charles Larson.

John Carroll is the released gangster, who, with a loyal colleague of pre-prison days, goes to an abandoned mine high in the Arizona mountains to recover the gold. Rival gangsters follow them. The mine is near a village populated by Mexicans. When it becomes known that Carroll is taking gold from the mine he becomes a miracle man and, after a typhoid epidemic in the village (where the miracle man cures the sick by merely talking to them), a spirited gun-fight follows. The rival gangster, Barton MacLane, his henchman, and Carroll's pal are killed. After a touch of romance and a Western-style fist fight, Carroll repents and tries to live up to the villagers' faith in him.

Carroll and the others turn in good performances. MacLane is his usual tough gangster. The girl is Adele Mara, who does her job in satisfactory fashion. Thomas Gomez, as the saintly village doctor, and Howland Chamberlin, as the larcenous government clerk, register nicely.

Running time, 90 minutes. Adult audience classification.

NCCJ Fetes Depinet Dunne, Others Feb. 4

Awards will be presented to Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Radio; Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, authors and producers of Broadway musicals, and Irene Dunne, screen star, at the amusements' division luncheon of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, at the Waldorf-Astoria here on Feb. 4, it is announced by Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the Conference. The awards are being presented to persons in the amusement world "who have done the most in 1948 to promote better understanding among people of all faiths."

The luncheon will be the occasion for launching a nationwide campaign by the amusements division, culminating in the "Brotherhood Week" observance sponsored by the Conference, Feb. 20-27. J. Robert Rubin is chairman of the division and Louis Nizer is chairman of the luncheon committee.

Would End US Tax

overlapping with the AMA, but not complete duplication. It has had a special committee studying the admission tax problems since early in 1948, and, according to one official, the recommendation is that the Federal government get out of the admission tax field. It is pointed out that most of the cities and towns represented in the conference already have the power to levy the tax, but don't do so "because we just can't levy a local tax on top of the Federal tax—that would kill the goose that lays the golden egg," this official indicated. The Conference will lobby for its program in Congress this year.

Floods Shut Many N. England Houses

Boston, Jan. 3.—Theatres in Vermont, Western Massachusetts and Connecticut were damaged by floods over the weekend. Many of them closed and film deliveries were impaired.

'Fallen Idol' Gets British Film Award

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Jane Wyman has been named the actress of the year by the London Daily Express film tribunal for her role in "Johnny Belinda" and Alexander Korda's "The Fallen Idol" was named the film of the year. Pierre Fresnay was cited the best actor of the year. These awards were accompanied by $4,000. Selznick Releasing Organization will handle "The Fallen Idol" in the United States shortly.

Six prizes of $400 each were awarded for the following performances: Moira Shearer, for "Red Shoes"; Clifton Webb, "Sitting Pretty"; Alex Guiness, "Oliver Twist"; Micheline Presle in "Le Diable au Corps", and Alastair Sim and Wylie Watson in "London Belongs to Me." Terence Rattigan was awarded $800 for his script, "The Winslow Boy," and Hein Heckroth received the same amount for his technical work in "Red Shoes."

31 More U. S. Dates For Rank's 'Hamlet'

"Hamlet," J. Arthur Rank feature, will open in 31 cities within the next six weeks. This in addition to the current 14 engagements will give "Hamlet," the "most extensive playing time ever enjoyed by a British-made picture," according to Universal-International which is distributing the production in this country.

Tri-Video Screens 3 Old-Edison Films

Tri-Video Productions, Inc., recently formed here to produce and distribute television films, held a press screening of three films at the Museum of Modern Art here yesterday. The company has acquired rights to the Edison collection of old-time films, embracing over 500 subjects of one, two and three-reel length.

The films screened yesterday seem ideally suited for television. Each runs nine minutes and is a part of a series titled "Nickelodeon Novelties." Made some 35 years ago, the prints are amazingly clear. Furthermore, the absence of long shots make them especially satisfactory for the medium for which they are now intended.

The subjects screened were "Helen of the Chorus," "Moment of Madness," and "Twin Dukes and the Duchess." They have been cut and edited and supplied with a modern commentary by Lew Lehr. Throbbing dramas in the day of their production, the films today are an enjoyable source of nostalgia and satire.

Para. Halts Report

1946, the New York court directed the companies to subsequently file quarterly on their holdings, whether their status changed or not.

The companies continued to file after the high court's opinion last summer, but prefaced their reports with remarks to the effect that the opinion placed the matter in doubt. The high court, of course, eliminated the "5-95" provision from the New York decree when it sent back the entire issue of divestiture to the lower court for further study.

A Department of Justice representative said at the weekend that he believes the reports still to be mandatory but whether Paramount's refusal will be contested has not been decided.

King Bros. Slate Four For A.A. '49 Release

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3. — King Brothers will produce four pictures for Allied Artists release during 1949.

First, with McKinley Kantor serving as their associate, will be "Gun Crazy." Next is an untitled story by Burnet Hershey dealing with the life of Joseph Petrosino, New York policeman who broke up the Black Hand Society. Rounding out the schedule will be "Unwanted" and "Ramie."

Rob Normandie Theatre

While 400 patrons sensed that something was wrong, because the screen went blank and remained so for several minutes, two armed men held up the Normandie Theatre here Sunday night, escaping with receipts of $1,100.

Curtiz Back to WB

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3. — Warner disclosed today that director Michael Curtiz has returned to the studio. It is understood he will disband Curtiz Productions and that talent under contract to it would be placed on the Warner payroll.

Stability in Canada

been assumed that, allowing only for a time lag, conditions in the United States duplicated themselves here; that box-office trends, audience tastes and buying habits were entirely similar and that Canada for all practical purposes could be included in the U. S. domestic market.

"Since this did not hold true in 1948, the fact that it did not gives the year unusual significance," he declared, adding:

"In Canada, the evidence is that the long-term upward trend in consumer expenditures for motion picture entertainment still continues. Readjustment, following the abnormal spending which characterizes war periods, has been occurring without serious effect on the industry here. The Canadian situation has been materially helped by the fact that box-office prices had not increased materially as they had elsewhere nor as had the costs of other goods and services regularly in demand by the average Canadian family.

"The market in the U. S., on the other hand, was subject during the year to a variety of disturbances of both external and internal origin. So far in Canada the film industry has been able to set its own film-distribution policies without government intervention, though there are many complaints.

"British films, following the inauguration of effective merchandising and distribution methods late in 1945, now have a substantial and established following in Canada. Essentially, this market consists of a steadily-widening percentage of the regular and general movie-going public which has been seeking greater variety in entertainment and finds that a blending of British and American film programs is the preferable means of securing this," Lawson declared.

No Failures in Canadian Industry

OTTAWA, Jan. 3.—There was not a single commercial failure in the motion picture trade during the first three-quarters of 1948, though the number of bankruptcies in Canada advanced to the highest figure since 1941 in all other directions, according to the latest report of the Canadian government.

Companies Ask Court For Books of Manos

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—Court order seeking to impound the books of George A. Manos, Toronto, Ohio, owner of a circuit of Eastern Ohio theatres, has been asked by eight distributors.

U. S. District Judge Mell G. Underwood was told that Manos had misrepresented the income from pictures. The distributors said Manos had admitted in Tax Court testimony a true report of his income had been submitted annually to the Bureau of Internal Revenue and a false report to the picture companies.

Bringing the action were Warner, Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, Loew's, RKO, United Artists, Columbia and Universal.

Set Up MPAA Quarters

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. — Duke Hickey, community relations counsel for the Motion Picture Association of America, has re-established local headquarters for the association temporarily in the Palmer House.

WB to Produce Films for Video

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.—Warner Brothers is preparing to train special crews to produce television films at the studio, Harry M. Warner said here yesterday. "I personally do not believe television will interfere with either theatre operations or production of regular films," he asserted, adding that production for video will find its "greatest field" in educational films and other specialties.

"Right now the industry is in the same position as far as television goes as when we were first feeling our way around with sound," Warner declared. "Rather than hinder the industry, I think television will prove a boon to motion pictures."

Start of video film production awaits approval by the Federal Communications Commission of the company's purchase of Station KLAC here, he said.

Any exhibitor in Connecticut having a grievance against a distributing company, which he is unable to resolve satisfactorily with the distributor in question, may avail himself of the services of the committee without cost.

The complaining exhibitor should outline his grievance in writing and forward same to Bailey or to Wilkinson for consideration. If the complaining exhibitor objects to having any of the designated members of the Board serve on his complaint, he may so state and alternates will be selected.

Connecticut Allied Backs National Allied's Program

HARTFORD, Jan. 3.—Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut has endorsed all resolutions passed at the recent national Allied convention in New Orleans, including those opposing joining with the Theatre Owners of America in conciliation boards, opposing voluntary arbitration of grievances under the consent decree ruling, and opposing percentage pictures.

The group has also voted 100 per cent co-operation with and all possible assistance to observance of American "Brotherhood Week."

W. T. Joyner and H. E. Powers of Raleigh signed the complaints as attorneys for each of the plaintiff distributors with Sargoy and Stein of New York as counsel.

Monogram To Release 4 Films in January

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3. — Monogram will release four pictures in January: "Trouble Makers," starring Leo Gorcey, Jan. 2; "Temptation Harbor," British film starring Simone Simon and Robert Newton, Jan. 9; "Gun Runner," starring Jimmy Wakely, Jan. 16; "Incident," starring Jane Frazee and Warren Douglas, Jan. 23.

mined by its realities. Accordingly, proposals of radio artists and others to obtain compensation for personal services under the guise of sales of property cannot be regarded as coming within the capital gains provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. Such compensation is taxable at ordinary income tax rates."

The ruling does not affect the deal made with CBS by Amos and Andy. There the Bureau is reported to feel that a case can be made out that a sale of a property—rather than just personal services—is involved.

House Group Flays AFL For Studios' Labor Ills

Kearns Report Clears Producers of 'IA' Collusion; Industry Defended for Its Part in Jurisdictional Dispute on Coast

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A House Labor sub-committee which for 18 months investigated the tangled Hollywood labor picture today issued its report clearing the industry of any charge of collusion or conspiracy with the IATSE and placing the entire blame for the industry's labor troubles on the failure of the American Federation of Labor to settle the studio jurisdictional dispute.

"This jurisdictional labor dispute in this great industry stands out as a sore thumb on the records of the AFL," the report said. "The industry could well depict this in a drama that would be the best box-office attraction in the history of the business."

The report was issued by sub-committee chairman Carroll D. Kearns (R., Pa.), and was approved by lame-duck Republican Congressman Landis of Indiana. The third Republican member of the sub-committee—Owens of Illinois—died last year, and the two Democratic members took little part in the investigation.

Changed View on 'Conspiracy'

Kearns admitted he had initially suspected an IATSE-producer conspiracy. But the report today said he was now convinced differently. "Upon conclusion of the Washington hearing," it said, "and particularly after the testimony given by Mr. William C. Doherty, AFL vice-president and secretary of the three-man arbitration committee, it became obvious that the Dec. 26, 1945 decision of the three-man committee was final and binding

New US-Ascap Decree Pends In N.Y. Court

Stemming from Society's Setbacks in Two Courts

Department of Justice is expected to announce shortly an impending new decree with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers which would have the effect of extending and tightening the provisions of the consent decree which the government and the society entered into in 1941.

Both sides declined official comment on what specific manner the new move will affect the society's position in the motion picture industry. However, it was learned that Robert P. Patterson, special counsel for Ascap, among others, has conferred in Washington with government representatives to seek some legal sanction for continued operations in the film business

$3,000,000 for Variety Charities

Philadelphia, Jan. 4.—Variety Club International will spend more than $3,000,000 this year in charitable work, William McCraw of Dallas, Variety's executive director, declared here last night at a dinner meeting of Variety Club Tent No. 13 at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel. McCraw said that all proceeds from the premiere of Allied Artists' "Bad Boy" here and in 42 other cities will be donated to Variety.

Annual Allied Board Meet on Feb. 14-15

Washington, Jan. 4.—Allied States Association's annual board meeting, at which officers are to be elected and top policy matters set, will be held here at the Hotel Statler on Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 14-15, Allied chairman Abram Myers said here today.

Strike Looms At Exchanges

A strike which could bring nationwide film exchange operations to a standstill was foreseen here yesterday when it became known that all of the country's 67 IATSE exchange locals have been instructed by "IA" headquarters to "stand by for further instructions" in view of the deadlock which has brought an end to the month-long negotiations on a new contract for 6,300 exchange workers.

Although spokesmen for the "IA" and distributors declined yesterday to comment on the latest "IA" action, it was said by sources familiar with the exchange labor set-up that such "stand by" notification is "unmistakably" intended as a warning to the locals that a strike vote is about to be sought.

Meanwhile, Commissioner L. A. Stone of the Federal Mediation Service here reports that he will meet at

Manos Is Ordered To Retain Records

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—U. S. Judge Mel G. Underwood has signed an order in the eight percentage actions brought by major distributing companies against defendant George A. Manos of Toronto, O., and associated theatre corporations, restraining them from destroying or otherwise disposing of the books, records and documents of 12 theatre operations in Ohio for the 12-year period from Jan. 1, 1937, to Dec. 22, 1948, as well as "from changing, altering or revising the same, except in the usual course of business."

The injunction order is to remain in full force and effect pending further order of the court, and requires the defendant to retain and preserve all such records wherever they may be found and whether in the custody, control or possession of the defendants or of their attorneys, agents or employes or others, except, however, those now with the U. S. Tax Court.

The order resulted from a motion made to Judge Underwood in the percentage actions by distributor counsel as a result of disclosures in a

Moss Names Republic In Contract Action

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—Lou Moss and Lou Moss Pictures Corp. have filed a suit in Federal Court here asking for $885,000 damages from Republic for alleged breach of distribution contract in 1945.

Complainant alleges the company "arbitrarily" rejected three scripts submitted for "Voodoo Legend," originally budgeted at $300,000 and raised to $400,000.

Amount asked includes preparation expense, production fee and estimated profits.

New Short Subjects From RKO Radio

Harry J. Michalson, RKO Radio short subject sales manager, disclosed here yesterday that there will be two new series for the 1949 program. First will be the "Screenliners," one-reel novelties, totaling 13 subjects. RKO will also introduce a new two-reel comedy series, "The Newlyweds," to be produced by George Bilson.

N. J. Allied Plans Anti-Censor Fight

Anticipating the introduction in the 1949 New Jersey legislature of bills for film censorship and a broader pattern of municipal taxing of theatre admissions, Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey will meet at the Stacy-Trent Hotel, Trenton, on Jan. 17 to draft a legislative program which would obviate the passage of such adverse bills. The meeting will be conducted jointly by Jersey Allied president Edward Lachman and George Gold, who heads the organization's legislative committee. The legislature will convene on Jan. 11.

Censorship legislation is expected to be urged by municipal authorities who have attempted, without success, to secure state court injunctions against the showing of certain so-called "sex education" films made by producers not connected with the Hollywood industry. New Jersey theatres have been showing the pictures to segregated audiences. Allied's attitude on state censorship of such pictures is that it might be made to apply to Hollywood product by agencies charged with enforcement.

At present fourth class (Coastal) cities in New Jersey are empowered by the legislature to levy a three per cent municipal tax on theatre admissions. Cities in other areas of the state have been demanding similar power.

Seek Revival of U.S. Film Library

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Dr. Verner W. Clapp, assistant to Dr. Luther Evans, head of the Library of Congress, said today the Library would ask the 81st Congress to enact legislation reviving the library's motion picture division.

He said legislation would be submitted within a month and that "we are very hopeful this Congress will be more receptive than the last."

In 1947 Congress liquidated the division, giving it only a small amount to maintain films already in its collection but barring any other activities or new acquisitions.

Broidy Drops Deal For Ten Releases

HOLLYWOOD, Jan 4.—Abandonment of plans to distribute 10 pictures to be produced in Canada by Canadian International Screen Productions and Renaissance Films—five to be released by Monogram, five by Allied Artists—was announced today by Steve Broidy, AA-Monogram president. Failure by CISP to start production on an agreed date was given by Broidy as the reason. This now reduces the companies' release schedule for this year to 51.

The Department says that the Yugoslav press reports the two countries have agreed to take each other's films.

Rank Sales Drive In Latin America

Al Daff, foreign sales supervisor of Universal-International, reported here yesterday that a J. Arthur Rank sales drive will be conducted by U-I in Latin America. The winner of the drive, which will continue for 26 weeks, will receive a trip to London as guest of J. Arthur Rank and John Davis, Rank Organization executive.

Ben Cohn, U-I home office executive, has been appointed captain of the drive. His associates will be Americo Aboaf, U-I Latin American supervisor, and Robert Weait, Latin American representative for the Rank organization.

FP-C Stock Is Off, But Earnings Not

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.—While the market price decline in recent weeks of Famous Players Canadian Corp. has been attracting attention in Canada, the current earning trend of the company does not explain this decline. In fact, the company's earnings for the first half of 1948 were even better than for the same period of the preceding year and are said to be higher for two later months. Also, the company is showing a strong balance sheet position involving a working capital of $7,384,286 and no funded debt.

NSS on Agenda of TOA Officials' Meet

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 4.—"Thorough discussion" of National Screen Service business practices and "constructive suggestions" for improvement will be among the topics discussed at the Theatre Owners of America directors' meeting in Washington on Jan. 28-29, it was disclosed here today as the Albany TOA unit began circulation of a message from Arthur H. Lockwood, TOA president, asking for detailed information on the subject.

Lockwood's request was for copies of recent correspondence between TOA members and NSS regarding such complaints as quality of trailers and commercial advertising therein, delayed shipments, torn posters, allegedly excessive charges, and prices paid for trailers and accessories. He also asked for information on what action or adjustments, if any, were made, as well as for proposals for improvement of NSS service.

Following the directors' meeting in Washington, George Dembow and William Brenner, NSS executives, will address the Albany TOA on Feb. 2.

Says Drive-ins Made New Theatre Field

ATLANTA, Jan. 4. — Drive-in theatres have grown to huge proportions from a standing start 10 years ago, said Harris Robinson, president of Dixie Drive-In Theatres.

Drive-in theatres solved "terrific problems" Robinson said. "They opened the field of motion picture entertainment to thousands throughout the country who for various reasons found it impossible to enjoy films in the conventional indoor theatre."

Disney Prod. Income Was Off Last Year

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4.—Operations of Walt Disney Productions in the year ended last Oct. 2 resulted in a net loss of $39,038, it was reported here today by Roy Disney, company president. This compared with a profit of $307,075 in 1947.

During the year box-office receipts declined in this country, Mr. Disney said, and foreign revenues continued to decline as more countries blocked currencies or adopted other regulations which hurt the American industry. Because of shrinking revenues, the company considerably increased the write-off of feature and short subject negative costs against 1948 income.

Current and working assets of Disney Productions at the close of the fiscal year exceeded current liabilities by $5,043,229, compared with a similar excess of $4,385,563 at the close of the preceding fiscal year. The improvement in the current net working capital position was one of the benefits realized from the new magazine publication contract made last May.

At the studio, a program of cost reduction has been carried out without diminishing product capacity or the quality of pictures; non-production expenditures have been sharply curtailed, Disney said.

Shooting Starts on 2 As Production Dips

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4. — The production index dipped to 21 from last week's tally of 23. Two films were launched, while four were completed.

Shooting started on "Highland Lassie," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; and "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," 20th Century-Fox.

Shooting finished on "The Stratton Story" and "The Great Sinner," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "Hellfire," Republic, and "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College," 20th Century-Fox.

Seven New Pictures Rated by Legion

Universal-International's "Criss Cross" has been rated Class "B" by the National Legion of Decency in its current review of seven pictures. Classified A-I was United Artists' "Just William's Luck."

Rated A-II were: M-G-M's "Act of Violence," 20th Century-Fox's "Chicken Every Sunday," Columbia's "The Dark Past," M-G-M's "Force of Evil," and Film Classics' "Unknown Island."

"The Quiet One," first production of Film Documents, Inc., will have its premiere at the Little Carnegie Theatre late this month, according to Mayer-Burstyn, Inc., distributors. Officers of Film Documents are Helen Levitt, Janice Loeb, Sidney Meyers and William Levitt.

Review

"This Was A Woman"

(Excelsior—20th Century-Fox)

IN a subtly probing fashion, "This Was a Woman" recounts the destruction wreaked in a British family by the depraved lust of a woman for power. Made in England, this Excelsior Film Production has an unusual theme and explores it with considerable depth. However, involved story threads, a tendency towards garrulousness, and a cast that is relatively unknown on these shores, make the picture's wide commercial outlook uncertain. On the other hand, this murky tale of a woman's subtle villainy is likely to find satisfying appeal among the more discriminatnig audiences.

In the dominant role of the woman with an insatiable appetite for power over other members of her family, Sonia Dresdel turns in a magnificent performance. The folks over whom she spreads her perverse domination in the Val Valentine screenplay are Walter Fitzgerald, her husband; Barbara White, her daughter, and Emrys Jones, her son. After a series of minor demonstrations of mettlesome power by Miss Dresdel, her appetite over-reaches itself. She finally poisons her husband and is ultimately exposed and discredited by her son. A romance between Miss White and Julian Dallas is worked into the story background. Marcel Hellman produced from a play by Joan Morgan. Tim Whelan directed.

even though restricted to a considerable extent.

Announcement by the government probably will be made in New York Federal Court, possibly this week, when a motion to modify the decree is heard. The move to modify has been made by Abner Greenberg, attorney and composer-member of Ascap, who is raising objections to Ascap's method of allocating voting power to its local members commensurate with the royalties they collect.

The Department is expected to oppose the motion on the grounds that it alone is assigned to protect the public's interest in such matters, similarly as it objected to the presence of intervenors in the Paramount case.

The new decree would be the outgrowth of both the New York and Minneapolis Federal Court decisions against the society, holding it to be in violation of U. S. trust laws and necessitating changes in the 1941 decree.

After several postponements, Greenberg's motion was scheduled to be heard yesterday before Federal Judge James Conger here. The jurist, however, referred it to Judge Henry W. Goddard, who presided over the government-Ascap suit which ended in the decree in 1941.

Eliminate SRO Field Staff; Await E-L Deal

Selznick Releasing Organization's field sales staff, which for some time has been operating at reduced size, will be eliminated entirely as of this week except for its executives, it was indicated by SRO here yesterday.

It is understood, meanwhile, that the deal for Eagle-Lion to reissue several of David O. Selznick's older productions and take over "tail end" selling of his more recent pictures has been virtually concluded on the Coast, although contracts have not yet been signed.

Ideal Pictures' Officers

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Marion E. Harvey is chairman of the board of Ideal Pictures Corp., and Martha M. Rath and S. J. Sperberg, have been named vice-presidents. Elmer R. Willoughby was named president, Sperberg, treasurer, and Charles S. Harvey, secretary.

case tried last Dec. 10 in the U. S. Tax Court in Cleveland, before Judge C. R. Arundel. Latter action had been brought on petition of George A. Manos, Louise E. Manos, his wife, and Manos Amusements, Inc., against the Collector of Internal Revenue, on petition to review assessments and deficiencies in income taxes paid and penalties for the years 1937-39 as to George Manos, and for the years 1940-41 as to Manos Amusements. Both are defendants in the above percentage actions, which have been pending in Federal court here.

John S. Pyke, of the Cleveland law firm of Jones, Day, Cockley and Reavis, and Edward H. Leland, attorney of Columbus, O., appeared for the distributor plaintiffs. William M. Knepper, attorney of Columbus, represented the defendants.

M.&P. Candy Firm to Operate on Its Own

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—As a result of Paramount's M. and P. Theatres divestiture, Standard Candies Corp., formerly operated by M. and P. will not be connected in any way with either New England or American Theatres, but will operate as a candy jobber on its own.

Standard Accessories, also formerly operated by M. and P. will continue to service American and New England Theatres, as well as Maine and New Hampshire theatres.

Standard Theatre Supply Co., formerly operated by M. and P. will also continue to service American and New England theatre corporations.

Floods Shut Houses

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Harry Lamont's Strand Theatre in Philmont reopened today after a four-day shutdown caused by water in the boiler room during flood rains in this area last weekend. The rains also forced closing of Warners' Troy in Troy for New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, while Warner's Madison here closed last Friday afternoon because of a power failure.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Carter Barron, Loew district manager here, and George Crouch, Warner district chief, will serve as vice-chairmen of the Washington area's motion picture committee for "Brotherhood Week," Feb. 20-27, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Eric Johnston, Motion Picture Association of America president, is chairman of the local group.

Other members of the committee are Louis Bernheimer, Julian Brylawski, Jake Flax, George M. Dorsey, William R. Hoyle, Fred B. Kogod, Frank La Falce, Sidney Lust, Hardie Meakin, William Michalson and Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller.

Walker Receives the 1948 Laetare Medal

Frank C. Walker, former U. S. Postmaster General and head of Comerford Circuit, received yesterday afternoon at private ceremonies at his home here the University of Notre Dame's Laetare Medal for 1948 for his services to the government during World War II. Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York presented the award to Walker in the presence of the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, CSC, president of Notre Dame, and members of the recipient's immediate family.

Father Cavanaugh paid tribute to Walker for his work "during a period when our government had need of wise counsel and forthright decisions from patriotic and unselfish citizens." Walker, the 66th recipient of the annual award, is a graduate of Notre Dame College of Law, class of 1909. He received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the university in 1934.

upon all parties involved, including the producers; therefore, despite any earlier doubts I might have had. I am now convinced that there was no collusion or conspiracy on the part of the industry in the Hollywood jurisdictional dispute."

The report said that the decision of the industry to keep open the studios in the face of the "ultimatum of the IATSE on Aug. 22, 1946 and of the carpenters on Sept. 11, 1946, was a matter of business judgment which, in the testimony of Eric Johnston, was one which the producers, themselves reponsible to the employes, the stockholders and distributors, had to make in the face of the ultimatum of the carpenters.

Review Difficulties Studios Faced

A cessation of operations would have thrown thousands of employes out of work and subjected the producers to continuing liability under their contracts with actors, directors and theatre companies. It was also apparent that the possibility of settling the jurisdictional dispute within the framework of the AFL was highly unlikely. Having made their decision to attempt to operate, the studios were faced with the difficulty of planning operations in view of the uncertainty as to whether or not, after a set was completed, any carpenters or painters would work on it despite their contractual obligations. The program for ascertaining the intentions of individual employes undoubtedly penalized many of them, yet the situation was precarious because of the possibility of violence at the studios."

Kearns said the AFL "is a union of unions, and how this great American labor institution can tolerate the policy of allowing men and women of their affiliate unions to take the jobs of other men and women of other affiliates is more than I can fathom, especially when such action is in direct violation of the AFL's allocations with respect to jurisdiction."

He declared that he extended his sympathy to the thousands of workers who lost their jobs and "they are not the only losers; the industry as a whole lost the services of thousands of loyal employes whose skill and experience were an integral part in the phenomenal growth of this great American industry. It is highly possible that this strife would never have occurred had the Labor-Management Relations Act of 1947 been in existence at that time."

The two members who signed the report recommended that the AFL "try to make amends in the motion picture industry dispute, even at this late date." Presumably this meant by clearly and definitely defining jurisdiction in the industry.

Urge AFL Handle Problem

Kearns and Landis said also that the AFL should continue its recent program for settling jurisdictional conflicts, and that Congress should "take all steps within its power to insure that this sort of thing should never, never happen again."

The report did not go into the role of Communism in the strike, nor whether CSU chief Herbert K. Sorrell had been telling the truth when he denied Communist party membership during the committee's hearings here. Kearns said that "there just wasn't enough in the record to warrant any conclusions on this."

In its introductory sections, the report pointed out that jurisdictional disputes have existed in the studios since the industry was born. It said many of the employes can never recoup the financial losses they have suffered as a result, and even worse was the damage to their morale. "The genesis of this long and bitter fratricidal war lies in the overlapping jurisdictions of the international unions affiliated with the AFL and the negligence of the parent organization to provide for the compromise or enforced arbitration of differences which arise between its affiliates."

Stresses Industry's Importance

The report stressed the influence of the motion picture industry on the country, and the economic importance of the industry. It said that the "rapid growth of the industry was very largely responsible for its labor difficulties."

The report summarized the testimony of top AFL officials, and quoted at great length from the minutes of the producers' meetings at which the decisions to discharge the carpenters and use IATSE members were involved.

Committee Cites DeMille As Symbol of Industry's Rise

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The House Labor sub-committee's report on the Hollywood jurisdictional dispute contains a tribute to producer Cecil B. DeMille.

Stressing the rapid growth of the industry, the report says this growth "can be illustrated more easily than it can be described." The illustration is DeMille.

The report points out that his first studio was a barn, for which he paid a rental of $25 a month and where he produced films for an average cost of $20,000. On the other hand, says the report, "Unconquered," DeMille's latest, cost $5,000,000.

MPAA's O'Hara Terms House Unit's Report 'Gratifying'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. — Joyce O'Hara, executive assistant to Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, said today that "it is gratifying to learn" that the House Committee "after a full and fair hearing, found that 'there was no collusion or conspiracy on the part of the motion picture industry.'"

"This has always been our contention," he said.

Cleveland Local Elects

CLEVELAND, Jan. 4. — IATSE local No. 5 has reelected Edward Graves to serve as president for the fourth consecutive term. Elected to serve with him are: vice-president, Leah Goldman; financial secretary, Marie Roessell; recording secretary, Anne Friedman; sergeant-at-arms, Frank Musto; business agent, John C. Wein.

Trustees are: Grace Dolphin, Charles Button and Arthur Ehrlich, with Frances Kates, Button, Nate Gerson, Graves, Margaret Macsay and Dolores Daminski composing the executive board. Graves and Wein were named delegates to the Cleveland Federation of Labor and also convention delegates.

Congress Gets 4 Bills to Cut Tax

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Four bills calling for a reduction in the 20 per cent Federal admission tax to the prewar 10 per cent were dropped in the House hopper yesterday when the 81st Congress got under way.

Authors were Representatives Coer (D., Miss.), Dingell (D., Mich.), O'Toole (D., N. Y.) and McDonough (R., Cal.).

A total of 570 bills were introduced in the House in its first day. Representatives Powell (D., N. Y.) and Dawson (D., Ill.) introduced perennial bills to prohibit racial discrimination in theatres in the District of Columbia, while Rep. Patman (D., Tex.), moved for the continuation of the House Small Business Committee as a special committee.

Warner's home office on Friday with "IA" and distributor negotiating committees in an attempt to break the impasse.

It is believed in labor circles here that a strike vote will be ordered at the weekend since little or no hope exists on either side that Stone will be able to resolve the existing differences. The companies turned down "IA's" demands for a 15 per cent general wage increase for the exchange workers and a cut in the work week from 40 to 35 hours. According to the managements "raises are not in order at this time."

An exchange workers' strike would make it virtually impossible for theatres to secure product, and even if they were able to get product under strike conditions, it is regarded as certain that the "IA" projectionists in theatres would refuse to work.

Under the Taft-Hartley Law, a 60-day "cooling-off" period is required following a strike vote.

Resume 'Collarite' Parleys

Representatives of AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63, CIO's Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild, and six distributors will meet at the National Labor Relations Board here today in a further attempt to bring about a quick settlement of the dispute between the two unions for jurisdictional control of home office "white collarites."

Operators Name Feiling

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 4. — Charles Feiling has been named business agent of the Minneapolis operators' union, succeeding John Winslow, who refused another term. Wood Smith and Frank Rogers were elected president and vice-president, respectively, for second terms. The new board comprises Feiling, Smith, Wallace Yutzy, Drew Rogers and Francis May. Joe Elewood is treasurer and Ken Cummings secretary.

VOL. 65. NO. 4 NEW YORK, U.S.A., THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1949 TEN CENTS

Government Is Interested In Losses Abroad

South African Edict Costs $2,225,000 Yearly

U. S. State Department has expressed itself as being "vitally interested" in the foreign affairs of the industry in conversations with film representatives who have been in Washington recently protesting South Africa's edict sharply curtailing dollar remittances.

The government's attitude was said here yesterday to be "encouraging" but to what extent it will assert itself in film trade relations with foreign countries must await further study by the Department.

Fair treatment throughout the world for the U. S. companies is the hope of the State Department, but in dealing with any one country, such as South Africa, Department aides reportedly want assurances that all firms here will benefit equally.

Earlier this week, Ellis Arnall,

First Meeting on U. K. Trade Study

London, Jan. 5.—Lord Portal's committee enquiring into distribution and exhibition in the British industry held its first meeting today, concerning itself largely with the procedure to be followed in making its study.

It is anticipated that the committee's study will require about two months' time before it begins preparation of its report for the government.

Goldman Again Asks Cross-Licensing Ban or Divestiture

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—A new motion asking U. S. District Court Judge William Kirkpatrick to reconsider his previous ruling and order either the divestiture of Warner and 20th Century-Fox theatres here or a ban on cross-licensing by the local theatres of those companies was filed today by William Goldman.

A similar application was made by Goldman last June 23 and was denied by Judge Kirkpatrick.

In renewing his motion, Goldman introduces new documentary and other evidence intended to show difficulties encountered in obtaining product for Goldman's Erlanger Theatre here.

Goldman alleges that United Artists last March 9 requested a bid from him for the Philadelphia first-run of "Arch of Triumph," and that on the same day Warner's Boyd Theatre, at which the picture eventually played,

Refuses to Dismiss Percentage Suits

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 5.—Federal Court Judge Ben Moore yesterday refused to dismiss 15 percentage actions pending here, the court denying motions by various exhibitor defendants to dismiss each action for lack of Federal jurisdiction, overruling contentions that the various distributor plaintiffs had failed to show that each suit reasonably involved a controversy of more than $3,000.

Bulk of the opinion was devoted to the jurisdictional question, the court

U. K. Theatre Video Agreement Stymied

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Suspension of all discussions with British Broadcasting Co. on the proposed television agreement with the motion picture industry was decided upon today by the joint committee of exhibitors, distributors and producers, until both sides have considered further the implications of the proposals.

J. Arthur Rank's interests clearly desire an early agreement which will permit the pick-up of BBC programs on large-screen theatre television in return for making old films available to BBC. However, independent exhibitors now feel that the proposals concede too much to BBC in return for too little for the average theatre in this country.

Aaron Joins 20th-Fox

Andy W. Smith, Jr., general sales manager of 20th Century-Fox, has appointed Edwin W. Aaron circuit sales manager of the company, effective next Monday. The post is a newly-created one.

Aaron formerly was assistant general sales manager of MGM, from which company he resigned recently. He started in the industry 31 years ago in the auditing department of Metro, installed an accounting system in the Metro exchanges, and later became traveling auditor, then manager of the company's contract department at the home office. In 1931 he was named assistant to Metro's general sales manager, in 1943 he was appointed circuit sales manager and three years later was promoted to the position of assistant general sales manager.

Films Intemperate, Say Temperates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A boycott of "liquor soaked" films was urged on the American Temperance Society's convention here today.

E. W. Dunbar, youth leader for the Seventh-Day Adventists, told the convention that, "if the public would boycott these pictures, conditions would be cleaned up."

"Authorities in Hollywood tell us that about 90 per cent of feature films contain liquor propaganda, inserted either consciously or inadvertently," Dunbar said. "Movie-makers defend these figures on the grounds that their pictures must be 'true to life.' The situation might perhaps be better clarified by investigating the liquor lobby in Hollywood."

His State of the Union Message Also Asks for A $4-Billion Tax Rise

By J. A. OTTEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Here are some of the powers and legislation affecting the film industry requested by President Truman in his "State of the Union" message today, and the prospects for Congressional action on them:

Anti-Trust Laws: The message asked Congress to strengthen the anti-trust laws by "closing loopholes to prevent monopolistic mergers and consolidations." Congress probably will pass the Kefauver Bill, barring one firm from acquiring the physical assets of another where the result tends to lessen competition substantially. At present, the law only bars acquisition of stock in such cases. Other anti-trust legislation will probably wait on future requests from the Administration.

Taxes: The President asked for a $4,000,000,000 increase in government tax revenues, mostly from corporations and higher income-bracket indi-

Truman Telecast on N. Y. Para. Screen

Another first in theatre television was marked here yesterday when Paramount flashed President Truman's "State of the Union" message from Washington to the screen of the New York Paramount Theatre. Their response grew marked, and at two points during the President's speech, rounds of spontaneous applause broke out. The

Trading Is Light In Film Stocks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Officers and directors of film companies reported small, scattered stock transactions for the period between Nov. 11 and Dec. 10, 1948, according to the latest SEC report on trading by "insiders."

Columbia vice-president Jack Cohn reduced the holdings of his trusts by 2,000 shares, leaving 20,157 shares in trust accounts. His personal holdings were unchanged, at 49,168 shares. Albert Warner bought 300 shares of Warner Pictures $5 par common, increasing his holdings to 444,500, with another 21,000 shares in trust. Republic director Edwin Van Pelt bought 1,000 shares of Republic 50-cent par common, increasing his holdings to 3,600 shares, while Arthur J. Miller sold his holdings of 100 Republic shares.

Paramount vice-president Leonard Goldenson bought 500 shares, making his holdings 1,100. Another 1,000 shares are held by him jointly. William Clark gave away his entire holdings of RKO stock, 76 shares of common, and warrants for another 730 shares. At Monogram, Sam Wolf sold 1,633 shares of common, dropping his holdings to 2,500 shares.

Herbert E. Herman bought 100 shares of Trans Lux Corp. common, for a total of 5,200 shares. Loew's, Inc., bought 458 shares of Loew's Boston Theatres common, boosting its holdings to 123,721 shares. Noah Dietrich, new RKO officer, said that as of Oct. 30, he held no RKO stock.

UA Finance Meeting May Shift to N. Y.

Meeting of United Artists co-owners Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin with a special board committee appointed to study means of bolstering independent production with financial assists may shift to New York. Miss Pickford, Chaplin and George Bagnall, production vice-president, have arranged for transportation from the Coast for the weekend but a change of plans is not unlikely.

The finance group, consisting of Charles Schwartz, E. C. Mills, Harold Weill and Vitalis Chalif, met here yesterday to exchange views on the monetary problems.

Meeting with the owners on the Coast had been set for Jan. 17. However, a board meeting is scheduled for here next Tuesday which could further prompt Miss Pickford and Chaplin to come here instead.

Wyman Donates Prize

Jane Wyman, whose performance in Warner's "Johnny Belinda" won her a $4,000 award from the London Daily Express as "the actress of the year," is using the award money to establish a scholarship in the British Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts, Warner's home office disclosed here yesterday.

N. E. Theatres Meets

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—New England Theatres today held its first executive meeting since the divestiture from Paramount at the Hotel Statler here.

A Tribute That Is Rare, Indeed

Detroit, Jan. 5.—Sam Carver, president of Detroit Consolidated Theatres, and other theatre owners with whom he associates, have chosen Helen Bower of the Detroit Free Press, their favorite screen and drama critic.

Carver, in a letter to Miss Bower, wrote, "Your criticisms carry more wholesomeness and value than many others who review pictures in our daily newspapers. Many theatre owners in Detroit put a lot of confidence in your stories and at our meetings you hear many pleasant remarks about you and your excellent criticisms."

Drive for Kranze's Anniversary at F-C

In observance of his first year with Film Classics as sales vice-president, all company division and branch heads will promote "B. G. Kranze Playdate Months" during February and March.

The following new pictures will be highlighted: "Furia," "For You I Die," "Money Madness," "Devil's Cargo," "Women in the Night," "Will It Happen Again?" "Argyle Secrets," "Blonde Ice," "Appointment with Murder," "Miraculous Journey," "Sofia," "Sleeper" and "Unknown Island."

Rank Office on the Coast Is Closed

The Hollywood office of the J. Arthur Rank Organization has been closed and its functions absorbed by the New York office, a spokesman for the organization admitted here yesterday.

The Coast office had been maintained for contact with the Production Code Administration on scripts for new Rank productions and for Hollywood talent and story scouting.

Gundelfinger to UK On Cinecolor 'Lab'

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—Alan Gundelfinger, Cinecolor vice-president, will leave here for England within 10 days for further conferences on establishment of a Cinecolor laboratory there, it has been announced following his report to the board of directors on a survey made last October.

SMPE at Army 'Lab'

Tonight's Atlantic Coast section meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers will feature an inspection tour of the U. S. Army Signal Corps Photographic Center in Astoria, Long Island. Prior to the tour, Erwin Oeller, chief of the laboratory branch of the center will read a paper describing the new motion picture laboratory and its facilities.

MGM Streamlines Field Operations

Streamlining of operations in its various key city branches and discussions of operational problems and system routine are highlighting the four-day M-G-M field auditors meetings which are slated to wind up here today at the Astor Hotel, according to Alan F. Cummings, in charge of exchange operations. The meetings will be followed by a day of home office sessions tomorrow after which the field men will return to their respective territories. Harold Postman, assistant to Cummings, is jointly conducting the sessions with Cummings.

Attending from the field are Charles Fogle, maintenance supervisor; and the following traveling auditors; John J. Ash, Charles Bell, Oliver Broughton, Lawrence J. Callahan, Carl Gentzel, Willard Gillilan, Harry Simons and Edward Urschell.

Cohen Holding Drive Meet in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Jan. 5.—Milton E. Cohen, Eagle-Lion Eastern sales manager, and his assistant, Saul Krugman, have arrived here from New York for a two-day series of conferences on the "Jack Schlaifer Testimonial Drive," now in its fifth week. While here they will meet with circuit executives, independent exhibitors and local exchange personnel headed by Robert Richardson, branch manager. Schlaifer is E-L's general sales manager.

As drive captain, Cohen is holding meetings in most of Eagle-Lion's 31 exchanges.

To Present Awards For Video Jan. 25

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—First annual awards banquet and seminar of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences will be held at the Hollywood Athletic Club on Jan. 25, with seven speakers, including Hal Roach, Jr., president of Television Film Producers Association, surveying video problems during morning and afternoon sessions. Awards will be presented during the banquet.

Winner of the plaque for best overall video achievement in 1948 will be selected by the Academy's membership by next Monday.

Syd Cassyd will be chairman of the seminar. Other speakers will include Al Wager and Bernard Tabakin of Music Corp. of America; Paul Lewis, vice-president of Darcy Advertising Agency; Leonard Ericson, vice-president of Kenyon and Eckhart Agency, and Mike Stokey of Stokey and Ebert.

Rieger in Video Field

Trinity Pictures, headed by Jack Rieger, a producer-distributor, has expanded into the television production-distribution field, and established new quarters at 729 Seventh Avenue, New York.

Trading Is Light In Film Stocks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Officers and directors of film companies reported small, scattered stock transactions for the period between Nov. 11 and Dec. 10, 1948, according to the latest SEC report on trading by "insiders."

Columbia vice-president Jack Cohn reduced the holdings of his trusts by 2,000 shares, leaving 20,157 shares in trust accounts. His personal holdings were unchanged, at 49,168 shares. Albert Warner bought 300 shares of Warner Pictures $5 par common, increasing his holdings to 444,500, with another 21,000 shares in trust. Republic director Edwin Van Pelt bought 1,000 shares of Republic 50-cent par common, increasing his holdings to 3,600 shares, while Arthur J. Miller sold his holdings of 100 Republic shares.

Paramount vice-president Leonard Goldenson bought 500 shares, making his holdings 1,100. Another 1,000 shares are held by him jointly. William Clark gave away his entire holdings of RKO stock, 76 shares of common, and warrants for another 730 shares. At Monogram, Sam Wolf sold 1,633 shares of common, dropping his holdings to 2,500 shares.

Herbert E. Herman bought 100 shares of Trans Lux Corp. common, for a total of 5,200 shares. Loew's, Inc., bought 458 shares of Loew's Boston Theatres common, boosting its holdings to 123,721 shares. Noah Dietrich, new RKO officer, said that as of Oct. 30, he held no RKO stock.

UA Finance Meeting May Shift to N. Y.

Meeting of United Artists co-owners Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin with a special board committee appointed to study means of bolstering independent production with financial assists may shift to New York. Miss Pickford, Chaplin and George Bagnall, production vice-president, have arranged for transportation from the Coast for the weekend but a change of plans is not unlikely.

The finance group, consisting of Charles Schwartz, E. C. Mills, Harold Weill and Vitalis Chalif, met here yesterday to exchange views on the monetary problems.

Meeting with the owners on the Coast had been set for Jan. 17. However, a board meeting is scheduled for here next Tuesday which could further prompt Miss Pickford and Chaplin to come here instead.

Wyman Donates Prize

Jane Wyman, whose performance in Warner's "Johnny Belinda" won her a $4,000 award from the London Daily Express as "the actress of the year," is using the award money to establish a scholarship in the British Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts, Warner's home office disclosed here yesterday.

N. E. Theatres Meets

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—New England Theatres today held its first executive meeting since the divestiture from Paramount at the Hotel Statler here.

A Tribute That Is Rare, Indeed

Detroit, Jan. 5.—Sam Carver, president of Detroit Consolidated Theatres, and other theatre owners with whom he associates, have chosen Helen Bower of the Detroit Free Press, their favorite screen and drama critic.

Carver, in a letter to Miss Bower, wrote, "Your criticisms carry more wholesomeness and value than many others who review pictures in our daily newspapers. Many theatre owners in Detroit put a lot of confidence in your stories and at our meetings you hear many pleasant remarks about you and your excellent criticisms."

Drive for Kranze's Anniversary at F-C

In observance of his first year with Film Classics as sales vice-president, all company division and branch heads will promote "B. G. Kranze Playdate Months" during February and March.

The following new pictures will be highlighted: "Furia," "For You I Die," "Money Madness," "Devil's Cargo," "Women in the Night," "Will It Happen Again?" "Argyle Secrets," "Blonde Ice," "Appointment with Murder," "Miraculous Journey," "Sofia," "Sleeper" and "Unknown Island."

Rank Office on the Coast Is Closed

The Hollywood office of the J. Arthur Rank Organization has been closed and its functions absorbed by the New York office, a spokesman for the organization admitted here yesterday.

The Coast office had been maintained for contact with the Production Code Administration on scripts for new Rank productions and for Hollywood talent and story scouting.

Gundelfinger to UK On Cinecolor 'Lab'

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—Alan Gundelfinger, Cinecolor vice-president, will leave here for England within 10 days for further conferences on establishment of a Cinecolor laboratory there, it has been announced following his report to the board of directors on a survey made last October.

SMPE at Army 'Lab'

Tonight's Atlantic Coast section meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers will feature an inspection tour of the U. S. Army Signal Corps Photographic Center in Astoria, Long Island. Prior to the tour, Erwin Oeller, chief of the laboratory branch of the center will read a paper describing the new motion picture laboratory and its facilities.

Canada's Ban on Equipment to End

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—Canada's foreign-exchange emergency is now considered over and is expected to be formally concluded during the 1949 session of Parliament which will open on Jan. 26, according to political intimations in authoritative quarters.

The move will lift the ban on imports of projection machines and theatre equipment generally.

Provisions of the foreign-exchange conservation order, invoked in Nov., 1947, are scheduled to be terminated by amendment of the Transitional Measures Act before March 31, the close of the government's fiscal year, and remaining barriers and controls will cease 60 days later. The only import restrictions to be continued are those controlling the buying of steel from the United States.

Import permits or embargoes on goods from the United States will be generally dropped next spring, it is promised, because the conservation of dollars is no longer considered primarily essential.

Due to the intervention of the Motion Picture Association of America there has not been any restriction on film imports from the U. S. nor a freezing of Canadian film-rental revenue. The abandonment of Canada's austerity program will ease the threat of film-import controls.

French Films Rated Tops in the U. S.

Survey of the preferences of foreign film fans, just completed by Foreign Films News, reveals that French, Italian, British and Swedish-made pictures are preferred in that order. The report brought out that the favorite all-time foreign film was "The Baker's Wife," with "The Lower Depths," "The Eternal Mask" and "Lucrezia Borgia" as the three foreign films which most would like to see again.

Advance Mexican Meet

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5. — Annual meeting here of the Mexican Exhibitors Association will be held Jan. 12 to 14 instead of Jan. 19 to 21, as was announced originally, in order to accommodate President Miguel Aleman, who has accepted Association president Francisco Sumohane's invitation to open the convention.

Plan 'Mounties' Series

OTTAWA, Jan. 5.— Max M. King Film Productions of Hollywood will produce the first of a series of films, entitled "Scarlet and Gold," on the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. To be written by Art Arthur, a native of Canada, it will be filmed here in part, starting next spring.

Exhibitors Protest

an American feature in support of a British picture on double bills.

Seeking elucidation of numerous practical difficulties, the exhibitors' delegation was assured that MPAA desires complete amicability in the operation of the plan and was promised that any valid exhibitor grievances would be remedied. W. R. Fuller, who headed the exhibitor delegation, will so inform the CEA's general council at its next meeting.

Review

"The Fighting O'Flynn"

(Universal-International)

ACCORDING to this swashbuckling tale of adventure, romance and intrigue starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., it was a hearty, shillelagh-toting Irishman by the name of The O'Flynn of O'Flynn who saved England in 1797 from being invaded by Napoleon's armies. But he didn't do it for the love of England. No, it was really for love of a pretty English maiden, the daughter of the Viceroy of Ireland (Helena Carter) whom he set about wooing with loyalty, blarney, and Irish humor immediately upon meeting her. She was in the thick of a plot to defeat another plot to make Napoleon's invasion possible. The Emperor had picked Ireland for his base of operations against England.

Action fans will find "The Fighting O'Flynn" right up their alley, what with all the roughing, swordplay and chasing that is involved before O'Flynn wins the lady's heart and hand. Matter of fact, anybody who is looking for an hour-and-a-half of first-rate escapist entertainment should find it here. Good business appears to be in the offing for this Fairbanks Company production which Arthur Pierson directed from a script by Fairbanks and Robert Thoeren.

Fairbanks, although not too handy with a brogue, turns out a winning portrayal of the title role in terms of action and bounce; Miss Carter makes a desirable object of his affection; Richard Greene is appropriately dastardly as a traitorous English commander and Patricia Medina lends touches of broad farce to a whimsical yarn with her portrayal of a superstitious colleen who spend much of her acting time on Greene's lap.

Running time, 94 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

Losses Abroad

president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, and James Mulvey, president of Samuel Goldwyn Productions, sought active representation by the State Department when they conferred with Washington officials. Arnall left the capital for his home in Atlanta yesterday, and will return there next week, probably Monday, for further discussions. Mulvey is back in New York.

Harmon Also a Visitor

Other recent visitors at the State Department were Francis Harmon, vice-president of the Motion Picture Association of America, whose intended trek to Johannesburg has been called off, and Robert J. Rubin, SIMPP counsel.

Meanwhile, it has become known that the new South African restrictions, if sustained, will mean the loss of $2,225,000 annually to American producers. Moreover, it means a virtually immediate halt to all dollar remittances for the balance of the 1948-'49 season.

The edict directs that South African importers may send out of the country exactly one-half the amount of dollars which they sent in 1947. The order became effective on July 1, 1948. Companies here already have received their dollar allotment for the current year.

$4,500,000 for U. S. Companies

South Africa normally produced dollar revenue of $4,500,000 for American companies.

The matter has further complications in that only four major film importers operate in South Africa, these being the Schlesinger company, Loew's, 20th Century-Fox and United Artists. Remittances heretofore were of course based on the earnings of each film. The new problems will present themselves in the selection of films by the four importers.

'Eternal Husband' Opens

American premiere of "The Eternal Husband," a French production based on a Dostoievsky story and starring the late Raimu, will be held Saturday at the Elysee Theatre here, Vog Film Co. has announced.

41 Monogram Films Produced in 1948

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5. — Forty-one Monogram films were produced during 1948, it was announced here by Steve Broidy, president.

The list included productions in the Bowery Boys, Charlie Chan, Joe Palooka, Jiggs and Maggie, Johnny Mack Brown and Jimmy Wakely series, and such individual pictures as "Tuna Clipper," "Kidnapped," "Riverboat Rhythm," "I Wouldn't Be in Your Shoes," "Bomba, the Jungle Boy," "Henry, the Rainmaker," and "Incident."

Rites Tomorrow for Thomas Namack, 80

A requiem Mass will be sung in Corpus Christi Church here tomorrow for Thomas Namack, former Warner publicist, who died Monday in Lenox Hill Hospital at the age of 80. Namack, a publicist for some 50 years, was also director of newspaper publicity for the Actors Fund of America and served as agent for leading theatrical personalities. Burial will take place in Ellenville, N. Y.

Former 'U' Aide Dies

Morris Joseph, formerly branch manager for Universal in New Haven until his retirement in 1941, died in Miami last Friday after a long illness, according to word received by U-I in New York yesterday. Joseph was with Universal for 28 years. He is survived by the widow and a daughter.

Hope on 28-City Tour

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—Bob Hope and a troupe of 40, including his radio show personnel, left Hollywood last night in a chartered plane for Fort Worth, Texas, on the first leg of a 25-day cross country tour which will include appearances in some 28 cities.

Cold Hits Grosses

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 5.—Theatre grosses have dropped in some smaller cities in the Utah exchange territory as a result of the record-breaking cold and heavy snow.

Theatre Popcorn Useage Increases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—U. S. popcorn production last year was the second highest on record, almost three times as large as 1947 production, the U. S. Agriculture Department reports. This was due in large part to increased use by film theatres.

Department officials believe the near-record crop will mean a slump in prices of packaged popcorn in the spring. The Department said that growers in the 12 chief popcorn-producing states produced nearly 293,160,000 pounds last year, compared with 102,000,000 in 1947.

3 E-L Exploiteers Tie for 1st Prize

Three Eagle-Lion field exploiteers have tied for first place in the promotion contest held in connection with the company's William Heineman sales drive, it was announced here yesterday by Max E. Youngstein, advertising-publicity vice-president. The exploiteers involved and the films are: Max Miller, for "The Red Shoes"; Milt Overman, "Canon City" and "Mickey," and Bob Goodfried, for "He Walked by Night." Each will receive identical first place awards of $250.

Second and third prizes, $150 and $100, respectively, went to Joe Mansfield and Addie Addison, both for promoting "Canon City."

12 Co-ed Contests Set by 20th-Fox

A contest to determine the 12 institutions of higher learning which have the most beautiful and talented freshman co-eds is being sponsored by 20th Century-Fox in connection with its Technicolor film "Mother Is A Freshman." Some 257 college and university editors were asked to cast votes. The 12 contests will be conducted during simultaneous premiere festivities which will be held in the college towns selected.

The grand prize winner will be given a trip to Hollywood.

Studio Employment Off Slightly in Nov.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5. — Studio employment slumped in November, according to the California Bureau of Labor Statistics, dropping to 74.2 per cent from October's 77.1 on the index maintained by the Bureau which regards the 1940 average as 100.

November a year ago indexed 86. Weekly earnings in November averaged $95.69, comparing with October's $98.67.

B'nai B'rith to Meet

Highlighting its 1948-49 membership drive, New York's Cinema Lodge of B'nai B'rith will hold a membership meeting at the Hotel Plaza here Sunday morning, S. Arthur Glixon, president of the lodge, has announced.

Truman Message

vidual taxpayers. He did not urge any excise tax cuts. Nor was he specific in how the business taxes were to be increased. No mention was made of an excess profits tax. The Administration later will outline its specific tax plans. Congress will likely temporize on increasing taxes while it surveys the economy, then late in the session increase taxes some, although not as much as asked by the President. An excess profits tax finds little favor on Capitol Hill; most likely is a boost in the regular corporate tax rate, possibly some boosts in the higher individual tax brackets. If any excises are cut, they will likely be those on transportation and communications, not on levies like the admissions tax.

Labor: The Taft-Hartley law will be repealed and a new labor law enacted, probably after some months of hearings and debate. The new law will continue restrictions on jurisdictional strikes, but the present law's requirement for an NLRB election before a union shop can be certified will definitely go and its ban on the closed shop will probably be scrapped. Non-Communist affidavits may be kept on a voluntary basis. House Labor Committee chairman Lesinski promises to have his bill ready by the end of January.

Business Controls: The President asked for broader powers to channel key materials, including steel, and indicated these powers would be used to channel materials into housing and other key needs. There will be a big scrap in Congress on giving the President any more powers than he has already in this field. It is still too early for theatre owners and others planning expansion to worry that they may not be able to get steel or other materials as a result of such controls. The attitude of Congress on this will not be plain for many months.

Social Security: The President asked for the program to be expanded, both as to coverage and size of benefits. This will probably be done, although only a limited bill may be enacted during this session, and the more comprehensive bill will go over until next year. In the background of an expanded Social Security program is an almost certain boost in Social Security payroll taxes.

Minimum Wages: Congress will almost certainly lift the minimum wage from the present 40-cent level, though perhaps not as high as the 75 cents asked by Truman.

81st to Stay Clear Of Hollywood Labor

Washington, Jan. 5.—There will be nothing on the Hollywood studio labor picture from the 81st Congress. That is the word from Rep. John Lesinski, new Democratic chairman of the House Labor Committee.

"The Kearns report finishes it," he said. "That all died with the 80th Congress. I don't see anything more for us to do there" regarding Hollywood labor.

Truman Telecast

telecast continued the theatre's policy of bringing important news events to its screen as a feature of its regular entertainment program.

Although Truman began his speech at 1 P.M., it was not projected on the Paramount screen until 1:40, the theatre allowing the interlude to lapse in order to fit the telecast into its program. It is possible for the theatre to bring an event to its screen 20 seconds after it happens. The speech was transmitted from Washington by coaxial cable, and Paramount picked it up directly, using the same method as television stations in this area. Paramount then recorded the program on film.

The theatre pickup was a successful one in terms of reception and audience interest. The images were occasionally blurred and distorted, but this was not a sufficient shortcoming to overshadow the overall effect of the telecast.

Almost continuously throughout the telecast the cameras had the President focussed in one unchanged pattern, which led to a degree of visual monotony. It would suggest the need for the development of new techniques for theatre television. M. H.

Percentage Suits

pointing out that, separate and apart from the alleged flat rental damages and punitive damages, there was sufficient evidence in the supporting affidavit of Edward A. Sargoy, counsel for distributors, and not overcome by the mere denials of the exhibitors, to show that each suit was brought in good faith and that the claim for alleged withheld percentage fees would alone be sufficient to meet the jurisdictional requirements.

Judge Moore directed the distributor plaintiffs to file replies to the affirmative defense in defendants' answers that plaintiffs' claims are based on licensing agreements alleged to be "illegal and unenforceable." Upon the filing of the plaintiffs' reply, the court pointed out, it is probable that a further question will be presented as to whether or not recovery would be barred because of any alleged illegality of the licensing agreements. The jurist said: "I will therefore reserve decision upon plaintiff's pending motion (to inspect) until such time as it may appear that plaintiffs have the right to proceed with their actions, notwithstanding defendants' allegations with reference to the supposed illegality of the licensing agreements."

The suits involved eight actions by major distributors against Lloyd E. Rogers of Welch, W. Va., and associated corporations, and seven actions by the same distributors other than United Artists against Mannie Shore of War, W. Va. Judge Moore directed consolidation of the suits for the purpose of trial.

'Sarumba' Suit Motion

Defendants Mercury Film Laboratory, Eastern Sound Studios, and others, moved in New York Supreme Court yesterday for dismissal of the $150,000 damage action brought by George Quigley, Century Productions, and others, on charges that the film "Sarumba," produced by Century, was sold by Mercury to Eastern without having the right to do so. Mercury claims the film was sold to satisfy a lien. Court reserved decision.

Butterfield Files Loeks' Suit Denials

DETROIT, Jan. 5.—W. S. Butterfield Theatres, Inc., Butterfield Michigan Theatres Co. and Bijou Theatrical Enterprise Co., defendants in the suit brought by Jack Loeks Enterprises, Inc. of Grand Rapids involving runs and clearances in that city, filed their answer today in Federal District court here.

Their answer denies that they have in any way participated in a conspiracy or violated the Sherman and Clayton Anti-Trust Acts, upon which the plaintiff bases its cause of action. The defendants further denied the existence of any illegal agreements, conspiracy or desire to harm plaintiff's business.

Rules for Republic In Eastern Film Case

New York Supreme Court Justice Aaron Steuer yesterday denied from the bench the motion of Eastern Film Agency to enjoin Republic Pictures International Corp. from prosecuting legal proceedings which the latter had previously instituted against Eastern in Singapore.

Proceedings in Singapore will therefore be continued by Republic International to enjoin Eastern from distributing numerous pictures in the Straits Settlements, Federated Malay States, and North Borneo, in violation of Eastern contract, Republic stated here yesterday.

Astor Gets 'Doone'

Distribution rights, involving 35mm. and 16mm. as well as television, to A. T. P. Production's "Lorna Doone," have been acquired by Astor Pictures.

He interprets with light...

● This scene, from the moment of its conception, had dramatic possibilities. But it was the director of photography who made them more than possibilities.

His was the creative skill, the spectacular, interpretive use of light that produced actual drama, vivid, gripping . . . his the perceptive use of photography that made the scene an intense moment of visual reality.

To get the utmost from his special skill, his creative ability, the director of photography naturally wants a superior film, one on which he can depend, one perfectly suited to the conditions and circumstances under which he's working. That's why he so often prefers Eastman Plus-X for general studio and outdoor use . . . and why he turns to Eastman Super-XX for use under adverse lighting conditions.

Exhibitor Leaders Call Rally Here to Fight Adverse Bills

Metropolitan New York Motion Picture Theatres Association is rallying national and state industry leaders in exhibition to consider measures to combat a threatened onslaught of local admission taxes and other adverse legislation. A board of directors meeting called for Jan. 13 at the St. Moritz Hotel, New York, will start the legislative attack.

MMPTA has already directed an appeal to exhibitors through this state requesting them to be on the alert for the introduction of local admission tax legislation and to report any activity in this direction to the MMPTA or to any other association of which they are members.

MMPTA officials said they are hopeful that the meeting will result

N. Y. State Board Approves Revised Theatre Bldg. Code

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 6.—The New York State Board of Standards and Appeals has approved the revised building code applying to theatres and other places of public assembly. The action followed two years of drafting, public hearings and extensive consultations in which many theatre construction experts and other representatives from the motion picture industry presented their recommendations.

To be effective on May 1, 1949, the new code will replace the one which has been in effect for more than 25

Orders Revenue Men to Look for Irregularities Of Ticket Tax Evasion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue has officially ordered its tax collectors in the field to look into all distributor percentage suits against exhibitors as possible leads for admission tax evasion.

This follows the forecast made by Internal Revenue spokesmen that such action might be taken, as reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Dec. 21.

The theory finally adopted by the Bureau is that if some exhibitors understated their returns to distributors, they may also have underpaid Federal taxes.

A Bureau official said here today that local collectors would scrutinize trade and general newspapers for reports on distributor suits against exhibitors and would even check with local distributors. He said that the Bureau did not expect to have any

Bill Introduced to Control Mergers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Legislation to tighten government controls over mergers has been introduced in the Senate by Democrats O'Mahoney and Kefauver and in the House by Republican Philbin.

Solidly supported by the Administration, the measure is said to have excellent chances of passage this session. It would prevent one firm from acquiring the physical assets of another firm where the result be to lessen competition substantially. The anti-trust laws as present only bar acquisition of stock in such cases.

Zukor Hails Video as A Film Industry Boon

The contention that spreading enthusiasm for television eventually will spell disaster for the motion picture theatre business was described yesterday by Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board of Paramount as a mistaken belief. In Zukor's opinion, television will turn out actually to be a boon to theatre business in view of its capacity for increasing "appetites for worthwhile screen entertainment."

Adolph Zukor

Zukor, one of the "founding fathers" of the industry, who has an international reputation as "Hollywood's Ambassador of Good Will," will observe his 76th birthday today. For him it will be "just another day of work" in his office on the 11th floor of the Paramount Building here. A quiet celebration at his home, with members of his immediate family attending, will take place this evening.

The Paramount executive, who has "the same enthusiasm today for the film business" that he had when he started in it 37 years ago, warmed up yesterday to discussing films versus television. It was evident that he had been weighing this subject in his mind for some time.

"Just as headlines call attention to newspaper stories, so will television serve to create appetities for worthwhile screen entertainment rather than replace it," he declared. "But," he warned, "producers, exhibitors and publicists will have to get to work to

Winston Named RKO Theatre City Chief

Sol A. Schwartz, general manager of RKO Theatres, has promoted Ansel Winston, present manager of the Coliseum, New York, to Chicago city manager under Jerry Shinbach, division manager for that territory. The appointment will become effective on Wednesday.

Winston started with RKO as an usher in 1931 and has managed several RKO theatres in Metropolitan New York.

See Impasse Break In Exchange Talks

A break in the national exchange-union contract negotiations deadlock was indicated yesterday with a report that the distributors labor committee and IATSE international representatives will meet here again on Monday for settlement talks. Meanwhile, the meeting which commissioner L. A. Stone of the Federal Mediation Service was scheduled to hold with the negotiators at Warner's home office today has been "held in abeyance" pending the outcome of Monday's conference.

Included on the distributors' committee are: chairman Clarence Hill, 20th-Fox; Bernard Goodman, Warner; Henry Kaufman, Columbia; C. J. (Pat) Scollard, Paramount; Charles O'Brien, Loew; A. A. Shubart, RKO Radio; Harry Buckley, United Artists; G. J. Malafronte, Universal; Al Schiller, Republic.

"IA" negotiators, selected by president Richard F. Walsh, are: chairman Thomas J. Shea, assistant international president; vice-president Louise Wright, and international representative Joseph D. Basson.

Wanger Files Against 'U' on Release Deals

Producer Walter Wanger filed four suits in U. S. District Court here yesterday against Universal charging violation of terms of releasing deals for four pictures. Accountings of profits are sought.

Pictures cited were "Arabian Nights," "Eagle Squadron," "Gung Ho" and "Salome." Wanger alleges that under the releasing deals he was to get 50 per cent of gross profits, and contends that he did not receive his full share. He claims also that the company made unauthorized reissue deals for the films.

Universal executives here were not available for comment yesterday on Wanger's court action.

Three Premieres Are Set for N. Y. Palace

Set for the inauguration of a new first-run policy with "The Boy with Green Hair," in Technicolor, on Wednesday, Jan. 12, the RKO Palace here has also scheduled its following two premieres.

At the conclusion of "The Boy with Green Hair," "Station West" will open. Then, Walt Disney's new Technicolor film, "So Dear to My Heart," will make its New York debut.

Realart Franchise Holders Meet Here

Realart franchise holders conferred here this week with home office executives on sales problems and new releases. Budd Rogers, executive vice-president and general sales manager, presided. Others in attendance were Lee Goldberg, Joe Levine, Manny Stutz, Sam Krellberg, Bernie Mills, Nelson Wax, Carroll Puciato, general manager, and Bill Schulman, advertising-publicity director.

U.A. Meetings Revert To Coast on Jan. 17

Election of a board of directors of United Artists will be held at the annual stockholders meeting on the Coast on Jan. 17, as originally scheduled, it was disclosed here yesterday. Earlier it had been indicated that the meeting would shift to New York. On the same date the board will offer proposals for securing new production capital to the company's owners, Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin. Management's report to the owners will be given by Gradwell Sears, president; Arthur W. Kelly, executive vice-president, and George Bagnall, production vice-president.

Unlimited Loop Run Given to 'Hamlet'

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—J. Arthur Rank's "Hamlet," released by Universal-International, has won an unlimited extension for its current run here at the downtown Balaban and Katz Apollo Theatre. Under the two-week Loop restriction imposed by the Jackson Park decree, the film was previously granted a six-week extension for an eight-week run.

In this instance, however, and because of the nature and special handling required for "Hamlet," Judge Michael Igoe of U. S. District Court here had previously told U-I attorney Miles Seeley to submit a report on the success of the film when it neared completion of the run in the event added weeks were believed necessary. The picture, which has proved successful here, has been averaging nearly $18,000 a week.

W.B. Said Dropping 9 Field Exploiteers

Warner has dismissed its nine exploitation representatives in the field, according to reports received here from key cities. Dismissals are to be effective on Jan. 22, it is said.

Warner home office executives could not be reached for verification yesterday.

TOA Meet 'Informal'

"Informal discussions" on television and the setting of a preliminary agenda for the Jan. 28-29 Theatre Owners of America executive board meeting in Washington were held at a meeting here yesterday of TOA executive committee and board members. Arthur H. Lockwood, TOA president, who presided, returned last night to Boston.

Walbrook, Windsor In New Legal Action

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Still another suit was filed today in the complicated tangle between the Walbrook and Windsor theatres of Baltimore when the Windsor asked Baltimore District Court to enjoin the Walbrook, its companion Hilton Theatre, and Walbrook-Hilton president Thomas Goldberg from allegedly monopolizing neighborhood first-run films.

More important, it asks the court to require Goldberg to give up the Hilton on grounds that it is used only to undercut the Windsor. The Windsor already has a $600,000 damage suit against the same defendants in Baltimore, and a $600,000 damage and injunction suit against four major distributors in Washington District Court. The Baltimore suits are being brought following the dismissal of the Baltimore firms as defendants in the Washington action because they do not conduct business here.

The suit filed today in Baltimore has several odd features: Mrs. Thomas Goldberg is named as a defendant; the court is asked to impound any money received from the forced sale of the Hilton to pay the Windsor in the damage action; and the Windsor claims that the Walbrook is trying to take away some of the films the Windsor now gets from Columbia, Eagle-Lion, Monogram, Republic and other smaller producers as one ground for the injunction.

The Windsor has reached out-of-court settlements with 20th Century-Fox and Paramount, and the Walbrook has countered with a breach of contract suit against Fox. The Windsor recently filed a motion here asking permission to examine any correspondence the Walbrook had with Fox which cast aspersions on the Windsor. A Fox legal representative said the firm would probably file a brief early next week opposing this motion.

make that so." No longer can theatres depend solely on their marquees to do the job for them, Zukor said.

If television should emerge as more than ordinary competition for theatres, that would be no reason for discouragement in the industry, Zukor held. He said he has great faith in the spirit of competition. It "creates more business." Television will "create more business both for itself and for the motion picture industry," he predicted.

Zukor "loves baseball above all else." But, he reasoned in connection with his discussion of television competition, "I can't have baseball three times a day. I like a good prize fight, too." Thus, he concludes, people seeking entertainment will patronize both theatres and television.

The present "economic convulsion" in the industry Zukor described as "a natural consequence of an upset world." He reproached "those who sit around and wait for the industry's death." The industry has experienced business recessions before "and the storm always blows over," he said philosophically. As a "rational optimist" Zukor believes firmly that "faith, confidence and ability" will insure the motion picture industry's survival.

Wolfson - Meyer May Get Video Permit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Wolfson-Meyer Theatre Enterprises won a major victory today in its fight to get a Miami television station.

The Federal Communications Commission months ago revoked the construction permit for WTVJ, Miami, on the ground that Wolfson-Meyer was brought into the licensee corporation after the permit had been granted and without FCC approval. The circuit asked the FCC to reconsider this decision, and FCC Commissioner Walker today announced an initial decision—which still must be approved by the full Commission—to cancel the revocation order and grant the application to transfer control of the station to Wolfson-Meyer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Paramount today asked the Federal Communications Commission for another extension—to Feb. 20—in the deadline for filing exceptions to the Commission's proposed decision that Paramount controls DuMont. The FCC recently extended the deadline from Jan. 5 to Jan. 19.

word on how well these leads paid off until June or July, since field collectors submit only two or three reports a year to Washington on such irregularities.

SDG, NBC Join in Weekly Air Series

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—In cooperation with the Screen Directors Guild, the National Broadcasting Co. will introduce on Sunday evening a new half-hour program with a leading film director each week presenting a radio adaptation of one of his screen successes and starring the film's top star. The program, considered by NBC as a fitting answer to Columbia Broadcasting's "raid" on its talent, has been promised complete cooperation of the studios on clearances for players and properties.

Arrangements for the new show were completed this week. It will take to the air without sponsorship, but is intended to go to a commercial account shortly.

Sunday night's program will be "Stagecoach," starring John Wayne and presented by director John Ford.

When the Guild board meets next week it will determine the purpose for which the money it will receive for the show is to be earmarked. This is SGD's first venture in a field already featuring shows by the Screen Actors Guild and the Theatre Guild.

The new program will follow the Fred Allen spot.

years. Printed copies are expected to be available next month.

Affecting theatres outside of New York City, since the latter has its own building code, the revised document embodies "no great changes" in terms of theatre construction and maintenance requirements, according to Standards and Appeals spokesmen here. Provisions apply to theatre stage fixtures, maintenance of projection booths, theatre seats, exits, guard railings, lighting facilities and other aspects of theatre construction.

The new code includes sections on drive-in theatres in which modifications were made some time ago following the registering by Fabian-Hellman Theatres and other drive-in circuits of protests against certain proposed changes.

In his message to the legislature yesterday, Gov. Dewey proposed a commission "to prepare state-wide building codes eventually covering all types of construction."

Set Music Hall for Awards Ceremonies

The 1948 awards of the New York Film Critics will be presented to winners in a ceremony to be held on the stage of Radio City Music Hall Jan. 21, it was announced jointly by the critics and by Gus Eyssell, managing director of the Music Hall.

Olivia DeHavilland, named as best actress for her performance in "Snake Pit," and John Huston, named best director for "Treasure of Sierra Madre," have reported that they would be present to receive the awards personally. Roberto Rossellini, director of the award-winning Italian film, "Paisan," has also informed the unit that he expects to arrive here in time to accept the award.

Warner Brothers, producer of "Treasure," and Laurence Olivier, receiver of the best actor award for "Hamlet," will be represented at the ceremonies.

Thomas Pryor is chairman of the critic's unit.

of Our Lives" ran second for the year. It opened in 1947 and to date has grossed more in the over-all picture than "Spring," but ran behind the latter during the 1948 calendar year alone.

Four other British and four American pictures complete the list of 1948's 10 top-grossing pictures here. They are, in order, "My Brother Jonathan" (British), "Road to Rio" (Paramount); "Life with Father" (Warner), "It Always Rains on Sunday" (British), "Naked City" (Universal), "Oliver Twist" (British), "Unconquered" (Paramount), and "Red Shoes" (British).

In the previous year Britain scored six out of nine top grossers. J. Arthur Rank's top-grossing picture of the year here was the sixth-place picture, "It Always Rains on Sunday." The newly-reconstituted Associated British Picture Corp. produced the third-place film, "My Brother Jonathan."

Following the first 10 came "The Fallen Idol" (British), "The Weaker Sex" (British), "Sitting Pretty" (20th Century-Fox), "Green Dolphin Street" (M-G-M), "Miranda" (British), and "Forever Amber" (20th-Fox).

Board of Trade feature film registrations for 1948 were: British films, 157; "foreign" films, 285. The 1947 figures were: British, 109; "foreign," 355.

Officers pro-tem are: John Mulloy, Boston Chamber of Commerce, president; Floyd Bell, vice-president and Daisy Weichel, secretary. Next dinner meeting will be held Feb. 1.

NCCJ Chairmen

J. Robert Rubin, amusement division chairman, presided.

Rubin paid tribute to "the fine work" being done by the co-chairmen. Depinet declared that this campaign "is the best organized of any to date." He thanked those working on the campaign and lauded the "virile and aggressive support of the trade papers."

Spyros P. Skouras, chairman of the newsreel and corporate gifts committee, said he expects this to be the "finest campaign the industry has ever had." He revealed that besides all the newsreels, March of Time and This Is America also are cooperating with the drive. It was disclosed that the newsreels will carry footage of President Truman citing the industry through Depinet.

Edward Lachman and Gael Sullivan, national exhibitor co-chairmen, reported heavy response from exhibitors. Gus Eyssell, chairman of the New York area, made a similar report and also read a letter which he is sending to showmen in this area outlining a four-point program for getting behind the drive.

Charles Reagan, national distribution chairman, and Herman Robbins, National Screen Service president, also reported. Gilbert Goldstein, advertising-publicity chairman, displayed various posters and cards which NSS will distribute to some 17,400 theatres.

Others in attendance at the luncheon included William J. German, Leon J. Bamberger, Martin Quigley, Sr., Martin Quigley, Jr., Don Mersereau, Mel Konecoff, Ernest Emerling, James M. dependent producers. Independents producing for United Artists are especially in need of money for filming, a situation causing UA's management, board and a special committee on financing to huddle frequently to try to find a solution to the company's independent producers' financial requirements.

Rathvon, who resigned from the presidency of RKO recently, following the company's purchase by Howard Hughes, has many Wall Street and "big business" connections.

Rathvon made it clear here today that his investment firm will not produce motion pictures on its own, but will function in bringing money and production enterprises together. He said, "independent production is a vital part of our industry, and its continued success must be safeguarded by a sound financing program that will assure a fair return to both investor and producer. At the same time, Rathvon and Company will bring to the independent producer an understanding of his problem and assistance which he has never had before from his bankers."

Norman Freeman, who was Rathvon's assistant at RKO, will join Rathvon as executive in the new company, with other associates to be announced shortly.

Schine Ohio Pool Of Two Dissolved

Cleveland, Jan. 6.—Ownership of the Temple Theatre, Medina, O., has reverted to Meyer and P. E. Essick, while Schine Theatres and Mrs. Ben Udelevitz have re-acquired the Princess, in the same city, as a result of dissolution of the pooled operation of the two theatres.

Directorate of the partnership company, Medina Princess Corp., voted the split as a result of the U. S. Supreme Court's decision against pooled operations by Schine.

Le Sieur on Stand In 'Blimp' Hearing

Howard LeSieur, advertising-publicity director of United Artists, testified yesterday in the final Federal Trade Commission hearing on its citation against the company charging misrepresentation in advertising "Colonel Blimp." FTC claims that deletions in the film were not disclosed to the public. Attorney Edward Raftery has represented UA in the case.

W. A. Johnston Dead

1931 the News was sold to Quigley Publishing Co. and then merged with Exhibitors' Herald-World to become the present Motion Picture Herald.

Johnston some time previously had sold his interest in the News to the Angus Publishing Co., with which he became associated for a brief time prior to his retirement from business. Thereafter he resided in Beverly Hills, Cal., until 1945, when he returned to New York.

He is survived by a son, Paul A. Johnston of Monroe, N. Y.; a sister, Mrs. Arthur C. Sticht of Canajoharie, N. Y.; a daughter, Allene Johnston of Los Angeles, and a granddaughter.

Born at Palatine Bridge, N. Y., he was graduted in 1897 from Union College. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Delta Phi, and Sons of the American Revolution. He became a copy writer for the Hampton Advertising Agency, New York, in 1902; he joined Butterick Publishing Co. in 1906, and the following year joined S. H. Benson Co., Ltd., London, as a copy writer.

He was a contributor to the old New York Herald, the New York Herald-Tribune, Hampton's Magazine, Harper's Weekly, the American Magazine, Munsey's, Delineator, Century, and Saturday Evening Post. In 1911-1913 he did publicity work for the National Citizen's League in behalf of a reform in banking laws.

Until his retirement he was a director of the DeForest Phonofilm Co., the F. M. Lupton Publishing Co., and El Commercio, South American export magazine. He was also a member of Danforth and Marshall, stock brokers.

Columbia Meeting In Buffalo, Albany

Rube Jackter, Columbia's assistant general sales manager, has scheduled meetings on the current playdate and liquidation drive for the Buffalo and Albany branches next week. Jackter, who is chairman of the drive, will attend both meetings, accompanied by George Josephs, assistant to A. Montague.

The two will spend Monday and Tuesday in Buffalo, going to Albany for a meeting on Wednesday. They will return to New York on Thursday.

Joseph H. McNabb, 61

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Joseph H. McNabb, 61, of Winnetka, Ill., president of Bell and Howell Co. of Chicago, died yesterday in Lutheran Deaconess Hospital here. When McNabb joined B. and H. as general manager in 1916, the company did an annual business of $163,000. He is credited in large part with expanding this total to some $22,000,000 annually. Survivors include the widow, a daughter and a son.

Majors Devise Changes in Arbitration

All in Tentative Accord On Form It Will Take

Major companies late last week reached a tentative agreement on the form of a new arbitration system which constitutes a revised version of the one proposed in December, to which Paramount objected in part.

Conclusive action will not be taken until a new draft has been prepared but the indication is that a final accord is in prospect.

Upon being drafted the plan will be presented to the "Little Three" and others with the aim of bringing in as many participants as possible.

The system will be set down in the form of a proposed decree to be signed by the New York Federal Court within the framework of the Paramount case. The Department of Justice also will be asked to approve, probably at the end of this month when the companies submit to it their

U.K. Producers to Ask Subsidy from Ticket Tax Fund

LONDON, Jan. 9.—A proposal that a proportion of the entertainment tax yield from British films be allotted to subsidize film production here will be made to Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps by the British Film Producers Association at a meeting on Jan. 17.

From the present overall annual box-office gross, amounting to $432,000,000, taxes channel $152,000,000 directly to the Exchequer. It is estimated that British pictures' share of the total is only $68,000,000.

The BFPA claims the present tax incidence virtually prohibits any producer from making a reasonable profit.

Victor Fleming, 60, Succumbs in Ariz.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 9.—Victor Fleming, 60, Academy Award-winning director, and producer-director of "Joan of Arc," his last picture, died early Friday morning on his way to Cottonwood Hospital from a nearby guest ranch, where he was stricken with a heart attack.

He, his wife and two daughters, Victoria, 14, and Sally, 11, were guests at the Beaver Creek ranch. Fleming, exhausted following his work on "Joan of Arc," had gone to the ranch some time ago to recuperate, but never recovered his strength.

He started in 1912 as a cameraman with the American Film Co. in Santa Barbara, Cal., and worked for the late Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., for many years before undertaking a director's career in 1919.

ALLIED TO PUBLIC ON DISCIPLINE PLAN

Mass. Threatened With a 10% Tax

Boston, Jan. 9.—Reports in high legislative circles at the State House here indicate that there is a strong possibility of the enactment of a 10 per cent admission tax on motion picture theatres and all other amusement places, to produce additional revenue of some six million dollars annually.

Is Urging Welfare and Religious Groups to Act on Errant Stars

Allied States Association is trying to line up wide public support for its "Finneran Plan" for disciplining errant stars, it was learned here over the weekend.

The association is in the process of sending out letters seeking support from various national and regional welfare, educational, religious and women's groups. Some have gone out already; others are being sent out now, it is understood.

The letters outline the Finneran Plan, ask the associations to study the reasons given for the plan in the resolution adopted by the Allied convention in New Orleans, and declares that Allied "hopes you will agree that these conditions must be remedied." While the letters do not urge the associations in so many words to take the Finneran Plan as "the $17-Million in Stock Acquired by Para.

Paramount has invested to date some $17,363,126 in its own common stock under the stock-purchasing program instituted in Nov., 1946 by company president Barney Balaban, it is estimated on the basis of the stock's 1948 average market price of $22 per share. This does not take into account the approximately 200,000 shares (another $4,400,000) also bought in the open market, which the company paid out meanwhile in acquiring Liberty Films and Rainbow Productions.

A total of 789,233 shares have accumulated in Paramount's treasury since the program got under way, 41,700 shares having been purchased in December. Other recent monthly purchases totaled as follows: November, 21,500; October, 40,500; September, 32,500; August, 22,200, and July, 31,000.

By SHERWIN KANE

THE House Labor sub-committee report on the extended jurisdictional strife among Hollywood studio unions, issued by Chairman Carroll Kearns in Washington last week, should bring a great deal of satisfaction to Richard Walsh, Roy Brewer and the IATSE generally.

The Kearns' report cleared the industry of any charge of collusion or conspiracy with the IATSE and placed the entire blame for the studio jurisdictional dispute on the American Federation of Labor for its failure to act decisively on a settlement of the dispute.

The sub-committee found that the AFL's executive council, at its meeting in Cincinnati in October, 1945, appointed its three-man investigating committee to decide the Hollywood jurisdictional issues with the clear understanding and agreement by all concerned that the committee's decision would be final and binding.

That was the IATSE position throughout the subsequent strife, and is its position today.

The AFL, however, subsequently acquiesced (at the alleged insistence of William Hutcheson of the Carpenters International) in the issuance, first, of an "interpretation" of its three-man committee's decision in favor of the IATSE and, second, of a "clarification" of the "interpretation" of the original decision, both of which served mainly to becloud and cast doubt upon that decision with the inevitable consequence that new fuel was added to the flames which the committee had been appointed to extinguish.

As the Kearns' report said, the Hollywood jurisdictional dispute "stands out as a sore thumb on the records of the AFL."

It is significant also that Kearns found no collusion between the industry and the IA in the Hollywood dispute. Midway in his investigation, Kearns had let it be known publicly that he believed there had been collusion, but his further study of the situation convinced him there was none.

There is pending in the courts a $67,000,000 suit against the IATSE and producers, growing out of the Hollywood labor controversy, which alleges collusion and conspiracy on the part of the defendants.

While the Kearns' report does not resolve that action nor have any connection with it, nevertheless it is not improbable that a court or jury, destined to rely upon much of the same records, testimony and evidence as did the House sub-committee in the event of trial of the long-pending action, would come to the same conclusion.

The Kearns' report, in any event, is proper defense ammunition and, were it anything but what it is, most certainly would be used by the plaintiffs.

For well over a year now, the Hollywood labor scene has been serene. Much of the credit for that beneficent circumstance is due the AFL Film Council in Hollywood, headed by Brewer. It has done much to remove causes of new studio labor eruptions and has dealt promptly and wisely with grievances as they arose. It is a stalwart, constructive force in the brittle Hollywood labor arena.

It has proved that jurisdictional disputes can be settled by agreement of the parties concerned without violent disruptions.

It is helping to establish a pattern for the future. The pattern is recognizable even now in the manner in which IATSE is proceeding on jurisdictional questions as they arise in the new labor field in television. The questions are being worked out amicably by those concerned. There is no intrusion or arbitrary interference by the AFL.

It is to be hoped, if not assumed, however, that the agreements reached will be given their complete, official standing by later AFL sanction.

In that way the AFL can help to achieve the first recommendation of the Kearns' report, the continuance "of its voluntary program of settlement of its jurisdictional conflicts which it has initiated in the past year."

Was it, as MPAA said, a desire to discuss South African problems further with State Department officials that resulted in calling off the Francis Harmon and/or MPAA committee trip to Johannesburg? Or was it Loew's insistence on non-interference, RKO's insistence on no-compromise and U.A. and SIMPP's veto of the whole idea? A divsion in the ranks, in other words.

Denies Miner Pleas For Separate Trials

WAUSAU, Wis., Jan 9.—In a decision affecting percentage cases, U. S. Judge Patrick T. Stone in Federal court here denied the exhibitor defendants' motions for separate trials on the defense of illegality and each of three other issues, and granted the distributor plaintiffs' motions for an audit inspection of theatre records of the Miner Circuit houses. When distributors had moved for their inspection, exhibitors countered with motions for separate trial on the four issues of illegality, the distributor charge of a conspiracy by the exhibitors to defraud, the distributors' right to combine the damage claims against the various theatres for Federal jurisdiction, and on distributor claims for flat rental damages.

In so ruling, Judge Stone did not follow the step taken by U. S. Judge Campbell in the Alger cases in Illinois of referring the issue of unenforceability to a master for separate trial and leaving to the master the decision as to the right to audit, although Judge Campbell's ruling was cited by counsel for the defendant exhibitors in opposing the distributors' inspection motion.

The Commission's order freezing all television action is mentioned in a special section on late developments. The order was issued Sept. 29.

Other gleanings from the report:

As of November, Chicago had more authorized AM, FM, and TV stations collectively—33—than any other city in the world. New York followed with a total of 32, Los Angeles had 29, Philadelphia, 23, Washington, 21, San Francisco, 19, and Boston, 16.

Of the 109 television stations authorized, 102 had construction permits.

In addition to those licensed, 21 stations were operating on an interim basis. Seventeen cities and metropolitan districts were being served by the operating stations, compared with eight cities in the previous year.

The motion picture industry has shown "renewed interest" in the use of radio for on-location work "now that improved equipment is available at moderate cost," said the FCC.

WBKB, 'Sun-Times' In Television Pact

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Balaban and Katz television station WBKB and the Chicago Sun-Times, which cooperated in coverage of the Presidential elections in November, have entered a "public service" agreement under which WBKB will supply the newspaper with television facilities and the Sun-Times will provide the station with late news and features daily. The two will work hand in hand with promotions and special events.

Coincident with the new agreement, John Balaban, director of WBKB, announced the appointment of Ulmer Turner, veteran Chicago reporter, as news editor of the station.

New Practices AlterMonopoly Status: Schine

Will Seek to Introduce New Evidence in Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. — The Schine theatre circuit will seek to introduce new evidence in the further proceedings ordered by the U. S. Supreme Court in the government's anti-trust case, according to word received here by the Justice Department.

Schine notified the Department that on Jan. 18 it would ask Judge Knight in Buffalo District Court to allow it to introduce evidence to show "a change in trade practices and monopoly status." Justice Department officials interpret this as meaning Schine will not seek to reopen the old record or introduce new material on illegal acquisitions and other old issues, but rather will concentrate on proving that the industry's trade practices are now different and that the circuit no longer has the monopoly status found by the Supreme Court.

Justice will oppose Schine's at-

Asks Company Heads To Confer in Miami

Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, yesterday invited the presidents of member companies of the organization to a meeting in Miami on Jan. 18-19. According to the MPAA here, the "foreign situation" will be discussed at the conference which presumably will be held instead of the Coast parleys which were originally scheduled for this month but were called off.

Industry Tells Own Story In Series of 12 Subjects

Prints of the first four subjects of the all-industry series, "The Movies and You," are being shipped to exchanges this week and will be available for screenings in all key cities soon after.

The first subject is "Let's Go to the Movies." It was produced, and will be distributed, by RKO Radio, to be released on or about March 1.

Succeeding subjects in the series will be released at two-month intervals thereafter. There will be a total of 12 subjects in the complete series, their release extending over a two-year period.

"The Movies and You" series is the industry's first organized effort to tell its own story to the public on the screen. All branches of the industry have assisted in the undertaking and the story of all branches of the industry will be presented in the series.

The project is designed to enhance the industry's standing and prestige, and to improve public relations of all of its segments, by giving to the public an understanding and appreciation of

To Speed Extension Of Reciprocal Act

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Both House and Senate leaders today promised quick action on President Truman's request for a two-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, and without the restrictions imposed by the Republican 80th Congress.

Truman, in a message sent to Congress, said speed is necessary because negotiations will begin in April to extend to 13 more nations the 1947 tariff agreements executed with 22 nations. The present law expires June

Capital Sees No Tax Cut Through 1951

Washington, Jan. 10.—Not only does President Truman's budget message contemplate no reduction in the 20 per cent U.S. admission tax through June 30, 1950, but it does not hold out much hope for a tax cut in the following fiscal year either.

"It must be recognized that expenditures in the fiscal year 1951 are likely to be larger than those for 1950," the President told Congress, adding that revenues must remain high to take care of the heavy expenditures.

US Foresees Slight Rise At Box-office

Expects Increase Over Next Eighteen Months

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. — The government apparently expects theatre business to go up slightly during the next 18 months, according to estimates of admissions tax collections contained in the President's budget for the year ending June 30, 1950, submitted to Congress today.

The budget estimates general admissions tax collections—excluding roof garden and cabaret taxes and taxes on various overcharges—as $390,000,000 for the year ending June 30, 1949 and $400,000,000 for the year ending June 30, 1950, compared with actual receipts of $385,100,699 for the 12-months ending June 30, 1948.

The Elmwood-Frouge interests request that the defendants be required to grant equal clearance to the Hy-Way except for first-run theatres in Bridgeport, in which case the clearance shall not be more than 14 days.

Goldwyn Buys Ashley Share in His Studio

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10.—Samuel Goldwyn has purchased Lady Ashley's interest in the Goldwyn studio.

Lady Ashley, the widow of Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., had held the interest since the death of her husband in 1939. The sale transfers to the producer 25 per cent of the ground on which the studio stands. Goldwyn bought the rights of other Fairbanks heirs, including those of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., after the senior Fairbanks' death. Goldwyn and Mary Pickford are now sole owners of the studio.

Peacetime Censors Unwanted: Forrestal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Secretary of Defense Forrestal now admits that no form of peacetime national censorship is "workable or desirable."

Early last year, Forrestal set up a committee of film, press, radio and magazine representatives to advise him on whether or not there should be some voluntary censorship in peacetime on top defense secrets. The media representatives, including Warner-Pathe's Walton Ament, newsreel and film industry liaison, rejected any censorship.

In his first annual report on the Department of Defense, Secretary Forrestal agreed that it is the responsibility of film, press, radio and other agencies which gather and disseminate news not to publish information which would violate the national security. "I agree that in peacetime no type of censorship is workable or desirable," he said.

Tent No. 11 Honors TOA's Sullivan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Theatre Owners of America, was guest speaker here tonight as Variety Tent No. 11 installed new officers and a board of governors.

E-L Joins Exchange Talks Now Underway

William C. MacMillen, Jr., Eagle-Lion vice-president, yesterday attended as an "observer" the meeting between IATSE and distributor negotiators which was called at 20th Century-Fox's home office with a view toward breaking the deadlock which was reached last week on a new contract for the country's 6,300 exchange workers. At the close of yesterday's meeting, it was announced that another parley will be held today. Active in the talks are Paramount, Columbia, Loew's, RKO Radio, Republic, 20th-Fox, United Artists, Universal-International and Warner.

Under a policy which was established by its predecessor company, PRC, Eagle-Lion heretofore had no connection with the drafting of a master contract for exchange workers. It was customary for PRC and E-L to sign a separate agreement with the "IA" based on the terms reached by the union and other distributors.

said, arrangements will be made to begin negotiations shortly in order to avoid a dispute later over retroactive pay.

Francavilla reported additionally that his local has succeeded in organizing the laboratory technicians in the new Polacolor Division of the Polaroid Corp. in Cambridge, Mass. Paramount and other companies have contracted for filming in Polacolor. Francavilla said negotiations have begun with Polacolor to secure for its technicians wages "comparable to those paid for the same work in the New York area."

to a roaring start at the Mayfair, where the first week's revenue might hit $45,000, which is plenty strong. "Belle Starr's Daughter" is less impressive at the Globe, where $20,000 is apparent for the first stanza; this is moderate business. The Rialto had a good weekend with another newcomer, "Unknown Island," and the management claims the first week's gross will be in the neighborhood of $25,000, which would be exceptional for the house.

Fulton Run Ends

"Joan of Arc" closed last night at the Fulton, where the fourth and final week grossed a fair $9,400. It is still running at a good clip at the Victoria, where $43,000 is indicated for a ninth week. Third week of "Enchantment" should provide the Astor with $35,000, which is good.

"Every Girl Should Be Married," with Burt Lancaster and Skitch Henderson's orchestra on stage, is continuing a very prosperous run at the Capitol, with $75,000 likely for a third week; the show grossed a big $88,000 in the second.

The Strand also is drawing heavy returns, with the third week of "Adventures of Don Juan," with Tommy Dorsey on stage, winding up with $65,000. "Hamlet" still is paying off big at the Park, where $16,000 is looked for in a 15th week. "Red Shoes" should give the Bijou a substantial 13th week's gross of $13,500. "Rogues' Regiment" drew a mediocre $8,000 in its final three days (fourth week) at the Criterion and will be replaced today by "Mexican Hayride."

Hall Bill Holds

"Words and Music," with a stage show, at the Music Hall is headed for a good figth week's gross of $115,000 and will stay. "Letter to Three Wives" is next at the Hall, but the opening date has not been set.

"Paleface" and Benny Goodman's orchestra on stage continues as a winning combination at the Paramount, where the fourth week's income is estimated at $60,000. At the Roxy, "That Wonderful Urge," with an ice show and Barbara Ann Scott on stage, looks good for $75,000 in a third week and will continue to Jan. 18, when "Chicken Every Sunday" bows in. "Force of Evil" should give the State a fairly substantial $28,000 in a third week.

30, 1949 and places several restrictions on the President's power to negotiate new agreements.

Film industry leaders have favored a long-term extension of the act, with a free hand for the President.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman George and House Ways and Means Committee head Doughton, who will handle the legislation, said they hoped a bill could be at the White House by the end of February.

Rep. Doughton today introduced a bill to remove Republican restrictions on the President's powers to make new treaties and to extend the act through June 30, 1951. He said his House Ways and Means Committee would begin hearings on the measure on Jan. 24 and that he hoped to have his bill through the House early in February.

Johnston Target

quoted an editorial attack on Eric Johnston published in Soviet Art.

Johnston, Motion Picture Association of America president, closed the film deal while in Moscow last fall.

The Soviet publication, the AP reports, calls Johnston an imperialist agent with the face of a model and the smile of a toothpaste advertisement. It charges the bosses picked Johnston to turn the American film industry into a weapon of imperialistic expansion and accused Johnston of dumping American films on the European market at losses he hoped to make up at home.

MPAA headquarters in Washington declined comment on the article.

Although a list of 100 Hollywood film titles has been prepared for the Soviet to make its first choice of 20 from, no American films have been selected by Moscow yet under the Johnston deal, it was reported here.

W. B. Withdraws Run Petition for Loop

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Warner, represented by attorney Vincent O'Brien, withdrew its petition today from the U. S. District court which asked a two-week Loop extension for "Adventures of Don Juan." The petition, presented before Judge Michael Igoe last Friday, was opposed by Jackson Park Theatre attorney Tom McConnell, who said he would take the matter before the Circuit Court of Appeals if further modifications were granted.

Warner withdrawal of the petition was understood to have been based on Judge Igoe's apparent disfavor on Friday in granting the latest extension. "Don Juan" was recently placed in an "Adults only" censor class.

SWG To Merge with Eastern Film Unit

Pending merger between the Screen Writers' Guild and the Associated Film Writers, East Coast film writers' organization, is expected to be formally ratified at an SWG meeting in Hollywood tomorrow night, according to George Seaton, SWG president. Under the affiliation, the AFW will become the Eastern unit of the SWG and will continue to represent writers here. Many members are now working in television, according to AFW president Harold Mantell, and television representation will be the major item on both East and West Coast units in the coming year.

In addition to Mantell, who succeeds Dudley Hale as president, new officers for 1949-50 are: Newton Meltzer and John Davenport, vice-presidents; Sumner Lyon, secretary; Sue Platt, treasurer.

U.S. Foresees

Treasury officials apply an increase in taxes resulting from an increase in consumers' disposable personal income to the actual past tax collections. They admit that a rise in disposable income may not actually bring an increase in every type of excise tax—including the admissions—but they assume it will, and that's how the 1949 and 1950 estimates are computed.

There were these other highlights in the President's budget that are of interest to the motion picture industry:

A further slight increase in funds for anti-trust work, keeping these appropriations at record high levels.

A whopping increase in funds for the State Department's overseas information program, though practically all of the increase will go for radio activities.

Continued high appropriations for the Federal Communications Commission in recognition of this agency's heavy responsibilities as a regulatory agency.

Repetition of many of the requests in the earlier "State of the Union" and Economic messages, including those for $4,000,000,000 in nex taxes, mostly from corporations, and expansion of the Social Security System, along with higher Social Security payroll taxes. Again, the President did not spell out his proposals for new corporation and income taxes, but did suggest that the social security tax increase from one per cent to one and one-half per cent go into effect July 1, 1949 rather than Jan. 1, 1950, and that the tax be paid on more of annual earnings than the present $3,000 maximum. Further tax increases will be necessary later, he added.

The Justice Department's anti-trust division, in the proposed budget, would get $3,650,000 for the 12 months ending June 30, 1950, compared with $3,569,500 for the 1949 fiscal year and a mere $2,400,000 in fiscal 1948. A similar small increase was earmarked for the Federal Trade Commission.

to four cents to pay a bonus because it is not considered discriminatory.

Board also ratified national Allied's resolution opposing forced percentage playing time and approved Trueman Rembusch's appointment to represent Allied if an all-industry meeting with Eric Johnston is held.

Berger was granted a three months' leave to tour Europe with Mrs. Berger, and the board named vice-president Ernie Peaslee to act as president and attend the Allied board meeting in Washington, on Feb. 14-15 with Kane and Peaslee voting on board matters.

Board ordered officers to "put forth" every effort to land the 1949 national Allied convention for Minneapolis.

Berger will leave here for Europe on Jan. 25.

one of the 43 he is making on a cross-country tour in connection with "Bad Boy," a Paul Short production for Allied Artists. All proceeds from local premieres will be donated to local Variety Clubs and to Variety Clubs International, which sponsored the film.

The citation on a scroll to be presented to Lockwood reads, in part, as follows:

"In recognition of your election to president of the Theatre Owners of America and for your sustained and unselfish support in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the industry, we, your friends and co-workers, hereby express our pride in your achievement and our feeling of satisfaction that your talents have been recognized and awarded. Lawyer turned theatre owner, forward-looking interpreter of the problems of the industry, he has applied his judicial temperament to the technique of business so that he has become an independent and forceful representative of all who love fair play both in and out of his chosen field."

General chairman of the Lockwood dinner is Samuel Pinanski, E. Harold Stoneman is treasurer, Abraham Yarchin is assistant treasurer, and William S. Koster is executive director. Committee co-chairmen follow:

Memphis Censor Ban Of 'Curley' Upheld

MEMPHIS, Jan. 10. — Judge Floyd Henderson has upheld the Memphis Board of Censors in its refusal to permit the showing of Hal Roach's "Curley." The court held that United Artists and Hal Roach who brought the suit, have no legal grounds to challenge the censoring of the film in state courts since they are out-of-state corporations.

Lloyd T. Binford, chairman of the Memphis board, said the film was banned because it showed white and Negro children playing together.

Industry Series

its complex and varied operations in bringing entertainment to the public.

"Let's Go to the Movies," first of the series, suggests the many facets of industry activities in briefest outline. It is the "teaser" subject for the series which follows.

Exhibition is the subject of "This Theatre and You," second in the series. It was produced and will be distributed by Warner.

The third subject continues the theme of what the theatre offers. "Movies Are Adventure," produced and to be distributed by Universal, depicts the wide and rare varieties of entertainment, experience and information afforded the typical theatre-going family by the motion picture.

From there, the series goes to Hollywood, taking the film patron on a studio tour which begins with the subject titled "The Art Director," produced and to be distributed by 20th Century-Fox. That will be followed by "The Screen Actor," produced by M-G-M, and other subjects on production and direction of motion pictures. Later subjects in the series will cover distribution and other phases of industry operations.

Non-profit Distribution

Distribution of the subjects will be on a non-profit basis, with rentals corresponding to the standard prices of single reel subjects of the company distributing. Should any profit accrue, it will be applied to production costs of subsequent subjects in the series.

The Motion Picture Association of America provided a revolving fund of $75,000 to get production of the series started. More than that amount already has been expended, despite the fact that all studio guilds and unions, as well as the companies which produced the first of the series, cooperated to the extent that many normal production costs were eliminated or held to an absolute minimum.

All 12 subjects comprising the series will be under 1,000 feet in length, with an approximate running time of nine minutes each. At the outset, about 225 prints of each subject will be available, but the aim is to have every theatre in the country show the subjects. If the aim is realized, adequate print supplies, up to 500 for each subject, will be provided.

Press Books Available

Press books, ads and accessories for the subjects will be available.

In addition to theatre showings, it is planned to provide 16mm. prints later for clubs and organizations throughout the country and possibly abroad.

The series is sponsored by the Industry Film Project Committee, of which N. Peter Rathvon is chairman, and Grant Leenhouts, coordinator.

Advisory Committee

The exhibition advisory committee consists of Ray Branch, Hugh Bruen, Oscar Doob, Rotus Harvey, Trueman Rembusch, Thornton Sargent, Homer Strowig, Sam Switow, R. B. Wilby and Mitchell Wolfson. Hollywood guilds, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, and the several producers' associations are represented on the production advisory committee.

A review of the first subject, "Let's Go to the Movies," is published in an adjoining column.

Short Subject

"Let's Go to the Movies"

(RKO Radio)

NO. 1 in a series of public relations films in which the industry will tell its own story to the public, "Let's Go to the Movies" is designed as the "teaser" for the 11 other subjects in the series.

It sketches in swift, entertaining style the beginning of the entertainment motion picture "less than 60 years ago," through the various phases of silent films, the introduction of sound, up to present day production.

Moving on to Hollywood production stages, the subject shows numerous craftsmen at their work, all with the single aim of putting a story on film. The manufacture of raw stock is touched upon as are the numerous other products, sciences, skills and researchings which are required to keep studios in operation, to produce films, to distribute them, to construct theatres and to put the show on the screen. The promise is made to tell in greater detail in the subsequent subjects of the series the stories of each of those processes.

The subject has its say in interesting fashion. It suggests the magnitude and complexity of the industry. It creates interest in those key operations about which the public knows so little. It achieves its aim of arousing in the theatre patron the desire to see the ensuing 11 subjects in "The Movies and You" series. Running time, 9 min., 3⅓ sec. Release, March 1.

tempt to introduce new evidence. Justice Attorney Philip Marcus and possibly one or two aides will leave here for Buffalo late this week to represent the government. Judge Knight has said that if Schine should ask to introduce new evidence, and if he should grant the request, Schine must be ready to go ahead with the case on the 18th.

The Schine memorandum to the Justice Department said the circuit's attorneys would refer to the Paramount case and the RKO consent decree to show a change in competitive conditions. Justice officials expect Schine to claim that the high court's decision in the Paramount case has done away with many of the trade practices complained of in the Schine case. It may also claim that so far in the Paramount case only jointly-held theatres have been divested, that they are already under order to get rid of such theatres, and that they should not be penalized any more than the majors. Finally, Justice believes, Schine may seek to introduce evidence that new competition has developed in certain areas, stripping Schine's monopoly.

Whether Justice introduces any new evidence—should Schine be allowed to —depends on the type of evidence the theatre circuit puts in, a Justice official said.

Predict U. K. Divorcement To Be Urged

Lord Portal Committee To Hear Tax Attack, Too

LONDON, Jan. 11.—It is being predicted here that the governmental committee of which Lord Portal is chairman will recommend the complete divorce of production from distribution and exhibition.

The committee was appointed to inquire into the whole field of industry operations. It held its first meeting Jan. 5 and will meet again on Thursday to hear J. Arthur Rank on behalf of the Producers' Association, Reginald Baker of Ealing Studios and British Lion's Sir Arthur Jarratt. Others will be heard later. The committee's report is not expected for another two months.

Another U.K. Studio May Close Soon

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Latest victim of the production slump here is Ernest Roy's Nettlefold Studios.

Two minor films are being completed this week at the Walton-on Thames plant, Britain's oldest studios still in operation. Unless new production is forthcoming, Nettlefold will close within a week. Around 100 employes would be laid off. Some have been there for 25 years.

It is also understood that 74-year old Lady Annie Henrietta Yule is

Lockwood In Strong Plea For Film Unity

BOSTON, Jan. 11. — Admitting that differences among various factions in the motion picture industry are healthy to a point, Theatre Owners of America president Arthur H. Lockwood told scores attending a testimonial dinner for him tonight that he wondered whether "some of us," in expressing those differences are "going too far."

The dinner was given by the New England Variety Club at the Copley Plaza Hotel here and was attended by industry, civic and business representatives from all over New England and from many other states.

Glenside to File $546,000 Action

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—A triple damage suit for $546,000 will be filed in U. S. District court here tomorrow by Dante Iacampo, former owner of the Glenside, Glenside, Pa., who will charge that he was forced to sell the theatre in March, 1948, because of inability to obtain product on a run 28 days after Philadelphia, William A. Gray, counsel for Iacampo, revealed here today.

The suit will name national distributors and an affiliated circuit as defendants. The Glenside is now operated by Melvin Koff, an independent.

Para.-Richards Said Near an Agreement

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11.—An early settlement of Paramount's differences with its theatre affiliate here, Paramount-Richards Theatres, over film rental terms is expected by the local trade.

However, no agreement has been reached yet and Paramount is still offering its product to independents, although on terms which lead some to believe that it is not too anxious to sell. Only two pictures have been sold away from Richards on Canal Street to date. They are "A Foreign Affair" and "Sorry, Wrong Number."

Insider's Outlook

By RED KANN

Hollywood, Jan. 11

IN a discussion of current conditions here—the low curve of production, unemployment and the exaggerated, but always dire, stories of bigger and better holocausts and the many different approaches to a solution to high costs in a shrinking market—someone got around to that oldie in physics: What happens when an unstoppable force meets an impenetrable body? The Harvard Lampoon some years ago made a now classic retort which was:

"There'll be some interesting remains."

To make it apply to Hollywood in 1949, consider the unstoppable force to be the directives for sharper and sharper economies and the impenetrable body to be the Hollywood segment which refuses to believe the need is so great.

In a number of ways, this may be said to sum up the situation on the West Coast.

Now that Hollywood players, assigned to the recent Royal Command performance in London, are on native heath again, evaluations of the results of their trip are under scrutiny. The impression is that the group, including Virginia Mayo, Joan Caulfield, Michael O'Shea, Alan Ladd and Sue Carol, reflected Hollywood and U. S. films with modesty, discreetness and behavior normally expected of visitors in a foreign land.

They got a good and generous press, but more particularly did Ladd and Miss Carol who once was a player of prominence with Fox Film. They were normal, at ease and at home. They spoke about their children, the quiet of their personal lives and an assortment of subjects which are commonly regarded as "schmaltzy" and corny in ultra sophisticated circles. The English public practically loved it and, evidently, so too did many of the newspaper reporters and special writers like the one on the Daily Express—who remarked:

"They have sent us no Bob Hope to make cracks [about ruffled Anglo-Hollywood relations], no Rita Hayworth to start people arguing, no Lana Turner to have tantrums."

Public relations may be fostered in an assortment of ways. This was one. The impasse with Arthur Rank was not dissolved. The British quota continued on the statutes. But another inning, nevertheless, appears to have been scored for American films by American film people, this time from Hollywood where it is customary to fasten the blame.

In Hollywood, it is not usual to run across the man who peers beyond the circle encompassing production into the great beyond. Roy Rowland, who directs for Metro, is one. He has very pronounced ideas about television and how exhibition will meet it in the next approximate decade. He believes theatres of the future will incorporate video for direct telecasts of topical events, mostly sports. He thinks candy counters and popcorn machines in lobbies are a mere beginning and foresees the day when full-scale dining rooms will be part and parcel of theatre operation.

The already evident tendency to develop community centers with a theatre as the core will spread, Rowland is confident. "There will be a tendency to build on the outer fringes of cities due partly to land values and partly to the use of autos," he asserts. His example: A project now under way in Seattle, complete with bank, grocery, department store, cafe, nursery and, obviously, a theatre. Plus parking facilities for 3,500 cars.

Here's another approach. It's Maxwell Shane's. This producer-director thinks theatremen are losing a bet when they neglect to foster cooperation of civic officials on films bearing contemporary themes. Mayors attending the American Municipal Association convention in Washington told him so. Bob Wilby might want to know Mayor W. B. Hartsfield of Atlanta is one who volunteered to do something about it if approached. He was approached on "City Across the River" with its underlying theme of the effect of slum housing projects in reducing juvenile delinquency.

You've guessed it. Shane made the film.

Joe Skeptic, slightly startled by the reception of "Rachel and the Stranger" at the box-office, paraphrases:

CIO Asks Repeal of 20% Admission Tax

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The Congress of Industrial Organizations today, in a study entitled "A Federal Tax Program to Promote Full Employment," called for repeal of the Federal admission tax and all other excise taxes "not regulatory in character" and said it was "unequivocally opposed" to sales taxes "that are now spreading in certain cities and localities."

The CIO said the first immediate step in overhauling the excise structure should be restoration of the pre-war rates. Complete elimination of all excises but the regulatory ones should follow relatively soon, with taxes being removed "according to the apparent wide application of the tax. Thus, the tax on theatre admissions should be repealed before the tax on safe deposit boxes, and the tax on safe deposit boxes before the tax applicable to membership fees in excess of $25."

Annual meeting of UA stockholders and election of directors is scheduled to be held concurrently with the financial conference. Mills will submit his resignation from the board at the meeting.

It is understood that the report of the board committee will stress the urgency of providing new capital for UA primarily to insure a continuous supply of product for the company by its own financing of approved producers. UA's current product supply is sufficient for approximately another six months.

dustry factions, Lockwood declared: "It seems to me that now is the time for all responsible industry leaders to sit down and have a talk; and for one I am willing to recommend such a meeting to the board of directors of the TOA at any time."

"This industry is in the laps of the courts," he continued. "It is a target in Federal and state legislatures, and attempts are soon to be made to bring many of its important functions under complete Federal regulations"—presumably referring to that which may arise from final disposition of the government's anti-trust suit in the Paramount case.

"I do not want to criticize any element or any association of exhibitors for trying to obtain by all legitimate means the relief they believe they are entitled to, provided, that they are certain that in pressing for alleged reforms, they are fully conscious of the impact on their business and on mine, of the relief sought; and that they will not undermine the structure of the entire industry by the methods they pursue," Lockwood declared.

"Hardly anyone in the industry approves of what anyone else in the industry in doing. Governor Arnall objects to the methods and policies of Eric Johnston and vice versa. In distribution, the little three are miles apart from the big five in the anti-trust case, and in other matters. And in exhibition, our two national trade associations seldom see eye to eye on anything.

"Everybody seems to want the industry as a whole to win, but the other fellow to lose.

"Isn't it logical that there should be, at least under the heading of 'good and welfare for the entire industry,' some unity?"

censor board on the technical ground that the plaintiffs are out-of-state corporations and are not entitled to challenge the censoring of the film in state courts. The film was banned because it showed white and Negro children playing together.

Indications are that the case ultimately will be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, as the industry appears inclined to employ it as a test of the application of the First Amendment to motion pictures. The present Supreme Court already has indicated that it regards motion pictures as being covered by the freedom of speech section of the First Amendment and, therefore, are entitled to the same freedom from censorship as newspapers and other communications.

recommendation point out that Socialist members of Parliament never have liked the vertically-integrated combines in the industry and certain members of the committee itself are on record with objections to the so-called monopolistic combines.

Segments of the industry, for their part, will launch an attack on the government's severe entertainment tax, an investigation of which is being made by Lord Portal on his own account. Lord Portal was the late C. M. Woolf's principal backer in the formation of General Film Distributors and not unacquainted with the industry.

He has been studying experience with Herbert Wilcox's "Spring in Park Lane," which grossed $5,600,000 and was listed in Motion Picture Herald's recent box office survey as Britains' leading grosser in 1948; $2,240,000 of the total gross went to the Exchequer in entertainment tax.

However, there is little prospect of unity in the industry attack on the tax. Producers-distributors will be wanting a larger share of the gross at the expense of both the Exchequer and the exhibitor. The latter, no less opposed to the high tax, will attack it because he wants more for himself, rather than for the producer-distributor.

Chicago Bans New State St. Marquees

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—The City Council has approved an ordinance to prohibit future placement of overhanging signs along State Street in the Loop as part of its beautification plan. The ordinance, which also affects theatres, was not made retroactive, and present overhanging signs may be repaired and reused.

New signs, the ordinance decrees, may not be of the flashing or variable illumination type. Officials believe that eventually all signs along State Street will be discarded.

Disney Aids Cancer Fund

CINCINNATI, Jan. 11.—Walt Disney will be guest of honor at a dinner-dance at the Netherland Plaza Hotel here on Jan. 20, concurrently with the world premiere here of his picture, "So Dear To My Heart." Proceeds from the $10-per-person reservations will go to the Cincinnati Cancer Hospital fund to apply on the construction of a new hospital. The affair is to be sponsored jointly by RKO Radio and the Cincinnati Post.

50 Detroit Houses Turn to Giveaways

Detroit, Jan. 11.—A revival of a plan for simultaneous cash giveaways by 50 local theatres, in a tie-in with radio station WJLB here, is announced by Sam Carver, vice-president of the Independent Theatre Owners of Michigan and also president of Detroit Consolidated Theaters.

The program, which was in effect in 1935 and 1936, was banned by the Detroit police because it was considered a lottery. It now has the approval of the Detroit Police and the FCC, it is said. A radio quiz of patrons is the basis of the program, which will become effective Jan. 31.

shares of equal value in two separate companies, one for production-distribution, the other for exhibition, which would be formed.

Discussions by Paramount executives among themselves and recent talks with Justice Department officials have centered largely on the extent of holdings which would be permitted the separate theatre company which would emerge. Paramount recently announced in New York Federal Court that it is "prepared" to break with its partners in the operation of over 500 houses.

An overall agreement with the government in large part would be contingent upon a determination of which of Paramount's vast other exhibition properties the theatre company could retain. The company has holdings with outside interests in about 900 theatres in all. There are also, of course, its wholly-owned houses which number about 400.

Under the terms of RKO's settlement with the government, that company's theatre unit will have title to 80 wholly-owned RKO theatres and may acquire up to 30 of the 271 others in which RKO shares interests with others. However, the holdings in the divided ownerships which RKO will relinquish represent only 10 per cent in a substantial number of situations. Paramount has 50 per cent interest or close to that amount in most of its joint operations and greatly outdistances RKO in terms of corporate entanglements.

quitting film production. Negotiations are in progress for the disposal of the 796,000 ordinary shares in British National Films held jointly by Lady Yule and her daughter Gladys.

Richest woman in Britain, Lady Yule long has been regarded as the fairy-godmother of production here. She founded British National in 1934. J. Arthur Rank was associated with her at the time. Her studio is now rented to British Lion.

To Collaborate Toward 'Mutual Efficiencies'

David O. Selznick Enterprises and Eagle-Lion have concluded what was described as the first phase of an association between the two companies, "which both hope will develop into a broader relationship as exploratory conversations continue," it was disclosed yesterday in a statement issued by Selznick executive Daniel T. Storms Costly to Midwest Theatres

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 12.—Theatre attendance, which had been good in this area, is down now as low as it was during the first week in 1948 when snow, sleet and rain storms such as those which have been raging in the Midwest since last week similarly affected theatre business.

The storms reached Kansas City Sunday afternoon and continued with sleet, rain freezing when it fell and temperatures very low, breaking telephone and power wires, and isolating a dozen or more towns in Southeastern Kansas and Southwestern Missouri. Some towns are entirely without power and their stores are closed. Film deliveries have not been interrupted so far, but are slow.

In Kansas City, the storm reduced theatre attendance to very small numbers starting Sunday night.

RKO Asks for More Time on 'Divorce'

RKO has applied to the U. S. District court here for a 60-day extension of the time set for obtaining stockholders' approval of the reorganization plan under which its theatre operations will be separated from production-distribution.

Present deadline for obtaining stockholders' approval is Feb. 6. Volume of paper work and technical routine involved in preparation of the plan for the stockholders has necessitated the move for additional time, RKO officials say. Indications are that the plan will not be completed until about four weeks from now and a 30-day notice of a meeting to act on the plan will have to be given to stockholders thereafter.

Paramount Group in D. C. Decree Talks

Leonard Goldenson, Paramount vice-president in charge of theatre operations; Robert O'Brien, corporate secretary, and other company executives were in Washington yesterday pursuing plans for a settlement of its part in the industry trust suit by way of separating exhibition from production-distribution, details of which were reported yesterday in Motion Picture Daily. The group conferred with Herbert Bergson, head of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice, and Robert Wright, government prosecutor in the case.

Maitles and Murray Elected by S.P.G.

Ray Murray and Murray Goldstein, both of Columbia, yesterday were elected first and second vice-presidents, respectively, of Screen Publicists Guild (CIO). Running against Murray was Ray Malone of RKO Service Corp., while Goldstein's opponent on the ballot was Herbert Haines, RKO Radio.

As expected, Sigmund Maitles of M-G-M was elected president. He was the sole nominee for that office. Maitles succeeds Jeff Livingston of Universal-International.

Also elected without opposition were Maria Van Slyke of Eagle-Lion, secretary, and Leo Israel of 20th Century-Fox, treasurer.

Inductions will be held tonight.

Ontario Rates Five Adult Films Monthly

Toronto, Jan. 12.—Since the adoption of regulations on June 1, 1946, for the grading of films, the Ontario censor board has classified 157 features as adult entertainment, an average of slightly more than five per month, none of which can be played at Saturday afternoon or other performances where the audience is predominantly juvenile.

The latest to be added to the adult list are "Kiss the Blood Off My Hands," "Creeper," "Out of the Storm," "Crime Incorporated" and "Road House."

Theatres Mobilizing for Tax Fight; Florida Joins

The move by exhibitors, both organized and unorganized, to band together to oppose adverse or discriminatory local and regional legislation gains impetus with the calling of a meeting for Jan. 18 in Jacksonville, Fla., for the exhibitors of that state to prepare a broad, protective program on behalf of all Florida exhibitors.

Metropolitan New York and Upstate exhibitor leaders meet at the St. Moritz Hotel here today to prepare an opposition program to state and local tax and other adverse legislation against theatres. The meeting was called by the Metropolitan M. P. Theatres Association and is being joined in by Theatre Owners of America, Independent Theatre Owners Association of New York and Up-state exhibitor organizations.

Exhibitors in the Midwest and Far West are taking similar action.

The Florida meeting was called by Bolivar F. Hyde of the Talgar Theatres there following the recent passage of a 10 per cent tax on theatres' gross receipts in St. Petersburg.

L. A. Stein of Jacksonville is in charge of the meeting which will be attended by Mitchell Wolfson, Mark Chartrand, Roy Schechter, Lee Ruwitch and others from all over the state.

London, Jan. 12.—The Cinematograph Exhibitors Association is sending a delegation to the Board of Trade in the near future to urge a lowering of the present 45 per cent quota for the next quota year.

Exhibitors generally maintain that the 45 per cent quota now has been demonstrated to be unrealistic and advocate a new quota more closely related to the potential output of British studios than the present one.

'IA' Wins 10% Pay Hike at U. A. Here

AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63 yesterday won for United Artists' home office "white collarites" a 10 per cent general pay increase or a $4-a-week raise, whichever is higher, it was disclosed by H-63 business agent Russell Moss who reached the agreement with UA vice-president Harry Buckley.

Contract, due to be signed around Feb. 1, will be for one year, with the wage increase to be retroactive to Oct. 6, the date the National Labor Relations Board certified H-63's taking over the UA shop from CIO's Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild following a long-standing struggle for jurisdictional control. Moss estimated that the 150 employes involved will receive retroactive pay totalling approximately $15,000.

Production on the Coast Rises to 26

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12. — The production tally rose to 26 from last week's index of 21. Shooting started on seven films while two were sent to cutting rooms.

Shooting started on "Tokyo Joe" (Santana), Columbia; "Any Number Can Play" and "That Midnight Kiss," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "Dear Wife," Paramount; "Prince of the Plains," Republic; "The Big Steal," RKO-Radio; "Take One False Step," Universal-International.

Shooting finished on "Hard Bargain," 20th Century-Fox; and "The Daring Caballero," United Artists.

Essaness To Drop One

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. — The Essanes circuit will relinquish operation of the West End Theatre here next June upon expiration of its lease. House, seating 1,140, will be operated by the building's owners, Fadam Kaplan, Corp., which also operates the Avenue, Bel and Savoy. The West End has been under Essaness management for about 15 years. The circuit recently lost its lease on the North Center Theatre.

FWC Books 'Paisan'

Joseph Burstyn and Arthur Mayer, foreign film distributors, have completed a deal for the booking of "Paisan" in the entire Fox West Coast circuit, Burstyn announced here. Deal includes first-run showings in 80 Fox Southern California houses, it was said. The Italian film is now in its 43rd week at the World Theatre here.

Purdue University To Honor Disney

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 12.—Walt Disney and a group from Hollywood wil attend a double premiere of his "So Dear to My Heart" in Indianapolis on Saturday. Disney will be presented with an "Award of Merit" in connection with a showing of the film at Purdue University at Lafayette on Saturday, Jan. 15. He also will be made an honorary alumnus of Purdue in recognition of his "contribution to American life and art through films and his understanding treatment of Indiana life" in "So Dear to My Heart." The party then will come to Indianapolis for a series of events culminating in the public premiere at the Indiana Theatre on Jan. 19.

Proceeds of the showing at Purdue will go to a Walt Disney scholarship fund for the University.

ing the manufacture and sale of television equipment embodying patents and processes developed by the British corporation. The patents and processes cover what is known as the "supersonic" and "skiatron" systems of video transmission and involve reception in homes, motion picture theatres and elsewhere.

Settled also was a cross-claims action in which Scophony of America asked damages of $1,500,000 from its co-defendants and in which Arthur Levey, president of U. S. Scophony, claimed personal damages of $270,000 allegedly due him under a five-year employment agreement.

Stock to Levey

Paramount Television, which had 340 'B' shares of Scophony Corp., and General Precision, which had 660 shares of 'B,' have indorsed the stock over to Levey. Paramount and General Precision have obtained non-exclusive Scophony patent licenses on a credit basis against earned royalties of $130,000 which is the amount both companies originally had in Scophony.

General Precision had invested about $86,000 in Scophony for which it obtained exclusive use of Scophony patents for motion picture television systems and others employing use of receiver image screens of five feet in width and over. Paramount shared with General Precision patents involving any smaller screens, through its investment of about $43,000.

Levey said yesterday that General Precision and Paramount have agreed to pay $10,000 each toward his legal fees. He estimated that legal costs incurred by all parties to the suit were in the neighborhood of $600,000.

Czechoslovakian Syndicate

Of the 1,000 'A' shares of Scophony of America, Levey said that he owns 125, that Scophony, Ltd., owns 625 and the remaining 250 are held by a Czechoslovakian syndicate which was formed in England. Levey said that he is now negotiating the purchase of these outstanding shares.

Scophony, Ltd., holding Eastern Hemisphere rights, which has refused to file answers to the Government's cartel charges in the case, will continue as a defendant. Government attorneys here yesterday said that they will endeavor to have that company bound by provisions of the decree. Levey said that he will continue to press his action for alleged damages against Scophony, Ltd.

The complaint in the overall action further charged that General Precision and Paramount Television refused to exploit the Scophony patents and processes themselves and kept Scophony of America from exploiting them. These charges were denied on all counts by the defendants.

Scophony of America is now directed to license to any applicant all of the patents in the television field which it now owns.

SDG in Relief Fund Hike

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12.—Screen Directors Guild Board today unanimously voted to recommend to the membership that each member individually increase his salary deduction for the Motion Picture Relief Fund from one-half to one per cent. Similar action was taken recently by Screen Actors Guild. It is believed that all guilds and unions here will do likewise.

Argentina, Spain Swap 25 Yearly

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Argentina and Spain have agreed to exchange 25 features annually and Spanish pictures in Argentina will be exempt from all taxes and other burdens to which other foreign pictures are subject, the U. S. Commerce Department reports. Argentine films will get the same treatment in Spain that Argentina will give Spanish films.

The fact that Argentina and Spain had signed a film agreement had been known, but the details had not been divulged.

Commerce also reports that a regulation issued recently by the Argentine Secretariat of Commerce and Industry requires that all importers, producers and other branches of the film industry register their raw stock. "This regulation seems to indicate a severe shortage of raw stock film in Argentina as a result of exchange controls," the Department notes.

Loew's, Moss Near Deal for Criterion

Loew's will sell its 50 per cent interest in the Criterion, Broadway first-run here, to B. S. Moss, circuit operator, who now holds the other 50 per cent, under a deal believed to be in the final stages of negotiation. Sale of its stock in the Criterion will leave Loew's with two New York "show-cases," the Capitol, the ownership of which it shares with Messmore Kendall, and Loew's State. Lease on the Criterion has 29 years to run. Until last year, Loew's had four houses in the Times Square area, the fourth being the Mayfair, which is now operated by the Brandt Theatres.

Ascap Legislation Not Needed: Celler

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Rep. Emanuel Celler, long-time foe of Ascap and new chairman of the House Judiciary Committee which handles Ascap legislation, said that he can see no reason for any anti-Ascap legislation "so long as Judge Leibell's decision remains on the books."

The Brooklyn Democrat said that the decision in the action sought by members of the New York Independent Theatre Owners Association was "so sweeping it doesn't leave us anything to do here." He indicated that another look might be required at the situation if the Leibell decision should be weakened on appeal.

Third Quarter Gross Was $137 Million, Against $147 Million a Year Ago

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Despite "bad business" talk in and out of the industry sales of seven companies during the third quarter of 1948 dropped only six-and-a-half per cent below the same quarter of 1947.

The Securities and Exchange Commission reported today a total of $137,390,000 in sales for the seven companies for the third quarter, compared with $145,253,000 for the second quarter of 1948 and $147,436,000 for the third quarter of 1947.

The seven companies listed in the Commission's report were: Columbia, Monogram, RKO, Republic, 20th Century-Fox, Universal and Warner. Loew's was not included in the total

Y.; Bill Brown, Loew's Poli, New Haven; Delmar Sherrill, Playhouse, Statesville, N. C.

D. of J. to Move in On Scophony, Ltd.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Justice Department officials indicated today they plan to move quickly to get a default judgment against British Scophony, Ltd., thus tying up the only loose end remaining in the government's anti-trust suit against the various Scophony interests.

Consent judgments were entered yesterday against Paramount Television Productions, Inc., General Precision Equipment Corp., and Scophony Corp. of America.

An anti-trust division spokesman said the British firm would be given a "very brief time" to indicate whether it was finally willing to agree to a similar consent judgment, and if nothing were heard very soon, Justice

It Is a Bit Smudged

Hollywood, Jan. 13.—Director George Sidney insists he knows an Indian bit player who saw the smoke from the orange groves the other day, lit a fire, got a blanket and broke his arm trying to answer the smudge pots.

Citrus growers, faced with millions in losses because of the record low temperatures in Southern California, fail to recognize the humor.

Women Leader Urges Boycott of Hayworth

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—A boycott of future Rita Hayworth films has been threatened by Mrs. Joseph R. Chesser, president of the Better Films Council of Chicago and motion picture chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who, in a statement today, criticized the star's travels around the world with Ali Khan, wealthy Indian potentate.

Mrs. Chesser added, however, that she did not think any of Miss Hayworth's previous films should be boycotted because "it wouldn't be fair to her studio, Columbia." The Federation has a membership of 5,000,000 women in the U. S.

'Realistic' Films Are Wanted: Brecher

The public may no longer have the "wallet-hysteria" of the war days, but they will respond to pictures that are realistic and about believable people, Irving Brecher, independent producer with Universal-International, observed here yesterday. Brecher has just produced "Life of Riley" for U-I. He set up Brecher Productions, Inc., to make the picture, which he said was financed by U-I.

Brecher disclosed that under his "deferred-fee" arrangement with U-I, he will not get his salary until after U-I gets back its costs. Brecher, who wrote, directed and produced the picture, "Life of Riley," which stars William Bendix, said the picture will open March 4 in Cincinnati and will be followed by 100 day-and-date openings.

Brecher asserted that if independent units have a proper set-up and a good picture prospect, they can get loans from the banks. A major problem facing producers today, he said, is to "reduce costs without reducing quality."

Brecher bemoaned the fact that exhibitors do not take advantage of trade screenings.

Talent Unions Start New TV Talks Here

Screen Actors Guild officials John Dales, Jr., and Kenneth Thomson are due to arrive in New York today from Hollywood for a series of conferences with leaders of Eastern talent unions, looking toward an agreement on the joint administration of talent in the television field, it was disclosed yesterday by Florence Marsten, SAG's Eastern representative.

Conferences will run through next week.

since 1947 figures for the company are not comparable to 1948 figures. No figures at all were given for Paramount.

Company - by - company figures for the third quarter of 1948, with comparable figures for the second quarter of 1948 and the third quarter of 1947:

Columbia: $8,668,000 (second quarter, for the period beginning March 28 and ending June 30, $9,046,000; third quarter 1947, $6,475,000).

Monogram: $2,491,000 (second quarter, 14 weeks ending July 31, $2,434,000; third quarter 1947, $2,176,000).

RKO: $26,500,000 (second quarter, $28,682,000; third quarter 1947, $28,907,000).

Republic: $6,427,000 (second quarter, $6,303,000; third quarter 1947, $7,524,000).

Twentieth Century-Fox: $42,218,000 (second quarter, $45,808,000; third quarter 1947, $44,689,000).

Universal: $12,086,000 (second quarter, $14,899,000; third quarter 1947, $16,634,000).

Warner: $39,000,000 (second quarter, $38,081,000; third quarter 1947, $41,031,000).

Columbia reported that the gross income of its foreign subsidiaries amounted to $3,990,000 in the second quarter of 1948 and $3,781,000 in the third quarter of 1947. No figure was given for the third quarter of 1948. RKO reported "net amount of film earnings of subsidiaries not consolidated operating in foreign territories" amounting to $3,379,000 in the third quarter of 1948, compared with $4,856,000 in the second quarter of 1948, and $3,606,000 in the third quarter of 1947.

The SEC noted that the Warner figure for the third quarter of 1948 was reported as "estimated gross income," while the figures for the two earlier quarters were reported as "film rentals, theatre admissions, sales, etc., and rents from tenants and royalties."

Loew's reported for itself and its "wholly owned subsidiaries consolidated" sales of $39,446,000 for the third quarter of 1948, compared with $38,249,000 for the 12 weeks ending June 3, 1948. No figure was given for 1947.

Eastman Kodak reported sales of $105,000,000 for the 12 weeks ending Sept. 4, 1948, compared with $100,000,000 for the 12 weeks ending June 12 of that year and $78,000,000 for the comparable 12 weeks in 1947. General Precision Equipment Corp. had sales of $7,162,000 for the 1948 third quarter, compared with $6,682.000 for the second quarter and $6,726,000 for the third quarter of 1947.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Irwin Franklin, Midwest representative for Artkino Films, distributor of Russian pictures, has been indicted here by the Federal Grand Jury in Judge Philip Barnes' District Court, for failure to register as an alien during the war and for posing as a United States citizen.

Writers' Television Group Is Formed

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13. — Writers' group headed by Emmet Lavery, former president of the Screen Writers' Guild, has incorporated the Writers' Theatre for Television, promising authors a "long-range licensing program, with sliding-scale percentage payments, including maximum participation in the profits of WTT in addition to specific earnings of individual story properties."

Writers will receive an additional payment for every station using their material in addiiton to the primary station.

Lavery is president, John Larkin and Paul Radin are vice-presidents, Jerry Horwin is treasurer, and Allen Rivkin, secretary.

vice-president in charge of theatres; Robert O'Brien, Paramount secretary, and Walter Gross, theatre department attorney, opened the new negotiations with Herbert Bergson, head of the Department's anti-trust division, and Robert Wright, trial counsel for the government in the case.

Louis Phillips, also a home office attorney active in the case, and Edwin L. Weisl, corporate director, came here yesterday from New York to join in the discussions. Phillips' presence here is seen as especially significant since he primarily concerns himself with distribution affairs. The inference is that theatre issues have been resolved to the extent that both sides have taken up distribution practices for treatment in the decree.

1. A full-time representative or committee in Albany to watch for any legislation harmful to theatres or to the industry.

2. An all-out promotional campaign to enlist the aid of the film-going public, primarily through the use of trailers explaining, first, the theatre's part in the community, and second, the effect of local amusement taxes on the public's pocketbook.

3. A drive to enlist every exhibitor in the state, whether affiliated with an exhibitor organization or not, in the fight against adverse legislation.

4. A plan for the immediate grooming of representatives to the State legislature who would fully understand exhibitor problems.

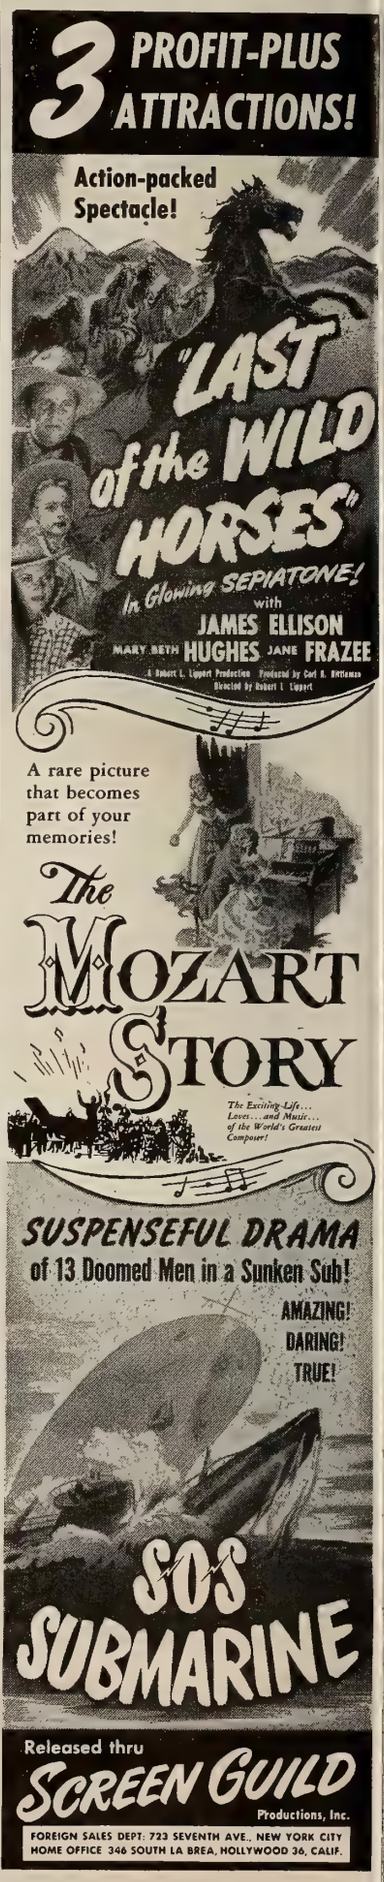
On this last point Gael Sullivan, executive director of the TOA, pointed out that in several states—Mississippi, Alabama, Virginia, Texas and New Mexico—legislators who know the problems of exhibition and the harmful effects of local amusement taxation have been extremely helpful in fighting adverse legislation and in turn have the full support of exhibitors in their states. These are the kind of legislators New York State needs, he said.

"The motion picture industry has done a very poor job in getting its importance across to municipal authorities," Sullivan added.

A temporary committee was appointed to consolidate the plans for action. The committee: Fred J. Schwartz and D. John Phillips for MMPTA; J. Joshua Goldberg and Morton Sunshine for the ITOA, and Harry Lamont and Leonard L. Rosenthal for the Theatre Owners of Albany exchange area. Another meeting is planned shortly.

Turning to the Binghamton, N. Y., tax proposal, which would have put a five per cent levy on all theatre admissions but which was vetoed December 21, representatives attending the meeting said that it was through no effort of exhibitors in that city that the proposed levy was killed. For the most part, it was pointed out, exhibitors and circuits operating theatres there refused to appear at tax hearings and fight the measure for fear of raising public ire. As a result the threat of similar taxation in cities near Binghamton is now more pronounced.

Leo Brecher, MMPTA president, was chairman of the meeting.



U. K. Inquiry

Baker of Ealing Studios, and Sir Arthur Jarratt of British Lion were the witnesses who appeared at the closed hearing.

The producers were intent upon telling their story at the outset of the hearings because of the known inclinations of both Socialist members of Parliament and members of Lord Portal's committee for divorcement of production from both distribution and exhibition.

It is understood that today's testimony was intended to counter that official attitude. In addition, it is known that the Producers' Association planned to take advantage of the opportunity afforded by the inquiry to protest the current entertainment tax in the hope of obtaining a reduction and a greater share of the box-office dollar.

Justice Dept. Starts New Ascap Probe

Would Determine If '41 Decree Needs Altering

Department of Justice will begin an immediate investigation of the operations of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers for the purpose of determining to what extent its decree with the society, entered into in 1941, should be changed, if at all, in view of Federal Court decisions against Ascap in New York and Minneapolis.

This was disclosed in New York Federal Court on Friday by Harold Lasser, government attorney, at a hearing of a motion by Ascap member Abner Greenberg who sought revision of the decree based on his objections to Ascap's method of allocating members' voting power.

Concurring with Lasser's argument that changes in any such decree should be the province of the U. S. Attorney

Prewitt Reelected Gulf States Head

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 16—The board of directors of Gulf States Allied, in session here, unanimously reelected W. A. Prewitt, Jr., president, reelected Don George vice-president and elected F. G. Pratt, Jr., treasurer and Harold Bailey secretary. Maurice J. Artigues remains as general manager.

In a wire to national Allied general counsel Abram F. Myers sent immediately following the board meeting, Prewitt advised him that Gulf States Allied had unanimously approved the "Finneran Plan" for disciplining stars and in the same wire expressed agreement with Allied's condemnation of forced percentage pictures.

Joseph Resigns As U-I's Ad Director

John Joseph announced through the Universal-International home office on Saturday that he had resigned as the company's national advertising-publicity director, a post he has held for 11 years.

Joseph stated that he had no new affiliation in view and that he would "check off the lot" sometime within the next month.

Loew'sReports 1948 Profit Of $5,309,659

Net income of Loew's, Inc., after taxes and all other deductions for the year ended Aug. 31, 1948, amounted to $5,309,659, including $1,097,267 of Loew's portion of the net undistributed income of partly-owned corporations. Earnings are equivalent to $1.03 per share on 5,142,615 common shares outstanding.

Corresponding net income for the previous year was $11,626,427, including $1,093,736 of Loew's portion of the net undistributed income of partly-owned corporations. This was equivalent to $2.26 per share on the same

In its annual report to stockholders, Loew's lists film inventories amounting to $69,943,870, which covers productions in process, completed but not released and others released but less amortization. Company states that it expects the effect of lower cost-pictures will be reflected in the current fiscal year.

A total of $17,467,406 is listed for films completed but not released.

Fight on FCC Rules To Start Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Paramount Pictures this week will strongly oppose rules proposed by the Federal Communications Commission to limit the number of television stations any one firm can be interested in or control.

Oral argument on the proposed rules will open tomorrow. Warner and 20th Century-Fox are not taking any stand.

The proposed rules would hold any one firm to a maximum of five stations controlled. If it controlled the maximum it could not have others.

New Theatre Company Would Have to Dispose Of About 500 Houses

Theatre divestiture, in addition to the separation of Paramount's production-distribution operations from theatre operations, will be provided for in any consent decree agreement which may be reached by the company with the government.

Substantial progress toward an agreement was reported here at the weekend following the return of home office executives from three days of conferences with Department of Justice officials in Washington.

Indications are that further meetings will be held this week and possibly next, with the talks reaching a final stage within 10 days.

Under the agreement being discussed, two new companies would be set up, one to operate Paramount's production and distribution, the second to take over theatre operation independently.

The new theatre company will be subject to divestiture agreements af-

Average Film Cost for Video Is $100 Per Hour

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. — Per-hour costs of theatrical film for television begin somewhere slightly under $75 for older Hollywood product for use in smaller cities, and go up to several hundred dollars per hour in larger markets for newer features, according to a survey on television station operating costs compiled by the National Association of Broadcasters.

A good average figure is $100 per hour, the NAB says, declaring that the price of theatrical film is the firmest item in the field of program costs for television stations. The station costs survey, part of a continuing study being made by the NAB, indicated that a later separate survey will deal solely with the use of films for video.

More Support for Ticket Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. — Support continued to mount at the weekend for reduction of the 20 per cent admissions tax to the pre-war 10 per cent, along with removal of other wartime excise tax increases, but the chances still are that the fight would be a losing one.

Rep. Forand (D., R. I.) and a top member of the House Ways and Means Committee, which handles tax legislation, said he would press for removal of all wartime excise tax boosts. Another congressman, Rep. Hagen (R., Minn.), introduced a bill to cut the tax back to 10 per cent, making five such bills to date, and Rep. Havenner (D., Cal.) introduced a bill to remove the entire 20 per cent admission levy.

Ohio Among 1st with Statewide Video

Cincinnati, Jan. 16.—Television is expected to blanket Ohio by next July, when 12 stations, eight of which are presently under construction, are scheduled to beam programs to Ohio's estimated 50,000 receiving sets. Four stations are now in operation, two in Cleveland, one in Cincinnati and one in Toledo, and with completion of the others, Ohio will become one of the first states in the nation with a sufficient number of stations to provide statewide video reception.

There are 88 FM stations beaming programs to owners of an estimated 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 radios in the state.

Melvin L. Gold, president of the National Television Film Council, which is sponsoring the contract, will introduce the topic with reports from the committees which have been at work in drafting the industry-wide film agreement since July.

Academy Awards Is Switched to Theatre

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 16.—The board of governors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has cancelled plans for staging the annual awards ceremonies on a sound stage at Warner's studio and has announced presentations will take place at the Academy Awards Theatre instead. The shift will limit attendance to the theatre's 950-seat capacity, but the board disclosed it will give the Academy greater net revenue than could have been realized from larger turnouts that might have been accommodated by staging the event at the studio with a banquet feature, or at the Shrine Auditorium as in the past two years.

Only award nominees, the press, and personnel conducting the ceremonies will be admitted to the theatre. The radio broadcast and entertainment program remain as previously announced.

Para. Luncheon for Meyer on Retiring

Paramount will give a luncheon at the Hotel Astor on Thursday for Fred Meyer, assistant secretary and general purchasing agent, who plans to retire at the end of January, after serving Paramount in various executive capacities for 37 years. He plans to rest at his home in Bronxville, and then travel extensively.

Meyer entered the banking business in 1898 and 10 years later became connected with the Cameraphone Co. in Denver, one of the first talking picture companies. In 1909, he went to St. Louis where he formed an association with the Western Film Exchange.

Met Zukor

Meyer came to New York to open a branch office for the company and became acquainted with Adolph Zukor who booked film from Western for his Comedy Theatre. Meyer and Zukor had numerous business dealings and in 1912, when Famous Players was organized, Meyer was taken into the new company. He served Famous Players in many capacities and when Paramount was formed, he took over an executive position with the new company, being general manager of Paramount's Laboratory for many years.

The international company's studio representative, Ely Levy, also will attend.

General, Judge Henry W. Goddard denied Greenberg's motion.

Lasser, following the hearing, said that any new decree could not basically change the effects of the decisions in New York and Minneapolis which held Ascap to be in violation of the anti-trust laws, and enjoined the organization from collecting theatre fees in behalf of its members.

However, the injunctions are to remain in effect for the period in which Ascap continues as it is presently constituted and so found illegal. It has been intimated by other sources that changes in Ascap's structure and system of operations could permit Ascap to resume theatre collections if only as an agency for individual composers and publishers.

Burke Services Held

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. — Funeral services were held here Friday for Charles Burke, press relations director, who died suddenly on Wednesday. His last film assignment was handling Southern showings of Columbia's "La Traviata." May Ban Drive-ins

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A ban on drive-in theatres within Chicago city limits was recommended Friday by the City Council's building and zoning committee. Alderman Peter J. Lullerton, committee chairman, said the ban would stand until regulations governing outdoor theatres are worked out. The issue came to light when an application for a permit was made by theatre operators Fink and Gandell for a proposed outdoor at 76th and Sacramento.

Government Seeks Dissolution of WE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The Government on Friday filed its long-anticipated anti-trust suit to divorce Western Electric from the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The suit would require dissolution of Western Electric into three new independent and competing manufacturing concerns and require Western and A. T. and T. to license all of their patents to all applicants on a non-discriminatory and reasonable royalty basis, as well as to furnish these licensees with technical assistance and know-how in connection with the use of such patents.

Amortization and write-offs of film costs in 1947 was $65,274,210, against $73,313,804 for 1948, reflecting the rise in production costs.

The annual report was accompanied by an earnings statement covering the 12 weeks ended Nov. 25, 1948, showing a net profit of $1,021,156, equal to 20 cents per share on the common stock, against $1,354,761, or 26 cents per share for the same period in 1927.

Gross sales and operating revenues for the 12 weeks in 1948 were estimated at $38,660,000, compared with $38,960,000 for the similar period in 1947.

For the fiscal year 1948, Loew reports operating revenues of $185,816,446, and operating and general expenses of $162,070,408. For 1947, operating revenues were $183,948,900 and expenses were $149,504,619.

Federal income taxes for 1948 were $3,061,729; for 1947, $7,277,478. Loew theatre receipts, rentals, sale of film accessories and M-G-M records for 1948 were $177,096,727; for 1947, $176,342,036.

Outside producers' share of film rentals in 1948 was $6,444,972; in 1947, $2,412,290.

On Aug. 31, 1948, Loew's had current and working assets of $120,212,009, against total current liabilities of $23,039,396.

Last year total current and working assets aggregated $132,171,887 and liabilities were $26,941,991.

Total assets, including cash of $25,529,216, are listed at $223,141,585.

Reviews

"Criss Cross"

ANOTHER hard-slugging melodrama of violence and vengeance is offered by Universal-International in "Criss Cross." Conventional in plot, with such elements as a romantic triangle, a grand frame-up and a bang-up finale, the film has been given a slick production treatment. Burt Lancaster is starred and once again his role is that of a basically good man who has been drawn by circumstances into a web of evil. Previous exhibitor experience with such melodramas should be the best guide for showmen as to commercial and promotional possibilities.

The plot basically is a contest between two strong men, Lancaster and Dan Duryea, over Yvonne De Carlo. On the rebound of her divorce from Lancaster, Miss De Carlo marries Duryea, an unsavory underworld character. Duryea is none too gentle with Miss De Carlo and she goes to Lancaster for help. After some doubt, Lancaster, apparently still loving Miss De Carlo, sets out to free her from Duryea's grip. Involved in his hasty plan is the joining of forces with Duryea to rob an armored truck. Things break wrong with the planned robbery and there follows a few more melodramatic events before Duryea shoots to death both Miss De Carlo and Lancaster, and is himself killed.

Marriage and divorce, gangsterism and alcoholism are the main ingredients of the screenplay by Daniel Fuchs, which was based on the novel by Don Tracy. As such, it is the ugly side of life that is portrayed. Lancaster gives a creditable performance as a morose bruiser caught in love-torments, while Miss De Carlo as the woebegone woman, carries her relatively heavy role adequately. Duryea is an old hand at conveying sadism and evil, and he does it well. Others in the cast are Stephen McNally and Richard Long. Robert Siodmak directed and Michel Kraike produced.

Running time, 87½ minutes. Adult audience classification. For February release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"Miranda"

(Rank-Eagle-Lion)

VERY British in presentation, "Miranda," a fantasy about a mermaid, turns out to be a fresh and witty importation from the J. Arthur Rank studio. Although lacking in marquee names, discriminating film-goers should find it highly satisfying.

The story concerns a married London doctor who leaves his wife and office for a needed fishing vacation. No sooner does he cast his line than he finds himself yanked down into the undersea cave of a pretty mermaid. A victim of the mermaid's innocent charms, the good doctor is persuaded to take the mermaid home with him. As soon as the mermaid enters the doctor's household, a series of farcical events happen. Thinking her an invalid rather than a mermaid, several men fall in love with her.

It is to the credit of the Peter Blackmore screenplay that the satirical qualities inherent in the theme are amply realized on the screen. In time, the doctor's wife senses something fishy about the unusual visitor, and finally discovers her to be a mermaid. In the finale, after a handful of men have made themselves silly over her, the mermaid returns to her customary haunts, a bit wiser about the homo sapiens.

Performances are satisfactory all around. Glynis Johns plays the mermaid, with Griffith Jones as the doctor and Googie Withers as his wife. Others in the cast are John McCallum and Margaret Rutherford. A Gainsborough Production, it was produced by Betty E. Box with Sydney Box in charge of production. Adapted from Blackmore's play, it was directed by Ken Annakin.

Running time, 80 minutes. Adult audience classification. For February release.

M. H.

"Parole, Inc."

(Eagle-Lion)

ANOTHER in the series of documentary-styled melodramas, "Parole, Inc." deals with the bribery of parole board officials by members of the underworld for the purpose of gaining the illegal release of hardened gangsters. Suspense is neatly held throughout.

Michael O'Shea is seen as the FBI agent who, at the request of a state governor, attempts to expose the racket. Posing as a big-time racketeer he works his way into a gang, finds their method of reaching certain members of the parole board, uses this method to "spring" a convict, then traps the entire gang. Turhan Bey, a suave and enterprising attorney, lends conviction to his role as the unscrupulous go-between of the parole board and the underworld, while Evelyn Ankers is seen as the owner of a honky-tonk night club and brains of the city's racketeering element.

An Orbit Production, produced by Constantin J. David and directed by Alfred Zeisler, the story is well-knit and of sufficient interest to hold most persons' attention. The screenplay was written by Sherman L. Lowe, from an original story which he wrote with Royal K. Cole.

Running time, 71 minutes. General audience classification. For January release.

New Production Firm

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 16.—Richard Oswald and Edward Lewis have established Skyline Pictures, to produce features for Film Classics release. First will be Balzac's "Great Speculator."

Short Subject

"On Stage"

(March of Time-20th-Fox)

The fascinating story of the events that lead up to a play opening on Broadway is told with skill and sparkle in the latest March of Time subject. It is an outstanding one in the series. A number of Broadway stars appear in the film, also scenes from such current successes as "Red Gloves," and Maxwell Anderson's "Anne of the Thousand Days." Richard Walsh, IATSE president, and many top playwrights also come in for some footage. Much of the story is told through the action of Maggie Garland, an aspiring young actress determined to "make the grade."

The subject is one which should have wide popular appeal, and Richard de Rochemont and his staff are to be congratulated for the production. Running time, 18 minutes.

More Support for 'Finneran Plan'

DENVER, Jan. 17.—Directors of Allied Rocky Mountain Theatres voted at their quarterly meeting approval of the resolution of the Allied New Orleans convention regarding the "Finneran Plan" for disciplining film players who overstep the bounds of propriety. The resolution against forced percentage films was also approved.

The meeting voted to ask all exhibitors to give either a day's, night's or matinee's receipts to the March of Dimes, and thus do away with collections. More than 40 theatres in the local unit have agreed to this. Some intend having a special show, with admission at $1, and promote it along the line that half of the money will remain here to fight polio.

MEMPHIS, Jan. 17. — The newly-organized Allied Independent Theatre Owners of the Mid-South has called an organization meeting of all independent theatre owners of Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi at the Hotel Chisca, Memphis, on Wednesday, Feb. 9.

The call, which is being issued to organize a branch of Allied covering the Tri-State territory, was issued by Edward O. Cullins, Memphis, president of the Mid-South branch of Allied. Bulletins to independent theatre owners will be mailed this week.

A permanent office has been established at the Hotel Chisca and a manager will be named this week, Cullins said.

U.S. Brief Upholds Lawson Conviction

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The Government today urged the Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to uphold the contempt of Congress conviction of screen writer John Howard Lawson.

In a brief filed today, the government argued that the courts have upheld the right of the House Un-American Activities Committee to ask witnesses about Communist Party ties, that committee Chairman Thomas had legally constituted the sub-committee holding the Hollywood hearings and that the trial was proper.

Decree Might Cut Its Video Ties Says Para.

Sees Loss of Television Interests in Affiliates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Final outcome of the government's anti-trust suit against Paramount Pictures might result in the company having to give up subsidiary firms which now are in or are entering the television field, a Paramount attorney told the Federal Communications Commission.

Duke Patrick, of the law firm of Hogan and Hartson, made this point in presenting the opposition of Paramount and its subsidiaries to the Commission's proposed rules limiting the number of television stations which one firm may own.

Patrick pointed out that several stations are owned or being sought by

Para., US Weighing Competition Issues

Negotiations between Paramount and the Department of Justice for a separate consent decree in the industry anti-trust suit have been narrowed down to the point where individual situations which would be part of a separate theatre company are being considered in the light of competitive market conditions.

Walter Gross, theatre department attorney, and Robert O'Brien, corporate secretary, represented Paramount in another meeting with Department attorneys in Washington yesterday. They returned to New York in the late afternoon.

The separate Paramount theatre company which figures to be formed under terms of the settlement will not retain any "closed" situations.

UA, Roach Press Fight on 'Curley'

MEMPHIS, Jan. 17.—The fight against Memphis censorship of "Curley," a Hal Roach comedy, on constitutional grounds has been appealed to a higher court.

Judge Floyd Henderson overruled a motion for a new trial in the case of United Artists and Roach on Saturday and an appeal to the Court of Appeals was immediately taken.

Para. Sells 3rd Film Away from Saenger

New Orleans, Jan. 17.—"The Paleface" opens at Loew's State on Friday for a week's run, making the third Paramount feature which has played at other than a Paramount-Richards house since the recent sell-away. Both "A Foreign Affair" and "Sorry, Wrong Number" played Loew's State earlier.

Paramount is selling away from its partner because of its inability to arrive at rental terms with the circuit.

To Stage Play for Purple Heart Men

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17.—With Gregory Peck, John Wayne, Maureen O'Hara and Pat O'Brien as stars, director John Ford is presenting a stage production of "What Price Glory" with all proceeds going to the military order of the Purple Heart.

The production will play Los Angeles, Hollywood, San Francisco, Long Beach and possibly other cities, starting on the eve of George Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, and continuing through mid-March.

Other stars in the cast include Robert Armstrong, Wallace Ford, George O'Brien, Ward Bond, Harey Carey, Jr., Forrest Tucker, Luis Alberni, Allan Hale, Oliver Hardy and Herbert Rawlinson. It will be staged by Ralph Murphy and produced by Harry Joe Brown. Laurence Stallings, co-author of "What Price Glory," will be associated with the production.

Others in the cast include Charles Kemper, Jimmy Lydon, G. Pat Collins, Fred Graham, Henry O'Neill, James R. Dugan, Larry Blake and Pat Summers III. Everyone connected with the production is contributing his services without pay.

Gilbert L. Becker

Gilbert L. Becker, office manager for M-G-M in Detroit since 1930, died over the weekend following a protracted illness. He joined the old Goldwyn company in 1922, in the booking department at Albany and in 1930 was transferred to the New York branch as cashier. Surviving are the widow and two daughters. One of the daughters, Ruth, is head contract clerk in the Detroit M-G-M office.

PCA's Al Block, 51

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17.—Private funeral services were held for Al Block, 51, former scenarist and for the past 14 years M-G-M liaison with the Production Code Administration, who died Friday morning of pneumonia. The widow, a son, and a brother survive.

A. S. Guckenheimer, 82

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 17.—Abe Simon Guckenheimer, 82 years old and builder of the first house here in the silent days, died at his home Jan. 14.

Approach Decision in Ad Films Trust Suit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The Federal Trade Commission today wound up hearings in its anti-trust case against four producers of advertising films. The Commission has been taking testimony for over a year-and-a-half in a score of cities. Next step will be for the trial examiner Earl J. Kolb, who heard the case, to recommend a decision to the full Commission.

Defendants are: Ray Bell Films, St. Paul; Alexander Film Co., Colorado Springs; United Film Ad Service, Kansas City, and Motion Picture Advertising Service, New Orleans. The complaint, filed two years ago, charges that these firms used unfair methods of competition tending to restrain trade and create a monopoly in the sale of advertising films.

DeRochemont Says Video to Aid Films

Addressing the fourth annual convention of the Screen Directors Guild over the weekend, producer Louis DeRochemont predicted that as a result of television, "the motion picture industry will be rebuilt along healthier, sounder lines, with larger rewards going to those who contribute to the creation of the product rather than to the administrative hierarchy.

"I believe New York will become the center of motion picture production, particularly of films made for television," he added. "By 1950, television will be consuming more film footage each month than Hollywood today produces in a year. Already we know that the traditional Hollywood cost pattern cannot be used in making television films. Many of these films will have to be made on location, for reasons of economy, and the East offers a wide range of natural location which are lacking on the West."

FTC Asks Congress For Trust Law Change

Washington, Jan. 17.—The Federal Trade Commission today again urged Congress to amend the anti-trust laws to bar the acquisition of physical assets as well as corporate stock where the effect is to lessen competition substantially. The Commission made the suggestion in its annual report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948.

The Administration has been backing this suggestion strongly, and bills to accomplish it have already been introduced in both houses of Congress.

SEC Reports 20th-Fox Contract with Einfeld

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Charles Einfeld, newly-elected vice-president of 20th Century-Fox in charge of advertising, publicity and exploitation, will receive $2,000 a week and a $500 weekly expense account under his two-year contract starting on Feb. 1, the company has reported to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The employment contract, in addition, provides that Einfeld shall receive $25,000 for acting in an advisory capacity from Nov. 1, 1948, to Jan. 31, 1949.

Cut Lawyers' Fees

43 Openings Set for Short's 'Bad Boy'

Some 43 key situation premieres have been set for Feb. 22 for Allied Artists' "Bad Boy" with all of the first night revenue to go to Variety Clubs International, Paul Short, who produced the film, revealed here yesterday at an AA home office press interview. A juvenile delinquency picture, it was made at the request of U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark and with the cooperation of Variety Clubs. Variety will also participate in the profits of the film, which start at 10 per cent and go upward, Short disclosed.

At present Short has a two-film contract with AA, with "Born to Lose" scheduled as his second production. Also, Short asserted, he expects to make two for Universal.

and productions of various independents in Hollywood.

First of the films to be produced on the 1949 schedule will be two documentaries to be made by Bryan Foy. They are "Port of New York," dealing with the Customs Bureau of the Treasury Department, "Trapped," to deal with the U. S. Secret Service. Both will be made with the cooperation of the Federal agencies involved and New York harbor authorities.

The third film is tentatively titled "Marker X" and will deal with the sleuths of the Pure Food and Drug Division of the government, to be produced by Aubrey Schenck and Steve Sekely and to be directed by Sekely.

Foy left Hollywood yesterday for Washington and New York to arrange for filming portions of both of his pictures in the East. He will be joined in New York shortly by James T. Vaughn, Eagle-Lion studio production manager.

Motion Picture Daily—Fame scroll will be presented to George Denny, moderator of "America's Town Meeting of the Air," named as Best Educational Program in the Fame poll, on the combined radio and television broadcast over American Broadcasting tonight at 8:30.

Bill Stern, who was voted Best Sportscaster, will be presented with the scroll for that classification on his National Broadcasting show on Friday at 10:30 P.M.

Hits Inaugural Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Rep. Rees, Kansas Republican, today attacked a bill exempting from admission taxes tickets on inaugural events on the ground that Congress should not be easy on people who "can pay $5 to see Hollywood stars" when it taxes poor families who see the same stars in the neighborhood theatres.

Pickford, Chaplin At UA Coast Meet

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17.—The first meeting of United Artists' board, partner-owners, executives and finance committee got under way here this afternoon with the reading of the committee's report on ways and means of financing production, the first item on the meeting agenda.

The meeting, first in a sequence expected to run several days, took place at company headquarters, General Service Studio, with owners Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin in attendance. Next session will be Wednesday.

WB, Selznick Confer On Players Loan-Out

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17.—In the wake of weekend reports, a Warner Brothers spokesman today affirmed that negotiations are in progress for the company's use of "several David O. Selznick players on loan-out," but denied knowledge of any plans for acquisition by WB of complete Selznick production properties. Daniel T. O'Shea, Selznick executive indicated no "sales" were pending.

1948 Weekly Gross Summary

come for December was $15,138, while in November it was $15,180. December, 1947, showed an average of $16,013.

As is usually the case, the first three weeks of last month were relatively mild, business-wise. And, also as usual, a sharp upturn in grosses followed in the fourth week (Christmas week), with the weekly average per theatre registering $17,413.

Although 1948 grosses were below those of the previous year, according to reports, there is evidence in the array of figures of a general levelling off of grosses with apparent promise of steadiness this year from an overall standpoint.

"The Paleface," which got into national release in the last week of December, surged forward rapidly as a grosser to tie "The Three Musketeers" for first place box-office honors last month. November's leader was "Johnny Belinda," followed closely by "Musketeers."

"Hamlet," showing at advanced admission prices, moved up into second place last month, while third place honors were shared by "When My Baby Smiles at Me," "The Snake Pit" and "Blood on the Moon."

Other films which appeared frequently as better-than-average grossers last month were: "Johnny Belinda," "June Bride," "Miss Tatlock's Millions," "Red Rover" (a close third in November), "Fighter Squadron," "Mexican Hayride," "Road House," "Belle Starr's Daughter," "He Walked by Night," "Sealed Verdict," "No Minor Vices," "The Saxon Charm," "Julia Misbehaves," "The Return of October."

Also, the reissue pair, "Last Days of Pompeii" and "She," "Let's Live a Little," "Kiss the Blood Off My Hands," "The Freak," "Plunderers," "Strike It Rich," "That Wonderful Urge," "The Red Shoes" and the following late starters: "Command Decision," "Joan of Arc," "Portrait of Jennie," "Yellow Sky," "The Adventures of Don Juan" and "Every Girl Should Be Married."

Composite key city box-office reports for 1948 and 1947 follow:

Paramount subsidiaries, rather than by Paramount itself, and suggested that if one of these subsidiaries were divested as a result of a Paramount Federal Court case judgment or settlement, the film might no longer be outside the five-station limit which the FCC is proposing. He said that with the competition for stations what it is, the FCC should not rule out the bids of Paramount subsidiaries, but process them subject to conditions. That the limit be observed by a certain time during 1948, he said, there were 18 FCC decisions awarding stations on the condition that certain steps be taken.

"It is fair to say that the damage that the respondents have already incurred as a result of the Commission's interpretations of its present multiple ownership rules is not only vast but incalculable," Patrick said, referring to the Commission's recently proposed order throwing out five pending applications by DuMont Laboratories and Paramount, on the grounds that Paramount controls DuMont.

Patrick appeared on behalf of Paramount Pictures, Paramount Television Productions, United Detroit Theatres, New England Theatres, Gulf Theatres and Balaban and Katz.

He challenged the Commission's authority to make such multiple ownership limits and the wisdom of making them at this time in view of the unsettled future of television allocations, and suggested revisions in the proposed rules if adopted.

"The FCC is not primarily an agency designed or intended by Congress to deal with monopoly or anti-trust questions," Patrick stated. "Congressional opposition to monopoly and the benefits of the proposed rule are not enough to support it—statutory authority must be specifically shown."

Patrick stressed that both Paramount and DuMont were television pioneers, and declared that while the applications of Paramount subsidiaries for Boston and Detroit channels were given "the silent treatment," later applications were given channels.

Goldwyn Prod. Resigns from MPAA, AMPP

Contends Policies Do Not Aid Independents

Feeling that the policies of the Motion Picture Association of America do not represent the interests of independent producers, Samuel Goldwyn yesterday notified the MPAA in New York and the Association of Motion Picture Producers in Hollywood of his intention to withdraw from both organizations.

Resignation of the Goldwyn company from the MPAA becomes effec-

Harry Cohn Pact to Col. Stockholders

At the annual meeting of Columbia stockholders, to be held here on Feb. 8, stockholders will vote on a corporate amendment to provide for an increase in the number of directors from seven to nine.

Stockholders are asked also to vote on a proposed employment contract with Harry Cohn, company president, whereby Cohn will continue at his present salary, subject to a six-month notice of termination by either party.

Proxies for the meeting, sent to stockholders yesterday, advise that no decision regarding the new directors has yet been made by the board.

As an inducement for Cohn to enter into the agreement, there has been made available to him certain benefits arising from $300,000 of insurance policies which the company has long held on his life. These benefits will be payable to Cohn or his heirs.

Additional matters before the meeting will include the election of direc-

N. Y. 1st-Run Income Fair

Business is inching along at a few spots, while others range from moderate to substantial in a week of widely varied grosses at New York first-runs. Unseasonably mild weather continued helpful. Income for the week generally is moderate.

"The Accused," with Ray McKinley's orchestra and the Mills Brothers, made a good showing in a first week at the Paramount with a gross of $84,000. "The Boy With the Green Hair" returned the Palace to a first-run policy, and the initial week's take is good, at $24,000. At the Criterion, "Mexican Hayride" is fair at $18,000 in a first week, short of enough to warrant a second; "Act of Violence" will open on Saturday.

Newsreels Set for Inaugural Coverage

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Full resources of the five newsreel companies will be thrown into the coverage of President Truman's inauguration here tomorrow. Virtually entire home office and Washington crews will be at the scene, plus staff men from Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and elsewhere.

While no pooling arrangement has been set up for exchanging footage, the companies have worked out a pooling arrangement for the shipment of film from the Capital to newsreel home offices by chartered planes.

Footage will be edited and made-up Thursday night and rushed to theatres for weekend showing as part of the regular reels, which will be flown to distant parts of the country by air express.

$22,000,000 to Variety Charities

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 18.—Variety Clubs in the U. S. have "raised $22,000,000 for charities in the last 22 years," William McCraw, executive director of Variety International, told a meeting of the local tent last night.

He said the Variety Clubs are doing the finest public relations job for the industry of any group in it.

'Forced Percentage' Talks Start Monday

Allied States Association will present to distributors' sales managers here next week proposals for eliminating "forced percentage selling."

Col. H. A. Cole of Texas and the special Allied committee on "forced percentage" which he heads are due to arrive in New York on Monday to open discussions with the companies individually. Other members of the committee, which was set up on Dec. 1 at the national Allied convention in New Orleans, include Sidney Samuelson, Pennsylvania; Charles Niles, Iowa; Jack Kirsch, Illinois, and Martin Smith, Ohio.

Discussions are expected to continue daily throughout the week. It is understood that for the past several weeks the Cole committee has been gathering facts and figures preparatory to meeting the sales chiefs.

Para. Must Produce Ridge Case Records

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—In the Ridge Theatre equity suit, Judge John P. Barnes in U. S. District Court has over-ruled Paramounts' objections to plaintiff attorney Seymour Simon's request for an open examination of playdates and film rentals for the South-side Tivoli, Maryland, Tower (operated by B. and K.) and Picadilly, Avalon and Jackson Park theatres for the past three years.

Simon's purpose is to prove that the distributors have been making more money on the South-side under the Jackson Park decree than prior to it, when B. and K. houses were the distributor's only outlet. Paramount objected on grounds that South-side theatres have nothing to do with theatres on the North-side, where the Ridge is located. Judge Barnes ordered Paramount to answer the request.

U.K. Problems Up at MPAA Miami Meet

Other Foreign Markets, Prospects, Discussed

MIAMI, Jan. 18.—A review of British film market conditions and problems, including an exchange of views on the first six months' experiences under the British ad valorem tax settlement, occupied most of the opening session of the two-day meeting of Motion Picture Association of America directors held at the home of Nicholas Schenck here today.

It was estimated that on the basis of the first half-year of operations under the tax agreement, American pictures will earn approximately $40,000,000 net in Britain for the 12 months ending next June 14, which ordinarily would go to New York.

Under the tax agreement, $17,000,000 of that amount can be remitted, plus the equivalent of British picture earnings in the American market,

100 Argentine Films For the US Market

Plans for the importation of Argentine product into the American market were announced here yesterday by Juan Martin, former member of the Argentine diplomatic corps in the U. S., who has arrived in New York from Buenos Aires.

Martin has acquired exclusive North American, Canadian and Philippine distribution rights to 100 Argentine pictures turned out during and prior to 1948 and to be made during 1949 and 1950, he said. This arrangement excludes the few Argentine pictures already in release here. The films, which come from six Buenos Aires studios, will be distributed in the U. S. and Canada by Martin's own organization.

Argentine studios are now turning out about 40 feature films a year, Martin said.

Wire 1,000 Papers On 'Movies and You'

United Press has distributed to approximately 1,000 newspapers a news feature on "The Movies and You" of the all-industry film series, the Motion Picture Association of America reports.

The article, written by Jack Gaver, stated in part: "For the first time, the entire industry is cooperating to use what it considers the most graphic mass medium—the movies—to explain what makes it tick. The instruction is so palatable that the ticket-buyers won't even realize they are being instructed."

"The Movies and You" series is hailed as "informative" by Mark Barron, drama editor of the Associated Press, in a wire-service story sent to all AP member newspapers.

the Roxy, wound up with $55,000, which is slow, in its final six days, one day short of a complete fourth week; it was replaced yesterday by "Chicken Every Sunday," with Dean Murphy, Tony Martin and the ice show on stage. "Letter to Three Wives" will open at the Music Hall tomorrow, replacing "Words and Music" which, with the stage presentation, will conclude a sixth week tonight with a modest take of $105,000.

"Unknown Island" is big at the Rialto, where the second week's gross is figured at $13,000. "The Man from Colorado" is due at the Capitol tomorrow, succeeding "Every Girl Should Be Married," which, with a stage show including Skitch Henderson's orchestra and Burt Lancaster, should conclude a fourth and final week with $43,000, not too good.

"Snake Pit" is holding up remarkably well at the Rivoli, where the 11th week's revenue is estimated at $27,500. Another sturdy performer is "Adventures of Don Juan," with Tommy Dorsey's orchestra, which should give the Strand a healthy $52,000 in a fourth week.

"Wake of the Red Witch" is likely to draw a good $37,000 in a second week at the Mayfair. "Belle Starr's Daughter" is fair at the Globe, where the second week's income probably will hit $14,500. About $20,000, which is so-so, was looked for in the fourth and final round of "Force of Evil" at the State; it is to be replaced today by "Command Decision."

"Enchantment" still is a weighty contender at the Astor, where $29,000 is in view for a fourth week. "Joan of Arc" should ring up about $30,000, strong enough, in a 10th week at the Victoria.

The 16th week of "Hamlet" should gross about $15,500 at the Park, where top business continues. It looks like a $12,000 gross for the 14th week of "Red Shoes" at the Bijou; this, too, is good.

Reviews

"The Lucky Stiff"

(Amusement Enterprises-U.A.)

JACK BENNY'S Amusement Enterprises' initial production, "The Lucky Stiff," is a mixture of comedy and melodrama. Among its merchandising assets is a cast headed by Dorothy Lamour, Brian Donlevy and Claire Trevor, but for the most part they wage a valiant fight against a wandering story.

Based on a Craig Rice novel, the film is the type in which murders occur intermittently. Since the head of the homicide squad, as well as the district attorney, are feeble dunderheads, Donlevy, a lawyer, must go about solving the crimes. Against the background of murder, lies a protection racket which Donlevy has dedicated himself to expose at the behest of his patron, Marjorie Rambeau. As it develops, Miss Lamour, a nightclub singer, is suspected of being one of the murderers. In order to smoke out the real killer, Donlevy sets a ruse in which Miss Lamour is supposed to be executed. He then has her "ghost" come back to terrify an assortment of suspects.

Such are the ingredients of the Lewis R. Foster screenplay. By the time Donlevy wraps up the case, the murderers are trapped and it is revealed that Miss Lamour is one of the forces behind the protection racket. At about this juncture Donlevy finally awakens to the beckoning charms of Miss Trevor, his neglected "Girl Friday." Performances are generally adequate, with others in the case including Robert Armstrong, Irene Hervey and Billy Vine. Direction by Foster is shy in bringing the picture to vivid life. Jack Benny produced.

Running time, 99 minutes. Adult audience classification. For February release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"Flaxy Martin"

PRODUCER Saul Elkins, responsible for an imposing proportion of Warner Brothers' fast-action melodramas released in 1948, greets 1949 with the fastest and most actionable of his works so far, a favorable augury for the six properties on his production agenda as this attraction goes to the post. His principals in this one are Zachary Scott, Virginia Mayo, Dorothy Malone and Douglas Kennedy, who receive admirable support from Elisha Cook, Jr., Tom D'Andrea, Helen Westcott and Douglas Fowley, among others.

The story, by David Lang, ably directed by Richard Bare, concerns mobsters and the anti-social tendencies which animate their operations against law, order and each other, and is fashioned with that deftness which in recent years has been developed to the level of artistry. The film promises to take very good care of itself commercially.

Scott portrays with accustomed suavity a lawyer in the employ of Kennedy, a racketeer, and in love with Miss Mayo, who is as crooked as she is beautiful and who puts his devotion to unprincipled use. Scott saves one of Kennedy's henchmen from the law, on witness testimony which he does not know is perjured, but discovers his error later and warns Kennedy that the witness will attempt blackmail. Accordingly, Kennedy has the witness murdered, but when suspicion points to Miss Mayo, Scott arranges to be charged with the crime, believing he can beat the case. Kennedy crosses him up, however, and Scott is convicted, but escapes custody and is given refuge by Miss Malone, a small town girl, who falls in love with him. In a fast and surprising wind-up he gets back to town and brings Miss Mayo and Kennedy together in a situation exposing their duplicity, whereupon Miss Mayo kills Kennedy and Scott summons the police, intent upon clearing up all errors of justice.

Running time, 86 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

WILLIAM R. WEAVER

(Columbia)

AS Jungle Jim of the title, Johnny Weissmuller this time is the leader of a jungle safari searching for the ancient pyramid of Zimbalu. In the course of his assignment, Weissmuller comes to grips with crocodiles, lions and innumerable savages, and, of course, he emerges triumphant. The production is an average action film which should please Weissmuller's many followers.

Virginia Grey, a scientist, and Weissmuller, lead a group of friendly native bearers in search of a temple belonging to a group of savages who possess a poisonous serum which, when refined, is a cure for infantile paralysis. Besides the serum the savages are supposed to possess many valuable treasures. The safari encounters great difficulties travelling through the jungle but eventually locates the temple. The party is attacked by savages and are taken prisoners. George Reeves, a camera man, is working with the savages in order to get all of the treasure himself. However, when the savages turn against him, he is killed. Weissmuller and his friendly natives, in a free-for-all fight, defeat the savages. The safari returns after successfully accomplishing its mission.

Sam Katzman produced and William Berke directed. The story and screenplay, by Carroll Young, are based on the newspaper feature "Jungle Jim," which appears in "Puck, the Comic Weekly."

Running time, 71 minutes. General audience classification. Released in December.

Proposes Hayworth Ban

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—City Councilman Vincent J. Shanley proposed today that the council ban all pictures with Rita Hayworth.

K.C. Snows Close Stores

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—Theatre business here was off sharply today as heavy snow jammed traffic and closed downtown stores and schools.

New SRO Films Free To 'Vets' Hospitals

Washington, Jan. 18.—Selznick Releasing Organization will furnish 16 and 35mm. first-run pictures without cost to Veterans Administration hospitals and homes throughout the U. S.

F. R. Kerr, VA's assistant administrator for special services, reports the Selznick agreement is the first of its kind, other distributing companies charging VA film rentals for films shown in its hospitals and homes.

Ask Court to Halt Co-op Film Express

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 18.—The Associated Independent Theatre Owners Cooperative here would be prevented from operating a film express business in competition with common carriers under terms of a petition filed yesterday in a district court.

Mistletoe Express Service, Inc., asked for an injunction against the cooperative on the grounds that it operates a business of transporting goods for hire contrary to regulations of the state corporation commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mistletoe, a subsidiary of The Oklahoman and Oklahoma City Times, charged that co-op rates are lower than other common carriers because the co-op does not pay a Federal transportation tax.

Boston Trust Action Names 8 Distributors

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—W. Leslie Bendslev, owner of the Community Playhouse, Wellesley Hills, Mass., has filed an anti-trust action in U. S. District Court here against the eight major distributors and M. and P. Theatres, New England Theatres, Publix Netoco, Allston Theatres, Keith Massachusetts Corp. and E. M. Loew.

Plaintiff charges restraint of trade, violation of the U. S. anti-trust laws, excessive and unreasonable fees for film rentals.

Obscene Film Conviction

ATLANTA, Jan. 18.—Convicted of exhibiting an obscene motion picture at the Hanger Theatre, B. E. Gore, owner of several theatres in Florida, was sentenced to serve 12 months in the county jail, by Judge E. E. Andrews of Fulton Superior Court. which might amount to an additional $1,000,000, it was said.

Specified permitted uses of the balance blocked in England are understood to have been discussed without indication that any significant amount will be employed for American production in Britain, at least during the first year of the agreement.

Also discussed was experiences to date with the MPAA program prohibiting the booking to British theatres of an American film with an accompanying British picture. It was reported that the plan has not proved satisfactory, due largely to the number of American pictures available to theatres from sources outside the MPAA.

It was indicated that Eric Johnston, MPAA president, will not go to London this spring for hearings on possible changes in the British 45 per cent film quota law. Any representations which the MPAA might decide to make more likely will be presented by F. W. Allport of the London office. Johnston plans to hold a press conference tomorrow.

The meeting also considered other foreign market problems, notably the recent action of South Africa in freezing 50 per cent of American film earnings there.

One executive, asked whether the Canadian market had been discussed, said: "We have no problems there."

The meeting also considered general economic conditions here and abroad in the light of their bearing on future business prospects. Operating and production costs are said to have been on the agenda, as well as specific public relations problems. Indications are that discussions on these subjects will be resumed tomorrow, after which Johnston is scheduled to leave by plane for Washington to attend the Presidential Inaugural ceremonies on Thursday.

Among those at the meeting are: Nicholas M. Schenck, Barney Balaban, Spyros Skouras, Ned E. Depinet, Albert Warner, Nate Blumberg, Jack Cohn, Edwin Weisl, Y. Frank Freeman, Joyce O'Hara and John A. McCarthy.

"I Cheated the Law"

(20th Century-Fox)

AN interestingly-conceived melodrama, "I Cheated the Law," made by Belsam Productions, centers around an attorney who discovers that a man he has successfully defended against a murder charge, is actually guilty. Determined to serve the ends of justice, the attorney obtains evidence on which to bring the criminal to equivalent justice on other grounds. Tom Conway as the attorney, and Steve Brodie as the murderer are in the foreground throughout the action.

The scene is principally Los Angeles, the picture opening with Conway winning acquittal of Brodie on the charge of murder. That night Brodie, in his cups, informs Conway, a teetotaler, that he was actually guilty of the crime and framed the evidence responsible for his acquittal. Conway, intent upon recouping the interests of justice, pretends to fall victim to alcohol, disappears from his home, and winds up in the gutter, where he is picked up by Brodie and installed as butler and legal adviser. Eventually, Conway obtains proof of Brodie's guilt of a second murder, and in a melodramatic courtroom scene brings about Brodie's second indictment for murder, this time to be convicted.

Running time, 64 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, not set.

presidents meeting in Miami were "relieved" by Goldwyn's withdrawal.

"During his association with us," Johnston said, "Mr. Goldwyn has demonstrated a unique and singular flair for saying one thing and doing exactly the opposite. Mr. Goldwyn's fabulous material success in the motion picture industry—he is a multi-millionaire—is irrefutable proof that free enterprise and free opportunity exist in a very real and positive way for all producers.

The figures, it is explained, include expense allowances, which are not required to be accounted for, of $15,600 to Harry Cohn, $15,600 to Jack Cohn, $10,400 to Schneider, and $5,200 to Spingold.

In conjunction with his resignation, Goldwyn stated: "I have resigned in order to give my undivided support to the interests of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers.

"I find myself unable to agree conscientiously with many of the policies formulated by the Association and feel that they do not represent the interests of independent producers. The fight of the independent producers for an open market is a fight for survival, not only for themselves and their employes, but also for the continuance of the independent creative efforts which have contributed so much to the vitality and progress of the screen. There must be a return to real free enterprise in our industry—an opportunity for all producers to show their pictures to the public in every community on a fair and non-discriminatory basis.

"The future of good motion pictures is completely bound up with the efforts of SIMPP to bring this about. From now on I intend to concentrate my energies on the efforts of the Society to bring about a fair deal for independent producers."

Para. Aims for Tax-Free Rule On Separation

Same as RKO's; U.S. in 'Substantial' Agreement

Paramount tax specialists have begun conferences with the Department of Internal Revenue in Washington as a preliminary to a formal application for a ruling that the company's expected separation of its theatres from production-distribution is non-taxable.

Paramount and the Justice Department are in "substantial" agreement on the terms of the settlement in the industry anti-trust suit with all that is to be worked out now being the precise language of decree papers, it was disclosed here. Robert O'Brien, Paramount secretary, and Fred Mohrhardt, treasurer, were in Washington yesterday for a continuation of the meetings with Justice on this matter.

Purpose of the informal discussions with the Revenue Bureau is to familiarize it with the overall case and with the progress made on the settlement so that an early decision could be rendered when the formal non-taxation bid is made.

RKO's request for a tax-free ruling already has been granted by the

Blumenstock Heads MPAA Ad Group

The advertising-publicity directors committee of the Motion Picture Association of America has elected Mort Blumenstock, vice-president in charge of advertising-publicity for Warner Brothers, as committee chairman.

Blumenstock will serve for six months. He succeeds Stanley Shuford, advertising manager of Paramount, whose term expires this week.

Leserman Associates May Invest in SG

Discussions are under way here between Screen Guild Productions president Robert L. Lippert and Carl Leserman relative to the latter's interest in buying into Screen Guild with an investment said to be "in excess of $1,000,000," according to Lippert.

Leserman, formerly a distribution executive with Warner and United Artists, and more recently associated in production with Benedict Bogeaus, is meeting here also with his own associates.

Goldwyn-Johnston Enter 2nd Round of Word Battle

Samuel Goldwyn tendered his resignations from the Motion Picture Association of America and the Association of Motion Picture Producers on Tuesday with the explanation that he felt their policies do not represent the interests of independent producers.

Eric Johnston, MPAA president, commenting on the resignations, said the reaction of some of his members could be summed up in one word—"Good." But he didn't stop there.

Yesterday came this rejoinder from Goldwyn:

"It is indeed unfortunate for the motion picture industry that Mr. Eric Johnston's manners are as bad as his judgment. I had hoped to withdraw from the Motion Picture Association of America without commenting on Mr. Johnston's leadership but this latest effusion from his word factory impels me to state a few matters for the record.

"During the period that Mr. Johnston has been President of the MPAA the public relations of the industry have declined alarmingly. Mr. Johnston's contributions to building fine relations between the public and our business has consisted mostly of turning the offices of the MPAA into a personal press bureau for Eric Johnston. This is not surprising in view of the fact that all this time Mr. Johnston has been preening himself to accept call to public office. The overwhelming silence of the public with respect to Mr. Johnston's political ambitions has unfortunately not prevented him from devoting his major efforts to his personal objectives rather than to the benefit of the motion picture industry.

"During the period of Mr. Johnston's incumbency the financial position of the industry as a whole has deteriorated considerably. This may not be Mr. Johnston's fault but his glittering genius for doing the wrong thing has certainly not helped the industry solve any of the grave problems it faces.

"As far as I have been able to observe Mr. Johnston's chief contribution to the economic stability of the industry has been to give it such advice as has caused the filing of law suits against MPAA and various of its members totalling some sixty-five million dollars—one of which has already been decided against the company involved. The motion picture industry has survived many misfortunes and I am confident that it will survive Eric Johnston."

Companies Split on New 'IA' Contract

When Commissioner L. A. Stone of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service sets out at a meeting here this morning to break the deadlock which has ended negotiations between the IATSE and distributors on a new national exchange workers contract, the companies will not offer a united front in opposition to meeting the "IA's" demand for a 10 to 15 per cent wage increase for the 6,300 workers involved, it is understood.

Paramount, it was said, is the only company which has categorically refused to meet the "IA" demands or to consider a possible compromise. Queried yesterday on this report, C. J. (Pat) Schollard, Paramount's labor relations chief, declined to confirm or deny it. The other companies were described as "willing to compromise."

This is the first indication since negotiations opened some six weeks ago that a united front among the companies has broken. That circumstance, it was indicated, augurs well for the "IA's" wage increase bid. Other companies involved in the negotiations are: Warner, Columbia, Loew, RKO

MPAA Meet Takes Up Video Prospects

Miami, Jan. 19.—Opportunities afforded motion pictures by television, as well as its potential competition for theatre patronage, were canvassed by Motion Picture Association of America directors at their meeting here today.

The industry's public relations problems, including means of dealing with Hollywood personalities subjected to public notoriety, also were discussed.

Eric Johnston, MPAA president, said that Hollywood producers are confident of the box-office quality of new pictures and that the recent domestic box-office decline of approximately eight per cent is not regarded seriously. The industry's current fiscal problems, he emphasized, stem from a 15 per cent increase in production costs and artificial barriers to business in foreign markets which have cut actual dollar remittances of the companies by 30 per cent, although the total volume of foreign business is on the increase.

He intimated that production and other operating economies, together with improved quality of forthcoming

Resignation of Memphis Censor Is Suggested

MEMPHIS, Jan. 19.—Lashing out editorially at Memphis film censorship for a second time in two weeks, the Commercial Appeal today "suggested" that the new mayor, Watkins Overton, ask censor chairman Lloyd T. Binford to resign.

Calling Binford's censorship "cockeyed," the Commercial Appeal declared, "His silly censorship has made Memphis look silly to the rest of the country too long—far too long."

"As a result of the banning of the motion picture 'Curley' and a subsequent circuit court decision upholding the right of the board of censors to decide as it sees fit, Memphis is being held up to ridicule throughout the length and breadth of the country.

"Mayor Overton has just assumed office. By his methods of operation and his insistence on sanity and efficiency in government he has earned the reputation of being a 'good housekeeper.' He will no doubt effect changes of importance at City Hall.

"It would be an excellent thing for Memphis if he would start with the board of censors and put that unhealthy part of the municipal house in order first and put an end to actions which are spoiling the otherwise good reputation of Memphis. He couldn't possibly do the city a greater immediate favor," the editorial said.

Hal Roach, producer of "Curley," and United Artists, distributor, are appealing the censorship action to higher courts. Indications are the industry will take the case to the U. S. Supreme Court eventually as a test of the application of the First Amendment to films.

Admission Tax Cut Urged by Senator

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Chairman George of the tax-handling Senate Finance Committee said here that he favored reduction in the admissions tax rate, but did not believe it should be repealed entirely as yet.

George declared that he thought the excise tax picture would be reviewed by the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee this year.

Despite this support from the Georgia Democrat, the outlook for any cut in the admissions tax remains dark.

Wilson Says Import Curbs Will Continue

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, told Commons that economic necessity requires that Britain reduce American film imports for a long time to come, in urging the need for the Film Finance Corp. bill which will provide $20,000,000 for British film production.

The bill passed its third reading in Commons and now goes to the House of Lords.

Critics suggested that the bill already is in danger of becoming a dead letter inasmuch as independent producers appear unable, even with government aid, to make pictures profitably.

Wilson implicitly agreed, but said that it is planned in the near future to arrange some method of direct financing of production companies.

A B P C Implements Move to Rival Rank

"Trouble Makers"

(Monogram)

IN amusing slapstick fashion, Leo Gorcey and Huntz Hall set out to solve a murder in this Monogram comedy. The plot is cut from the standard pattern and events keep moving briskly.

Gorcey and Hall see through their telescope a murder committed in a fashionable hotel. They call a rookie cop on the Bowery beat and drive over to the hotel. The doorman and the hotel manager are confused when the Dead End Kids arrive and start their comical antics. They cannot find the body but eventually the news breaks in the papers that a noted plastic surgeon has been killed. Gorcey and Hall go to the morgue to identify the body and there they meet the dead doctor's daughter. They promise her that they will try to solve the mystery. It appears that the doctor had been doing work for some criminals and they decide to do away with him. The rookie cop is suspended for leaving his beat but he is reinstated when the murderers are apprehended. Gorcey and Hall receive praise from the police for their aid in solving the crime. Jan Grippo produced and Reginald LeBorg directed. Edmond Seward wrote the screenplay, from Gerald Schnitzer's original story.

Running time, 66 minutes. General audience classification. For January release.

"Dead Man's Gold"

(Screen Guild)

THE solution of a ranch owner's murder becomes the aim of Lash LaRue and his sidekick, Fuzzy St. John in this standard Western. It is rounded out with enough action and adventure to make it a satisfactory film in its category. As usual, LaRue displays his agility with the whip, gun and fists in tracking down the culprits.

A ranch owner summons Lash to his assistance but before Lash arrives the man is murdered. Lash interviews the dead man's niece and together they discover that there were gold deposits on the ranch. A gang headed by the town's mayor also learned that the land had valuable deposits of ore and wanted to seize the land. Lash sets a trap for the murderers and the guilty parties confess. Ron Ormond produced and Ray Taylor directed.

Running time, 60 minutes. General audience classification.

"Renegades of Sonora"

(Republic)

A STANDARD Western, "Renegades of Sonora" opens with a tribe of Indians on the verge of warfare because a white man murdered their chief and stole their jeweled tribal belt.

Allan (Rocky) Lane comes upon a dying man who gives him the belt and Lane takes it to the Indian agent. The agent is murdered and one of the gangsters takes the belt. Lane is suspected of the murders of both the Indian chief and the agent. Eventually Lane convinces Eddy Waller, a deputy sheriff, that he is innocent. The gang has been stealing gold ore and attempts to incite the uprising and thus divert suspicion to the Indians. In the end the belt is recovered and the Indians help the sheriff and his posse capture the culprits. Gordon Kay produced and R. G. Springsteen directed, from M. Coates Webster's original screenplay.

Running time, 60 minutes. General audience classification.

$250,000 Suit Blames 'Casbah' Distribution

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—Charging failure to fulfill a distribution contract by not instituting an aggressive advertising and sales campaign for "Casbah," Marston Pictures has sued Universal Pictures in Federal Court here asking $250,000 damages for alleged violation of the contract. The suit also seeks the right to inspect exhibition and foreign distribution contracts.

Protest E.-L. Film

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—Scores of East Boston residents have filed protests with the Boston licensing division against Eagle-Lion's "An Old Fashioned Girl," now playing the Pilgrim Theatre here, because of the line in the film, "One of those cheap shacks in East Boston." Residents of the section want censor boards to order deletion of the line, claiming it is a slur.

Two-Billion Feet of Raw Stock in 1948

The motion picture industry in 1948 purchased 2,000,000,000 feet of 35mm. raw stock of all kinds, from Eastman Kodak, DuPont and other manufacturers, according to film company home offices, this at a cost of upwards of $2,000,000 for ordinary black-and-white; costs of other stocks, including color, are higher and would increase the actual outlay considerably.

The 2,000,000,000 feet bought last year compares to consumption of 1,516,000,000 feet in 1941.

130 Shorts in One Series for Video

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19.—First mass production of cartoons filmed especially for television was revealed here today when Jerry Fairbanks Productions scheduled for immediate shooting a series of 130 animated video shorts.

To be distributed by the Fairbanks organization nationally, the series of five-minute films, titled "Crusader Rabbit," will be similar in format to serials, each subject being a continued story. Filming of the series will be done by a newly-developed Teletoon animation technique, by Television Arts Productions, a Berkeley firm organized recently by Alexander Anderson, former animator and story editor for Terrytoons, and J. Troplong Ward, San Francisco producer.

Small Sells Rights For Ten Pictures

Through a deal with producer Edward Small, Commonwealth Pictures has acquired the 16mm. world rights to 10 major pictures produced by Small in the past 15 years, according to Sam Goldstein, Commonwealth president.

The 10 are: "The Count of Monte Cristo," "The Son of Monte Cristo," "My Son, My Son," "The Corsican Brothers," "Kit Carson," "The Last of the Mohicans," "Miss Annie Rooney," "Friendly Enemies," "A Gentleman After Dark" and "Man in the Iron Mask."

'Slightly French' Is Rated 'B' by Legion

One of six films currently rated by the National Legion of Decency has been placed in Class B. It is Columbia's "Slightly French."

lin, is contemplated as part of the reorganization plan.

The company's official statement pointed out that UA continues to be "in excellent financial condition, having no bonded indebtedness and the general feeling is that a new financial structure can be readily developed."

UA's most pressing problems heretofore have been concerned with an assured and steady supply of product, rather than financing. Curtailment of bank loans to independent producers in recent months, however, have aggravated the product supply problem for UA and have made it essential for the company to develop its own production financing capital. The company has about a six months' product supply on hand or in view now.

The company meetings which started here on Monday were adjourned today, ostensibly with Chaplin's and Miss Pickford's approval of plans for raising new capital presented by a special board of directors' committee comprising Charles Schwartz, E. C. Mills, Vitalis Chalif and Harold Weill. Mills, Arthur Kelly and Harry Mueller left here last night by plane for New York. Others from the East attending the meeting will return today and tomorrow.

Mills, a Chaplin nominee on the UA board, submitted his resignation at today's meeting but it was not acted upon. He plans to establish residence here early in February.

The only financing proposal known in New York to have been made to United Artists recently is one from Harry Brandt, Metropolitan circuit operator, who offered to provide $3,000,000 for the company on condition that he be given power to name the management of the company.

There was no indication from Hollywood whether the Brandt offer was submitted or, if so, whether or not it was regarded favorably.

"Alias Nick Beal"

(Paramount)

AN interesting attempt to give a slick contemporary background to a morality play strikingly familiar to the Faust legend is made in Paramount's "Alias Nick Beal." The picture is not without clear-cut box-office assets, for it stars Ray Milland and has an imposing production frame. Yet a certain vagueness attaches to the unfolding drama, and while several scenes in themselves make compelling entertainment, they do not quite add up to a vigorous whole.

Set in conventional melodramatic outlines, the film attempts, with the best of intentions, to examine and humanize the relation between ends and means. It starts off with Thomas Mitchell, a successful district attorney, who is concerned with advancing worthwhile social programs. To better achieve his aims, he runs for governor, but all the while he allows himself to be manipulated and compromised by a shady, elusive character portrayed by Milland. Finally Mitchell gets involved in a web of complications, and although he wins the election, he realizes the depths of chicanery into which he has been helplessly pressed. There remains no alternative for him but to clear his conscience by resigning the governorship.

It is a difficult role as the modern disciple of Lucifer that Milland has to characterize, and he carries on capably, whether sipping a cocktail in a fog-shrouded bar, slapping a woman, or displaying diabolical charm. The two feminine leads are played by Audrey Totter, as the fallen girl whom Milland elevates to material opulence; and Geraldine Wall, devoted wife of Mitchell.

The screenplay, by Jonathan Latimer, from a Mindret Lord story, concludes with a scene in which a bible repels Milland back to the depths just in time to save Mitchell from the land of the lost. Endre Bohem produced; John Farrow directed.

Running time, 93 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, March 4.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"The Far Frontier"

(Republic)

THE customary framework of good-versus-evil around which the standard Western is built is embellished with a few relatively unstandard trimmings in this latest Roy Rogers production. Action, as usual, is the keynote, with Rogers in competent control of that department. Music plays an important role too, as usual, as Rogers pauses in the story's development to sing a few ballads in company with Foy Willing and The Riders of the Purple Sage. But it is in the screenplay by Sloan Nibley that the "new twists" emerge; the arch-villain and his henchmen are engaged in the business of smuggling escaped criminals back into the U. S. from Mexico in empty oil barrels; Roy has to give his best friend a sound beating to snap the latter out of a case of amnesia which had been used to the villains' advantage; chief menace Robert Strange uses carrier pigeons to communicate his nefarious plans to his collaborators.

The master plan behind Strange's smuggling and swindling bears on his aim to embarrass kindly, rich Francis Ford into selling his property to the former. Therefore, when Strange discovers that Ford's border patrolman son, Clayton Moore, has developed amnesia from a blow on the head, the crook is sure he has a good wedge to use against Ford and proceeds to frame Moore as a bank robber. Needless to say, Rogers and his friends, including comedian Andy Devine, foil the villainy and bring the crooks to justice. Pretty Gail Davis is decorative as a friend of Rogers. Rounding out the cast are Roy Barcroft, Holly Bane, Lane Bradford and others. Edward J. White was associate producer; William Witney directed. The film is in Trucolor.

Running time, 67 minutes. General audience classification.

"A Place of One's Own"

(Rank-Eagle-Lion)

J. ARTHUR RANK'S "A Place of One's Own" has many advantages for selective audiences. It is based on the novel by Sir Osbert Sitwell and the cast is headed by James Mason and Margaret Lockwood. However, once the story gets underway, it moves leisurely, and, by American standards at least, seems over-loaded with conversation. As a drawing-room drama with supernatural overtones, the picture is one whose greatest appeal would lie with so-called art theatre patrons. As such, it has its merchandising points.

James Mason's following will find him in a different type of role here. He plays a bluff, middle-aged gentleman, who, with his wife, retires from business to settle down in a house which they have bought. Slowly the strange history of the house emerges. It appears that some 40 years back a girl was supposed to have been murdered there, and ever since, her spirit has been haunting the mansion. Miss Lockwood, who is employed as a companion to Mason's wife, grows increasingly influenced by the haunting spirit and in time becomes the victim of an unexplainable malady. With all hope for Miss Lockwood's recovery abandoned, an old doctor, who believes her the girl who inhabited the house 40 years ago, arrives in time to work a strange overnight cure. By some further supernatural twist, it develops that the doctor worked his wonder several hours after the doctor was known to be dead. Such is the theme of this Gainsborough picture and many patrons are likely to find it obscure in many respects. Performances are satisfactory all around. Barbara Mullen portrays Mason's wife. Others in the cast include Dennis Price and Helen Haye. R. J. Minney produced; Maurice Ostrer was in charge of production and Bernard Knowles directed.

Johnston discounted reports of any increase in film production abroad by American companies in the near future, asserting that foreign production facilities are inadequate and that it would be difficult for American companies to make more pictures abroad than are being made now.

Johnston is still hopeful about the deal made with Russia last fall, under which that country was to buy 20 American films.

Johnston, his assistant, Joyce O'Hara, and John McCarthy, vice-president of the Motion Picture Export Association, left for Washington following today's meeting, and will attend Truman's Inaugural ceremonies there tomorrow. Nate Blumberg, Universal president, also will attend the Inauguration and will go to New York from Washington before returning to the Coast.

Ned E. Depinet, RKO president, and Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president, left for New York and both are scheduled to go to the Coast from there this weekend. Spyros Skouras, 20th Century-Fox president, was scheduled to leave for New York tonight. Others who attended the meeting plan to spend additional time here, among them Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew president; Barney Balaban, Paramount president; Edwin Weisl, Paramount board member; Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia, and Albert Warner, vice-president of Warner Brothers.

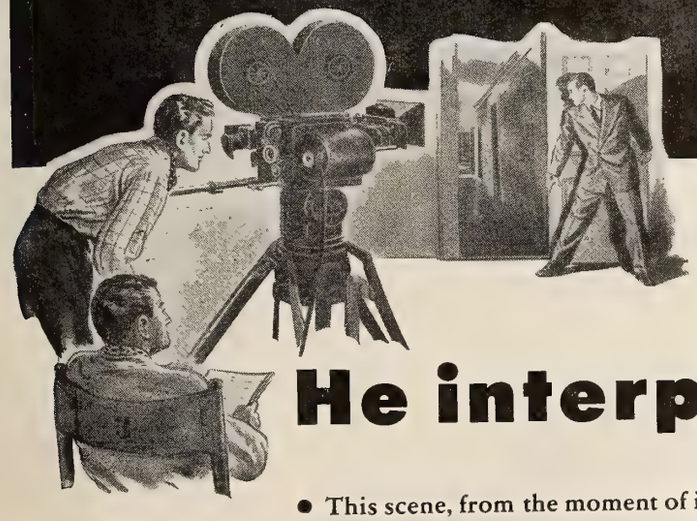
IATSE Charges SOPEG Delays Showdown Vote at Republic



A delay of three months or more in the settlement of the bargaining status of Republic's home office "white collarites" appeared yesterday following a formal hearing here before National Labor Relations Board officer Dan Sullivan. Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild (CIO), former bargaining agent at Republic, asked yesterday that the NLRB in Washington rule on its request that Republic workers be divided into three individual shops.

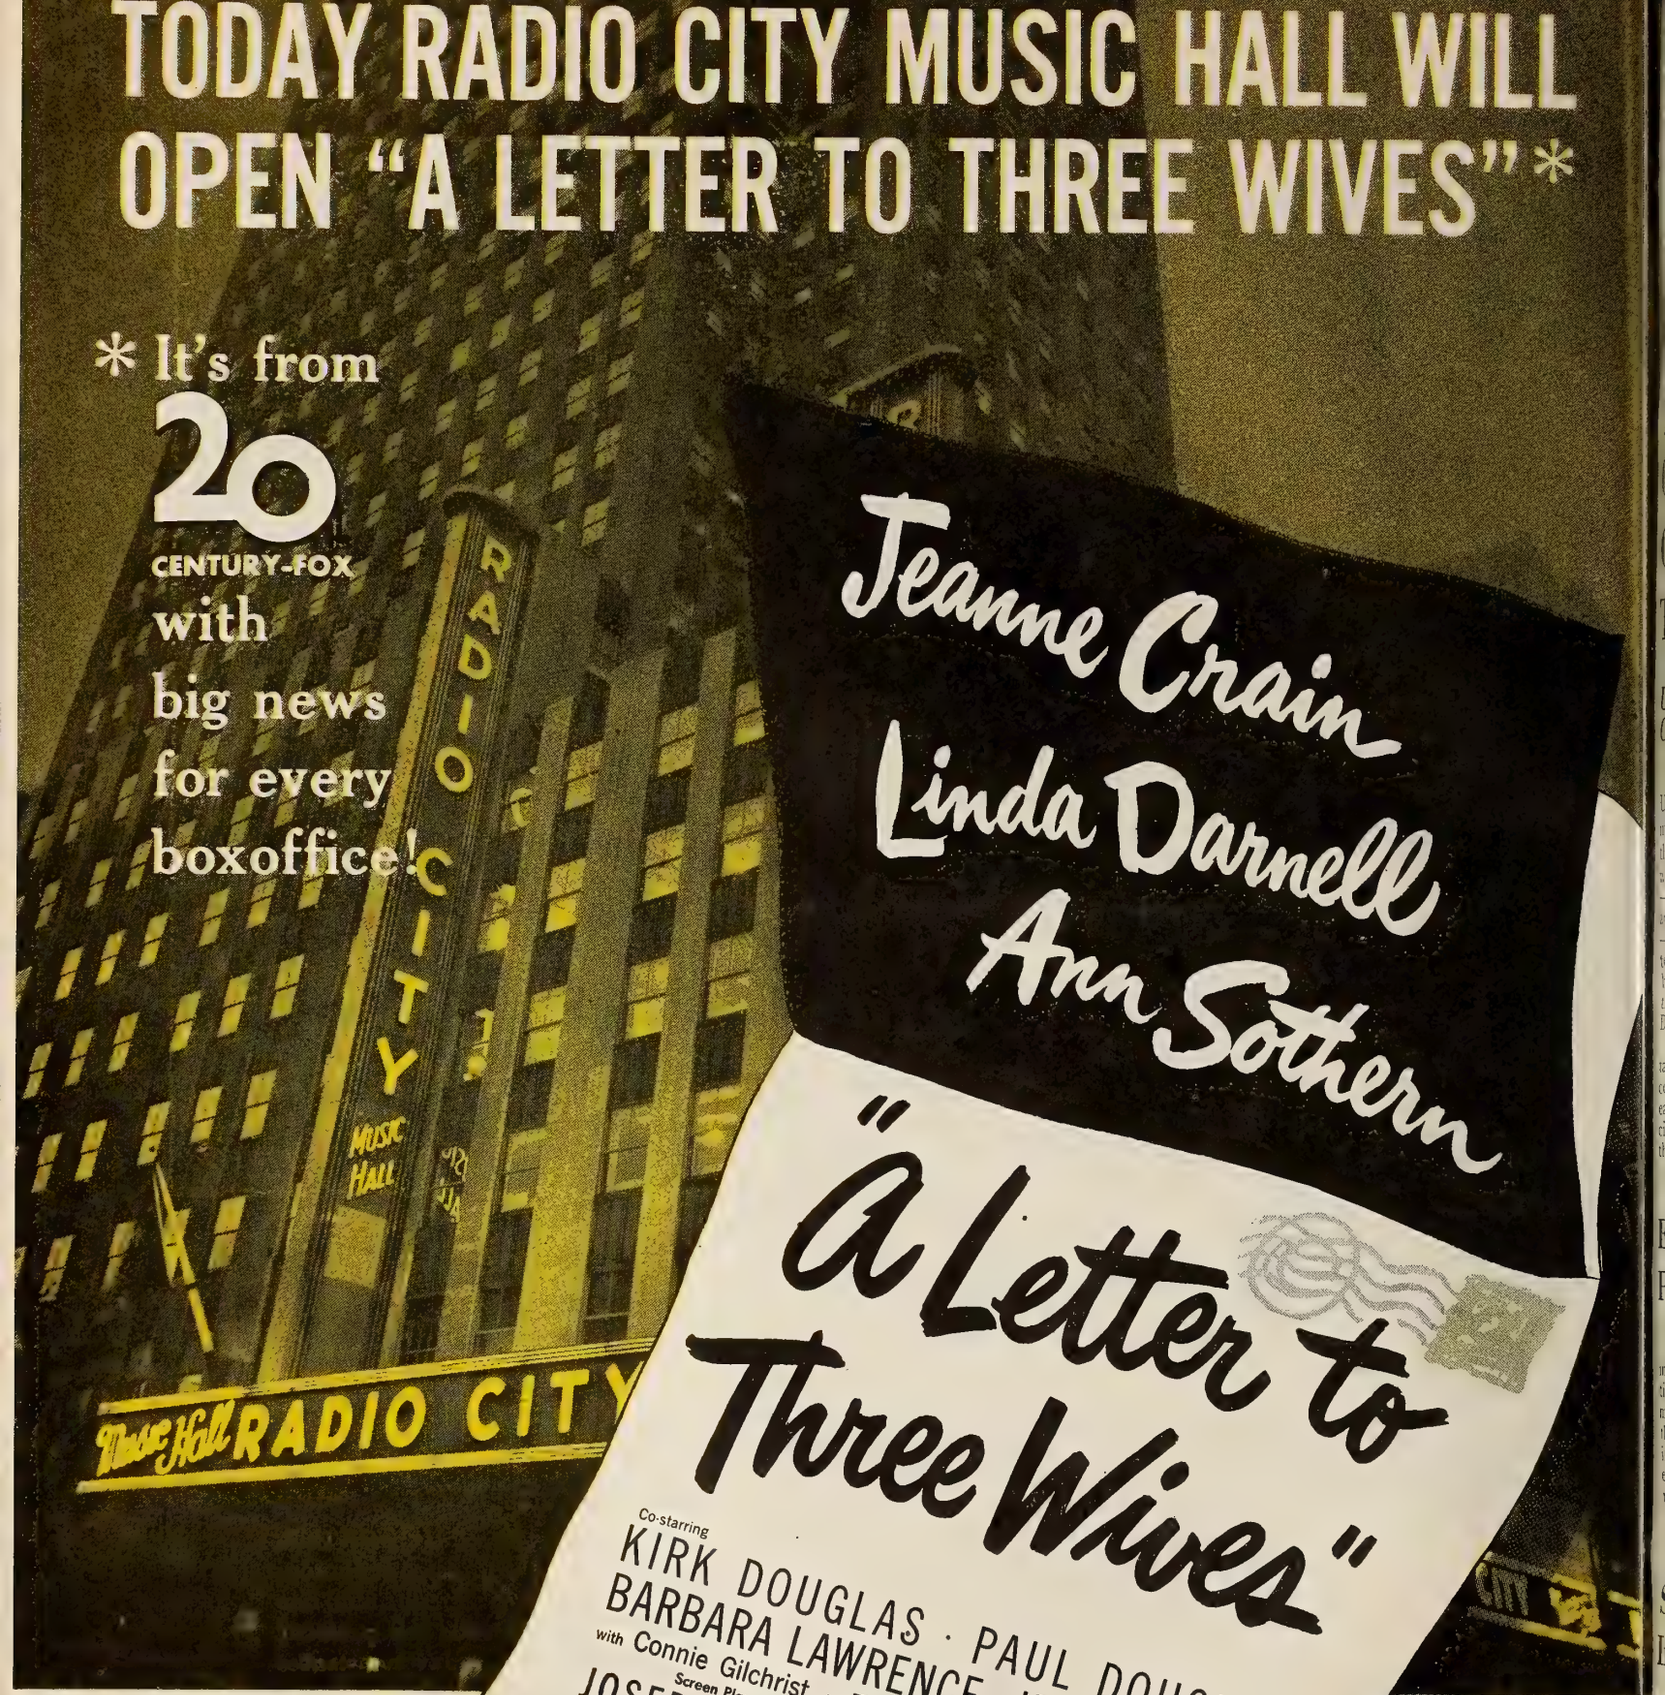
AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63, which asserts it has won the Republic employes' allegiance away from SOPEG, charged the latter with "delaying tactics," and claimed if an election were held at Republic promptly the employes would vote 100 per cent for the "IA."

Theatres Open in Storm

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 19. — With streets cleared of snow and traffic back to normal, theatre attendance gained yesterday after Tuesday's blizzard that closed stores and schools. Despite the storm theatres remained open as usual, with one neighborhood house reporting a larger attendance than in fair weather.

He interprets with light...

● This scene, from the moment of its conception, had dramatic possibilities. But it was the director of photography who made them more than possibilities.



His was the creative skill, the spectacular, interpretive use of light that produced actual drama, vivid, gripping . . . his the perceptive use of photography that made the scene an intense moment of visual reality.

To get the utmost from his special skill, his creative ability, the director of photography naturally wants a superior film, one on which he can depend, one perfectly suited to the conditions and circumstances under which he's working. That's why he so often prefers Eastman Plus-X for general studio and outdoor use . . . and why he turns to Eastman Super-XX for use under adverse lighting conditions.

Group Form Of Paying Taxes Weighed

U.S. May Have All Levies Cleared Through Bank

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. — Top U. S. Treasury officials are studying a plan whereby motion picture, theatre and all other companies would pay their Social Security taxes —and possibly eventually admission and other excise or corporate taxes —through the Federal banking system, as they now pay employes' withholding taxes. An experiment along these lines is now being conducted in Baltimore.

New uses for this method of paying taxes—the so-called depositary account method—were recommended early last year to Congress by a special committee of experts working for the Joint Committee on Internal

Economy Begins To Pay Off: Cowdin

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—The film industry's economy program is getting results, and pictures are being made at costs substantially under those of a year ago, but it is doubtful if any producing-distributing company, exclusive of theatre operations, is making money, J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of Universal's board of di-

SIMPP Counsel Sees Improvement Ahead

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20. — Declaring himself "bullish on the screen's future," Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers' counsel J. Robert Rubin today told the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce that "most other industries had their retooling earlier, but the film industry's transition from wartime was accomplished in 1948, and 1949 is its year of challenge."

He added that the "shaking down" process has been largely completed.

Rubin said that producers have less to fear from television than other branches of the industry, since they can make films for either medium. He voiced his belief that television's "stay-at-home" influence on the public will be short-lived.

Truman Telegenic, Say Telecasters

Television broadcasters operating stations in the Midwest reported ideal reception of the Presidential inaugural ceremonies in Washington yesterday as transmitted by way of co-axial cable and micro-wave relay.

Survey of Mid-western stations affiliated with the Television Broadcasters Association was made by Will Baltin, TBA secretary-treasurer, immediately following the inaugural telecast.

Inaugural Seen on Paramount Screen

Another bright page in theatre television was marked here yesterday when Paramount brought the Presidential Inaugural ceremonies to the screen of the Paramount Theatre.

At noon yesterday, when Harry Truman was sworn in, patrons in the theatre reacted with hand-clapping enthusiasm. The event was advertised by Paramount in metropolitan papers and the theatre was full. Robert M. Weitman, managing director of the Paramount, estimated a marked rise in attendance because of the program.

Pre-inaugural ceremonies on Wednesday evening were also brought to the screen, and last night at 10 o'clock the inaugural ball was flashed on the screen. The telecasts continued the theatre's policy of presenting important events as they happen.

Before the swearing-in of Truman and Alben W. Barkley, as vice-president, the cameras roamed about the East front of the Capitol, where the ceremony took place, to pick up in-

Bernhard and Clift Plan Cinecolor, F.C. Expansion in Britain

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Joseph Bernhard, head of Film Classics and Cinecolor Corp., is expected here shortly for important discussions with Sir Sidney Clift, well-known British exhibitor, pertaining to trade expansion of the two Bernhard companies in this market.

Difficulty with regard to Cinecolor hitherto has been that there is no effective plant here available for the processing of two-color film. Now, it is understood that the government is prepared to issue licenses for the building of such a plant, with Sir Sidney interested on the financial side.

Meanwhile, special arrangements are being discussed with the Bank of England and the Treasury which would enable Cinecolor prints to be imported from the U. S. with dollar payments to be made for them in New York.

Wider distribution here of Film Classics product also will be planned,

Cinecolor Reports $2,908,929 Gross

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 20. — Cinecolor's annual report released here today and covering the fiscal year ending Oct. 2, 1948, showed gross receipts totaling $2,908,929 an increase of 28.6 per cent over the previous year. Net profit after taxes was $266,204, a decline from the previous year's figure of $398,351.

The decline in net profit was attributed to increased depreciation charges, advanced labor and material costs, certain "extraordinary non-recurring expenses" and to the fact that several downward adjustments in selling prices were made during the period covered by the report.

Sale of U. A. Franchises to Be Considered

Would Raise $4,000,000 For Assured Production

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 20.—A proposal for the sale of United Artists' franchises to exhibitors is reliably reported to be among plans for raising new capital for the company to be considered at a board of directors' meeting in New York next Tuesday.

The proposal is said to have been presented to U. A. owners Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin at the meeting here this week by the directors' committee appointed to recommend plans for providing new capital with which to finance independent producers releasing through the company.

The proposal would raise $4,000,000 by the sale of Class A franchises to

N.Y. Studio Labor Asks 30% Pay Hike

IATSE's Eastern studio mechanics have submitted to producers here a demand for a 15 to 30 per cent wage increase, it was disclosed yesterday by James D. Delaney, secretary of "IA" Studio Mechanics Local No. 52.

Negotiations on a new contract are due to begin shortly, Delaney said. Previous one-year contract expired last Dec. 31, but its provisions are automatically extended until a new pact is signed.

Pay increase demands vary among the various categories of mechanics, with some categories stipulated for a 30 per cent increase, others for 15 per cent and still others for percentages in between, according to Delaney.

Insider's Outlook

By RED KANN

THROUGH one device or another, this industry is managing to expose a worse, rather than a better, face for public inspection. Latest is the spectacular Goldwyn-Johnston imbroglio streaking the atmosphere with verbal charges and countercharges explosively set in motion by the decision of the former to resign his membership in the Motion Picture Association of America and the Association of Motion Picture Producers.

The two principals in this disheartening episode have succeeded very neatly in unleashing a pyrotechnical display of short temper and open derision which places the industry, in which both are respected and respectable members, at an unfortunate disadvantage. The consequence, therefore, is that it is the industry which suffers in the public mind at a time when some semblance of unity and singleness of purpose—at least externally applied—was never more essential.

Theatremen sometimes are impatient with professional reviewers of the industry press whose appraisals sometimes don't reveal at a glance the exact what-about-it. Lately, Harry Brandt's The Independent Film Journal introduced a plan of reviews by exhibitors.

On Selznick's "Portrait of Jennie," Harry Eisenstein, Colonial Theatre, Albany, N. Y., said:

"If I were standing in front of my theatre, I'd be proud to be playing a picture like 'Portrait of Jennie'. This is a very fine picture with a message of faith and inspiration, very appropriate for our time. A simple story theme has been turned into fine entertainment that will do better in all theatres except action houses. Of course, class houses will do the top business. Excellent word-of-mouth will help out in all situations. This is a family picture in the fullest sense of the word. Jones, Cotten and Barrymore on the marquee should add to the draw."

On the same attraction, Israel Zatkin, vice-president and general manager of Lane Theatres, New York, wrote:

"This is the story of a poor, frustrated artist looking into the past, imagining things, laboring under illusions from which comes out a 'Portrait of Jennie'. So what? The mountain went into labor and gave birth to a mouse. The critics will probably give this four stars, but I think most picture patrons will be bored stiff. There's nothing to the story, and the fantasy is so complex and overdone it becomes confusing. For what the story has to tell, it takes too much time. The small art houses will probably make out fine with 'Portrait of Jennie'. The acting of the principals and the supporting players is commendable, but not enough to inject life or meaning into this dull offering."

So there you are. Now you know about "Portrait of Jennie."

Note on the all-industry practice of reissuing the big ones of yesteryear:

Last year's gross at 20th Century-Fox from this source was almost $2,000,000. At the behest of Spyros Skouras and Andy Smith, this year Bill Gehring, who handles that end of the business on West 56th Street, has set the goal at $5,000,000.

First of the five packages with this as goal is—observe the titles—"Johnny Apollo" and "Show Them No Mercy."

Al Lichtman's deal to join 20th-Fox, first reported on page one on December 22, is understood to have been agreed upon with formalized contracts due later. He will headquarter in New York, formulate and supervise sales policy in a to-be-created post and replaces nobody. Salary: Four hefty digits per every seven days.

Exaggerated, naturally, but not without its truth is this definition of Hollywood:

Where everyone looks wonderful and suffers from a heart condition.

Interchangeable with ulcers.

Hollywood diplomacy requires a major studio to keep under wraps the budget of the next film starring its biggest male luminary. "If he ever learns it's to cost $1,400,000, we're in trouble. He's certain to think it's only a quickie."

Short Subject

"Berlin Powderkeg"

(This Is America—RKO Pathe)

The staff of This Is America is to be commended for the intelligent and comprehensive job they have done of picturing life in Berlin today. With that city the focal point of the "cold war," the subject gives the background of facts that led to the present crisis. Shown are the abnormal conditions imposed upon the inhabitants by the Russian blockade, the airlift, and the war of ideologies going on between the Russians and Americans, British and French.

Berlin is a military, moral, and political problem, and "Berlin Powderkeg" present these facts in splendid fashion. It is a timely and exploitable subject. Running time, 17 minutes.

Rossellini Praises American Industry

Roberto Rossellini, visiting Italian producer-director, paid tribute to Hollywood as "a great industry" yesterday, pointing out that like any other industry, it may have an occasional shortcoming, but on the whole it has made impressive contributions.

Rossellini, who made "Open City," "Paisan," and others, said that despite some offers from major studios in this country, he does not intend to produce here. He asserted that he has his own production plans for Italy, where he will make "pictures for an international market."

Rossellini expects to be in Hollywood early next week with his American distributor, I. E. Lopert, where the pair will talk with Ingrid Bergman on a deal to have the star go to Italy to make a film.

The popularity of American films in Italy was explained by Rossellini as due to the fact that they allow the people to escape from harsh realities.

A reception was given Rossellini yesterday at the Museum of Modern Art by Mayer and Burstyn, and the trustees of the museum. An award from the National Board of Review was presented the producer for "Paisan," which was cited as the "best import" for 1948 by the board.

MPEA Mission to South Africa Likely

A committee of foreign managers and Fancis Harmon, vice-president of the Motion Picture Association of America, may be designated to go to Johannesburg within the next two weeks to seek a solution to the recent 50 per cent cutback in film earnings imposed by South Africa.

The mission, which had been scheduled and then cancelled earlier, is understood to have been approved by the MPAA board subject to ratification by foreign managers. Joseph Seidelman, Universal foreign manager, is en route to Johannesburg now.

Economy Pays Off

rectors, told the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce meeting at the Ambassador Hotel here today.

Cowdin, a member of a panel speaking on "The Business Outlook for 1949," said he believed most or all companies are operating at a substantial loss. Cowdin said current condition reflects spiraling of all costs involved in production and distribution during the past six years. He said, in part, "the central problem that confronts the industry is a readjustment of operations to enable us to manufacture product at an overall unit cost that will allow its sale at a profit within dollar markets and their equivalent.

"Only through wholehearted cooperation of all groups within the industry can economy efforts be made fully effective and so speed up the readjustment necessary to maintain economic health in the industry. . . . Likewise it is essential in order to maintain a solid basis for banking credit and financing."

Cowdin continued, "Exhibitors, too, must be willing to cooperate. Their own primary interests are at stake because only a financially healthy Hollywood production can provide a continuing flow of high-quality pictures the exhibitor needs to maintain profitable operation of his theatre. At present, while production is operating at loss, theatres large and small throughout country are, with few exceptions, operating profitably.

"The producer must be able to count on a proportion of the revenues derived from the exhibition of his picture commensurate with the burden of risk he assumed in making it. On any other basis theatres sooner or later will suffer from a shortage of high quality pictures for the simple reason that the potential profit failed to justify the financial risk and creative effort involved in their production."

coming celebrities and to catch human interest angles. Reception in the theatre was partially marred by wavering images but that did not seem to dampen the ardor of the audiences.

The ceremonies from Washington were televised and relayed by A. T. and T. coaxial cable to New York and piped into the projection booth of the theatre, where they were recorded on film and flashed to the screen in fewer than 60 seconds. No advanced admission prices were charged by the theatre, which also presented its regular feature, "The Accused," and a stage show.

with the possibility of forming a new, elaborate organization which would concentrate primarily on sale of that product. It is believed likely here that an approach may be made to an existing organization with a view to its absorption by the Bernhard-Clift interests.

Goldberg, Smakwitz Hold Albany Meet

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20. — Harry Goldberg, director of advertising and publicity for Warner Theatres, and Charles A. Smakwitz, zone manager here discussed new product with Albany, Troy and Utica managers yesterday. Goldberg and Smakwitz both urged vigorous promotion of pictures to be screened in ensuing weeks. Theatre operations were also analyzed.

Attending a meeting with Smakwitz were: Ralph Crabill, Western state district manager; Andrew Roy, Utica city manager; Sid Sommers, Troy manager; Max Friedman; Joseph Weinstein, zone booker; James Faughnan, contact manager; Gerald Atkin, publicity-exploitation director.

Industry in France Meets Obstacles

By EUGEN WEBER

PARIS, Jan. 17 (By Airmail)—The drop in production volume and bad prospects for the industry once again is the talk in French film circles.

The pessimism is being fed by the closing down, ostensibly for "reorganization," of the Société Franstudio, which in its five studios and 13 stages represents the most important production facilities in this country. (Joinville, Francoeur, St. Maurice, Place Clichy and Marseille.) Franstudio until recently employed 600 persons, but now has only about 105.

The action was said to be due to two things. First, to losses (stages in use during 1948 were occupied at only 50 per cent capacity and rentals are hardly up although costs have risen to above 1,000 per cent), and second, to the introduction of a new rental method by which stages will be rented completely empty.

Technicians, stagehands, lighting and other equipment, as well as sets, will have to be provided by the producer with the studio providing only a maintenance staff. This method, actually in use in Italy as well as in the Buttes-Chaumont studios, is expected to cut costs for studio management, throw all weight of organization on producers and minimize losses.

Of the nine major studios, three now show no activity. Three others report work in progress only until about March, and only three report (in voices not very strong) a full shooting schedule.

Associates To Meet On Variety Club

A special membership meeting of the Motion Picture Associates to ratify a proposal of the board of directors that the New York organization become the local Variety Club will be held here on Tuesday at the Hotel Astor, Morris Sanders, vice-president, reports.

At two meetings held here on Jan. 12 and 17, the board unanimously resolved that MPA, in order to extend its charity activities and scope, should become a part of Variety Clubs International which is not now represented locally.

Meyer Is Lauded at Para. Luncheon

Paramount gave Frank Meyer a luncheon at the Astor Hotel here on his retirement after 37 years with the company. Austin Keough was master-of-ceremonies. Others on the dais were Mrs. Meyer, Adolph Zukor, Charles Reagan, Paul Raibourn, Leonard Goldenson, Russell Holman, Fred Mohrhardt, John Balaban, Y. Frank Freeman and George Weltner.

Tables were decorated with folders from very old features made at the Long Island studios, of which Meyer was once the head. Keough read a wire of tribute to Meyer from Barney Balaban, who was unable to attend due to a meeting in Florida. Other speakers were Freeman, who said what we need in this industry is more Frank Meyers, and Zukor, who lauded Meyer for his "tremendous aid" during the formative years of Famous Players and for his sincerity, honesty and ability throughout the years, citing Meyer as an example for all industryites to follow. Meyer spoke briefly following which he was presented with a silver service.

Other representatives of Paramount who attended the luncheon included:

'Collarites' Ratify 10% Pay Hike at UA

United Artists home office "white collarites" have ratified the 10 per cent general pay increase won recently by IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63 (AFL), it was reported here yesterday by H-63 business agent Russell Moss. Formal contract is due to be signed shortly by UA and H-63 representatives.

Moss reported also that UA workers have elected Norman Hasselo to represent them on the H-63 board of directors. Hasselo, a former vice-president of Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild (CIO), led the UA employes' rebellion last year against SOPEG in favor of H-63.

Revenue. Since then, Treasury and Internal Revenue Bureau officials have been at work, and while the final decision is still some time off, they believe they now can see daylight.

At present a theatre owner must pay taxes in many ways, and within 10 days after the close of each calendar month, employers who withheld more than $100 in income taxes during the month must transmit these withheld taxes to any bank insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. In return they get a receipt. Each quarter, the taxpayer files a return with the Collector of Internal Revenue, covering the quarter, and attaching the bank receipt as payment. At present, he also pays social security taxes directly to the Collector each quarter. Exhibitors must pay admission tax collections to the Collector each month. Then, of course, there is the annual income tax and various other returns.

Under the proposal recommended by the Congressional experts and now being tested by the Treasury, the Social Security taxes would also be deposited with the bank each month, and a receipt issued for both the income taxes withheld and the Social Security taxes, with the amount for each stated. The taxpayer then could simply forward this breakdown to the Treasury.

Eventually, under the plan, admission taxes would be paid in the same manner, and one receipt given for all three payments—income, social security and excise. Still later, other taxes might be included.

"Bad Boy"

(Allied Artists-Monogram)

PAUL SHORT, producer of "Bad Boy," states the film "is the answer to U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark's request for a picture that would aid the drive against juvenile delinquency." Made with the cooperation of Variety Clubs International, which will participate in its earnings, this attraction is assured the full support of the organization. That is enough to put it over.

However, and aside from this direct interest, "Bad Boy" has the merit of standing on its own. It is documentary to the extent that the fictional story pivots around the Boys' Ranch maintained at Copperas Cove, Texas, by Variety Club of Dallas, which is Tent No. 17.

The ranch undertakes the regeneration of criminal boys by arrangement with the State of Texas, assumes moral responsibility for such boys, becomes their legal guardians until the youngsters reach the age of 18 and endeavors to straighten them out as future citizens. In some instances, Variety follows through with college educations. Otherwise, it lines up suitable employment for its regenerated charges.

Audie Murphy of war-time fame is the central figure of the dramatic story which picks him up in juvenile court, conveys him to the ranch, shows the painstaking processes by which he is eventually reformed by eliminating the neurosis that he had been responsible for his mother's death and sets him along the path of useful activity by way of a college education.

Murphy is pleasing and does quite well, bearing in mind acting is a new profession for him. But producer Short and director Kurt Neumann have surrounded him with the adroit protection of first-class performances from such competents as Lloyd Nolan, James Gleason, Jane Wyatt and Selena Royle. The overall result is clearly commercial. Short and Robert D. Andrews wrote the story and the latter the screenplay with additional dialogue by Karl Kamb. George Berthelon was associate producer.

Running time, 86 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, Feb. 22.

owners of the Apollo and Lyric Theatres in Brooklyn, moved to compel the plaintiff to file a more definite statement of its complaint and to separately state and number its causes of action. This motion was denied.

The court, in deciding for the distributor, cited the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the Endicott and Brandt cases. In those actions also, the complaints of distributors were upheld, and the exhibitors' motions denied.

Other defendant theatres in the action are the Minerva, Plaza and Venus theatres, also in Brooklyn. The plaintiff was represented by Phillips, Nizer, Benjamin and Krim.

arrange for direct financing of independent producers. Davenport's action has the wholehearted support of Wilson and James H. Lawrie, chairman of Film Finance Corp., which has $20,000,000 of government money to lend to distributors for the stimulation of independent production.

It is understood that the government will advance 25 per cent of all approved budgets to the new cooperative producers' group. Davenport clearly has been installed in the group as the government's "watchdog."

Despite Wilson's optimism over the new development, it has been ascertained that no contract has yet been signed by either the producers or a studio. The trade here is definitely skeptical regarding the Board of Trade's announcement, being inclined to believe that Davenport is making desperate efforts to help pull some of Wilson's chestnuts out of the fire.

Nettlefold Closing Averted by Minter

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Nettlefold studio at Walton-on-Thames has been saved from a shut-down, for the time being, at least, by James G. Minter, head of Renown Pictures, who has scheduled production of "Old Mother Riley's New Look" for that plant around Feb. 1.

Ernest Roy, Nettlefold's chief, had sent out an "S. O. S." to the Producers' Association for help in averting the closing of Britain's oldest studio; it was Minter who answered.

about 50 exhibitors at $20,000 each, and the sale of Class B franchises to another 300 exhibitors at $10,000 each.

Proceeds would be used to finance approved producers whose pictures would be distributed by United Artists.

This and other plans reportedly will be studied in greater detail at the forthcoming New York board meeting in line with plans for the reorganization of the company agreed upon at the meetings here with Miss Pickford and Chaplin.

No confirmation was obtainable here of reports circulated locally that Chaplin's half interest in the company would be offered for sale. Observers pointed out that even if that were done it would provide no solution to the problems with which the company is now confronted, namely, lack of an assured product supply and provision of an ample revolving fund with which the company can finance producers of its own choosing.

New York reports that Harry Brandt, circuit operator there, might put up $3,000,000 on condition that he be empowered to designate U. A. management were deflated here. It was stated that no firm offer in any form which could be acted upon by the board has been received from Brandt despite intermittent conversations over a long period.

Bernstein Warns of 45% Quota Dangers

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Sidney L. Bernstein, head of Granada Circuit, is the latest to warn of potential dangers in the present 45 per cent film quota.

The heavy quota, Bernstein says in his annual report to stockholders, unless supported by the production of good quality British films in sufficient numbers will have a serious effect throughout the industry.

"It is to be hoped," he adds, "that the assurance given by British film producers to the Board of Trade that sufficient films of good quality will be produced, will, in fact, materialize."

He also warned of the threat which the quota makes to good Anglo-American relations.

"A serious emotional tension exists between the American and British interests in our industry," he said. "It is inconceivable that our two nations, so great a combination in two world wars, cannot work together constructively in this one industry in peace time. One can only hope that saner and wiser councils will prevail to the mutual advantage of the industry on both sides of the Atlantic."

Music Rights Being Cleared By Producers

Contingent Upon Result Of Ascap Court Appeals

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—Interim arrangements have been completed by which motion picture producers and distributors are authorized to include performing rights to music contained in their pictures in exhibition license agreements on a contingent basis.

Under the agreement, if Federal Judge Vincent Leibell's decision in the New York exhibitors' case prohibiting the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers from collecting performing rights fees from theatres is upheld on appeal, the producers-distributors will pay owners of

CBS Gets Loan Of $5 Millions For Television

Columbia Broadcasting disclosed at the weekend that a 15-year loan of $5,000,000 at 3½ per cent interest has been arranged with the Prudential Insurance of America.

Negotiations of such a long-term loan has been under consideration by CBS for some months and was sought to insure the continuation of its strong cash reserves in view of possible large expenditures by the company in the development of its television operations.

Columbia presently operates WCBS-TV in New York, the key station for its nationwide television network of 30 stations, and is the owner of forty-nine per cent of the Los Angeles Times television station, KTTV, which operates as the key

Para.-Blank Dicker On Central States

DES MOINES, Jan. 23.—Discussions have begun concerning dissolution of Paramount's partnership with A. H. Blank in Central States Theatre under provisions of the U. S. Supreme Court decision in the industry anti-trust suit.

Paramount and Black each own a 50 per cent interest in Central States, which operates 38 theatres in the Iowa-Nebraska area. Indications are that Paramount's half interest would be sold to Blank.

It is reported that up to this time no discussions have been held concerning the break-up of a similar 50-50 partnership of the two in Tri-States Theatres, operating 54 houses in the area.

Loew's Get's 15 More Days to File Brief

New York Federal Court on Friday approved Loew's application extending to Feb. 15 the deadline for the company's presentation of its brief, findings and conclusions of law in the Paramount trust case to the Government. Original deadline was Jan. 31. Government agreed to the time extension which was requested because Hazard Gillespie, Loew's attorney assigned to preparation of the papers, has been out of town on another matter.

RKO 'Divorce' Plan Deadline March 30

U. S. District Court here has granted to RKO an extension until March 30 for obtaining stockholders' approval of the reorganization plan under which the company's theatre operations will be separated from production-distribution.

The company moved several days ago for additional time, having concluded that the volume of paper work and technical routine involved in preparation of the plan for the stockholders would not be completed by Feb. 6, the previously-set deadline.

Mediation to Resume Wed. on 'IA' Pact

Following two days of meetings here with Commissioner L. A. Stone of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, representatives of the IATSE and distributors remained deadlocked at the weekend over terms for a new contract covering 6,300 exchange workers. It was agreed, however, to meet again with Stone on Wednesday.

During the course of the meetings last Thursday and Friday, the distributors' negotiating committee asked the union representative to agree to return once more to conferences without the mediator present, it is understood. The "IA" committee refused flatly, however, on the ground that the distributors "have had their chance at regular negotiations," it was reported.

Two weeks ago, when Stone was asked by "IA" for the first time to mediate contract differences, the union negotiators agreed to a similar management committee suggestion. However, no agreement could be reached and the "IA" again asked Stone to attempt to break the deadlock.

Mich. Exhibitors See No Video Threat

DETROIT, Jan. 23.—Charles Snyder, executive secretary of Allied Theatres of Michigan holds the belief that television will not have any marked effect on theatre business.

Tradewise . . .

By SHERWIN KANE

THE Eric Johnston-Samuel Goldwyn verbal exchange of last week reminds that one month ago the Motion Picture Association of America president had this to say to Ellis Arnall:

"Turning the industry into a debating society will not produce better pictures. The way to get better pictures and to solve our worldwide industry problems is for all of us to work together."

That's good advice for anyone, if applied. It may well be commended to Johnston and Goldwyn, as well as to Arnall.

The rank and file of the industry, anxious for public relations improvement and leadership, may well say of the unfortunate Johnston-Goldwyn affair: "A pox on both your houses."

There are only a few weeks remaining in which exhibitors can make preparations for participating in national observance of American Brotherhood Week, Feb. 20-27. Very little is asked of the exhibitor—run the subjects which the industry committee will provide, use the campaign accessories available for marquees, fronts and lobbies, and sign up at least 10 new members for the National Conference of Christians and Jews at a minimum contribution of $1 each.

The only real individual effort called for is in getting a maximum of names on the membership rolls. The minimum 10 requested is extremely modest even for the smallest of theatres. The test of the individual exhibitor's earnestness is in the effort he expends to exceed the minimum.

One New York theatre in a recent Brotherhood Week campaign brought in 900 new NCCJ members. Numerous others accounted for 50 to 200 each.

Remarkable showings can be made if the theatre undertakes its part seriously. Earnestness need not be lacking if the work of the Conference and its high purpose are understood by both exhibitor and theatre audience. The campaign material has been prepared with that in mind and it serves its purpose admirably.

Every American theatre should be a positive, not merely a passive participant in this thoroughly American endeavor, which is to defeat and destroy prejudice in order that America shall not be weakened and destroyed by it.

A recent issue of an amusement journal carried an article with Eric Johnston's byline poking a little fun at motion picture critics and commentators. The net impression this reader of the article received was that those who review films or write or broadcast about them and about motion picture people are a brash, irresponsible breed who are getting away with murder on a scale that would not be tolerated in other industries—motors and meat packing, for example.

It may reasonably be assumed that the writer of the article either was reflecting Johnston's views or had obtained his approval of its contents prior to publication.

Certainly those are views commonly held and frequently encountered within the industry. The puzzling thing about it is why such a large percentage of motion picture advertising continues to be based upon and pegged to the occasional nice things those same writers and commentators have to say about pictures.

Crosley X. Vinegarpen of the Evening Libel & Slander may sneer at our box-office hits for months and be sneered at and cursed in turn within the industry, but let him say one good word for a new release and he immediately becomes the glorified, final authority on film entertainment and the clinching sales argument in an advertising campaign in which his actual phrases are only slightly distorted and rearranged. The campaign in all likelihood will say nothing about the contents of the picture.

Seems the industry should be making up its mind about the critics. Who will take your future satire about them seriously when your advertising budgets are being employed to build the critics' prestige as authorities on the cinema?

"Waterloo Road"

(J. Arthur Rank-Eagle-Lion)

A FINE British cast, headed by John Mills, Stewart Granger and Alastair Sim, mollify the disadvantage of a weak story in this latest addition to Eagle-Lion's roster of J. Arthur Rank offerings for American consumption. Written and directed by Sidney Gilliat, and produced by Edward Black, "Waterloo Road" has for its base plot the situation of a wife's being on a date with another man when her soldier husband returns home on leave.

American audiences are likely to be attracted to this British drama by virtue of the prestige embodied in the names of the three stars, all having made a reputation in this country since the picture was made. Other redeeming features are some robust action and the sympathy which Mills commands as the offended husband who seeks out scoundrel Granger and wife Joy Shelton. Sim, a splendid character actor, portrays a kindly doctor in winning fashion. Others in the cast are Beatrice Varley, Alison Leggatt, Arthur Denton and Vera Frances, all of whom are admirable in supporting roles. Maurice Ostrer was in charge of production.

Arriving home on leave, Mills cannot find his wife, but is told that lately she has been keeping company with Granger, a civilian. He goes out to look for them, hounded by military police since he has overstayed his leave. Needless to say, Granger makes no romantic headway with Mills' wife and when Mills catches up with Granger they have a terrific fight. His mission accomplished, Mills returns to the war.

Running time, 75 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

"False Paradise"

(Hopalong Cassidy—United Artists)

ACTION and suspense in the latest account of the exploits of Hopalong Cassidy, noble cowboy here portrayed by William Boyd, measure up to standard for the series. "False Paradise" should register quite satisfactorily with devotees of Western fare.

Harrison Jacobs' screenplay has "Hoppy" befriending a retired botanist and his pretty daughter who have purchased "Paradise Ranch" in the expectation that it would be suitable for raising cattle. Things look pretty black for father and daughter when they discover the soil is poor. But when "Hoppy" discovers that there is silver ore in the land the realtor who swindled the couple offers to buy back the property. The offer is refused and "Hoppy" and his sidekick (Andy Clyde), help the botanist and his daughter mine the ore. The crooked realtor and his henchmen dynamite the mine to hinder the work but the explosion serves "Hoppy's" friends well—it opens the way to new silver deposits. Thereafter, the initial shipment of ore is ambushed by the heavies but the attack is anticipated by "Hoppy" and his friends who defeat their enemies and deliver the prize of their labors on schedule.

Others in the cast are Randy Brooks, Joel Friedkin, Elaine Riley, Kenneth MacDonald, Don Haggerty and Cliff Clark. Louis J. Rachmil produced and George Archainbaud directed. In addition to his acting role, Boyd was executive producer.

Running time, 61 minutes. General audience classification.

month in Hollywood—said his deal with Selznick involves "Portrait of Jennie" and nine other Selznick productions of recent vintage. UA, he said, will send its pictures to India as they are released in the U. S.

In addition to closing the distribution deals while here, Modi conferred with several U. S. production companies with a view toward establishing regular production activity in India by American companies. "The groundwork" of this plan is set, he said, indicating that he expects to have a program of American production in India set up by the end of this year. Although he declined at this time to mention names, he did indicate that large U. S. production companies would be involved. Advantages of U. S. production in India, he explained, are the very low costs prevailing there and the assurances that negative costs on India-produced pictures would be recouped in that country promptly, thus making U. S. showings thereafter "pure profit" bookings.

Modi said his own motive in encouraging American producers to use India's film-making facilities is to see a closer relationship develop between the two countries. Films can bring about that closer relationship, he believes.

The Indian industry executive will leave here for London on Wednesday aboard the S.S. Queen Mary. He will fly from London to Bombay. Today he will be host at a reception in the Hotel Pierre here.

station for the CBS West Coast television network.

CBS also has pending with the Federal Communications Commission applications for television stations in Boston, Chicago and San Francisco and is seeking, with the Washington Post, a television station in Washington, D. C. When these additional stations are acquired, Columbia will own the maximum number of television stations allowable under present rules of the FCC.

In addition to the key stations in New York and Los Angeles, the Columbia television network has stations in Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, St. Louis, Washington, Boston, Pittsburgh, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Seattle, Houston, Indianapolis, Louisville, Columbus, Atlanta, Memphis, Toledo, Dayton, Syracuse, New Haven, Salt Lake City, Erie, Schenectady, Stockton and Albuquerque.

FCC Urges Video Permit Liquidation

Washington, Jan. 23.—The Federal Communications Commission has indicated that firms holding construction permits for television stations had better go ahead with their building plans despite the television "freeze."

It has ruled that firms building stations could not suspend construction during the television freeze period and then use this as the basis for a later request for an extension in their completion deadline. It is believed that close to 100 stations now under way are affected.

The FCC ruling grew out of a request by WSAV of Huntington, W. Va., for some FCC safeguard that firms building under construction permits could complete their stations without jeopardizing their investments. The FCC did not answer this request in so many words. It merely said that the public interest requires television permittees to continue with construction or surrender their permits, that they can't use the freeze as an excuse for extending their completion deadline, and that extension will be granted only for reasons beyond the permittee's control.

Conferences also have been arranged between officers of TOA and government officials on other industry problems.

The TOA discussions will embrace such problems as theatre television exclusives with allocation of airway or co-axial cable channels, release of feature films to television, theatre use of standard television broadcasts and other matters which have arisen as a result of the rapid growth of the video industry.

Other items high on the meeting's agenda include budget and financing, public relations, new membership, proposed changes in the Ascap consent decree, exhibitor relations with National Screen service, and other matters.

The TOA meeting, to be held in the Mayflower Hotel, will run for two days, Friday and Saturday, following a series of preliminary conferences on Thursday. Social activities will be held to a minimum so that officers and directors may devote their full time to the meeting agenda. More than 50 persons have made reservations for the meeting, indicating virtually a full attendance.

Following the Washington meeting, Arthur Lockwood, TOA president; Herman Levy, general counsel, and Sullivan will go to Charlotte, to attend a meeting of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina.

2nd SP Production Set

Hollywood, Jan. 23.—George Glass and Stanley Kramer, of Screen Plays, have completed production plans for their second feature, "High Noon". Advertising will be handled by Buchanan and Co.

"Tarzan's Magic Fountain"

(RKO Radio)

SOL LESSER's production is true to the tradition established by previous Tarzan films, with story, action and photography adequate on all counts. The screenplay, by Curt Siodmak and Harry Chandlee, revolves around the finding of a woman aviator, who has been lost for 20 years, in a jungle paradise where she has been able to keep her youth. The attempt by nefarious forces to gain possession of a youth fountain, and the consequent clash with the natives and Tarzan, are the principal plot elements.

Lex Barker, as Tarzan, and Brenda Joyce as Jane, his wife, handle the none-too-demanding roles in good form, while Albert Dekker portrays the arch-villain with convincing menace. Other cast names include Evelyn Ankers, Charles Drake, Alan Napier and Henry Kulky. Lee Sholem's direction was workmanlike.

Running time, 73 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

Music Rights

the music copyrights the performing rights fees.

If the decision is reversed, Ascap will be in a position to collect directly from theatres.

The agreement clears the way for uninterrupted clearance of film music rights while the Ascap litigation awaits final determination. It applies only to "new" production as Judge Leibell's decision prohibits Ascap collections on films already in release, even though that phase of the decision is expected to be reversed on appeal.

Ascap members here report that dividends from the Society for the final 1948 quarter are surprisingly near normal amounts. It had been expected that theatre collections would decline appreciably in the last collections but there was no evidence of it in dividend payments. Ascap's fourth quarter collections from all sources are understood to have been in excess of $1,900,000, compared with normal quarterly collections of a little over $2,000,000.

Many theatres are continuing payments to Ascap with the understanding that they will be recoverable in the event the Leibell decision is not reversed by higher courts.

Ascap collections from theatres also are understood to be increasing due to the return of stage policies to numerous large theatres, a trend that is continuing both as an answer to television competition, where it exists, and because of its demonstrated box-office stimulus in areas without television.

The "live" shows inevitably employ music and some include bands. Spread of the policy is increasing theatre-owner sentiment for a safe, convenient, blanket music licensing arrangement such as that normally afforded by Ascap, it is said.

Griffith Case

thought the government would wind up its testimony in two weeks.

The contracts which will be introduced cover Griffith dealings from 1939—when the case originally was filed—until 1943, Wise said.

"We are doing this just to make sure we have those records in court," he added. "The defendants' contracts had been subpoenaed previously, but they indicated they might not be able to produce them for the entire period."

Wise said the following witnesses are yet to be heard from—all in Oklahoma:

Nona Kyser, Ada Theatre of Ada; Alexander A. Moulder, Criterion, Sapulpa; Fred B. Pickrel, Ponca City; Hershell Gilliam, Globe, Erdmore; Raymond McMillin, Hugo; W. S. Quade, Howell Theatre Supply, Oklahoma City; L. W. Royalty, M-G-A Corp., Oklahoma City; Roy T. Shield, Mecca, Enid.

Elgin Anderson, Drive-In, Norman; Myrtle Guthrie, Ritz, Clinton; Bill Jenson, Pix, Wewoka; Joe Noble, Drive-In Bartlesville; Buster Shuttee, Drive-In, Elreno; Dudley Tucker, Cimarron, Guthrie; R. B. Williams, RKO Radio Pictures, Oklahoma City.

Claude York, Drew, Okmulgee; Juanita Berry, Oklahoma Theatre, Norman; Pat Duffy, Liberty, Oklahoma City; W. P. Moran, Oklahoma City; Johnny H. Jones, Ritz, Shawnee.

Also, Maggie E. Scott, Scott Theatre, Odessa, Tex.; Mary E. Trieb, El Capitan, Roswell, N. M.; Raymond A. Higdon, Theatre Enterprises, Dallas; Herman R. Bierstorf, Eagle Lion Films, Dallas.

U. K. Booking Plan

feature from one and a second feature from another, the only stipulation being that both shall be American.

Although exhibitors object to the proposed plan, alleging that it unfairly restricts their buying rights, it is expected that the new arrangement will be approved at a meeting early in February between MPAA representatives and an Exhibitors' Association delegation. Independent exhibitors are appreciative of the new booking arrangement set up by American companies, notably Paramount and M-G-M, which give independents first crack at choicer product.

J. Arthur Rank's Gaumont-British and Odeon circuits are able to disregard the booking plan, being supplied with Universal product under contract, and Sir Philip Warter's A.B.P.C. theatres, to a lesser degree, also disregard it by virtue of the Monogram franchise held by its subsidiary Pathe Pictures.

Despite this, the CEA delegation which will discuss the new booking restrictions with F. W. Allport, MPAA representative here, next month, includes Rank's representatave R. H. Dewes, and ABPC's D. H. Goodlatte.

Short subjects do not come under the unit booking plan, providing the supporting program does not exceed 3,000 feet. Exhibitors have raised the question whether a picture acquired or produced here by an American company is eligible for booking, but the point is regarded as academic with only two British films of that sort currently in production and no others contemplated at this time.

U.A. to Study Finance, Film Supply Plans

Board Meet Today Takes Up Several Proposals

Several proposals which would provide United Artists with new financing and an assured product supply will be studied in detail by the company's board of directors at a meeting here today.

Among the proposals which will be given full consideration are the following: a plan for the sale of franchises to exhibitors designed to raise $4,000,000 to be used to finance independent producers releasing through the company; a $5,000,000 production financing plan advanced by Edward and William Nassour, reportedly with the backing of Huntington Hartford, Atlantic and Pacific Tea stores heir, and a financing plan advanced by James Nasser, owner of General

See No Change in U.K. Quota in April

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Despite the fact that the Exhibitors' Association will send a deputation to the Board of Trade shortly to press for a reduction of the 45 per cent quota, exhibitors generally agree that there is little likelihood of any change being made for the second half of the present quota year beginning April 1.

Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, is determined to give

U. S. Would 'Plug' Obscene - Film Leaks

Washington, Jan. 24.—Legislation to make it illegal to carry obscene matter, including motion pictures, in interstate commerce was urged on Congress today by the Justice Department.

It is now illegal to send such matter by mail or common carrier and Assistant U. S. Attorney General Peyton Ford pointed out that many persons are getting around this by carrying the obscene matter themselves from state to state. He urged action to close this loophole.

TOA to Urge Cut in U.S. Admission Tax At Washington Meet

Theatre Owners of America will launch a new attempt to obtain a reduction of the Federal amusement tax to 10 per cent when its executive committee meets in Washington next Friday and Saturday.

Congressmen in key committee posts will be consulted by TOA leaders and will be given the exhibitor's story of the depressive influence of the 20 per cent ticket levy on theatre attendance throughout the country. TOA will urge removal of the entire tax, it was indicated, although in view of increased Federal expenditures indicated in President Truman's message to Congress and his inaugural address

$1,000 to $10,000 TV Films Are Seen

The assertion that some films can be made for television at costs within the range of $1,000 to $10,000 came yesterday from John Mitchell, United Artists television director, during an address delivered before a television film conference which was held here at the Hotel Biltmore. Expressions of both doubt and support met

Eight Bills Pending For Ticket Tax Cut

Washington, Jan. 24. — There are now eight bills in the House calling for the repeal or reduction of the 20 per cent admission tax.

Two new ones were introduced today. Rep. Multer, New York Democrat, proposed that it be abolished, while Rep. Talle, Iowa Republican, suggested it be cut to the prewar 10 per cent.

Goldman Petition vs. Warners Denied

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—Federal Judge William H. Kirkpatrick has denied William Goldman Theatres' petition seeking to force Warners and other companies to dispose of their holdings in the Philadelphia area.

A similar petition was denied last November. On Jan. 5, Goldman again asked the court to broaden its original order made in 1946.

The Goldman interests contend that Warner and 10 other major producers have shown favoritism in placing first run pictures despite the court order decreeing that first run films be placed on the auction block. Belief here is that Goldman will again appeal the decision.

Value of Scophony Video Patents Dubious: Raibourn

Broidy: Reissues Will Boomerang

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 24.—Blasting reissues as a menace to the long range welfare of the industry, Allied Artists-Monogram president Steve Broidy told a press conference here today, "Distributors and exhibitors are making profits with reissues, but they are not making progress. The industry will pay dearly for this policy in the not distant future."

Broidy pointed out that reissues tend to keep away from theatres those patrons who have been most consistent in their attendance, and when the old films are not clearly advertised as reissues they mislead and antagonize patrons. He added that many reissues contain casts, sets and production values no longer possible with present-day budgets. They make new product look shoddy by comparison, he said, and named instances in which

Value of the Scophony television patents and processes is obscure, according to Paul Raibourn, president of Paramount Television Productions which, with General Precision Equipment, had shared an exclusive license to them.

Raibourn said that he drew his conclusion from, among other things, the fact that the U. S. War Department had spent what he believed to be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 in an effort to exploit the patents and "nothing came of it."

Paramount and General Precision relinquished their exclusive licenses to Scophony of America under the terms of the recent consent decree entered in the monopoly suit brought by the Department of Justice against the three companies. Also settled was a cross claims action by Scophony against its co-defendants. Arthur Levey, president of Scophony, consistently has held that the patents

Arbitration Proposals Drafted by Four Majors

Awards up to $5,000 to exhibitors upheld in charges of arbitrary refusal of run by a distributor and up to the same amount on a ruling that a distributor-owned theatre made an excessive offer for a run for the primary purpose of depriving the complainant exhibitor of the opportunity of licensing that run, are embodied in a new plan for an industry arbitration system which has been drafted by the four remaining theatre-owning defendants in the Paramount anti-trust suit.

The distributor, also, could be liable for damages up to $5,000 on charges of having granted a license to an unaffiliated circuit or buying combination with the knowledge that the run in-

Stein Heads Fla. Exhibitors' Group

MIAMI, Jan. 24.—At a meeting held in Jacksonville, attended by over 100 Florida exhibitors, a new association was formed under the name of the Motion Picture Exhibitors of Florida. Officers are:

L. A. Stein, president; Boliver F. Hyde, vice-president; M. E. Hensler, treasurer; William C. Umbaa, secretary. Also elected were three directors-at-large: E. D. Martin, Harold Spears and Nat Williams. Three directors will be elected in each of five regional districts of the state, who, with the officers will comprise the association's Board of Directors.

Organization structure of the association is patterned after a similar group in Georgia, except it was voted to allow theatres which are affiliates of distributors to become members. Only one vote is allowed each member in statewide meetings regardless of the number of theatres he represents. Dues for 1949 were set at five cents per seat or 10 cents per car for drive-in theatres.

Purposes of the association include united action against taxes, improvement of the industry and mutual exchange of ideas beneficial to exhibitors.

Immediate need for organization was seen when Stein told the assembly he knew of "three separate bills which are ready for presentation to the Florida legislature, each of which would impose an admission tax on theatres."

Members of the MPEF unanimously voted to become affiliated with the TOA and elected Mitchell Wolfson as their representative to that organization.

Regional meetings will be held within 30 days in five sections of the state for elections of three directors in each. Next general meeting will be held in the latter part of March.

President Stein appointed a temporary regional chairman for each district; they were: Wolfson, Southeast; Robert Boardman, Southwest; James Portlow, Central; Robert Cannon, North; Rufus Davis, West.

Albany Tent Praised For Charity Work

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Father Thomas Dipace, St. John's Recreational Youth Center, Albany, praised Variety Clubs for their national and local charities at a meeting of Tent Nine tonight at the Ten Eyck Hotel. He thanked the film men "For what they have done and can do, not for me but for the boys and girls of Recreational Center, who will be the citizens of tomorrow and the bulwark of the nation."

He specifically praised film row managers who have recently given the use of pictures for weekly shows at the center. Dan Houlihan, 20th Century-Fox manager in Albany, introduced Father Dipace and chief barker Saul Ullman expressed the thanks of the club.

Review

"John Loves Mary"

(Warner)

AUDIENCES will have a good time as they relax and laugh over the trouble Ronald Reagan whips up for himself with Patricia Neal, his romantic opposite, in "John Loves Mary." For this is a first-rate situation comedy ably produced by Jerry Wald and as competently directed by David Butler.

The possibilities become apparent by way of this briefed story outline: Four years at the wars, Reagan returns to resume his honorable intentions with Miss Neal, daughter of Edward Arnold, U. S. Senator, and Katherine Alexander. Since Jack Carson saved his life at the front, Reagan decides to marry Virginia Field, the light of Carson's life, solely for purposes of getting her into America from England.

Matters turn embarrassing when Reagan learns Carson not only is married to a different light of his life, but about to become a father. Meanwhile, Miss Neal has been biding her time and Reagan's return and wants to marry him without delay. The to-do arising out of an obviously troublesome situation, made the more so by Reagan's decision to hold his peace about what actually gives, is amusing and well brought off. In the finale, with all the principals on deck, he blurts out with the truth and is saved from the count when it is discovered Miss Field is the wife of Wayne Morris whom she had believed dead.

All of these goings on, from Norman Krasna's stage play, lend themselves to situations which are caught with professional adroitness in the film version. But those in charge of this enterprise elected to go considerably further than their subject required in order to become effective. Hitherto thought to have been relegated to its unsung niche in theatrical history, the old burlesque gag of the principal caught with his pants down—and off—is revived and made to weave in and out of the plot. It is as risque and unnice as it ever was, gives a false coloration to the relationship between Reagan and the pleasant Miss Neal and imparts a flavor to "John Loves Mary" which it never needs and could have gotten along quite neatly without.

Performances are competent, even if Carson plays the dim-wit somewhat more broadly than perhaps is required. Miss Neal, a newcomer, shows promise based on further experience. Phoebe and Henry Ephron wrote the screenplay.

Running time, 96 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, Feb. 19.

Hear Schine on New Evidence on Feb. 16

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—A hearing on whether the Schine circuit should be allowed to introduce new evidence in the governments' anti-trust case has been set for Feb. 16 in Buffalo.

If Judge Knight rules in favor of Schine, over the government's objections, presentation of the new evidence will begin on Feb. 23.

Argument on the Schine motion was originally set for Jan. 18, but was postponed when Schine attorney Bruce Bromley was named to the New York Court of Appeals. Schine asked a two-month delay while new lawyers familiarized themselves with the case, but Judge Knight granted only a month's postponement.

Postpone Hearing On Meiselman Case

CHARLOTTE, Jan. 24.—Hearing on the request of H. B. Meiselman, local exhibitor, for a preliminary injunction against H. F. Kincey, two theatres in the Kincey-Wilby circuit and the eight major distributors, has been postponed until mid-February. It was originally slated for Jan. 19. A definite date will be set later.

Depositions in the case were taken here last week by Meiselman's attorneys, the Washington firm of Claggett and Schilz.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 24.—With lunar rocket travel currently in the military, scientific and public spotlight, George Pal has acquired rights on "Operation Moon," by Robert A. Heinlein, and it will be filmed in a combination of live action, Puppetoon animation, and model techniques.

Broidy on Reissues

old pictures have outdrawn their studios' new pictures on even terms. Broidy said persistence in the use of reissues can lead the industry into a vicious circle from which there is no escape.

Broidy disclosed for the first time that AA-Monogram have switched to family-type stories in conformity with letters from exhibitors citing a widespread demand voiced by school, church, club and civic leaders who complain that violent themes have been overworked. "Wide sectors of the population want this type of picture," Broidy said. "We have made and are making them. It is now up to exhibitors to do their part in giving them what they want."

Broidy revealed that "Bad Boy," Variety Club-sponsored film, will be premiered in 25 or 30 non-Variety Club key centers on the same basis as in the 25 cities which have Variety Clubs, with total proceeds from all premieres going to established charities. He estimated that the net sum accruing to charities will reach $750,000.

following the meeting termed it a "peaceful" one. He declined to give details of the meeting, and when questioned as to whether he had arrived at any decisions as a result of it he said he would have to weigh the discussion before any action could be taken.

The Cole committee has appointments to confer this week with William F. Rodgers, distribution vice-president of M-G-M; Charles Reagan, Paramount's distribution vice-president; Ben Kalmenson, Warner distribution vice-president; A. J. O'Keefe, Universal-International assistant general sales manager, and Rube Jackter, Columbia assistant general sales manager. O'Keefe will confer in the absence of U-I distribution vice-president William A. Scully who is on the Coast. Jackter will represent Columbia distribution vice-president A. Montague, who will be out of town for several more weeks.

RKO Radio distribution vice-president Robert Mochrie is not scheduled to return here from Hollywood until next Monday and unless the Cole committee extends its New York visit into a second week it will not have conferred with Mochrie at this time. Ned E. Depinet, RKO Radio president, also is in Hollywood.

William J. Heineman, Eagle-Lion distribution vice-president, and James R. Grainger, Republic distribution vice-president, reported yesterday that the Cole committee had not approached them for conference appointments.

Uphold Judgment Of Mass Audiences

Basic research into audience reaction as applied to the motion picture was discussed here yesterday by Prof. William E. Henry, of the Committee of Human Development of the University of Chicago, in an address before the East Coast Previewing Committee of the Motion Picture Association of America. He upheld the judgment of mass audiences and declared:

"Very often critics are merely talking to themselves. Criticism of the motion picture frequently reflects frustration on the part of the individual who criticizes. More valid criticism comes from the audiences as they register their preference by attending or staying away from the theatre. Audiences are not reacting only in terms of the social acceptability of the picture; they are reacting in terms of their own basic human interest.

"It is frequently said that if motion pictures are made for mass audience taste, great pictures will not be made. This," Prof. Henry said, "is false to fact. Great pictures have been popular pictures. What we need is more insight into the depth and range of mass audience taste. Such knowledge now exists ready to hand for the creative artist, as he makes the great pictures of today and tomorrow."

his 45 percentage a trial for at least one year.

Exhibitor association leaders are planning a big campaign in the next month or so which, they hope, will lead to a reduction on Oct. 1. Meanwhile, W. R. Fuller, the Association's general secretary, has gathered an impressive dossier of cases of exhibitors who claim they find it impossible to comply with present quota requirements.

Scophony Patents

when put to use would mean marked advances in theatre television projection and transmission at considerably less costs.

Raibourn expressed the belief that the patents are devoid of value.

Arbitration Plan

volved was sought primarily to exclude the complainant exhibitor from negotiations for the run and an excessive amount was offered.

Copies of the draft, all stamped "tentative," were distributed to RKO, the Little Three and the Department of Justice in Washington yesterday. The present plan is to present the proposals to the New York Federal Court on Jan. 31.

RKO Defers Approval

RKO has taken the position that its endorsement of any such system must await approval of its reorganization by company stockholders when they meet in late March. Also, an RKO official said yesterday that the company is "sympathetic toward the idea of arbitration," but preferred to wait until the newly-proposed plan is in a "more definitive" state. United Artists and Universal have the matter under consideration. Louis Frohlich, Columbia counsel, is on record as being opposed to arbitration.

The exhibitor must assert his claim within 30 days after the alleged refusal of run and an affirmative decision would mean that the arbitrator could award him not less than $100, nor more than $5,000, the amount being the exhibitor's "actual pecuniary loss."

The exhibitor could institute a further proceeding on the charge that the distributor failed to comply with the award and the second award, if made, could be between $100 and $5,000.

$5,000 Is Damages Limit

A proceeding could be brought under either or both provisions dealing with excessive offers for runs but the exhibitor may recover combined damages up to $5,000, covering his "actual pecuniary loss."

Burden of proof is on the distributor in clearance disputes.

The distributor could be penalized up to $500 on a finding that the licensing of one film was conditioned on the sale of one or more others. On this the exhibitor must assert his claim within five days after receipt of the distributor's written approval of the exhibitor's signed application.

Where no license is entered into the exhibitor must mail to the distributor's home office a notice of claim and the grounds for it not more than five days after the exhibitor claims the alleged offer was made. Damages up to $250 could be awarded.

American Arbitration System would administer the system and the New York court would appoint an Appeals Board of three, one of them as chairman with a salary of $20,000 per year, with the other two to receive $17,500.

Three to Serve on Committee

A committee of three to budget cost of maintenance and operation would be appointed, one by AAA, one by the Appeals Board chairman and the third by the distributors. The money would come from filing fees with additional amounts to be paid by the distributors on sums proportionate to their gross receipts in the U. S. in 1948. Following the first year of operation the distributors would pay on the basis of their revenues for the immediately preceding 12 months.

Administration provisions of the proposed system are the same as those contained in the original system of 1940.

The plan appears to be a more stringent version of the one drafted last December, but which was rejected by Paramount. For one thing, the paragraphs on the excessive offers for runs have been added. Also, the previous plan gave the exhibitor his choice of arbitration or a court proceeding, but if he elected to take arbitration he couldn't go to court. Substituted for this is a provision that the exhibitor's rights to "take any proceeding which it otherwise could to enforce provisions of any decree or to punish willful violation of any decree" would not be impaired.

TV Films

Mitchell's contention from the audience of several hundred. Film producers, television executives, attorneys of both industries, and others, were on hand from many sections of the country.

Mitchell held that "people with know-how" can combine their talents to make television films at the low costs he indicated. Hunt Stromberg, Mitchell said, told him that he could make the films within the low price range.

Among other speakers at the one-day meeting was Seymour M. Peyser, member of the law firm of Phillips, Nizer, Benjamin and Krim, who discussed legal problems affecting the telecasting of films. Among the problems cited by Peyser were film rights, actors' rights, musical and performing rights, and the question as to whether film telecasts can be legally shown in taverns and theatres.

Melvin L. Gold, president of the National Film Council, sponsor of a proposed "uniform television exhibition contract," headed an afternoon discussion of the contract form and content. The proposed document encompasses such contractural features as: print delivery, warranties, availability procedure, mode and time of delivery of films, physical examination of prints. payment of license fees, run and clearance, return of prints, additional stations and sponsored broadcasts, alteration of prints, diminution of operations, and various general provisions.

KRS, MPAA Omit U.K. Probe Evidence

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The Kinematograph Renters Society (distributors) and the Motion Picture Association of America have decided not to submit evidence to the government's Portal Committee inquiring into distribution and exhibition. Both, however, will be prepared to assist Lord Portal with any information he may require of them.

The Producers' Association completed its oral evidence with the testimony of ABPC's Robert Clark and Sir Henry French, director general of the association. George Elvin, general secretary of the Association of Cinematograph and Allied Technicians, is expected to be the next witness before the committee.

Service Studio, Hollywood, and of California theatres.

The Nassour and Nasser plans are understood to provide for supplying U. A. with a minimum of 20 pictures annually and are related to programs for keeping the Nassour and General Service studios in full operation. While the two plans are not linked, it would be possible for U. A. to avail itself of both if they commend themselves to the company, it was indicated.

The U. A. board also will study proposals for a possible consolidation of some exchange operations with another distributing company, it is reported. Such a move contemplates operating economy and would involve only a few of the smaller exchanges.

U. A. officials appeared optimistic yesterday over prospects of a solution of the company's more pressing financial and product supply problems as a result of the meetings held with company owners Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin in Hollywood last week. It was indicated that for the first time in years U. A.'s owners are in agreement with the board and management that something has to be done to revitalize the company's product sources if it is to continue to occupy its important place in the industry.

the organization believes that the best that can be hoped for this year is a reduction of the tax to 10 per cent.

The Washington TOA meeting also will give serious consideration to a plan under which exhibitors may seek a television license from the Federal Communications Commission for initial experimental broadcasting of large screen television programs to participating theatres.

The plan would be sponsored by a group of TOA exhibitor members, rather than by the organization itself, if it receives FCC approval.

Ted Gamble, TOA board chairman, arrived here yesterday from Portland, Ore., and will meet with executive committee members today on final plans for the Washington meeting agenda. Most of the members of the committee will leave here for Washington on Thursday.

Jackson Park Suit Settled For $454,000

No Modification of Loop Decree Granted

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—The Jackson Park Theatre's supplemental damage suit, pending in Federal District court here since 1942, was settled yesterday for $454,000.

Thomas McConnell, attorney for the theatre, agreed to the stipulation with Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, Loew's, RKO and Warner. The settlement is equivalent to the actual damages claimed in the action, which originally sought treble damages of $1,362,000.

Each defendant is to pay approximately 19 per cent, or $87,160. Included in the settlement is a $100,000 appeal bond posted in U. S. District court here.

While the Jackson Park had been awarded $360,000 by the Supreme Court in 1946, the supplemental suit

Leonard Goldenson, Paramount theatre vice-president, and Robert O'Brien, secretary of the company, returned to New York yesterday after two more days of continued negotiations with government officials in Washington on a settlement of Paramount's part in the industry anti-trust suit.

10-Day Extension On Little 3 Brief

United Artists, Columbia and Universal have been given an additional 10 days for preparation of their joint brief and proposed findings in the industry anti-trust suit. The three companies now have until Feb. 10 to submit the brief to the government, which has agreed to the added time, instead of Jan. 31, which was the original deadline.

Current illness of Edward Raftery, UA attorney, prompted the extension bid.

The "Little Three," in their brief, will ask the New York Federal Court again for a decree which would not enjoin them entirely from franchise deals with exhibitors, from the inclusion of admission prices on contracts for the limited purposes of determining rentals, and from licensing road shows and extended runs.

N. Y. Grosses Heavy; 'Wives', $137,000; 'Command', $65,000

New, choice product hit the first-run scene this week, much to the approval of the public and theatre operators. Business is very good. Everybody's happy.

"Command Decision" is a prosperous tenant at the State with the first week's gross is estimated at a very heavy $65,000. "Letter To Three Wives" is top-rung at the Music Hall where, with a stage show, the initial week's take is figured at a strong $137,000. At the Roxy, "Chicken Every Sunday" with Tony Martin, Dean Murphy and an ice revue on stage is another healthy newcomer on the basis of its first week's returns, estimated at $98,000.

Pickford Gets Option to Buy Chaplin Stock

If Not Exercised, He Can Buy Her UA Shares

By RED KANN

Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin, equal partners in United Artists, have interchanged options under which either may become 100 per cent owner of the company in the next approximate 90 days. For the first time in the checkered career of the company, the butt of untold accurate and inaccurate reports, there is now in effect a commitment firm enough to determine its future. But not necessarily so, at that.

U. A. directors were apprised of the development at their special financing meeting here yesterday.

Under the bylaws of the corporation, the partners first must offer their interest to each other where a sale is contemplated. In pursuance of these bylaws, Chaplin has given Miss Pick-

Howard Hughes will provide second-money financing for the immediate production of two independent films to be made for release through United Artists as part of his obligation to UA for the latter's return to him of "Vendetta," "The Outlaw" and "Mad Wednesday." Hughes produced the latter three as UA releases originally, but they sought to recoup distribution rights when he acquired control of RKO.

Production Will Expand With Video, Says Coy

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—The growth of television makes certain expansion of motion picture production and new competitive forces in the film production industry, Federal Communications Commission chairman Wayne Coy declared here today, in his most complete and up-to-date analysis of the television outlook.

Coy spoke before a joint luncheon-meeting of the Radio Executives Club and the Advertising Club.

When television is more fully developed, he said, video stations will use "much more film per year than has ever been produced in America."

If present film producers produce all of the films needed for television and theatres, Coy said, there will be spirited bidding for their output. It may be, he added, that the costs of quality pictures will be more than

Delay Recommended On African Action

Possibility that a foreign managers' committee and Francis Harmon, Motion Picture Association of America vice-president, might leave for South Africa in the immediate future to consult with government officials on the 50 per cent film revenue cutback recently imposed there has lessened.

The projected trip appears to be several weeks away, if it is made at all, as a result of cabled advices from Joseph Seidelman, Universal foreign manager, who is in Johannesburg now, reporting that a visit at this time would be inopportune. Seidelman and M. A. Schlesinger, who is also in Johannesburg from New York, believe there is a possibility of changes occurring in attitude toward the recent restrictions in some quarters there.

William Wright, Actor

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—Friends of William Wright, 37-year-old film player, have learned of his death in Ensenada, Mexico, of cancer. Wright formerly was a contract player at Columbia but for the last three years had been freelancing. His widow, two children, Bill and Karen, and his mother survive.

To Speak at Allied Memphis Meeting

MEMPHIS, Jan. 25.—William L. Ainsworth, Fond du Lac, Wis., and Trueman J. Rembusch, Indianapolis, will speak before the Allied Independent Theatre Owners of the Mid-South at a one-day convention at the Hotel Chisca in Memphis on Feb. 9. Ainsworth is national president and Rembusch is national treasurer of Allied.

Edward O. Cullins, Memphis, president of the newly-organized Allied Mid-South branch, said the following Allied officials have also accepted: John W. Wolfberg, president, Allied Rocky Mountain Independent Theatre Owners, Denver; Morris M. Finkle, president, Allied of Western Pennsylvania; Col. H. A. Cole, chairman of the board of Allied of Texas, Dallas; Maurice J. Artigues, general manager, and W. A. Prewitt, jr., president of ATO of the Gulf States, both of New Orleans.

Heavy Agenda for Allied Committee

The special Allied States Association committee on "forced percentage selling," which on Monday began a week-long series of conferences here with distribution sales chiefs with a view toward securing revisions in percentage picture policies, is expected to have its heaviest meeting schedule in the last part of the week.

Those expected to meet individually with the group either tomorow or Friday are Charles Reagan, Paramount; William F. Rodgers, M-G-M, and Ben Kalmenson, Warner. A. J. O'Keefe, Universal-International assistant general sales manager, is expected to confer with the committee today in the absence of W. A. Scully, U-I distribution vice-president. The group conferred with Andy W. Smith, Jr., of 20th-Fox on Monday.

200 at Testimonial For Milton Mooney

CLEVELAND, Jan. 25.—Some 200 Variety Club and Industry members attended a testimonial banquet at the Statler Hotel here last night honoring out-going Chief Barker Milton A. Mooney. Nat Wolf was co-chairman with Nate Schultz and presented Mooney with a wrist watch.

Out-of-town guests included: Paul Mooney, Jules Lapidus, Edward Schnitzer, John J. Maloney, Sam Galanty, Albert Dezel, Paul Broder, Arthur Greenblatt, Edward Salzberg, Moe Dudelson, Harris Dudelson, Harold Raives, Bert Stern, Harry Hendel, James Nash and others of this area.

By invitation of civic organizations of San Francisco, Oakland and Salinas, Cal., Republic has arranged a three-city world premiere of John Steinbeck's "The Red Pony," on Wednesday, Feb. 2, at the Fox Theatre, San Francisco; the Orpheum in Oakland; and the California in Salinas, it was announced today.

Hollywood 'Normal,' Say Pine, Thomas

The Paramount production team of William Pine and William Thomas consider the industry in Hollywood to be in a "normal" economic condi- at present. In New York to set preliminary promotional and releasing arrangements for "El Paso," their first under their new "big budget" deal with Paramount, Pine and Thomas maintained yesterday that most of the "weeping and wailing" about "hard times" in Hollywood originates with those who are reluctant to admit that the prosperity enjoyed during World War II has made them lose all sense of what "normal" is for the industry. "The difference," Thomas said, "is that before, money did not count, and now it does."

The producers envision $2,000,000-plus domestic gross for "El Paso" and each of the other near-$1,000,000 budget pictures which they will turn out under the deal which replaced the one calling for about eight $200,000 budget pictures a year. Individual pictures in the previous deal grossed an average of $400,000 domestically.

Gamble Ent. Will Buy More Theatres

Gamble Enterprises plans further expansion in the Midwestern theatre field for later this year but no deals are in work at this time, Ted R. Gamble, president, said here yesterday.

The company already has acquired the former Monarch Theatres and a half interest in Standard Theatres, Wisconsin. At the same time the bulk of its theatres in the Pacific Northwest has been sold.

Gamble said he will move from Portland, Ore., next fall and will establish new headquarters either in New York, where he now maintains an office, or in Chicago or Indianapolis.

Pickford Option

ford an option to purchase his half in 30 days for a reported $3,000,000, but the period may extend to 40 days if a final 10 days are required to conclude the legal niceties provided the option is inaugurated within the initial 30-day period.

Actually, therefore, on evidence of intention, Miss Pickford has 40 days in which to acquire the Chaplin interest. In the event she is unsuccessful in organizing the syndicate on which she is known to be working, the option arrangement which she holds thereafter swings to Chaplin who would be empowered to purchase the Pickford interest in an identical period of time.

The two-way option, obviously, encompasses terms agreeable to each prospective seller. Furthermore, it does not necessarily follow that the figure set by Chaplin for his half interest necessarily would be the same price which Miss Pickford would fix in the event the option to buy her out moves into the Chaplin area.

The odds, however, appear to be running in the direction of Miss Pickford although it remains to be seen whether or not she will act. For several years, Chaplin has voiced willingness to sell out at his own terms, of course. But he has maintained with consistency that what have been presented to him as firm offers—for cash—somehow or other have evaporated into the ozone whenever the time of decision had been approached. The unchallengable fact, moreover, is that of all the well-nigh myriad of reports and rumors battering UA into occasional unconsciousness and raising unfortunate havoc with its distribution machinery, the one definitive offer involving a change of ownership is the one made by Si Fabian in mid-1947. It is one of the missing chapters in the history of those negotiations that on the almost momentous day when Fabian visited Miss Pickford at her New York Hotel he expected acceptance of his offer only to be advised like a bolt out of the blue that the deal was off.

It does not follow under the current option arrangement that the control of UA will undergo a change. Miss Pickford may not exercise her option either by way of a change of heart or an inability to arrange the outside financing it is understood she contemplates as part of the deal. If and when the identical option reverts to Chaplin, it is entirely within possibility that he, too, may decide not to buy the Pickford shares because of price, a decision to maintain the status quo or an inability to arrange the necessary finances.

Hughes is to provide a total of $600,000 in guarantees for independent product for UA under the deal. To what extent that will be stretched beyond the first two films was not disclosed.

MPAA Files Denial in SWG Conspiracy Suit

Motion Picture Association of America and its member companies, defendants in the "blacklist" action brought in U. S. District Court here by the Screen Writers Guild and a group of 30 writers, yesterday filed with the court a blanket denial of the conspiracy charges which were brought.

SWG and the writers brought the suit last June under the anti-trust laws for an injunction to stop the functioning of the "code" adopted by the MPAA against the hiring of persons suspected of being subversive and un-American.

Inducted with Cohen were the following: Morris Sanders, first vice-president; Robert Fannon, second vice-president; Saul Trauner, secretary; and Jules Reiff, treasurer. The new board of directors consists of David Snaper, William Murphy, David Levy, Leo Brecher, Cohen, Nat Furst, Ray Moon, Bert Sanford, Si Levy, Harold Rinsler, Howard Levy, Charles Penser, Jack Ellis, Fred J. Schwartz, and Harold Klein, who is chairman.

The induction luncheon was presided over by Harry Brandt. Some 400 members and guests attended. Seated at the dais, in addition to MPA officers and board members, were: Joseph Bernhard, Tom Connors, George Dembow, Herman Gelber, William German, Leonard Goldenson, William Heineman, Malcolm Kingsberg, Bernard Kranze, John J. O'Connor, Ted O'Shea, Sam Rinzler, Herman Robbins, George J. Schaefer, Sol Schwartz, Andy W. Smith, Jr., Gael Sullivan, Joseph Vogel, and others.

television broadcasters can pay, and in that event either film producers will have to tailor pictures for video or telecasters themselves will have to produce.

Coy stated that he was sure the FCC's television "freeze" could not be lifted before March 30, but that "it is still a good target date."

Fifty to 70 television channels may ultimately be required to establish a nationwide competitive system, the FCC official said. He declared that he hoped that the need for additional channels will be met before the end of 1949 by expansion into the ultra-high frequencies. There is considerable doubt, he said, that the FCC yet has enough data for television in those frequencies, and a further hearing may be held.

represents damages which the theatre alleged resulted from its inability to secure product for a five-year period prior to the beginning of litigation. The statute of limitations held the claims for damages to a five-year period.

No modification of the Jackson Park decree entered by the Federal Court here is included in the settlement, although Paramount has been negotiating with McConnell for an arrangement which would permit the equivalent of three weeks' Loop playing time for a picture instead of the two weeks specified in the decree.

Wallace contends additionally that the Schine interests have deliberately interfered with attempts he said he has made to purchase property for building theatres in Auburn, Newark, Cortland and Canandiagua, all in New York. Wallace said the alleged interferences not only foiled his attempts to buy the properties but were costly to him.

During cross examination, defense counsel Charles Cochran brought out that Moulder has had first runs from four major and two minor distributors. Judge Vaught asked the witness if he could use any more product than he is using at present. Moulder replied, "No."

Ask Ruling on Joint Building Contracts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—When a theatre company owned jointly by a "Big Five" defendant and an independent has a contract with a firm for a new theatre, what happens to that contract when the Supreme Court says such joint ownerships are illegal?

That is the question that the Kass Realty Co. is going to propound this week to U. S. District Court here. It will seek to intervene in the suit which the K-B Amusement Co. filed here last year to force Stanley Corp., Warner Theatres operating subsidiary, out of the jointly-owned McArthur Theatre.

Cole Decision to Highest Court: Loew

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—Loew's will "exhaust every legal resource to upset the Yankwich decision" in the Lester Cole case, company counsel said today, after disclosing the company will file notice of appeal later this week and post a bond in an amount sufficient to cover all possible ultimate costs, inclusive of Cole's salary during the interim. Appeal will be taken first to the U. S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco, and thereafter, if necessary, to the U. S. Supreme Court, a company attorney indicated.

Higher Express Rate For Films in Canada

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—In view of certain tariffs already filed and others to follow later, it is understood that Canadian express companies are contemplating higher express charges for films. A 20 per cent cut was allowed by the companies in 1936 and it is understood the new rates would revert to their former scale at least.

probably will give the Capitol about $60,000 in its first week and that is good. "Act of Violence" is causing no complaints at the Criterion which looks for $25,000 in a first week.

"Snake Pit" continues at a good clip at the Rivoli where the 12th week should bring in $28,000. "The Accused," with Ray McKinley's orchestra and the Mills Brothers, is likely to give the Paramount a second week's gross of $62,000, enough profit there. "Unknown Island" is doing all right at the Rialto where about $9,000 is seen for a third week.

"Joan of Arc" is a vigorous long-range performer at the Victoria where it should be good for $29,000 in an 11th week. "Red Shoes" still is showing strength at the Bijou where a gross of $14,000 is expected in the 15th week. "Adventures of Don Juan" with Tommy Dorsey's orchestra is holding up well at the Strand where $40,000 is figured for a fifth week.

At the Astor, "Enchantment" has yet to show signs of box-office fatigue with an estimated $26,000 expected in a fifth week. "Hamlet" is holding to a near-capacity pace at the Park with a 17th week's take of $15,300. Second week of "Boy with Green Hair" should gross $18,000 at the Palace.

SRO to Close 'Temporarily'; Weigh 3 Plans

Call Division Managers For Series of Parleys

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—The Selznick Releasing Organization is "closing temporarily and perhaps permanently," the company announced here tonight. Division managers are due here to sit in with company executives this weekend on the first in a series of meetings to determine the organization's future course.

The announcement said that the duration of the closing will be determined by the timing of release plans for "Portrait of Jennie," "Third Man," "Fallen Idol," and "Gone to Earth." Three alternative methods of

5th-Walnut Enters Appeal Brief Here

Fifth and Walnut Amusement Co. of Louisville yesterday filed a brief with the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here calling for an appeal from the judgment entered last June by Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell on a jury verdict in favor of major distributors in the $2,100,000 triple-damage anti-trust action of Fifth and Walnut. Filing attorney was Monroe E. Stein.

Plaintiff's brief contends that Judge Leibell erred in refusing to admit as evidence certain findings-of-fact and earlier court opinions submitted by

Elstree Studio in London May Close

LONDON, Jan. 26. — Negotiations have broken off between British-Lion and Lady Annie Henrietta Yule's representatives for the former's taking a long-term lease on the latter's Elstree Studio. British-Lion is using the studio currently on a temporary rental basis, but it has rejected Lady Yule's terms for a long-term lease.

The present Elstree production activity is scheduled to be completed on Feb. 7. Failing by then to obtain other tenants, the studio will close, causing dismissal of some 250 workers. Dismissal notices were issued today following the rupture in the B-L—Yule negotiations.

U. S. Films Far in The Lead in Mexico

Mexico City, Jan. 26. — Prime popularity of American pictures in Mexico was again proven in 1948. The National Cinematographic Industry Commission reports that of 345 pictures exhibited in Mexico last year 185 were American. Next were Mexican, 72, then French, 28; English, 24; Argentinian, 15; Italian, nine; Spanish, eight, and one each for Russian, Swedish, Cuban and Australian.

Fewer pictures were exhibited in Mexico last year compared to the 392 in 1947 of which 261 were American.

Blumberg Absolved In 'U' Stock Suit

Federal Judge Simon H. Rifkind has dismissed in U. S. District Court here the suit brought by Stephen Truncale, minority stockholder of Universal, against Nate J. Blumberg, president of the company.

Truncale's action, filed by Milton Pollack, attorney, alleged that a gift of warrants made by Blumberg, part of which were later sold by the donee, was improper.

A similar action by the same stockholder against J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, and Charles Prutzman, vice-president and general counsel, was dismissed last October.

Judge Rifkind's opinion sustaining Blumberg's motion to dismiss the suit against him cited the opinion rendered by Judge Medina in the suit affecting Cowdin and Prutzman.

Canada Probe For TV, Films

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 26.—The Canadian government will appoint a royal commission to examine the situation in Canada of the motion picture, radio and television industries, it was disclosed here today.

It is reported that Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, chancellor of the University of Toronto and a brother of actor Raymond Massey, will be the chairman of the probe. The hearings are expected to open in Ottawa without delay.

Notice of the government probe came without warning but it is expected that the National Film Board, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and Film-Television Factors will appear before the commission. Whether film distributing companies will be drawn

Decree Causes More Loop 1st-Run Duals

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—For the first time in the Loop, three Balaban and Katz theatres are simultaneously playing first-run double feature programs. The bills are: "Slightly French" and "Shockproof," at the Roosevelt, both from Columbia; "The Dark Past" and "Jungle Jim," also Columbia, at the State Lake; "Belle Starr's Daughter" and "Jungle Patrol," 20th-Fox.

A factor for the two-for-ones is that B. and K. is faced with a booking problem because of the Jackson Park decree which imposes a two-week limitation on runs.

Seek to Avert Italian Import Curbs: Lissim

Fear is being felt in industry circles that Italy may impose severe import restrictions on U. S. and other foreign films, Wladimir Lissim, RKO Radio European general manager, reported here yesterday on his arrival on the SS America from Paris. Italy today is one of the best markets in Europe, he asserted.

As a result of the threat, other countries are virtually pouring films into the country. Lissim disclosed that industry conferences are now being carried on with the Italian government to continue its present policy

Legal Doubts Delay 'TV' Newsreel Sales

Because legal aspects are in doubt, Paramount has rejected a request by Telenews Newsreel for permission to show a print of the Paramount televised Presidential inauguration ceremonies at the latter's San Francisco newsreel theatre, it was disclosed here.

It was the first time that an unaffiliated theatre made such a request of Paramount, although it is understood that several circuits have considered the possibility of purchasing newsreel prints made on Paramount's video system. It is said Paramount plans to charge $5-a-minute and a minimum of $200 per print if a legal "green light" is forthcoming.

Austrian Starts a Television Service

Establishment of a television consultant service to act as a liaison between the video field generally and the fields of entertainment, advertising and business is announced by Ralph B. Austrian, television pioneer.

Until recently vice-president in charge of television for Foote, Cone and Belding, Austrian was president of RKO Television Corp. for four years and was assistant vice-president of RCA Manufacturing Co. for seven.

Viewing television's growth as "bewildering in its ramifications to current and potential users of the new device, as well as to station operators themselves," Austrian's announcement cited motion picture producers, distributors and theatres as being particularly unsure of how to proceed with regard to television.

Fox Movietone Reel Loses Video Sponsor

Fox Movietone News' 10-minute newsreel clip, telecast Monday through Friday over National Broadcasting's television network, has been dropped by the sponsor, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco (Camels), effective Feb. 11. William Esty is the agency.

Client will replace the program with a new NBC news show, combining film and "live" material, running 15 minutes and to be shown at 7:45 to 8 P.M., EST, over 14 stations on the East-Midwest cable.

Paul Alley, NBC's video news film chief, will handle the film portion and John Cameron Swayzee will be pivot man in the newsroom pickups.

Switch by Reynolds, which will pay $2,000 per day for the new program, is said to be motivated by a desire for more "on-the-spot" material.

N. Y. Committee To Aid Boy Scouts

The 1949 drive of the Greater New York Councils, Boy Scouts of America, for $2,000,000 to build and expand Scout camps is being aided by a motion picture industry committee, headed by Andrew W. Smith, Jr., of 20th Century-Fox, and including the following:

W. Stewart MacDonald, Warner; Charles Reagan, Paramount; John Murphy, Loew's; William Heineman, Eagle-Lion; Eugene Arnstein, Film Classics; Pat Scollard, Paramount; John J. O'Connor, Universal; O. R. McMahon, RKO; Robert Goldfarb, United Artists; Burton Robbins, National Screen Service; John Curtain, Republic.

"The Life of Riley"

(Brecher—Universal-International)

THE transference from radio to the screen of "The Life of Riley" has been accomplished without sacrifice of dramatic format or loss of innate warmth. The film, as does the radio program, features William Bendix in the lead, and presents a series of incidents in the life of a $59.20-a-week riveter which are both believable and endearing. The picture marks the first motion picture production for radio producer and screen writer Irving Brecher and he has fashioned it into a laugh-getter of much popular appeal, with the humor on the broad side. Many merchandising angles derive from the film and it seems headed for reliable box-office success.

For the most part, the story, in radio fashion, strings together several comic incidents involving Bendix. A climax is reached when Bendix's daughter, played by Meg Randall, decides to marry a wealthy man whom she does not love instead of the poor man she does love, in order to rescue the family from economic collapse. It develops that the wealthy man is a worthless gambler, and Bendix in his uniquely awkward manner discovers this just in time to prevent an unfortunate marriage.

Brecher, who also directed and wrote the screenplay, has scattered some fine mirth-provoking touches throughout the story. Rosemary DeCamp is most engaging as Bendix's wife. Bill Goodwin, as the prosperous friend who excites in Bendix a fever to get ahead, offers an enjoyable portrait, and so does Jimmy Gleason, Bendix's factory-working buddy. As for Bendix, who is always blundering and blustering in and out of situations, he has a lot to do and does it in odd and enjoyable ways.

Running time, 87 minutes. General audience classification. For March release.

Relief Fund Show To Be 'Greatest'

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—The greatest all-star show ever staged, and the greatest financial return from any single theatrical performance, are the goals set for the Motion Picture Relief Fund Benefit, to be held at the Shrine Auditorium, April 16. Louis B. Mayer chaired a meeting attended by ranking representatives of all studios, unions and guilds held here this morning at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

William Perlberg will act as coordinator for Mayer, functioning in concert with representatives appointed from all executive, talent and labor groups in the industry. Theatre participation will be directed by Charles Skouras, with George Jessel and Jack Benny acting as co-chairmen of the committee which will produce the show.

Slight Increase in Coast Production

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—The production tally rose to 24 from last week's index of 22. Six pictures were launched, while four were finished.

Shooting started on "Kazan" and "Blazing Trail," Columbia; "The Great Speculator" (Skyline Pictures), Film Classics; "Red Hot and Blue," Paramount; "Susanna Pass," Republic; "Twilight" (Hakim), United Artists. Shooting finished on "In the Good Old Summertime" and "Neptune's Daughter," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "You're My Everything," 20th Century-Fox; "Illegal Entry," Universal-International.

Exchange Mediation Meet Inconclusive

IATSE and distributor negotiators were still closeted at a late hour last night with commissioner L. A. Stone, of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who is attempting to bring both sides to an agreement on a new contract for the country's 6,300 exchange workers. Yesterday's meeting was the third with Stone, and it offered the last opportunity for reaching an agreement before the IATSE general executive board meets in New Orleans beginning Monday.

United Artists reportedly has withdrawn from the negotiations, which would lend to confirm previous reports that the distributors' ranks have broken regarding the acceptability of "IA's" demands for a general pay increase, according to observers. William MacMillen, Jr., Eagle-Lion vice-president, who sat in on earlier negotiations as an "observer," reports that he has withdrawn after securing sufficient details regarding "IA's" demands. E-L, unlike the other distributors, holds a separate contract with the union.

New Video Academy Bestows 1st Awards

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—Newly-formed Academy of Television Arts and Sciences last night bestowed its first annual awards in banquet ceremonies at the Hollywood Athletic Club. Statuettes were awarded to station KTLA, for outstanding over-all achievements; to Charles Mesak of Don Lee, for technical accomplishment; Shirley Dinsdale, for being the outstanding television personality; Marshall Grant-Realm Productions, for the best film made for television; and the "Pantomime Quiz Time," for being the most popular video program.

Hollywood from there in the near future.

Arnall expressed satisfaction with the recent appointment of Dean Acheson as Secretary of State and said he plans an early visit with him.

The SIMPP president denied the validity of arguments to the effect that the motion picture is no more entitled to government cooperation in its foreign marketing problems than other industries. He contends that the motion picture is unique as a salesman of America and that it is performing a goodwill and ideological mission for the government that no other American product or industry is capable of, a mission that numerous government agencies and huge expenditures are endeavoring to perform.

For that reason, he believes, the motion picture is deserving of special governmental consideration wherever it is hamstrung abroad.

Denies Report of New Code

Arnall denied any knowledge of a report published by a New York newspaper columnist yesterday that SIMPP is considering the preparation and adoption of its own production code of ethics. He also said he has no knowledge of any new anti-trust suits planned by the SIMPP similar to that pending in Federal Court at Detroit.

Robert J. Rubin, SIMPP counsel; Marvin Faris, secretary; Walt Disney, and others, will leave here this weekend for Detroit for pre-trial examinations to be held there next week in connection with the SIMPP suit against United Detroit Theatres and Co-operative Theatres of Michigan.

Arnall is using office space at Goldwyn Productions headquarters here while permanent office space for SIMPP is being sought.

of free imports and unhindered dubbing.

While the status of the industry in France remains unchanged, and in Switzerland and Belgium business has fallen off, the situation in Italy is quite the opposite, Lissim said. Many theatres are being built and there is a tremendous interest in motion pictures, he declared.

In France, exhibitors thus far are not perturbed by the results of the Franco-American film agreement which limits the number of American film imports to 120. He said that there is a backlog of about 300 American films so no pinch has been felt.

Production in France is very difficult, he observed, because of high costs. Practically all French producers are looking to Italy as a production scene because of the low costs there, he said.

In the Near East, grosses have fallen considerably because of the troubled political situation, Lissim declared.

Lissim, who is here on a periodic visit, expects to remain six weeks.

"Henry, the Rainmaker"

Hollywood, Jan. 26

(Monogram)

INTENDED basically for homey folk, this homespun comedy is a type that is patterned in appeal for those who followed the Jones Family and Hardy Family subjects. With that in mind, it should be most profitable. It is bright, clear, clean and convincing.

With Raymond Walburn and Walter Catlett matching wits in the story and their well-seasoned talents, the picture takes such admirable care of its 64 minutes on the screen that pleased patrons will wonder why Hollywood does not turn out a great deal more in this wholesome category and a great deal less of the arty, complicated, suffer-and-struggle stuff. This is entertainment in the best sense of the term.

The story, written by D. D. Beauchamp and scripted by Lane Beauchamp, centers around a conflict between Walburn, a civic-minded family man, and Catlett, the town's politically-successful mayor, who has held up a garbage disposal contract in the interests of promoting re-election. Walburn announces his candidacy for the mayoralty, on a garbage-nuisance platform, but is influenced to withdraw when Catlett corrects the condition complained of. Later, following a quarrel between their respective sons, Walburn reenters the campaign, this time charging Catlett with responsibility for a long dry spell, and employs a professional rain-maker to demonstrate what should be done to meet a situation like that. The rain comes, which is good from Walburn's point of view, but keeps on coming, which is bad, and all this is the basis of cumulative comic developments which end appropriately with the appointment of Walburn's daughter's suitor as flood control engineer.

William Tracy, Mary Stuart, Barbara Brown and Gary Gray lead an eminently satisfactory supporting cast. A Mayfair production, the film was produced by Peter Scully and directed by Jean Yarbrough.

Running time, 64 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

Defendants have 20 days more in which to file briefs in opposition to the appeal before the court will decide whether an appeal hearing should be held.

During the U. S. District Court trial here, Republic and Universal were dismissed as defendants. Plaintiff's brief cites as defendants the "Big Five," and United Artists, Columbia, and certain subsidiary companies.

distribution are said to be under consideration.

First is the resumption of SRO in a streamlined form; second is the use of facilities of one or another existing distribution set-up; and the third is described as a method never used in the industry heretofore. The speech did promise reduction of restrictions on imports because of Canada's improved foreign exchange position. The Foreign Exchange Control Act will be prolonged, it was promised but there is a hint of modification of import duties.

The opening of Parliament was recorded by moving picture cameramen.

Pennsylvania 1st State to Censor Video

Orders All Television Films To Be Submitted

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—First known official censoring of television motion pictures in the country has been applied here by the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors.

Determining approval or disapproval of television films, as all motion pictures, is that part of the state censorship statute which provides that, "The board shall approve such films, reels or views which are moral or proper; and disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral, or tend in the judgment of the board, to debase or corrupt morals."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Federal Communications Commission today opened the way for action to strip Paramount and its subsidiaries of their television stations should the Commission decide such a course of action is necessary under the Supreme Court's Paramount case decision.

The Commission also placed a big question mark next to the plans of any Paramount case defendant to expand in or into the television field.

The film-going public will not find a real substitute for motion pictures in television, in the opinion of Walt Disney. At at interview at the RKO Radio home office yesterday the producer expressed the belief that television is going to be "a terrific medium" but he doubts that films could be made profitably for television with the same quality and standard as those made for theatres.

Disney asserted that he has no television plans at present. The medium has to settle into a pattern before he will make any decision, he said. He revealed he has been approached by television interests for the sale of old

PARA. DECREE IN TWO WEEKS: CLARK

Expects Agreement To Be Ready for Signing Then; Para. in Day-Long Meet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Attorney General Tom Clark said here today that he expects to have a proposed consent decree with Paramount Pictures on his desk "ready for signing within a week or two weeks."

Clark said that he talked about the case earlier this week with Assistant Attorney General Herbert Bergson and Special Assistant Robert Wright and that "they told me there were just a few final details to be cleared up."

He would not discuss provisions of the proposed decree.

It is widely reported, however, that in addition to providing for the separation of Paramount's theatre operations from production-distribution, any decree entered into by the government would also call for the divestiture of WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Publicly-reported cash dividends of motion picture companies in 1948 were off 18 per cent from the record 1947 payments and but only a shade below 1946 payments, the U. S. Commerce Department reported here today. The 1948 totals were still the third highest on record, however.

Film firms reported cash dividends of $44,905,000 for 1948, compared with $54,641,000 for 1947, and $46,714,000 for 1946.

Canadian Probe Seen On Criticism Curb

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 27.—Establishment of a royal commission to investigate television, radio and film activities is seen by observers here as an attempt by the government to curb, during the current session of Parliament, criticism of existing governmental agencies concerned with the problem.

Questions before a royal commission, a quasi-judicial body, cannot be discussed in Parliament according to established procedure. Sharp disputes are expected to arise before the official probe begins, as the feeling here is that Canada lags behind Britain and the U. S. in relations between the government and the industries.

Insider's Outlook

By RED KANN

THE future of their company has been disposed of so often that the administrative heads of United Artists are shock-proof by this time. But the prospective armor which rumor, report and wishful thinking have set up is not so sturdy that little trickles of excitement over the latest turn cannot penetrate.

The latest turn, of course, revolves somewhat uncertainly around the option on each other's half interest exchange by Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin. As already reported, Mary had 30 days in which to declare herself and an added 10 to polish off legal details if a deal to buy out Chaplin is in undisguised motion by the time the initial span is up. Under the bylaws, Charlie has the same right. What's important here is the existence of the options. They enter a muddled and oft times battered situation for the first time.

There is significance in the fact that Miss Pickford has the privilege of acting first although she may do nothing about it. It tends to confirm that Chaplin meant it when repeating his willingness to sell out—for cash and considerable of it. With Mary it has been a long history of indecision ranging from willingness to uncertainty and refusal to step out of the company of which she was one of the organizers 30 years ago in April.

Established soon enough will be what she does about it. Or can do. She can pass. She might be able to put together a group which would put up the necessary moola, and is so trying. This could mean an exchange of one partner—Chaplin—for another partner—the financing group—but the suggestion also is around the new partner, if there is one finally, might not be a 50 per center. Or, once the Chaplin stock is acquired, Mary could turn around and sell all the stock to her associates in the formulating syndicate or to some entirely different individual or group.

Mystery elements are present at the other end of the line, too. If the option rights swing to Chaplin because Mary does not, or cannot, lift them, it should not be automatically assumed that Charlie would emerge as the sole owner of UA. Mary may place a valuation on her half interest too high for his pulse. Or he could decide for the status quo or perhaps run into difficulties setting up the financing necessary for the buy if the price to him is acceptable. Or buy and then sell to interests not now in the picture.

The finance committee, representing both of the present owners, is a factor, also. Its proposal under which UA would sell exhibitor franchises and thereby raise $4,000,000 to finance production still has breath in it. A large-scale production program engineered by the Nassour brothers with Huntington Hartford [A. and P. chain store] money might jell. One plan would not replace the other so that, conceivably, both might burgeon on parallel tracks.

UA's current position meanwhile, reflects gains. From September through December the company showed a net profit of about $250,000. During the first two weeks of January, business outraced the same two of '48. The uptake goes to the credit, mainly, of "Red River," which UA now figures will do a domestic gross of $4,200,000.

On the state of the box-office, it is interesting, also ironic, to note how the prophets of doom have gone into reverse gear and with the greatest of ease, at that. It seems now that the 1948 domestic intake of the Johnston-office companies was off only 10 per cent from incredible, fabulous record-breaking 1946, and only 7½ per cent under 1947 when the end of the world was not in sight, either.

There ought to be some embarrassed faces.

Metro none over "Easter Parade," "The Three Musketeers" and now "Command Decision."

Warner ditto on "Johnny Belinda."

Albany TOA Will Meet on Legislation

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—The regional Theatre Owners of America will hold a luncheon-meeting here for all Albany-area exhibitors next Wednesday to discuss four bills pending in the state legislature which, a TOA bulletin points out, "should be of interest" to exhibitors.

One is Assemblyman Richard Goldwater's measure prohibiting discrimination because of race, creed, color, or national origin, in places of amusement. Bill provides that where a place of amusement has been convicted of two discriminatory violations in one year, all licenses shall be revoked and no application by another party would be considered for six months.

Other bills listed by the TOA are for a minimum wage of 75 cents hourly, unless the Industrial Commission prescribes a higher rate, with maximum eight-hour day, 40-hour week, time and a half for overtime; a bill extending unemployment insurance after Jan. 1, 1950, to employers of one of more persons; a bill to repeal the Enabling Act permitting counties and cities to impose special taxes, including a five per cent tax on admissions.

SRO Weekend Coast Parley 'Called Off'

Selznick Releasing Organization has "called off" the meeting of company executives and division managers which was slated to be held this weekend on the Coast, Robert Gillham, Eastern advertising-publicity director, reported here yesterday.

The company announced Wednesday evening that it is "closing temporarily and perhaps permanently," with the duration of the closing to be determined by the timing of release plans for four recently-completed pictures. Announcement of a new meeting to supplant the one which has been "called off" may be forthcoming on the Coast.

Questioned as to his future status with SRO in light of the reported pending closing, Gillham pointed out that his contract is with Vanguard Films, SRO production affiliate, and not with the distribution organization.

Paul Broderick, 45, Paramount Executive

Paul J. Broderick, 45, special representative of Paramount, died of a heart attack Wednesday night at his home here. The funeral will be held Saturday morning from St. Ignatius Loyola Roman Catholic Church.

Broderick was with Paramount since 1928, when he joined as supervisor in the sales statistical department. He was promoted to chief accountant in Paramount's Boston branch the following year and in 1939 was promoted to booking manager and chief accountant. In September, 1945, he returned to Paramount from the Army, as office manager in Chicago. In 1947, he was transferred to the New York office for branch surveys.

Services for Mrs. Schenck

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Schenck, 70, mother of Marvin Schenck, vice-president of Loew's, who died Wednesday in St. Petersburg, Fla., will be held here at the Park West Memorial Chapel on Sunday at 10:30 A.M. planned to distribute in bizone Germany, including the American and British sectors of Berlin, up to 30 prints each of 44 black-and-white feature films, 26 one-reel black-and-white films, and 8 feature-length color films. The black-and-white films will be made in Germany from master prints and raw materials shipped from the U.S., while the Technicolor prints will be shipped from the U.S.

The announcement today stressed that the films and magazines guaranteed under two other contracts were going into "European areas where Communist - inspired anti - American propaganda is exceptionally intense." ECA administrator Paul J. Hoffman said that he believed the distribution of American publications and films in ERP countries will help to strengthen "faith in the free institutions of Democracy."

ECA was given an appropriation of $10,000,000 for 1948-49 for guaranteeing information media convertibility of at least part of the costs of distributing films, books, magazines and other items in Marshall Plan countries.

Sturges, King, Other AAA Heads Reelected

All officers of the American Arbitration Association have been reelected. AAA has long been identified with commercial, legal, labor and other disputes within the film industry, and with many other industries.

Reelected were: Dean Sturges, board chairman; H. O. King, executive committee chairman; Sylvan Gotshal, vice-chairman of the board; William J. Graham, treasurer; A. Hatvany, secretary-assistant treasurer; Paul Felix Warburg, vice-president; Frances Kellor, first vice-president; Paul Fitzpatrick, administrative vice-president; J. Noble Braden, tribunal vice-president; Martin Domke, international vice-president.

20th's Ad - Publicists Fete Schlaifer Here

Ten 20th Century-Fox publicists, exploiteers and advertising colleagues of Charles Schlaifer, outgoing director of advertising-publicity, gave him a luncheon in the Hotel St. Moritz here yesterday. Attending were: Sterling Silliphant, Ulrich Bell, Christy Wilbert, Earl Wingart, Rodney Bush, Sid Blumenstock, Jerry Novat, Louis Shanfield, Abe Goodman and Jonas Rosenfield.

Schlaifer will open an advertising-public relations office here in April.

Walker and Schaefer On Charity Drive

Frank C. Walker and George J. Schaefer have been named treasurer and assistant treasurer, respectively, of the special gifts committee of the Archdiocesan Catholic Charities Drive, by Francis Cardinal Spellman. Both are to serve on the Cardinal's Committee of the Laity for the 30th annual fund appeal which this year has a goal of $2,500,000.

A special film industry committee is being organized here.

outlook for admissions tax reductions was canvassed, but no Congressman was committed.

The TOA board meeting really gets going tomorrow, with business sessions in the morning and afternoon. Reports will be heard on legislation, National Screen Service, public relations and taxation.

The TOA television committee met for three hours today with two FCC television officials, John McCoy and Hart Cooperthwaite, heads of the legal and engineering departments, respectively. Mitchell Wolfson, television committee chairman, said the discussions were informal, covering everything but with no conslusions.

He indicated that there will be no very definite recommendations, but that the committee will continue to study the picture as a whole, with a report to the TOA board scheduled for Saturday. Sullivan, Lockwood, Walter Reade, Jr., Herman Levy, Marcus Cohn, and Harry Lowenstein attended the committee meeting.

DeMille Heads Film Council on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 27.—Chairmanship of the Motion Picture Industry Council passed from Dore Schary to Cecil B. DeMille at a closely-guarded meeting Monday night, it was learned here as news leaked out in spite of Schary's admonishment to all attending that Council actions be kept secret pending an official announcement. It was also reported that Art Arthur, writer, was proposed for the post of executive secretary. No date was set for the next meeting.

The Council is an organization composed of production, management, talent and labor, formed to promote goodwill for the industry.

Set Feb. 10 for 4th Exchange Mediation

Commissioner L. A. Stone of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has set Feb. 10 for the fourth meeting here with both sides in his attempt to break the negotiations deadlock between the IATSE and distributors on terms for a new national exchange workers contract. The third meeting, held last Wednesday, reportedly brought "progress" toward an agreement.

It was not possible for Stone to set a meeting date for next week since "IA" negotiators, Thomas J. Shea, James J. Brennan and Louise Wright will spend the entire week in New Orleans at the "IA" mid-winter executive board meeting.

100 Dates for U-I's "The Life of Riley"

More than 100 dates in the Ohio-Indiana-Kentucky territories have been set for the Irving Brecher U-I production of "The Life of Riley," in conjunction with the world premiere in Cincinnati on March 4.

Plans for the premiere and the territorial dates were finalized yesterday as a series of meetings between sales executives and David Lipton, advertising-publicity director, were concluded in the home office.

Taxation May Ruin Swedish Production

By SVEN WINQUIST

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 25. (By Airmail).—There are indications that the government's taxation program will destroy the production capacity of the Swedish industry, which usually turns out 50 pictures a year.

In 1949 the number of pictures to be produced probably will drop to around 30, or possibly as low as 25. When admission taxes were raised at the beginning of 1948, admission prices also rose and the result is that attendance has decreased.

An ordinary Swedish film costs the producer around $86,000. If he is to get his money back the picture must be seen by about 700,000 persons. At the same time, however, the government gets about $140,000 in taxes. So far the government has refused all financial help to the Swedish industry, in sharp contrast to other Scandinavian countries.

Swedish producers reportedly lost some $560,000 on films made in 1947. The whole problem will be discussed by industry representatives with the Finance Ministry in the near future.

Quoting Thomas' remarks to the effect that motion pictures have a tremendous influence in view of their impact on mass audiences, the committee said "these factors assume special importance in the present period in which the international Communist propaganda machine is engaged in a cold war of slander against the U.S."

The report cited records which the committee had introduced to prove alleged Communist affiliations of the 10 Hollywood employes who refused to answer questions on their Communist Party membership.

'IA' Board Meets in New Orleans Monday

IATSE international president Richard F. Walsh, general secretary-treasurer William P. Raoul, assistant international president Thomas J. Shea, and vice-president James J. Brennan left New York yesterday for New Orleans where the mid-winter meeting of the "IA" executive board will open Monday at the Hotel Roosevelt. Meeting is scheduled to continue through next Friday.

Among matters on the agenda are various problems relating to grievances, contract negotiations, and jurisdictional disputes in the film industry. Additionally, the board will act on various appeals from judgments handed down by the international president in disputes between locals.

OMAHA, Jan. 27.—Gifts totaling $1,100 have been made to four local institutions by the Omaha Variety Club. Chief barker F. A. Van Husan named the four as the Children's Memorial Hospital, Masonic Home for Boys, St. James Orphanage and Booth Memorial Hospital.

Paramount Decree

approximately 500 theatres from the company established to take over Paramount interests in that field.

Such a divestiture, it is said, would leave the new independent theatre company with more than 600 houses.

The divestiture would apply to "closed" situations and to certain others where competition exists but in which Paramount affiliated theatres occupy a position dominant enough to be considered a potential monopoly, it is said.

It is further reported that the Paramount negotiations with Justice Department officials are far enough advanced at this time to be concerned only with discussions of individual situations and theatres in which divestiture is in dispute.

Another report, lacking confirmation, is that Paramount is asking five years in which to complete the divorcement and divestiture processes, with the government leaning toward a shorter period. It is said that virtually all other phases of a decree have been agreed upon.

Balaban Returns from Florida

Barney Balaban, Paramount president, interrupted a Florida vacation to return here to preside at company meetings during the past two days for further discussion of the continuing negotiations between the company and the Department of Justice on a settlement of the anti-trust suit against the company.

Top Paramount officials engaged in an all-day meeting at the home office yesterday which was not even interrupted at the luncheon hour. Midday refreshments were delivered to the conferees while they continued their discussions. The meeing ended late in the day.

national Allied convention in New Orleans, the Cole committee endeavored while here to persuade sales managers to relax their percentage picture policies in favor of flat rentals when certain conditions prevail. Sales managers have indicated they will take under advisement the Cole committee's point at issue.

In addition to Cole, the committee includes Charles Niles, Iowa; Jack Kirsch, Illinois; Martin Smith, Ohio, and Sidney Samuelson, Pennsylvania. Before leaving today for their respective headquarters, they will have conferred with Andy W. Smith, Jr., 20th Century-Fox; William F. Rodgers, M-G-M; Charles Reagan, Paramount; Ben Kalmenson, Warner; A. J. O'Keefe, Universal - International; Rube Jackter, Columbia, and Paul Lazarus, Jr., United Artists, all individually.

Cole reported yesterday that his committee will return to New York during the week of Feb. 6 for a conference with Robert Mochrie, RKO Radio distribution vice-president, who this week was in Hollywood.

New Elstree Production

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Threatened closing of the Elstree Studios appears to have been alleviated by the disclosure that Alfred Hitchcock will start a new production there in April. Jane Wyman probably will star in the film with Warner said to be guaranteeing distribution on a world-wide basis.

Reviews

"Shockproof"

(Columbia)

"SHOCKPROOF" starts out as an interesting melodrama about a romance between a conscientious parole officer and a pretty former prison inmate who is assigned to his charge. Principal roles are filled with earnest effort by Cornel Wilde and Patricia Knight, who in real life is Mrs. Wilde. So long as the script by Helen Deutsch and Samuel Fuller remains within an area of logic in examining the fading antagonism and burgeoning affection between the two principals (and it does so up to about the story's half-way point), the film is arresting entertainment. But when it decides to convert the moral parole officer and his oft-errant charge into a couple of desperate fugitives from justice after the lady inflicts a bullet wound in a love-smitten, blackmailing gambler, all conviction is lost. A pat finale, wherein the hospitalized gambler declines to identify Miss Knight as his assailant, follows several sequences of formula escape-and-hide melodrama, and the since-married lovers retreat from the screen for a life of bliss.

Evident story weaknesses notwithstanding, "Shockproof" should get satisfactory business, primarily by virtue of Wilde's marquee value. Moreover, the film is not without some good exploitation possibilities. Production values are good, and performances measure up with a cast rounded out by John Baragrey, Esther Minciotti, Howard St. John, Russell Collins, Charles Bates and others. Earl McEvoy was associate producer.

"A Canterbury Tale"

(Rank—Eagle-Lion)

A MODERN-DAY parallel has been given the famous Chaucer tale in this J. Arthur Rank production of "A Canterbury Tale." Despite occasional obscurity in story development, it emerges as a picture of many charming qualities and is commended to selective audiences. A production of the Archers, it was produced, directed and written by Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger. The team has succeeded in catching some inspired scenery and bringing out smartly-etched performances.

The story weaves around a set of four persons who find themselves making their way to the famous cathedral town along the Pilgrims' Way made famous by 14th Century travelers. The tale comes out in retrospect as John Sweet, who portrays a U. S. Army sergeant, tells his bride about his trip to the historic town in order to see the birthplace of his grandmother and forget the sweetheart who hasn't written. The other three modern-day pilgrims who take the journey are played by Sheila Sim, a girl who believes her sweetheart was killed in war action; Dennis Price, a British sergeant who always wanted to play a church organ, and Eric Portman, a judge who does his penance in Canterbury following some melodramatic episodes. By the time the leisurely-paced story comes to its end, Canterbury has bestowed its unique blessings on all four travelers. Fragments of droll humor are scattered throughout.

Running time, 95 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, Jan. 21.

tries are averaged. They said today, however, they believed that publicly-reported dividends of film firms account for a much higher percentage than 65 per cent.

Commerce officials said four firms, RKO, 20th Century-Fox, Universal and Warner, accounted for $8,000,000 of the $9,736,000 drop from 1947 to 1948 in publicly-reported dividends. RKO and Universal paid about half of amount of 1947 dividends, while 20th-Fox paid about two-thirds, and Warners about 80 per cent, according to these officials.

Cash dividends reported for December, 1948, announced today for the first time, amounted to $7,593,000, compared with $7,959,000 in December, 1947. In only two months in 1948 were dividends ahead of 1947, and then only by the slimmest margin. In most of the other months, 1948 figures were substantially below 1947.

Commerce gave these figures for the four companies chiefly responsible for the drop: RKO, $2,340,000 in publicly-reported cash dividends this year, against $4,680,000 in 1947; 20th-Fox, $6,172,000 against $8,948,000; Universal, $964,000, against $1,904,000; Warner, $9,120,000, against $11,104,000.

for renewal of licenses for station WABD in New York and 10 other experimental stations. All of these are due to expire on Feb. 1.

Instead of renewing these licenses for the usual one-year period, the FCC announced it was granting only temporary licenses, revocable at any time. It is said it is doing this "pending an examination of the qualifications of the licensees in the light of the Supreme Court's decision in the Paramount case."

FCC officials said that a similar policy probably would apply to DuMont's Washington station and to Paramount Television Productions' Los Angeles outlet when they apply for renewals.

A Commission spokesman said that there is no fixed date for the "examination" referred to in the Commission's order. "It could be a week or a year away," one official said.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—The Canadian Picture Pioneers held its eighth annual meeting here today at the King Edward Hotel, with J. Earl Lawson presiding. Twenty new members were inducted and the death of six members during 1948 was commemorated.

To Censor Video

the projection of motion pictures by television provides that, "All motion picture films, reels or views intended for projection or broadcast by television in Pennsylvania must first be submitted by the exchange, owner or lessee . . . for censorship purposes, and must not be projected by television in Pennsylvania unless first approved by the board and a seal issued therefor upon payment of the proper fee, and said proper approval seal displayed upon every showing."

Board Sets Fee

The Pennsylvania board's fee is $2 per reel. Notice of the new ruling was made public over the signature of Mrs. Edna R. Carroll, board chairman.

Censoring of television motion pictures poses several problems. So far as is known none of the regulations of the seven states which censor films specifically require seals for reels made exclusively for home or other private exhibition. Under the new state ruling here, video films telecast to homes apparently will be subject to censorship. The ruling specifically mentions "all motion picture films."

Miss Mary Keith of the board's office here, when asked about the status of "live" or on-the-spot telecasts not filmed, pointed out that the state regulation specifically mentions and applies only to films.

May Delay Tele News

Which creates an important potentiality in relation to the status of on-the-spot material picked up by a theatre, recorded on film and subsequently projected to the theatre screen. The New York Paramount Theatre uses this method—the first large-screen television in the country—and the same method to be used by others. If a theatre is required to submit films made in this manner, the delay would preclude any immediate projection of such material, and much of its on-the-spot value would be lost.

Because the censor laws and procedure of the six other censoring states more or less follow the same pattern, adoption of Pennsylvania's new procedure on television motion pictures is looked for. The six states are: Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia. A state law is on Florida's books but it is not functioning. City boards exist in nearly all of the keys, and in many places rulings of the board are accepted by cities in the rest of the state.

subjects but as yet he has not decided to release them.

There always will be a demand for pictures, Disney said, "and if they are good, people will go to see them." Television, he added might serve as a helpful medium "to excite people to see them."

Fears and dissension in Hollywood have quieted down, Disney said, predicting a brighter future. He revealed his staff is down to 600, compared to the 1941 peak of 1,400.

Disney, who is here on a tour of the openings of his "So Dear to My Heart," said that "Two Fabulous Characters" will be released in October. He is working on two others, "Cinderella," which will be released a year from now, and "Alice in Wonderland," to be released in two years.

US Ticket Tax Income for '48 Off Only 1⅓%

December's Revenue Was Better Than Last Year's

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—General admission tax collections during 1948 totaled $385,125,454, a drop of less than one and one-third per cent from the $389,867,479 collected during 1947, according to U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue figures released here today.

Collections by the Bureau for the 12 months in 1948 reflect box-office business for December, 1947 through November 1948, since taxes are collected monthly on the previous month's business. Similarly, the 1947 figures reflect business for December, 1946

Allied Asks Flat Rentals for Some

Although distribution sales chiefs who conferred here last week with Allied States Association's special "forced percentage" committee declined to divulge conference details, it was learned at the weekend that the committee concentrated most of its suasion against percentage picture selling to small, low-grossing theatres. It is understood that the sales heads, who were approached individually, made no firm commitments to the Allied committee, but rather assured it that consideration would be given to the matter. The companies, it was said, emphasized that they would have to retain the right to determine which pictures would be sold on flat

See Negotiations for Monroe Settlement

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Negotiations for a cash settlement involving considerably under $100,000 are expected to start shortly in the Monroe Theatre anti-trust suit, which sought treble damages of $1,580,000.

The suit, instigated by Lubliner and Trinz, former operators of the Loop Monroe Theatre, charged that the defendants conspired to prevent the house from obtaining product from Jan. 1, 1933, to March 4, 1945. Defendants are: Balaban and Katz, Publix Great States, Warner, Loew's, RKO, 20th-Fox, Paramount, Columbia, Universal and United Artists. The plaintiff's attorney is Seymour Simon.

Last week, the Jackson Park Theatre's supplemental damage suit, which was pending in Federal Court here since 1942, was settled for $454,000.

End of 'Recession' Looms: Youngstein

Indications at present are that industry thinking in terms of "recession" and "retrenchment" is about to end, Eagle-Lion advertising-publicity vice-president Max E. He spoke at an AMPA luncheon-meeting at which film star Irene Dunne received in behalf of RKO Radio the Protestant Motion Picture Council's annual award to "I Remember Mama" as the "best picture of 1948."

Pennsylvania last week enforced such a rule, as previously disclosed.

Telecasters Will Fight Pa. Censors

Pennsylvania State Censor Board's newly-promulgated regulation directing that all television motion pictures be submitted for approval as a requisite to their use on video will be contested by that industry on the grounds that the measure runs counter to Interstate Commerce laws. Other objections will be raised but this will be the main argument, it is said here.

Position is taken that many of the film programs televised in Philadelphia originate in other cities, thus the regulation is contrary to free interstate commerce. Censorship of films in theatres is another matter, it is pointed out, in that the picture is given its immediate projection in the theatre itself and no other state is involved.

Scope of New Ascap Video Pacts Studied

Telecasters are examining the scope and specific nature of the music rights which American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has authority to license as discussions continue on the first non-gratis Ascap contracts to be issued in the video field.

Negotiations on actual terms must await determination of the extent to which the video stations would be covered with a standard license for music reproduction and for the special pact which entails additional fees.

Groups of costumed singers, reproduction of props used in a stage or motion picture "production" numbers and other staging devices and music presentation methods are being studied in their relationship to Ascap licensing. Continued progress is being made on these points, it is said.

TOA Demands Film Sales To TV Stop

Membership Also Urged To Enter Video Field

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The TOA television committee strongly opposed the practice of major film companies in making their films available for television broadcasting and warned them that a continuation of such a policy might bring TOA reprisals.

At the same time the committee made sweeping recommendations to plunge exhibitors into the television business. Among the recommendations presented to the TOA board by the committee headed by Mitchell Wolfson were these:

That TOA take appropriate steps before the FCC to secure allocations of frequencies for theatre television; that each TOA member carefully analyze his own market and consider whether he should, on his own or with others, apply for a television license; that TOA explore the possibility of providing theatres with an exhibitor television service through use of a common carrier system.

Ask TOA to Warn Producers

The committee recommended that all film producers and distributors be advised by TOA in the "strongest possible terms," that it would be "a grave danger and injustice to provide television with motion picture films designed and created for exhibition in theatres and which have been made possible by theatre exhibitors."

The committee said this stand was not based on any desire to hamper television but rather on the belief that the policy of these producers would,

Tradewise . . .

By SHERWIN KANE

PUBLIC curiosity about that amusement world baby with the over-activethyroid, none other but television, seems to be concerned largely with what it will do to motion pictures. Or phrased another way, What will motion pictures do about television?

The public assumption that television will challenge motion pictures, first and most directly, is falacious, according to the best opinions we are able to get from advertising executives whose future livelihood depends upon their ability to chart the dollars and cents value of television from day to day just a mite more accurately than television promoters themselves.

Advertising men right now are trying to find the answer, not to what television will do to motion pictures, but what it will do to radio. In their cycle, that answer requires discovery long before the need arises to solve whatever riddle television may present to motion pictures.

Already the advertising world is looking for reductions in radio network rates commensurate with the loss of radio listeners to television. They confidently expect important rate adjustments in the very near future.

There is no such immediacy about the motion picture industry's competition from television.

Advertising specialists in the television field do not say that the new medium will not affect motion picture theatre attendance.

What they do say is that it will affect radio and other home diversions first and more importantly.

They know that the home in which a television set is in use harbors no listeners to radio programs on competing time segments, with the possible exception of outstanding or unusual radio attractions, of which there are not too many.

For radio, that is a problem as of now, not the future.

What is radio doing about it?

Well, CBS for one certainly is doing something about it.

It is rapidly gathering to itself radio's outstanding programs.

Its apparent reasoning is that if radio's best can't compete successfully with television, then network radio is done for completely, and CBS will, at the very least, have some mighty fine attractions to switch from radio microphones to television cameras.

The point that most advertising executives appear to be agreed upon is that television's audience is fundamentally a stay-at-home breed. They are people who, if they were not parked before the home television set, would be reading a newspaper, magazine, novel or school text book; would be playing bridge or gin rummy, or just sitting around gossiping the time away, albeit most of them with radios turned on.

They do not believe that the placid elders, the daughters without a date for the evening, the sons with home work to do, who comprise much of the television audience of today, would be at the movies if they were no television set in the home. They would be far more likely to be right where they are, which is where they were of an evening before television ever came into their lives, for the belief is that they are largely those same persons who comprise the age groups and social stratas which motion pictures count among their most elusive prospects.

That is, as of now.

As television programs improve and sets in use increase there no doubt will be a very serious changing of the audience pattern. But that places the motion picture's television problem well behind those of the radio industry, the book, magazine and newspaper publishers, even the playing card manufacturers and the phonograph, record, piano and musical instrument manufacturers, anyone, in fact, who caters to home diversions.

Advertising men add that the forthcoming reductions in radio network advertising rates undoubtedly will be transferred to television by most advertisers. That will hasten the day of better television programming, the effects of which will be to bring into clearer focus exactly what the medium is likely to mean to motion pictures and theatres when it is settled in its rightful place as one more diversion available to the public in its constantly increasing leisure hours.

US Ticket Tax

through November, 1947. A comparison of actual box-office business, rather than tax collections, for 1948 and 1947 will not be possible until the January, 1949 tax collection figures are made available at the end of February. It is said here to be hard to see how the January figures can change very greatly the over-all picture of only the slightest drop in ticket tax income.

Many exhibitors point out that general admissions tax figures include admissions to sports events, legitimate theatres, and other shows, and claim that it is possible than an increase in the take of those fields may cloak a sharper motion picture theatre business decline. They also point out that even if business has held up very well, their costs have risen sharply, and hence their profits are badly cut. In any event, motion picture theatres pay the bulk of ticket taxes.

General admissions tax collections in December, 1948, were $37,927,132, a shade higher than the $37,785,638 collected in December, 1947. December was the fifth month in which 1948 collections exceeded those in the comparable 1947 period.

Total admission tax collections for December, 1948, including roof garden and cabaret taxes and taxes on leases, overcharges and other miscellaneous items as well as general admission tax collections, were $42,761,330, compared with $42,930,914 in December, 1947.

Lockwood Challenges Tax Figures As Theatre Barometer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—TOA president Arthur Lockwood today sharply challenged the idea that government tax collection figures mean motion picture business was as good in 1948 as in 1947. Lockwood said these figures must be viewed with four serious reservations:

1) He estimated that 500 new drive-in theatres have opened since the war's end and another 500 closed-in theatres. Collections from these 1,000 new theatres could mask a drop in general business, since there is no comparison of the number of theatres covered by the figures from year to year.

2) Theatre prices in many areas have been inching up, meaning that attendance could fall without tax collections falling.

3) There is no breakdown on the amount of general admissions tax collections that come from motion picture theatres. Rather, they are lumped with taxes from sports events, concerts, legitimate theatres and other general admissions. A rise in these collections could offset a drop in film tax collections.

4) Even if grosses did remain steady, rising costs mean lower profits for the exhibitor.

TOA executive director Gael Sullivan revealed that TOA had requested the Treasury Department to make available a further breakdown of the admissions tax collections, with receipts from motion picture theatres specifically segregated. He said the request had been made to Under-Secretary Foley, and that the Treasury's attitude was "generally favorable." A definite answer is expected within 10 days or two weeks, he said. He added that Foley's only hesitation seemed to be from a fear that other industries paying excises would make similar demands.

Sullivan said there would be two great advantages from such a breakdown: The industry could see exactly what areas were experiencing box-office slumps, and local groups could use the figures in fighting local taxes, as indications of how much they were already paying in federal excises.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 30. — George Seaton, Screen Writers Guild president, has urged repeal of the Taft-Hartley law in telegrams to Senate and House labor committees and to all California congressmen.

Video Package Plan

United World Films television department has developed a new leasing plan under which 11 series of short subjects have been packaged with stations permitted to retain the reels in their libraries for more than one showing over a specified period, rather than rent each reel separately.

Congressmen Favor Ticket Tax Cut

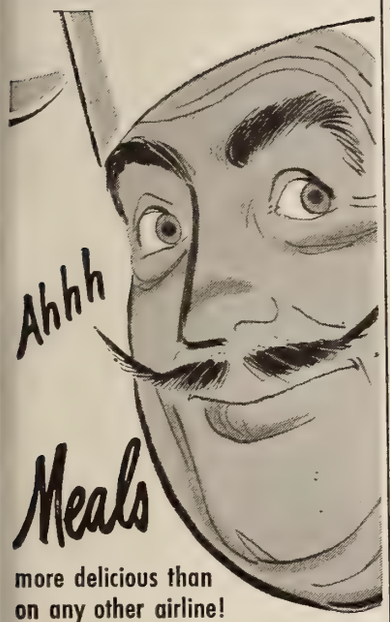
WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Theatre Association of America executive director Gael Sullivan said here at the weekend that the Congressmen who attended the dinner given here Thursday night by TOA's Arthur Lockwood, and Sullivan were "sympathetic" to the idea of reducing the 20 per cent levy, but they all pointed out that final responsibility lay with the House Ways and Means group.

Nine Democratic Congressmen who broke TOA bread were: House Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Celler, and Reps. Mansfield of Montana, Fogarty of Rhode Island, Young of Ohio, Comer of Mississippi, Havenner of California, Kirwan of Ohio and Price of Illinois. Rep. Hagan of Minnesota was the lone Republican.

Canadian Firm to Make M-G-M Records

M-G-M Records has granted a franchise to Quality Records of Toronto for the exclusive manufacture and distribution of M-G-M records in Canada. Quality is a newly-organized corporation controlled by All-Canada Radio Facilities, operators and owners of a number of radio stations. A large plant is being erected in Toronto.

On the board of Quality are Harold Carson, president of All-Canada Radio; Clifford Sifton and Eric Harvie, newspaper executives; A. G. A. Spence, banker; Guy Herbert, general manager of All-Canada Radio; C. C. Moskowitz, L. Friedman of Loew's, and Frank Walker, company head.



MGM Coast Meetings To Start Tomorrow

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 30.—Preliminary meetings pertaining to M-G-M's forthcoming "preview of product" and sales conferences are scheduled to get under way Tuesday at the Culver City studios with the arrival there of William F. Rodgers, sales vice-president and general sales manager, from New York.

Upon his arrival, Rodgers will confer with studio executives Louis B. Mayer, Dore Schary, Edward Mannix, Howard Strickling, Ralph Wheelwright and others relative to plans for the studio screenings and preview of at least nine new pictures to be released after March 1. Among the productions most likely to be ready for screening are "The Stratton Story," "Neptune's Daughter," "The Barkleys of Broadway," "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," "Little Women," "Great Sinner," "Edward, My Son," and "The Secret Garden."

M. L. Simons, editor of The Distributor and assistant to H. M. Richey, arrived from the East on Jan. 26 for conferences with Strickling and his staff. He also will meet with Rodgers in finalizing the program of activities for the 70 sales, field and home office executives who will gather for the sessions, the first of its kind to be held here by M-G-M in more than 11 years.

Accompanying Rodgers from New York will be Irving Helfont, home office assistant to George A. Hickey, Western sales manager, and Burtus Bishop, Jr., Midwestern sales head with offices in Chicago.

TOA Board Meet

by cutting attendance, make it impossible for theatres to support topnotch productions.

The committee said producers who allow television advertisers to "give away" their product would soon find that they had jeopardized their own welfare by diminishing box office returns.

TOA, the committee said, should keep track of films finding their way to television screens so that TOA members "may correctly assess the damages caused by such unfair practices and may be enabled to take those steps legally permissible to protect their businesses."

The report commended "those industry leaders who have adopted a long range view to protect their own business and the business of their exhibitor-customers and have declined to make available for television those films created and paid for by motion picture theatres."

Recommended TV Trailers

Another recommendation was that producers use specially made trailers to sell films through television as part of national pre-release campaigns. Producers, the National Screen Service and exhibitors should also investigate the possibility of making trailers for television to be rented by thetres for advertising over local television stations.

Committee members were Walter Reade, Jr., M. A. Lightman, Marcus Cohn and special consultant Bob Horne. They held a series of meetings on Thursday and Friday with top FCC officials.

Among other reports, conclusions and recommendations given at the TOA mid-winter board meeting here Friday and Saturday were:

Reduction of the 20 per cent admission tax is imperative, and while the outlook for a cut is not too bright, there is still a chance and a vigorous fight should be made.

National Screen Service can do a lot better by exhibitors and exhibitors should not enter exclusive contracts with the company.

Meet with Harmon Tomorrow

A special committee should meet tomorrow with Motion Picture Association vice-president Francis Harmon to enlist distributor suport in fighting unfair competition from theatres on Army and Navy posts and installations.

Dues will be assessed on an annual basis, instead of the present two-year basis, with the next collection in September.

TOA membership continues to expand, with a new unit due in April in Colorado, the Colorado Association of Theatre Owners, and another unit due within 90 days in Ohio, hitherto an Allied States preserve.

Conciliation boards have been set up by 10 state units, and five more are in the process of formation. Allied has joined in three so far.

In between meetings, the board members heard off-the-record luncheon speeches from Under-Secretary of the Treasury Foley, Attorney General Clark and FCC chairman Coy, were the guests of the MPA at a cocktail party Friday evening, and attended a special screening of the four industry public relations shorts.

Executive director Gael Sullivan said that the extra 10 per cent admissions tax had been imposed with the understanding it would come off as soon as the war emergency was over, and that that time had come. "This tax and rising costs have so thinned the profit margin that it is now imperative it be removed," he said.

TOA president Arthur Lockwood stated that "small exhibitors particularly have been getting squeezed by rising costs plus lower attendance due in part to the tax. Many of them say that they net less each week than they pay in taxes."

He said that if the tax were cut, he was sure "practically every exhibitor would pass it along to his customer. That's what happened after World War I."

Officials Express Optimism

Sullivan and Lockwood refused to be pinned down on the outlook for tax reduction at this session of Congress. They said the Congressmen they talked to at the dinner Thursday night were generally sympathetic but stressed the need for high government revenues and the claims of other industries for tax reduction.

Sullivan did say, "I wouldn't have asked these congressmen to dinner if I weren't hopeful about it. I am more hopeful today than when I came down here. If exhibitors, merchants and unions will all bring pressure on every member of the Ways and Means Committee to remove this tax on this necessary and popular form of entertainment, it will come off."

Lockwood said, "I think there is a chance, and we are going to pursue it."

Avoid Local Tax Problem

Sullivan said that no position had been taken on the host of local and State taxes that threaten exhibitors, explaining, "That is a local problem."

The committee to confer with Harmon on Army-Navy theatre competition is headed by A. Julian Brylawski, with Paul Williams and Fred Kent the other two members.

Sullivan said the two problems were admission of unqualified civilians to Army-Navy low-admission theatres and the effect on the exploitation and return to private exhibitors of pre-release film showings at post theatres. TOA president Arthur Lockwood said the committee's work would be "exploratory."

"MPA made the arrangements with the government," he said. "We assume they had good reasons. We want to find out what they were."

Sullivan said that the big trouble was the effect on box-office business of pre-release of films at nearby Army or Navy theatres. He said there haven't been many complaints about civilian admissions, "but where there have been complaints, they've been very serious."

He estimated that there had been about six such "serious situations." He cited Newport, Rhode Island, as one particularly bad spot.

The TOA executive director said he would continue his efforts to get cheaper film transportation. He indicated he had gotten nowhere so far with the Postoffice Department in his request for railway postoffice service for films.

Railway Express, he said, is carrying on a national survey to see the volume and type of film business before entering into any talks about cutting express rates for films. The railroads gave him a runaround in his attempts to get film transported by baggage, referring him to Railway Express. Finally, he said, TOA was still working with bus companies to remove the Interstate Commerce Commission's rules against bus companies carrying inflammable films.

Review

"A Man About the House"

(London Film—20th Century-Fox)

STARTING leisurely, "A Man About the House" tosses up some stormy emotions, and as is usual with British pictures, it has some effective character construction. The story is a mature and engrossing one, of general appeal, but belonging to the adult audience classification. Based on a novel by Francis Brett Young, it tells of two genteel British spinsters who go to an Italian town where they have inherited a villa and eventually find their entire lives transformed.

Cast in the leads are three actors of distinction but who are little known on these shores. They are Kieron Moore, who plays the romantic, scheming peasant who runs the villa, and Margaret Johnston and Dulcie Gray as the prim spinsters. At first the two ladies go to the Italian town intent upon selling their villa but soon they surrender to its charms, its scenery, music, and way of life. At the same time Moore cynically works his way into Miss Johnston's affections and then marries her as part of a plan to take away the villa. Now, by slow stages, he begins to feed her poison. In time he is exposed and he hurls himself off a cliff. His wife, however, still loving him, is sheltered from the knowledge of his poisonous intentions.

In the background of the story is a romance between Miss Gray and Guy Middleton, a visiting doctor who discovers Moore's plan in time. Leslie Arliss has done a capable job of direction, building up suspense cumulatively. A London Films production, it was produced by Edward Black and adapted by John Perry.

Running time, 93 minutes. Adult audience classification. For February release.

rental and which percentage, and to whom.

A detailed report of the committee, which is headed by Col. H. A. Cole of Texas, will be submitted to the Allied board at its Feb. 14-15 meeting in Washington, the committee announced at the weekend prior to leaving New York. Meanwhile, the four-man group is scheduled to return here next week for additional conferences, particularly with RKO Radio distribution vice-president Robert L. Mochrie who is not due to return here from the Coast until today.

Instructed by the national Allied convention in New Orleans on Dec. 1 to apprise the sales head of the organization's opposition to so-called "forced percentage" playing, the Cole committee told company executives that the "practice of forced percentage playing is economically and morally unsound because: (1) it discourages showmanship and leaves little or no incentive for the exhibitor to advertise and exploit the picture; (2) it results in improper playing time; (3) it creates constant friction between buyer and seller, and (4) it adds a financial burden upon the industry in cost.

Ainsworth Condemns Practice

The resolution, which instructed Allied president William L. Ainsworth to name the "forced percentage" committee, characterized percentage selling as "an unwelcome partnership" between exhibitors and distributors. "Forced percentage playing," the resolution held, "gives the distributors an interest in and a control over the independent theatres contrary to the spirit and intent of recent court decisions, and, in addition, enables them to drain off most and sometimes all of the profits in the guise of film rentals, thereby imposing a severe hardship on those theatres, especially the small and low-grossing ones."

On the Cole committee's agenda for conference last week were: Andy W. Smith, Jr., 20th-Fox; Charles M. Reagan, Paramount; Gradwell L. Sears, United Artists; A. J. O'Keefe, Universal-International; William F. Rodgers, Loew's; Ben Kalmenson, Warner, and A. Montague, Columbia.

Hollywood editor. The AMPA president quoted liberally from the Weaver article wherein Dozier deplores the fact that advertising expenditures were "axed" by the film companies along with other costs when the so-called "recession" came. That, Dozier indicated, was a "penny-wise-pound-foolish advertising policy," according to Weaver's article.

Other speakers at the meeting were Francis Harmon, vice-president of the Motion Picture Association of America; Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president and editor of Christian Herald; Mrs. Jesse Bader, president of the PMPC, who presented the award to Miss Dunne. RKO Radio president Ned E. Depinet and distribution vice-president Robert Mochrie sent telegram greetings to AMPA from Hollywood which were read by Youngstein.

Mrs. Bader told the gathering of about 200 that 80 per cent of the pictures reviewed last year by her organization were recommended to PMPC's constituency, and that 40 per cent of the pictures reviewed were given "family" ratings.

Clark Favors New Plan of Arbitration

Wants Exhibitor Views On That and Bidding

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark said here that he believed the arbitration plan being proposed by the Paramount case defendants would be "very helpful and would give exhibitors protection in the selection and availability of films."

At the same time, he said, he believed exhibitors had a right to be heard on the proposed plan, and that he would be glad to have the views of exhibitor organizations.

Clark made the observations in a brief talk at the Theatre Owners of America board meeting here Saturday. On another aspect of the Paramount case, the Attorney General admitted that competitive bidding "is going to be pretty hard to control. We don't want a dog-eat-dog system

Cowdin, Blumberg Cite Industry's 'Inherent' Strength

Many factors of underlying strength in the industry often seem to be ignored in current appraisals of the industry's condition and outlook, J. The industry possesses certain inherent qualities of great basic stability, they pointed out. "Recreation is an essential human need—and the 'movies' provide this need in its most popular form," they stated. "Its appeal is to the whole family. It is in-

'U's' 1948 Net Loss Put at $3,162,812

Universal yesterday reported that restrictions on dollar remittances from foreign markets, high costs in production and distribution, and some falling off in domestic attendance caused a net loss of $3,162,812 for the year ended Oct. 30, 1948, after a tax credit of $1,240,000. This compares with a net profit of $3,230,017 in the preceding year.

TOA Asks All-Industry Meet; Ticket Tax Action

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Theatre Owners of America executive committee at its next meeting, probably in the near future in New York, will call on Eric Johnston to re-schedule the all-industry meeting to consider major problems confronting the industry.

Such a meeting was to have been held in Hollywood during January, with representatives of exhibitor organizations in attendance, but was called off after exhibitor acceptances had been given.

Other resolutions adopted by the meeting here at the weekend included:

A resolution that producers and distributors cease supplying Army and Navy theatres with films until after they had been shown in all competitive privately-owned theatres.

A suggestion from executive director Gael Sullivan that exhibitors use

JAMES M. MULVEY, president of Samuel Goldwyn Prod., is expected back in New York today from Detroit.

HARRY GOLDBERG, Warner theatre advertising-publicity director, will return here today from Chicago and Milwaukee.

GEORGE SEATON, Screen Writer Guild president and 20th Century-Fox writer, is in New York from the Coast en route to Europe.

LEON J. BAMBERGER, RKO Radio sales promotion manager, will address the annual convention of the Virginia TOA at Roanoke on Feb. 7.

Ascap's Convention To Open Here Today

First convention of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers since before the war will open at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel here today with 68 field representatives in attedance. Fred Alhert, president, and Herman Greenberg, licensing chief, will be among executives who will address today's session. Purpose of the three-day meeting is to acquaint the field personnel with the functions of various home office departments and executives. Public relations also will be taken up, it is expected.

Interest in Ideal Bought by Esquire

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Purchase of the controlling interest in Ideal Pictures Corp. by Esquire, Inc., has been announced by David A. Smart, chairman of the board of the latter. The acquisition is part of a planned expansion in the 16mm. field by Coronet Films, a subsidiary of Esquire.

Ideal will continue to operate with emphasis on the distribution of non-theatrical films.

18 Millions in E-K Employees' Savings

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 31.—Savings of Eastman Kodak employes in the Eastman Savings and Loan Association reached a record high of $18,280,046 in 1948, according to the association's annual statement issued today. This is an increase of $2,616,149 over 1947.

Wolfberg Enters Video

DENVER, Jan. 31.—John M. Wolfberg, president of Wolfberg Theatres, is president of a new television company, formed to take over the pending application of Gifford Phillips for a television permit. Phillips is also a member of the new company, and so are Harris P. Wolfberg, John's father, and Quigg Newton, mayor of Denver, among others.

Tri-State Exhibitors Fearful of Floods

MEMPHIS, Jan. 31.—Exhibitors and distributors in flooded sections of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee had their fingers crossed today as freezing weather and four to six inches of snow followed floods which washed out bridges, flooded highways and drove families in lowland sections to higher ground.

Film Transit of Memphis reported it was getting through with film to all sections but there are several emergency situations that require special effort. Film Transit drivers reported that in some cases film had to be rowed across swollen streams to exhibitors who waited on the other side in their cars. This was because a highway or bridge was flooded out. There were other such temporary makeshift arrangements.

Four mid-South theatres were closed temporarily as a result of the weather. Charles Bowen closed his Joy theatres at Shannon and Nettleton, Ark., because of bad weather. Operator B. H. Trotter closed the Princess at Calico Rock, Tenn., because films sent by parcel post did not reach him. W. C. Ellis closed the Wesco and switched his film to the Ellis at Cleveland because bad weather did not justify operating both houses.

C. Goetz Joins Roth In Three Companies

Charles S. Goetz has joined George Roth in Four Continents Films, Royal Pictures, Inc., and Viro Pictures, to distribute product in both the reissue and new films markets. In addition to theatrical and non-theatrical distribution, Goetz and Roth also plan to enter distribution in the television field.

New product now being prepared includes "Appointment with Crime," "Woman to Woman," "The Agitator" and "Laughing Lady." Currently in distribution are "Murder in Reverse," "Love on the Dole," "Springtime" and "Waltz Time." They are also handling the American and Canadian distribution of "Nanook of the North" and "Street Corner."

Zeitels Will Handle Foreign Productions

Harry Zeitels has resigned as sales manager for Mayer-Burstyn, Inc., to enter his own business as national sales representative for several foreign distributors. He will open his own offices here within two weeks.

Zeitels has been in the industry since 1918 when he joined Vitagraph. He was with RKO for 17 years before becoming associated with Mayer-Burstyn, with whom he was associated for the past two years.

Johnston Denver Address

DENVER, Jan. 31.—Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, will talk on "Business and the State of the Nation" at a luncheon-meeting of the Denver Chamber of Commerce on Feb. 7.

Army Film Library To Aid Telecasters

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The Army has set up a special television film library to supply official motion pictures to television stations for use on television programs, it was announced yesterday.

Demand from video broadcasters for official films has been increasing rapidly, the Army said, and the library is designed to simplify service to television stations and to overcome difficulties that have been encountered in obtaining legal clearance of many Army films for televising. Some films in the library collection have been cleared in full, while footage has been deleted from other films which could not be cleared in full.

The library, to be known as the Central Television Film Library, is at the Signal Corps photographic Center in Long Island City. Films can also be obtained through public information offices in the six Army area headquarters.

PCCITO Meeting To Pick Poole Successor

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 31.—A new executive secretary to replace Robert Poole, who resigned, will be selected by the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners at its meeting here this week. The organization also will vote on whether to transfer headquarters from Los Angeles to another city.

Among those attending the meeting are: Rotus Harvey, Ben Levin, Homer Tegtmeier and Harold Franklin, San Francisco; Sam Gillette, Tolle, and Harold Kessler, Bingham Canyon, Utah; Charles Minor, Los Angeles; Hugh Bruen, Whittier, Cal.; C. J. Severson, Wold Point; Jack Suckflorff, Sidney, Mont.; Le Roy Johnson and L. O. Lukan, Seattle.

New Postponement of Anglo-U.S. Meet Seen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Due to unsettled conditions in both foreign and domestic industry operations, another postponement of the first meeting of the Anglo-U.S. Film Council is almost a certainty and J. Arthur Rank, chairman of the British group, has been so advised, Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America said here today.

Goldwyn Continues PCA

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—Samuel Goldwyn will continue to avail himself of the Production Code Administration services of the Motion Picture Association of America until his resignation, tendered on January 18; becomes effective one year from that that date, the producer said here today.

AFL Group Quits MPIC

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—The Motion Picture Industry Council, which last week appeared to be about to begin functioning on a formal basis, suffered a new setback today when the Hollywood AFL Film Council withdrew its participation.

Taplinger Forms Agency

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—Robert S. Taplinger today announced the formation of an advertising agency handling entertainment and industrial accounts, to be known as Robert S. Taplinger and Associates. The new film will have offices in Beverly Hills, Chicago and New York.

Reagan Resigns

cere hope that his plans for the future will be crowned with success and accompanied by the fullest measure of good health and happiness. I know that he carries with him the best wishes of his many friends in our industry.

"I plan to announce the appointment of our new general sales manager within a few days."

Reagan has been with Paramount throughout his entire career in the industry which began in 1920 as a salesman in the Cincinnati exchange. He rose progressively to Indianapolis branch manager; district manager for the Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Louisville territory; district manager at Chicago, and Western division manager to his appointment in 1941 as assistant general sales manager of Paramount. In 1944 he was elected a vice-president and director of Paramount in charge of domestic distribution, following the resignation of Neil Agnew.

Reagan's resignation is not effective immediately and he will remain with the company for a brief period. He stated yesterday he could not announce his future plans at this time.

E. K. O'Shea, assistant to Reagan, has been reported unofficially as a possible successor as general sales manager.

Cowdin, Blumberg

expensive. It serves a huge mass market embracing every social and economic level."

While "the immediate outlook in 1949 is for a further decline in dollar remittances" from the industry's foreign markets, the Universal executives stated, "there is some reason to believe that we may be nearing the bottom of the trend."

The decline in domestic theatre attendance, Cowdin and Blumberg stated, "contrary to general opinion," was probably less than 10 per cent last year as compared with 1947. "This decline should probably be regarded not so much as a trend, but rather as a leveling off from the abnormal peaks of 1946-47," they declared.

Economy Results Are Hidden

"The results of production economies will not appear to any important degree on income statements for some time because of the fact that the industry still has a backlog of pictures made or committed for at high costs one to two years ago that will continue to have an adverse influence on earnings until they are entirely liquidated," the "U" heads said, adding:

"The unemployment that has developed in Hollywood and in other sectors of the industry emphasizes the need for the industry to act promptly. Demand for the industry's product has not diminished, but the necessity for turning out a quality product at costs commensurate with present revenues has become imperative."

Cooperation of theatre-owners and exhibitors, in affording producers a proper share of revenues from a picture, and in promoting effectively the pictures shown, is particularly essential, Cowdin and Blumberg stated. They pointed out that, with exhibitors able to pick only pictures of known popular appeal, the production end of the business alone bears the major financial risk in making a picture, and in order to justify this risk, must be able to rely on a commensurate proportion of the revenues.

Small Business Com. Will Be Continued

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The House is expected to approve on Wednesday a resolution continuing the special House Committee on Small Business. The House Rules Committee unanimously approved the bill today, clearing the way for floor action at the next meeting of the House.

The resolution is being sponsored by Rep. Patman of Texas, who is in line to head the committee when it is re-established. He was a member of last session's Small Business Committee, which sharply criticized practices of major film producers and distributors.

Univ. 48 Net Loss

board, and N. J. Blumberg, president, in a report to stockholders, stated that although the company's increasingly drastic economy program has succeeded in bringing about a substantial reduction in costs, these savings have not yet shown up to an important extent in the company's operating figures, "primarily because of the over-all lag that is inherent in the operations and accounting of a motion picture company."

Figures Based on Old Costs

Cowdin and Blumberg told stockholders that "current earnings are still reflecting the results of higher-cost pictures made many months ago and before existing economies could become effective."

Foreign operations, the report continued, have been so rearranged that they cause virtually no drain on the company in terms of dollars. All offices and operations abroad are being conducted almost entirely with foreign currencies.

Inventories and unliquidated advances to producers and others declined $7,771,689, to $25,109,058 at the fiscal year-end, of which $1,750,000 reflected a revision of the company's amortization tables for charging off the cost of pictures after release. This decline, the reported stated, is beginning to reflect the replacement of higher-cost inventory with lower-cost inventory consisting of approximately the same number of pictures of comparable high quality.

Gross Revenues Decline

Gross revenues for the year totalled $57,989,307, a decline of $6,969,098 from the preceding year when the total of $64,958,405 included $3,875,000 received in partial consideration on an arrangement for the reissuance of old pictures. Although representing a drop of 11 per cent, last year's revenues were the highest in the company's history with the exception of the preceding year, the report pointed out.

Gross revenue from the company's pictures abroad, the net earnings of which were realized or are realizable in U. S. dollars, amounted to $19,408,147, compared with $22,648,677 in 1947, a decline of $3,240,530. Dollar remittances from Britain declined to $4,164,000, from $4,880,000 in the preceding year, a drop of 15 per cent.

The company continues to maintain a strong financial position, the report stated. "The ratio of current and working assets to current liabilities improved from 5.75 to one at the end of the previous fiscal year to 7.20 to one."

Wrather Hits Banks

entirely. Describing the present attitude of the banks toward independent production financing as being responsible for "an unhealthy situation" in Hollywood, the Texas oil man turned producer said here yesterday that he will avoid all "outside" financing, including "second money" so-called, regardless of what the picture may cost.

Here from Hollywood with Mrs. Wrather (actress Bonita Granville) on a two-week combined business and vacation trip, Wrather waxed bitter in explaining recent developments in the field of film financing. He said uninhibited financing methods and policies that prevailed during the lush war period were responsible for the new approach since banks suffered severe losses during the earlier period as a result of some "very promotional" production schemes.

Wrather explained that whereas previously banks would make loans up to 60 per cent of budgets without guarantees, they now will loan no more than 50 per cent and demand unconditional guarantees. In other words, he said, the banks were willing to engage in business risks before, while at present they will take no business risk whatever. Moreover, he complained, the banks insist now on approving scripts, actors, etc., when making loans to independents.

Wrather, whose recently-completed "Strike It Rich," like his three previous pictures, will be released by Allied Artists, said he has been conferring with Eagle-Lion president Arthur B. Krim with a view toward closing a releasing deal for "Crackdown."

MPEA Asks Army for More Dollars Abroad

Irving A. Maas, vice-president and general manager of the Motion Picture Export Association, reported here yesterday that the MPEA has communicated with the U. S. Army on the question of receiving "royalty and costs" for 1949-50 to cover MPEA operations in Germany and Japan. Since the end of the war, MPEA has gotten no returns from its operations in those countries, nor has it recouped costs.

Maas declined to indicate how much MPEA is seeking but it has been reported that the amount is $7,000,000. The subsidy, it is expected, would be in addition to the $457,139 which the U. S. distributors have been guaranteed in Western Germany by the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Griffith Case to Recess

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 31.—Government testimony in the Griffith mandate hearing before Judge Edgar S. Vaught will be completed tomorrow or Wednesday, Justice Department aides said here today. George Wise and Milton Kallis, government lawyers, said that they will ask a recess in the proceedings when all of their witnesses have been heard so they can study Griffith records.

cree, Paramount will be divided into two separate companies, one for exhibition and the other for production-distribution.

As reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY last Friday, Attorney General Tom Clark expects that final papers will be ready "within a week or two weeks."

Meanwhile Paramount has been granted an additional 10 days for presenting its brief and proposed judgment in the suit to the Department of Justice. The latter consented to the extension of the deadline from yesterday to Feb. 10, thus giving Paramount an opportunity to make some revisions in its draft of the brief.

N. Y. Sets Reception For 'Gratitude Train'

New York has prepared an "all out" reception for the French "Gratitude Train" which will arrive aboard the French freighter Magellan on on Wednesday, carrying 49 box-cars of gifts from the people of France and the President of the Republic to the people of America. The Magellan will be escorted by police and fire boats, and other harbor craft, to the Statue of Liberty, where it will be greeted by a water salute by the fire boats.

The train is an expression of thanks by the French people to the people of America for the "Friendship Food Train," organized a year ago by Drew Pearson with Harry M. Warner as national chairman.

Griffith-Coleman File Anti-Trust Suit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—Griffith-Coleman, Inc., operator of the newly-opened La Tijera Theatre here, today filed an anti-trust suit in Federal court against seven majors, and one independent theatre circuit, charging discrimination in granting first-run licenses and asking damages totaling $1,317,000.

Defendants in the suit are 20th Century-Fox, National Theatres, Fox West Coast, RKO, Columbia, Universal, Paramount and Prin-Co-United.

Disney in Detroit On SIMPP Suit

DETROIT, Jan. 31.—Walt Disney, a plaintiff in the $8,750,000 anti-trust suit brought by the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers against United Detroit Theatres and Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, appeared before defense attorneys here today to make a deposition. Marvin Faris, SIMPP executive secretary, is to appear before Federal Judge Arthur A. Koschinski tomorrow for the same purpose.

Disney said he knew little of distribution matters and referred most defense questions to his brother Roy, who may be subpoenaed. Date for the trial has not been set.

Technicolor Finishes Expansion Program

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—Technicolor has completed its two-year expansion program and has announced that its Hollywood laboratory facilities will permit the processing of 52 feature pictures this year, compared to 31 in 1948.

Clark Favors

and it may have to be modified as time goes by."

When asked why theatres could not have exclusive licenses with film companies "like clothing stores have Hart, Schaffner and Marx," Clark said this was because of "the abuses in the past." He said he thought there never would be the possibility of an exclusive license system like in the clothing field, "but I think we can work out some plan that may be beneficial to exhibitors."

Clark suggested that TOA submit some plan on this point, and also its views on an alternative to competitive bidding.

After Clark concluded, Ted Gamble told him that it was "apparent that even at this early date the thing has happened that we feared when we intervened in the Paramount case—that competitive bidding would be used not to open competition but to extract more money from exhibitors."

Says Bids Aid Producers

Gamble said that one major company was now engaged in widespread competitive selling not to aid new exhibitors nor to spread its product but solely to increase its profits.

"We are afraid the distributors are seizing on this device," he said. "We may be back in your office one of these days talking about it."

"I am hopeful," the Attorney General replied, "that we or the courts will open the situation in such a way that the exhibitors won't suffer from high prices or lack of films."

Clark made his observations on the new arbitration plan when Si Fabian said that exhibitors were fearful they would not be heard on the plan, even though it affected them vitally, because they are not actually a party to the Paramount case.

The Attorney General said he was generally opposed to the idea of a special anti-trust court. He declared that one special court leads to another, and "soon you have nothing but special courts and everything goes to pot." Special anti-trust courts have been a favorite recommendation of Allied States.

TOA Asks

trailers to enlist public support in their fight against admission taxes and censorship bills, and otherwise use their own screens to "tell our side of the story at local levels."

Adoption of a plan for getting weekly reports on box-office performances of pictures from a cross-section of TOA unaffiliated theatres in small towns playing on pre-release or national release dates, and mailing these to TOA members as a guide to coming pictures.

A deal with an American stock insurance company to try out in three TOA areas liability insurance on a per-seat basis rather than the present more costly per admission audit basis, with possible savings of 30 per cent or greater and eventual nationwide use of the plan.

Sullivan reported that TOA had asked Secretary of the Treasury Snyder to allow taxes to be levied on reduced prices charged 12 to 18-year youths rather than on the full adult admissions price, and had been advised that this was not an administrative matter but rather needed a change in the tax laws. However, he said, Snyder did urge the exhibitors to work with Treasury officials on the problem, "leaving the door open for us to make recommendations."

In a formal resolution to the House Ways and Means Committee, TOA again called on Congress to repeal the admission tax, claiming the government would not lose money since higher attendance would mean higher revenues from regular corporate taxes.

Sullivan said that all major studios had cooperated "splendidly" in moving against abuses in the 16 mm. field whenever unfair competition was called to their attention. He said Youth Month this year would be bigger and better than last year. Some 2,234 exhibitors participated in 1948, he reported, and "we hope to double or triple that this year."

Selling Aids Essential

The trailers and accessories resolution said that a TOA survey of members had revealed a deluge of complaints and absolutely no ability to get relief or improvement. It stressed the fact that high quality, low cost selling aids are as essential as the features themselves, since "the theatre is still our best medium of selling motion pictures."

Finally, there was a threat of further action if this course does not work. In that event, the resolution said, TOA officers were to prepare and present an alternative plan to the next board meeting, or if necessary, at a specially-called board meeting.

TOA president Lockwood was the head of the committee which recommended the new box-office performance check. He said the service was designed mainly for smaller members. About 100 theatres serving areas of less than 25,000 people will be in the sample, and will air-mail reports to New York every week. These will be analyzed, and the results forwarded to members.

Oppose Single-Reel Price

On the matter of the industry's public relations films, the board said that they were a step in the right direction and highly desirable, but that it saw no reason why exhibitors should bear the entire cost, as would be the case if they were sold on a single-reel price basis.

Asked whether TOA members would be told not to show the films if distributors did not agree to this plan, Lockwood said that the TOA board would have to determine a policy in such an event.

Action on Army-Navy Film Showings Not Year Clear

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—There seems to be some confusion as to exactly what resolution the board of the Theatre Owners of America did pass on the subject of competition from Army and Navy theatres.

TOA president Arthur Lockwood said the Board called on the producers and distributors not to make films available to service theatres until after they had played all competitive private theatres. He said day-and-date arrangements were objectionable.

A. Julian Brylawski, head of a three-man committee apointed to confer with Motion Picture Association vice-president Francis Harmon on the matter, said the board resolution did not say "after" all private theatres—that day-and-date with private theatres would be okay.

Theatres Handicap

ting any one means of communication get too strong a grip. While such a policy does not preclude exhibitors as a class from getting television stations, he said, it will make it very tough for them in many instances.

Each case must be determined on the basis of its own facts, he stated, but the Commission always bears in mind its policy of favoring diversity. He said he had no doubt that the theatre must be considered a means of communication in administering such a policy.

Skouras on Television

Charles Skouras observed that when people see television they see motion picture films. "We have been in that business for 50 years," he said. "We are entitled to keep on giving the people that service."

Asked whether there was any FCC policy on carrying subjects over common carriers for the exclusive use of theatre owners, Coy said the problem had never been raised.

This was one of the subjects on which the TOA television committee recommended study and investigation. Committee chairman Mitchell Wolfson said the committee was considering various possibilities, including TOA getting a license as a broadcaster through local companies, qualifying as a common carrier, or becoming a production unit to channel sports events and cultural events exclusively to theatre members.

Further Study Recommended

Another subject on which further study was recommended was whether TOA should take steps to get the FCC to allocate frequencies for theatre television. One committee member said, however, that the meeting was unanimously for such a step, and that he expected action would be taken within 60 days before the FCC.

Wolfson said that as far as he knew, only one or two major distributors had made one or two films available to television on an experimental basis, and that these firms had assured him they would not continue the policy.

14 'U' Directors Up for Reelection

All 14 directors of Universal Pictures Co. will be up for re-election for one year terms at the company's annual meeting of stockholders, to be held March 9 at Wilmington, Del.

Three resolutions offered by small stockholders will be voted upon at the meeting. One would amend the by-laws to require that directors own at least 100 shares of Universal stock; another calls for a summary of occurrences at annual meetings, to be sent to all stockholders, and a third provides for the election by stockholders of independent auditors for the company.

Universal management is opposed to the first two resolutions on the grounds that ownership of stock is no test of a director's ability and because it believes a report of the annual meetings is superfluous in view of the completeness of its annual reports to

Lippert Says SGP Sale Is 'Doubtful'

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—The Carl Leserman syndicate formed to purchase Screen Guild Productions "has missed the boat," in the opinion of SG president Robert L. Lippert, who told the press today, "Screen Guild revenues have practically doubled while the Leserman negotiations have been hanging fire, with the result that most franchise holders are no longer disposed to sell at the figures which had been discussed."

Lippert said that negotiations are presently in abeyance, but that he doubts the Leserman group will pursue the project in view of changed conditions.

Some 1st-Run Grosses Off

Returns at many New York first-runs are down this week, income over the weekend having been only fair, while steady rain washed out Monday's business almost entirely.

"So Dear to My Heart" at the Palace is a good newcomer, although the apparent first week's income of $32,000 is short of expectations. A stand-out performer is "Letter to Three Wives" which, with a stage presentation at the Music Hall, figures to draw $137,000 for a second week, actually equalling the first week's take.

An estimated $26,000 for the 13th week of "Snake Pit" at the Rivoli is especially impressive. "Hamlet" with $16,000 indicated for the 18th week at the Park, and "Red Shoes" with a substantial $14,000 in view for a 16th week at the Bijou are both doing well.

"The Accused," with Ray McKinley and the Mills Brothers on stage at the Paramount, concluded a third and final week with a $55,000 gross, which

Company Presidents Deny Report That Lewis W. Douglas Will Succeed Johnston

Presidents of member companies of the Motion Picture Association of America yesterday issued the following statement in response to current reports that a successor to Eric Johnston as president of the MPAA is being discussed:

"We wish to deny emphatically a widely published report that Lewis W. Douglas, U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain, would succeed Eric Johnston as President of our Association. Rumors of this character are unfair to two distinguished Americans and do a great disservice to the industry.

"The facts are Mr. Johnston came to the association in 1945 under a five-year contract. Some time later at our insistence his contract was extended to eight years. We expect he will continue with us for many, many years beyond that period. Mr. Johnston is giving outstanding leadership. We need a man of his ability as never before to help in the solution of the difficult problems confronting the industry at home and abroad."

The report concerning Ambassador Douglas was first circulated by Louella Parsons, Hollywood columnist, last Sunday.

Para., D. of J. Agree on Decree Details

Ratification By Both Expected in Near Future

That a definite agreement on details of a consent decree was reached by Paramount with the Department of Justice in Washington was learned yesterday.

Top Paramount officials who were not in Washington were engaged in meetings at the home office throughout most of the day and could not be reached for confirmation. Similarly, Department of Justice officials were engaged in meetings with Paramount executives in Washington and were not available for comment.

However, Attorney General Tom C. Clark had told MOTION PICTURE DAILY last week that he expected to have a proposed consent decree with Paramount on his desk ready for signing within a week or two.

Yesterday's reports were that Austin Keough, vice-president and general counsel of Paramount, and Leonard

TESMA Convention in Chicago Sept. 26 - 28

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—Headquarters here of the Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers Association reports that preliminary arrangements for the 1949 trade show and convention of the association, to be held at the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, Sept. 26-28, have been launched.

As customary in the past, the Theatre Equipment Dealers Association will convene at the same time and place, as well as theatre owner groups.

SAG Rejects Equity Bid

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—The Screen Actors Guild board last night rejected a counter-proposal made by the council of Actors Equity for organizing and administering actors' interests in television and announced that the board will continue to explore all approaches to the problems created by the new medium. First step in this direction was the appointment of a committee to meet immediately with producers making films for television.

Dismiss Stock Action

Federal Judge Edward A. Conger has dismissed in U. S. District Court here the suit brought against 20th Century-Fox production executive Raymond A. Klune by minority stockholder David Colby who alleged improper exercise of a stock option under the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934.

Frozen Reich Funds For British Filming

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. — British "film groups" are using blocked marks to produce films in Germany in cooperation with German producers and using German and British actors, according to an Austrian report received here. The report declares that the films will be shown in British, American and Continental maarkets.

No further details could be obtained from government sources here. One War Department official pointed out that such a project would probably have to be approved by the Joint Export-Import Agency, composed of British, French and American members, and by the British Military Government in Germany.

The report said that there was a possibility that the Swiss Gamma Co., owned by the Aga Khan, might soon work out a similar arrangement for use of its blocked "D" marks.

Queried in New York yesterday relative to the significance embodied in the report that British "film groups" are using blocked marks to produce in Germany, a Motion Picture Export Association spokesman pointed out that M-G-M produced "The Search" and Paramount made "A Foreign Affair" in Germany and used blocked marks for financing.

Admission Tax Bill Killed in Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 1.—The Oregon House Taxation Committee has killed a bill to tax admissions 10 per cent for an old-age pension fund. Exhibitors maintained the measure would hurt theatres and fall most heavily on low-income people.

George Meade of United Theatres, of Oregon, said the proposed tax was bad as it singled out one industry. Moe Mesher, general manager of the Evergreen Circuit, testified theatres could not absorb the tax and it would fall on their customers.

4th Para. Sell-away From Richards Group

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 1.—Fourth Paramount feature to play away from the Paramount-Richards circuit here since the recent sell-away, and the first to play at a house other than Loew's State, went to the Joy Strand, a Joy Theatres, Inc., operation. The feature was "Isn't It Romantic."

Sees No Box-Office Sag

CLEVELAND, Feb. 1.—Business in 1949, according to E. C. Grainger, Shea chain president, will equal 1948, but will be under the peak of 1946-47.

No policy or price changes are contemplated by the circuit, according to Grainger.

Disney Board Elections

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—Paul L. Pease, treasurer of Walt Disney Prod., was elected to the board of directors at a stockholders' meeting here today. All other incumbents and company officers were re-elected.

Production Drops To 20, from 24

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—The production tally dipped to 20 from last week's 24. Seven films were completed while three were started.

Shooting started on "Anna Lucasta" (Security), Columbia; "Rope of Sand," Paramount; "Death Valley Gunfighter," Republic. Shooting finished on "Blazing Trail," "All the King's Men" and "Hounded," all Columbia; "The Great Speculator" (Skyline), Film Classics; "Slattery's Hurricane" and "It Happens Every Spring," 20th Century-Fox; "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," U-I.

Canada May Build State-owned TV

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 1.—The government is considering the establishment of television stations, though action will be held in abeyance until the royal commission recently named makes its investigation of the industry, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent told Parliament today. He added that TV in Canada will "necessarily" be a monopoly.

Early functioning of the commission is expected with the arrival here today of Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, chairman of the probe, to confer with officials concerning his appointments.

British Producer in Deal with 2 U.S. Firms

Deals involving British Foundation Pictures and two U. S. firms were announced here yesterday.

Trinity Pictures has acquired television rights to 120 shorts. Jack Rieger is Trinity president. In the other deal announced, Hoffberg Productions will distribute a feature to be produced in England by British Foundation.

In return, British Foundation will distribute in the U. K. films controlled by Trinity and Hoffberg.

Cleveland MPEA Ask Clearance Reduction

CLEVELAND, Feb. 1.—The Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association wants extended to all local subsequent-run independent houses the 21-day availability now accorded only by 20th-Fox and Warner to 17 designated and "approved" houses. The others are on a 35-day availability.

The request is made in a letter sent to all exchanges.

Lardner, Jr. Assignment

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1. — Twentieth Century-Fox holds the option to distribute "Skiing Story," to be made in Switzerland by Lazar Wechsler as a condition of 20th's loan-out of Cornel Wilde for the starring role. Following the agreement, Ring Lardner, Jr., was assigned by Wechsler to do the screenplay. 20th-Fox is free to drop the option if it decides to do so.

House Group Shies From New Publicity

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The House Un-American Activities committee in its first meeting of the new session decided to bar newsreels, television and radio from its future hearings. The group has, in the past, been one of the most photographed and most broadcast of committees.

Chairman Wood said that the committee's program was not discussed in detail, but that it was decided to seek an appropriation of $200,000 — the same as in 1948 — for its operations this year.

Report on Army-Navy Competition to TOA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The special committee set up by the Theatre Owners of America board meeting last weekend to work on the problem of competition from Army and Navy theatres met with top Army and Navy officials today.

Committee chairman A. Julian Brylawski said he has forwarded a report to TOA headquarters in New York.

Hope Asks Video Delay

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Bob Hope has asked the Federal Communications Commission to postpone for 60 days the hearing now set for Feb. 28 on his bid for Louisville station WHAS, and to hold it in Louisville instead of Washington. Hope and two other bidders have submitted identical bids of $1,925,000.

Egypt Pegs Dollar Remittances at 60%

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The Egyptian government contemplates permitting foreign distributors to remit 60 per cent of their earnings in sterling because of a relatively easy position in sterling, Commerce Department film chief Nathan D. Golden reports.

However, Golden says apparently U. S. film firms will have to stick to the plan worked out late in 1947 under which they remit 35 per cent of current earnings and 35 per cent of earnings accumulated since remittances were cut down in early 1947.

The report estimates that the eight major U. S. distributors in Egypt take in about $1,430,000 annually after theatre operators' percentages and entertainment taxes. Remittances before exchange restrictions were imposed ran about 60 per cent to 80 per cent of amounts received from exhibitors, the rest being used to defray local expenses.

Import permits will be required for some time, the report predicts.

Dubbing rules are very strict, with a limit of three films a year. This is due to wide popular feeling against dubbing as "a death-blow to the domestic industry."

Canada Lifts Duty On 16mm. Raw Film

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The Canadian government has liberalized its tariff regulations allowing temporary free entry of motion picture film for processing in Canada, according to the U. S. Commerce Department.

Film chief Nathan D. Golden reported today that standard film imported for the sole purpose of having 16mm. reproductions made can come in duty-free and remain for six months, rather than for only three months, as heretofore.

Goldberg Sets Units For Localized Films

Jack Goldberg, executive producer for Herald Pictures, has organized two traveling production units to make "featurettes" with local talent. Each unit will have a cameraman, sound engineer and director. Three weeks will be consumed in each theatre played. The first week will be devoted to the selection and rehearsal of the talent, the second will be for "shooting," while the third will constitute the "run" of the picture at the local house.

Dr. Inglis Joins NAB

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Dr. Ruth A. Inglis, former researcher and writer in motion pictures, has been appointed editorial assistant to National Association of Broadcasters president Justin Miller. Dr. Inglis wrote the volume on "Freedom of the Movies" for the Hutchins Commission on Freedom of the Press, worked in Hollywood for the Motion Picture Research project of the Carnegie and Rockefeller foundations, and has written many magazine articles on the film industry.

Video Permit to Wolfson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The Federal Communications Commission has granted the Wolfson-Meyer Circuit permission to operate television station WTVJ in Miami, according to Mitchell Wolfson.

Reviews

"Red Canyon"

(Universal-International)

THE STORY of the capture and eventual "breaking-in" of a wild stallion has been set against a background of assorted skullduggery and shooting to make an outdoor drama that is above the average. The characters are for the most part the conventional types, but they are portrayed by a cast of reliable marquee names headed by Ann Blyth, Howard (Naked City) Duff and George Brent. Technicolor is quite helpful and appealing, especially in the outdoor scenes.

The film marks Duff's first Western role and he fits the part with easy assurance. He arrives on the scene determined to capture the wild stallion, Black Velvet, a feat considered foolhardy and impossible by the local citizenry. Duff, however, proceeds methodically, lures the animal away from its herd, and finally ropes him. Now comes the task of breaking the horse to the saddle and then training him for a forthcoming race. As it happens, Brent, a gentleman horse-breeder and father of Miss Blyth, is also training a horse for the race. A father-daughter conflict breaks out when Duff injures his back and Miss Blyth decides to ride Black Velvet in the race. Added to this dilemma is the more serious one of Duff's background. It seems he was once a member of an outlaw gang which his father and brother head. With Duff having renounced them, they are out for revenge. These brewing factors bring the film to a climax in which Miss Blyth rides to victory and Duff shoots his way back to social acceptability. George Sherman directed and Leonard Goldstein produced. The screenplay, by Maurice Geraghty, was based on Zane Grey's novel "Wildfire."

Running time, 82 minutes. General audience classification. For March release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"I Shot Jesse James"

(Screen Guild)

A SPLENDID performance by John Ireland and adroit direction by Samuel Fuller, who also wrote the story, sets this historical melodrama apart from others in its category as a memorable motion picture. It is a reasoned and seasoned telling of the story of Bob Ford, "the dirty little coward who shot Mr. Howard," and it explains the man who killed Jesse James but it does not glorify him. The subject has the powerful appeal common to films chronicling the lives of early American bad men, and as produced by Carl K. Hittleman, for executive producer Robert L. Lippert, it re-creates with rare skill and taste the period, manner, temper and tempo of the West in which Ford, having murdered James for amnesty and finding himself the target of universal scorn, seeks to make a life for himself and the woman he thinks loves him. It is conspicuously the best picture that has come from Screen Guild, and should give telling box-office accounts in exhibition.

Although Preston Foster and Barbara Britton are the more established names with which to bill the attraction, it is the performance by Ireland, himself, a highly exploitable personality by reason of his trigger-keen portrayal in "Red River," who plays Jesse James' murderer and executes the sinister assignment with an understanding and a sureness of characterization seldom excelled. Reed Hadley as James and J. Edward Bromberg as a roadshow impresario head an able supporting cast.

The story opens with a bank holdup by the James brothers, whose gang includes the Ford brothers, and contains other outbursts of gunplay and fisticuffs sufficient in number to satisfy the addicts of bullet fiction but not so numerous as to obscure the personal story of Ford. Miss Britton plays a roadshow actress for love of whom Ford decides to shoot Jesse James, in order that he can gain amnesty and live his life openly, and whose love for him is ended by his act. Foster plays a prospector, also in love with the actress, whose path crosses Ford's before and after the killing, and finally in Creede, Colo., where Ford has struck it rich in silver and Foster has become sheriff, finally to shoot Ford to death after the latter, refusing to listen to reason, has fired at and wounded him.

Running time, 81 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

Meiselman Hearing Date Set Tentatively

CHARLOTTE, Feb. 1.—February 17 has been tentatively set as the date for a hearing here on the motion of H. B. Meiselman for a preliminary injunction in his anti-trust suit against the eight major distributors, the Charlotte Amusement Co., Strand Theatres and H. F. Kincey.

$9,200 "Sky" Opener

The New York Roxy combination of "Yellow Sky" on the screen and Danny Kaye in person brought an opening day gross yesterday of $9,200 up to five P.M., it was reported by 20th-Fox. The figure was described as the biggest for a single day since "Forever Amber" played at the theatre a year-and-a-half ago.

Operator Testifies Against Griffith

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 1. — Mrs. Mary E. Trieb, operator of El Capitan, an independent house at Roswell, N. M., took the stand in the Griffith mandate hearing here today and on questioning by government attorneys blamed the circuit for her financial difficulties.

She described the problems which she said began for herself and her late husband, Ernest C. Trieb, in 1931 when Griffith opened the Yucca in competition with their Princess and El Capitan. Within a year, she said, they had to sell the Princess because both product supply and boxoffice had fallen off heavily. Most of the major distributors sold their product away from the Triebs in the 1930's, she testified.

NY 1st-Run Grosses

is fair; it will be replaced today by "My Own True Love," with the Three Sons and Monica Lewis, among others, in person. The sixth week of "Adventures of Don Juan," with Tommy Dorsey on stage, should gross about $30,000, not too good, at the Strand.

At the Mayfair, "Wake of the Red Witch" continues at a good clip with a $25,000 gross for the fourth week after a hearty third week's take of $30,000. "Act of Violence" probably will give the Criterion a modest second week's gross of $18,000. "Tarzan's Magic Fountain" will bow in at the Globe on Saturday, replacing "The Lucky Stiff," which is not likely to exceed $10,000 in a slow, single week's run. "Command Decision" finished a second week at the State with a robust $51,000.

"Chicken Every Sunday," with Tony Martin and Dean Martin on stage with an ice revue at the Roxy, was fairly substantial in its final six days, one short of a complete second week, with a take of $82,000; it was replaced yesterday with "Yellow Sky" and a stage show headed by Danny Kaye.

"Enchantment" looks good for about $20,000 in a sixth week at the Astor. Twelfth week of "Joan of Arc" should gross about $23,000, which is good enough, at the Victoria. "The Bribe" will open at the Capitol tomorrow, with Arthur Godfrey and his Talent Scouts, following "Man from Colorado" which, with the Ink Spots and Blue Barron on stage, figures to wind up a second week with a mild $50,000.

Legion Reviews 7; Puts 2 in Class "C"

Seven new films have been rated by the National Legion of Decency with two getting a "C" classification. In that classification are Superfilm's "Merry Chase" and "When Love Calls."

Rated "B" are Warner's "John Loves Mary." In the A-1 class are Universal-International's "Life of Riley" and Republic's "Rose of the Yukon." In Class A-II are Columbia's "The Lone Wolf and His Lady" and 20th Century-Fox's "Miss Mink of 1949."

Ceiling on Tickets For Old Product

Mexico City, Feb. 1.—Exhibiting old pictures as new and charging top admission for them has been forbidden by the local municipal government's Amusements Supervision Department. Because of numerous complaints from the public, the department has ordered that no picture released more than three years ago can be exhibited as new, except when the Department decides that the picture has a novelty and freshness that compensates for its age. Admission charge for an old picture is fixed at 45 cents, maximum, and exhibitors must make it clear that the picture is not new. The maximum price for a new first-run picture is 68 cents.

ture experience in our industry gained from many years in the field and home office."

"He assumes his new post," Balaban said, "at a time when the outstanding quality of our current product and that to be released in coming months convinces me that Paramount is heading for new heights in its proud history. We have every confidence that he can deliver the kind of leadership that is worthy of the product."

Emerging Into New Phase

Balaban also made the following statement:

"Although the dictates of realism must continue to control our policies during this period of adjustment, we are now emerging into a new and healthier phase of our company's growth. The production department of our company is stronger today than it has ever been, not only along sounder economic lines but in its ability to produce better entertainment for the public.

"The current releasing schedule of our company tells an eloquent story about what we have been able to achieve. This schedule, loaded with top box-office values, represents the finest aggregation of product in Paramount's history. We now face the future with unbounded confidence in the merit of our product and its enthusiastic reception by the public."

Entered Industry in 1925

Schwalberg entered the industry in 1925 as a traveling auditor of Warner Brothers. He was assistant head of the Warner contract department in 1927 and later became head of the First National contract department and executive assistant to Ned E. Depinet. After taking charge of the combined Warner-First National-Vitaphone contract department, he was elected a vice-president of Warner Brothers Distributing Corp., in 1942. In 1944 he became general sales manager of the Leo Spitz-William Goetz company, International Pictures. In 1946 he became vice-president and general sales manager of Eagle-Lion, then joined Paramount last year. In recent months he has been engaged in reorganizing Paramount exchange operations.

two-reelers based on General Dwight D. Eisenhower's recently-published "Crusade in Europe."

The series, of which the first two pictures already have been completed, is being made from official government sources, captured enemy films and new films shot in Europe and the U. S. expressly for the series. Material is also being selected from the film libraries of the Army and Navy, Coast Guard, Alien Property Custodian, British War Office, Canadian National Film Board, March of Time and 20th-Fox. MOT executive Arthur B. Tourtellot has been placed in editorial charge of production and will have a staff of MOT writers, film editors and technicians assigned especially to the project.

Under terms of the four-way contract, the documentary films used will not be shown anywhere except on television and are the exclusive property of ABC for 21 months.

M. Faris in Detroit On SIMPP Suit

DETROIT, Feb. 1.—Marvin L. Faris, executive secretary of SIMPP, a co-plaintiff in the $8,750,000 anti-trust suit against two Detroit theatre chains, testified here today on a deposition that defense counsel needs to prepare answers to the charges of monopoly. William Cagney is scheduled next to appear in Detroit for questioning.

The defendants have until Feb. 28, to file their formal answers to the charges that they are maintaining a monopoly in restraint of trade.

worked out to coordinate all facets of the company's activities to embrace special promotion by production on the Coast, the advertising-publicity department, M-G-M's music companies, M-G-M Records, radio station WMGM and other affiliates. Activities will continue through the year.

"The aim will be to have the Leo trademark on every theatre screen in the world," a company statement declares.

Participating in the Coast meetings for the promulgation of such plans will be Louis B. Mayer, Dore Schary, Edward Mannix, Howard Strickling, Ralph Wheelwright and other studio, home office and field executives.

Metro's Station WMGM to Promote Pictures, Players

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's radio station WMGM has completed plans for programs running six hours weekly, emanating from Hollywood and promoting M-G-M players and product. The programs are "M-G-M Theatre of the Air," one-hour weekly radio adaptation of M-G-M pictures; "Good News from Hollywood," featuring George Murphy, a 15-minute program three times weekly, "presenting the human side of the film colony"; "Hollywood, U.S.A.," a five-time weekly 15-minute program featuring Paula Stone in interviews; "Crime Doesn't Pay," the screen series now transferred to radio in half-hour weekly installments; "At Home with Lionel Barrymore," five 15-minute broadcasts weekly for early morning listening; "Personalities on M-G-M Records," half-hour weekly.

Production will be under the direction of Paula Stone, guided by Ray Katz, WMGM's program director, under the supervision of Les Peterson of M-G-M.

Five shows with 19 programs running a total of 8¾ hours weekly will be titled "Hollywood's Open House," "Robbins' Nest," "It's a Great Show," "Anything for Laughs" and "The Radio Theatre of Famous Classics." There will be a $40 minimum half-hour weekly rate. Offices are being established in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Dallas and Atlanta. Five new shows will be made available three times a year, to be added to those already being broadcast. Green said TBS aims at a 500-station network with an eventual 15-to-20-hours of programs a week.

President of TBS is William J. McCambridge, Press Wireless head.

Para. Decree

Goldenson, vice-president in charge of theatre operations, reached an agreement on a decree with the Department of Justice at noon yesterday in Washington. The agreement would be subject to ratification by the Paramount board of directors.

Goldenson returned to New York late yesterday to submit details of the final agreement to company authorities, while Keough remained in Washington, prepared to take up with the Justice Department any last-minute changes which might be suggested by the company.

It was understood that Goldenson brought back details of a decree settlement for approval by the Paramount board. If approved here, the agreement will be reduced to a written pact which will then be submitted to Attorney General Clark.

(Reports reaching here from Washington indicate that "chances for a settlement of Paramount divestiture are pretty definite.")

As previously reported, the basis for an agreement is the separation of Paramount theatre interests from production and distribution and divestiture of approximately 500 theatres, leaving the new theatre company with interests in more than 600 houses.

20th-Fox Hits Divorcement In New Brief

Holds Current Reforms Satisfy Trust Laws

Attacking the government's proposals for ultimate and complete divorcement restrictions and for additional restrictions on distribution practices, 20th Century-Fox yesterday told the New York Federal Court that licensing measures already adopted and the company's intention of dissolving all of its joint theatre ownerships, with one exception, constitute complete remedy and will serve to prevent in the future any business conduct contravening the Sherman Act.

"The record is clear," 20th-Fox states, in its memorandum to the court, "that the practice of inserting minimum admission prices in contracts has been abandoned, that clearances have been the subject of individual consideration by each distributor sep-

Plan Revision Of U-I Sales

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Universal-International, it is understood, is formulating plans for a new revision of its local selling system.

U-I executives have been in town considering the prospective plan for adoption of selling under the competitive bidding and competitive negotiations, or possibly both systems.

Such systems, if adopted, will embrace the company's forthcoming new product, including "The Life of Riley," "Family Honeymoon," "Criss Cross" and "The Fighting O'Flynn."

Like Paramount, Warner and Columbia, U-I has been selling under the old Chicago system of release. Since the Jackson Park decree, 20th-Fox, RKO Radio, M-G-M and United Artists have adopted the new selling-zoning plan, which involves bidding and negotiations.

E-L Sales Meetings To Start Tomorrow

First in a nationwide series of Eagle-Lion sales meetings will be held tomorrow and Saturday at the Hotel Warwick here, to be presided over by William J. Heineman, distribution vice-president. During the series of meetings, dates and locations of which will be set shortly, sales and branch personnel from all 31 exchanges will meet. Closed Shop Cited as Stabilizer by Raoul

Portal Report Key To Anglo-U. S. Meet

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Likely postponement of the Anglo-American Films Council meeting now scheduled for March 23 until early summer is generally accepted here as an indication that Eric Johnston, Motion Picture Association of America president, is aware of the possibilities of the recommendations to be made by the Lord Portal committee, now inquiring into the whole field of film distribution and exhibition here.

It is understood authoritatively that a majority of the committee members lean toward divorcement of distribution and exhibition. Johnston may well feel that a meeting of his Anglo-American council will serve no useful purpose until the Portal recommendations are known.

Lord Portal's committee is urgently pursuing its inquisition, meeting twice a week to hear evidence. Yesterday, RKO Radio's Robert Wolff, 20th-Fox's Kenneth Hargreaves and United Artists' David Coplan were heard.

Barney Balaban, president, is expected to leave here at the weekend to resume the Miami vacation which he interrupted when the agreement with the government became apparent and it is likely that the next directors' session will be held upon his return to New York, in about three weeks.

Insider's Outlook

By RED KANN

A FEW days ago Bob O'Donnell of Interstate was saying in "Letters to [Motion Picture] Herald" what some were thinking and others getting around to in heated oration over a tall glass:

"I would like to recommend that the top executives and heads of our principal organizations such as MPAA stop crying 'Wolf'. Our industry has created its own depression by hollering 'economy' and has definitely created in the minds of our patrons that today's motion pictures are made on a short budget with inferior people and without thought to quality. . . .

"If we can quit crucifying our own industry by ill-advised statements in trade papers, daily papers and fan magazines, we can at least stay where we are. [In the first two weeks of '49, Interstate of Texas was ahead of the same two weeks of '48]. But, if we are to continue issuing ill-advised statements, we are bound to suffer."

The indications are O'Donnell may have been winning his point even before his letter was published. In Miami, where the company presidents met, Eric Johnston publicly and belatedly proclaimed business in U. S. theatres in 1948 was only 10 per cent off all-high 1946 and seven and one-half per cent under 1947. In Los Angeles, he observed the decline was scraping along bottom and challenged reports that present conditions were "desperate" without defining their origin.

It might have been more to the point if he had challenged some of his directors when they were giving out the kind of public statement which helped precipitate the impression now being disavowed.

The current state of affairs fools no one who recognizes the facts. The British situation and blocked funds have interrupted dollar remittances to New York. High production inventories are yet to be completely sweated out of the industry's corporate system. Domestic theatre grosses are out of the war-time stratosphere and cuddling closer to post-war normals, but they continue good and they continue high when the attraction delivers. Ask the sales manager who has one.

No reasonable person will argue over the need for economic adjustments. It is the obligation of properly functioning management to trim sail, but the canvass does not have to be cut to ribbons in the doing. Responsible executives, it happens, are on record privately with the statement that some of the maneuvers undertaken to date are more noteworthy for size than for judgment.

Attractions representing heavy negative investment are being dusted off with little or none of the merchandising advantages traditionally accepted as sound practice. In astonishing numbers, product is being allowed to creep up on exhibitors as if it were a mystery or as if the distributor were ashamed of it. Because they feel they have been carrying too much of the advertising-exploitation load and the exhibitor too little, distributors now are willing to place their production investments in serious jeopardy through inaction. Assuming for the argument that right is on their side, what about the product?

Johnston moves in the direction of preserving the dikes when he seeks to stem the tide of hysteria. That's a plus step, but minor in relation to the widespread need for a re-birth of enthusiasm and optimism.

This is a business which thrives on excitement and noise, aggressiveness and punch, big doings and oversized assertion. It's show business with spots like the leopard and it's time to remember that again.

In a state-of-the-industry commentary embodied in Universal's annual financial report, J. Cheever Cowdin and Nate J. Blumberg argue producers should enjoy a greater proportion of the box-office dollar—an argument theatremen will not share. But this is interesting, too:

"Exhibitors can also serve their own vital interests by helping in another way. That is by reassuming their traditional obligation to back up the pictures they book with hard-hitting, consistent promotional efforts and exploitation to attract maximum patronage."

Substitute distributors for exhibitors and sell for book. Then try it for size.

'Gratitude Train' To Tour Nation

"Gratitude Train," France's gesture of thanks for the original "Friendship Train," which arrived in New York yesterday, will be dispatched throughout the country on an itinerary which will take it to all state capitals and the District of Columbia, it was announced here by Harry M. M-G-M Heart Film For MPAA Series

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—"Heart to Heart," an educational film on heart disease, will be the third short in the Motion Picture Association of America's public service series. M-G-M will produce the short, which should be ready for distribution in a month to six weeks.

"Power Behind the Nation" and "Letter to a Rebel" were the first two films in the MPAA series. The public service series is to be distinguished from the industry's public relations films now being produced by an all-industry committee in Hollywood.

H. Stothart, 64, Film Composer

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—Herbert Stothart, 64, composer of musical scores for motion pictures since 1930, died yesterday at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital after a long illness.

Stothart, who had been under contract with M-G-M throughout his Hollywood career, won an Academy Award for his score for "Wizard of Oz" and wrote the music for many major films, including "The Yearling," "The Green Years" and "The Unfinished Dance." He was musical director of the Jeanette McDonald-Nelson Eddy musicals and his work was well known on Broadway and abroad before he entered the industry.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Mary Wolfe Stothart, two daughters, Carol and Constance, and a son, Herbert 2nd, all of Brentwood. A brother, Pope, lives in Minneapolis.

Maneuver to Change Alger Jurisdiction

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Distributors took steps to transfer their Alger film rental percentage actions from Federal Court here, by moving today to dismiss without prejudice each of the eight actions pending in U. S. District Court so that the issues could be determined in another court.

In the motion papers, served by Mayer, Meyer, Austrian and Platt and Matthews and Springer, counsel for the distributors, to withdraw the Federal actions, it is claimed that, without a prior inspection of records, the plaintiffs might find after a lengthy, complex and successful trial on the illegality issue referred to the Master, that the minimum jurisdictional amount for Federal courts might not exist in all actions. Withdrawing the suits from Federal court, according to the papers, will clear the way for determining the issues in a court whose jurisdiction will not be dependent on the amount involved in any case.

Study Trieb Records In Griffith Case

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 2.—Government and defense attorneys agreed to a recess this afternoon in the Griffith mandate hearing in order to look over two boxes of records brought into court by prosecution witness Mrs. Mary E. Trieb, operator of the El Capitan, Roswell, N. M.

The records were submitted as support of Mrs. Trieb's charge that buying practices of the Griffith circuit caused financial loss to her business. Government attorney George B. Wise said that Mrs. Trieb would resume her testimony in the morning, but that he still plans to ask for a longer recess tomorrow.

Chicago Deadlock Over Union Fund

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—The Chicago Motion Picture Operators Union, Local No. 110, and 20th Century-Fox and RKO are in a deadlock here over signing of a new contract which involves a 10 per cent raise for its operators' union-employer fund. The new contract, which went into effect on Sept. 1 of last year, was signed by all Chicago theatres and all other distributors. Result of the impasse has caused a temporary hiatus of projection room screenings and trade showings for both RKO and 20th.

Protest Segregation

Spokesmen for the group said picketing would continue weekends until all Capital theatres had been covered.

'Informer Suits' Are New Problem in Mo.

St. Louis, Feb. 2.—Missouri theatre owners plan an appeal to the state legislature for relief from "informer suits" brought under a Missouri statute of Civil War vintage. The law, regulating the size and location of theatre aisles, was passed in 1869 and had been forgotten until informer suits were filed by two Cape Girardeau lawyers against several Southeastern Missouri theatres. The theatre's fine is split between the person making the complaint and the local school fund.

New Committee for Small Business

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The House today approved the re-establishment of a special committee on small business. Rep. Patman of Texas, ranking Democrat on last year's committee, which sharply criticized film producers and distributors, was named chairman of the nine-man group.

The other four Democratic members are Keogh of New York, Hardy of Virginia, Mansfield of Montana and Evins of Tennessee. The Republican members are Halleck of Indiana, Hill of Colorado, Riehlman of New York and Lichtenwalter of Pennsylvania.

Strauss, financier and philanthropist.

Defends NSS At Albany Luncheon

ALBANY, Feb. 2.—National Screen Service was defended against the action taken by the Theatre Owners of America board meeting in Washington last week as Frank Dembow, NSS sales manager, spoke before a luncheon of Albany district exhibitors held by the local TOA.

Expressing his thanks to Harry Lamont and Leonard Rosenthal, local TOA officials, for their invitation to speak, Dembow said, "This round-table method of dealing with complaints and criticisms is fairer, more realistic, than the rugged, rough resolution passed by the TOA board in Washington, where our company was condemned without trial."

Dembow expressed the opinion that complaints about NSS had been magnified in recent months and said that they originated from complaints made by a Southern exhibitor at a meeting in Chicago. Dembow said he discussed some of these complaints at Allied's national convention at New Orleans, but that he did not attend the TOA board meeting as he felt it "futile."

Six exhibitors from the Albany area took the floor to discuss the NSS situation. Chief complaints stemmed from a shift of part of NSS services from Albany to New York last summer, which meant increased costs in postage, telephone calls and from shipment delays for operators, according to those who spoke during the discussion.

Asked Not to Book Industry Shorts

ALBANY, Feb. 2.—Albany area exhibitors were asked, at a TOA meeting here today not to book RKO's "Let's Go to the Movies," an industry public relations short, until Leonard Rosenthal, TOA local executive director, learned from the national TOA what charge was to be made. Those present agreed that the short was "very entertaining and helpful to our business, but it should not be released at a profit to anyone."

Rosenthal and Harry Lamont, temporary chairman of the Albany TOA, reported that this stand was taken at the Washington weekend meeting of national directors, and a committee was appointed to take up the matter with RKO. Rosenthal said he will advise local exhibitors what the national TOA achieves in negotiations.

3 - Theatre Opening For "Down to the Sea"

Twentieth Century-Fox's "Down to the Sea in Ships" will have a three-theatre world premiere in New Bedford, Mass., on Feb. 15. Theatres are the State, New Bedford and Empire. Festivities will be sponsored by the New Bedford Citizens' Committee.

Following the premiere, a party will be given at the New Bedford Hotel for visiting members of the press. Gov. Paul A. Dever of Massachusetts and Mayor Arthur N. Harriman of New Bedford will be official hosts for the occasion.

arately, and that literally thousands of them have been modified, and that the elimination of the other condemned practices has been affirmatively established by the defendants' evidence."

The company states that the government failed to produce any evidence to support its recommendation of divorcement on the charge of monopoly. "As far as the plaintiff is concerned," 20th-Fox continues, "it has offered no evidence which bears upon any of the elements which the Supreme Court said might support a finding of monopolization."

The company holds that some theatre expansion should be allowed with acquisitions "judged on their merits and if no trade restraining consequences follow."

The company contends that competitive bidding, which was found objectionable by the high court, should be replaced by an injunction against a distributor's arbitrary refusal of an exhibitor's demand for a run. This, coupled with the planned arbitration system, will provide an "effective substitute," the company asserts.

The one partnership which 20th-Fox has not agreed to dissolve is Fox Evergreen Theatres and the company states that the only issue here is whether "the ownership of approximately 15 per cent of the stock of that company by one who is and has been for many years an employe of National Theatres is an illegal restraint of trade."

The plan for arbitration already has been presented to the New York court in the form of a tentative draft. It will be formally submitted when hearings resume on March 20. Details of the system were reported by MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Jan. 25.

The Department of Justice has until early next month to reply to the 20th-Fox proposals for findings and judgment.

"The Red Pony"

(Republic)

THE merchandising assets of Republic's "The Red Pony" are immediately apparent. Adapted to the screen from John Steinbeck's popular-seller of the same name, it has been well made by producer-director Lewis Milestone who enhanced in Technicolor the efforts of an impressive cast headed by Myrna Loy, Robert Mitchum, Lewis Calhern and Peter Miles.

The story itself is refined down to the simplest dramatic form as it captures the inner-world of mystery, charm and wonder of a young farm child who has been given a small red pony. With this as his central theme, Steinbeck has blended into his screenplay incidents from his other short stories to evolve a unified study of varied human relationships on a ranch, which serves as the film's background.

Although the film is popular entertainment, and at its best manifests primal virtues of great drama, the plot progresses on the slow and measured side. And while it is endowed with a quality of warmth and sympathy, it never quite rushes into vibrant life.

As the child whose world is filled with living richness by the gift of the pony, Miles offers a characterization of infinite delight. His entire interests become encompassed by the little animal. With the help of ranch-hand Mitchum, the boy tends the needs of the pony, and learns about life by watching it grow. Sadness enters the heart of the lad, however, when the pony gets caught in a storm and gets critically ill. Along with this sadness goes the more disheartening loss of faith in Mitchum who had given the boy assurance of the pony's safety.

Against the background the boy's problems there develop the more complex problems of his mother and father, Miss Loy and Shepperd Strudwick. It seems that a hero-worshipping attachment to Mitchum had alienated the boy from his father, thus giving rise to injured emotions. Filling out the film are some random angles involving Calhern, a grandpappy who was a frontiersman, and forever keeps reminding the family about it in unsolicited anecdotes.

The boy experiences the first real pangs of life when his pony meets a ghastly death. But the boy also comes to learn the miracle of rebirth when a new colt is presented to him. Mitchum's performance, like the picture itself, is well done, but restrained. The other performers generally prove equal to him in this Charles K. Feldman presentation.

"Don't Take It to Heart!"

(J. Arthur Rank—Eagle-Lion)

PRODUCED by Sydney Box and written and directed by Jeffrey Dell, "Don't Take It to Heart!" embodies a light handling of the problem of Britain's lordly gentry in its desperate attempt to hang on to the aegis of nobility while undergoing dire economic strife. It is a film that has some very funny moments, although more often than not its humor is hampered by poor pacing and spotty direction. There is evidence, too, of the film's having been produced under difficult conditions in Britain.

On the credit side are some characterization gems, such as a bus driver (Ivor Barnard), a magistrate (George Bailey) and a reporter (Ernest Jay), who, with a few others in minor character roles, provide some rib-tickling moments which give the film a decided lift.

The story concerns a bombed mansion which has unearthed a 400-year-old manuscript and the ghost of a former lord of the manor. The estate is opened to sightseers with the present lord himself acting as guide. A young lawyer, Richard Greene, becomes interested in both the document and the lord's daughter.

When a nouveau-riche landowner attempts to drive the tenants from the land for poaching, the lawyer pleads the cause of the tenants, and by producing a surprise witness in the person of the ghost, it appears that one of the tenants is the real lord and cannot therefore be driven from the land.

Greene turns in a creditable job, and so does Patricia Medina as the leading lady. Edward Rigby's butler provides some of the more humorous moments of the picture, and Brefni O'Rorke as Lord Chaunduyt gives his version of the fading class of British noblemen a satiric touch. The film could stand shortening.

Running time, 90 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date not set.

But, the bulletin contends, the court has set the line where good salesmanship ends and misbehavior begins. "The line is crossed by the salesman and manager when they insist that in order to get the picture you want you must buy another or others that you don't want," Kane declared.

The forcing or conditioning of pictures is illegal and widespread, the bulletin charges, and Kane warns that "some day in the not-too-distant future some high film officials "are going to jail."

Most film exchanges have kept their salesman more off the road than on. Those who do go out usually get stranded and come back with weird experiences of their struggle to get back to Omaha.

More than 100 theatres have had to shut down at least for intervals. A complete shut off of a town's electric power is not infrequent.

Ready for release are: "Tulsa," "Reign of Terror," "Red Stallion in the Rockiess," "The Big Cat," and "Alice in Wonderland."

This month will also see the reopening of E-L's studios in Hollywood, which were temporarily closed late last year. Three films are set for immediate filming, "Port of New York," "Trapped" and one tentatively titled "Marker X." Others scheduled for early production are: "Twelve Against the Underworld," "The World and Little Willie" and "These Were My Orders."

J. Arthur Rank product currently in release by E-L are besides "The Red Shoes," "Blanche Fury"; "A Canterbury Tale"; "Don't Take It to Heart"; "It Always Rains on Sunday"; "Waterloo Road"; "My Brother's Keeper"; and "Take My Life." Soon to be released will be "Scott of the Antarctic," "Miranda," "Quartet," "Saraband" and "Sleeping Car to Trieste."

Under the deal recently concluded with David O. Selznick, the company will distribute "Since You Went Away," "Intermezzo," "Prisoner of Zenda," "I'll Be Seeing You," "Garden of Allah," "Spellbound," "Rebecca," "Bill of Divorcement" and "Tom Sawyer."

Admits Britain Can't Fulfill Its Quota

LONDON, Feb. 2.—In a significant wind-up of the House of Lords debate yesterday on the government's Film Finance bill, Lord Lucas, on behalf of the government, admitted that the British industry is now unable to fulfill the 45 per cent quota.

The admission evoked an "I told you so" from the opposition's Lord Swinton.

Also, Lord Strabolgi claimed there has been an unnecessary hostility to Hollywood, and urged "far more cooperation and greater effort to come to terms with Hollywood instead of trying to force the pace as we hitherto done."

Portal Report

Board of Trade, has asked Lord Portal to render his recommendations at the earliest moment compatible with fairness and completeness.

Yet another reason encouraging postponement of the Anglo-American council meeting is the known wish of many to increase representation at the meeting. Despite the opposition of Sir Henry French of the Producers' Association, exhibitor Sir Alexander King already has received informal approaches from the Johnston party to join the British delegation.

U. K. Layoffs

matter but claimed that various developments now underway, such as the government's Film Finance bill, the Lord Portal committee inquiry into production and distribution practices, and other matters will likely lead to considerable improvement in the situation eventually.

Wilson is meeting with producers privately tonight and it is anticipated that government financial aid to the industry will be discussed further then.

British producers currently are urging that a large amount of entertainment tax collections be set aside by the government for subsidization of production. Exhibitors, on the other hand, are urging reduction of the tax.

O'Brien and Elvin are disturbed not only about recent studio closings here and the laying off of surplus studio workers, but also over the notice given by the Producers' Association of its termination on March 31 of the present labor agreement.

In addition, J. Arthur Rank has announced that 300 of his employes at Denham and Pinewood are redundant and will be dropped soon. He agreed to suspend the dismissal notices, however, until the outcome of last night's meeting between Wilson and O'Brien and Elvin was known. Rank is rapidly expanding the use of his new "independent frame" process at his studios, which reduces manpower requirements, and looks forward to the time when all of his pictures can be made by that process.

"Boston Blackie's Chinese Venture"

(Columbia)

THE adventures of private detective "Boston Blackie," again played by Chester Morris, provide an hour's entertainment and suspense while taking the audience on a bus tour of a large city's Chinatown. Pointed up are the methods used to "dupe" innocent sight-seers into believing they are witnessing sinister influences of the Orientals.

"Blackie" and his partner, "Runt," played by Sid Tomack, become involved in the murder of a Chinese laundry man. The trail leads to several persons who, the detectives discover, are disposing of stolen jewels. "Blackie's" ingenuity and understanding of criminal operations eventually breaks the case, outsmarting the local police. Also in the cast are Maylia, Richard Lane, Don McGuire, Joan Woodbury and others.

Rudolph C. Flothow produced and Seymour Friedman directed from an original screenplay by Maurice Tombragel who used as a basis characters created by Jack Boyle.

Running time, 59 minutes. General audience classification. For March release.

"Rose of the Yukon"

(Republic)

WITH the snow regions of Alaska serving as a backdrop, this action-adventure film has for its plot a hunt for an American Army deserter by an Army Intelligence officer. The former is played by William Wright, the latter by Steve Brodie. Rich in incident, "Rose of the Yukon" serves up scenes of ice breaks, dog-sled chases, a wild dog hunt, Eskimo dances and hand-to-hand combat and gunplay. Also, Myrna Dell, the saloon entertainer, gives a pleasant vocal rendition of "It's Not the First Love."

The Army learns the whereabouts of Wright when his picture appears in an Anchorage newspaper for winning a betting pool. He supposedly was killed in action on Attu during a reconnaissance raid. Brodie meets Myrna Dell, the saloon singer and friend of Wright, who leads him to the latter's cabin. She is reluctant to give information about Wright until she learns that he had found Japanese reports of locations of valuable ore deposits when on a reconnaissance raid, stealing the reports and killing the Americans who were with him. Wright deserted and after the war sold ore to a foreign government. Brodie tracks down the deserter, kills him in a gunfight and receives a promotion. He and the girl then plan to marry and return to Alaska for a new assignment, after a honeymoon. Stephen Auer was associate producer and George Blair directed. Norman S. Hall wrote the original screenplay.

Running time, 59 minutes. General audience classification.

Massey May Head Canadian Probe

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—Though prominently mentioned as likely to become chairman of the proposed Royal Commission which the Canadian government is setting up to investigate governmental agencies concerned with television and films, Vincent Massey, former Canadian High Commissioner in London, refused to confirm or deny his possible appointment after arriving in Ottawa from New York.

If there is anything to be said on the subject it would come from the government, he told reporters here.

Canada Is Short of Steel for Theatres

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—The Canadian industry did not get much encouragement about proceeding rapidly with present plans to build new theatres or to effect necessary changes in present theatres from the latest statement here of the steel controller for the Canadian government, F. K. Ashbaugh, who stated that there is no alleviation in sight for Canada's steel shortage.

It will take at least another two years to provide additional steel-producing capacity to take care of all of Canada's steel needs, he declared.

Mexican Production Seen At 70 to 80

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 2.—Domestic production this year is estimated at not more than 80 and not less than 70 features by the trade here. The estimate is based upon the announcement by Andres Serra Rojas, director general of the trade's own bank, the Banco Nacional Cinematografico, that his institution has already arranged to finance the production of 30 pictures in 1949.

The new producing and distribution firm, Mier-Brooks, headed by Felipe Mier and Oscar J. Brooks, both former Warner managers here, will make at least 16. Independents are counted upon to raise the total to between 70 and 80; 1948 production reached 82.

House Group Okays Reciprocal Trade

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The House Ways and Means Committee today approved a bill extending the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act through June 12, 1951, and giving the President a free hand in negotiating new agreements. Such a bill has been supported by film industry leaders.

The measure will come up for debate on the House floor on Tuesday and will probably be passed and sent to the Senate on Wednesday.

nership, described as, "the first of its kind in the industry." New company will be called Rossellini Productions.

Under the newly-signed agreement the four will join forces for immediate production in Italy of a film to star Miss Bergman. Rossellini, who directed "Paisan" and "Open City," will leave here for Italy at once and will start production, in April, under a $500,000 budget, while Miss Bergman will leave on March 1 to prepare for her role. Subsequent arrangements call for Rossellini to direct his first picture in America for Goldwyn, following completion of the Italian project. Blocked lira and American dollars will finance the production of the film to be made in Italy. No distribution commitment has been made for it.

In connection with his prediction about the future for American production abroad, Goldwyn said that "most important" to him "is the fact that this will have a healthy influence on all American picture-making. Hollywood needs the impact of new ideas, experiences, and emotions. We are all bound to benefit as more and more of our people are brought into direct contact with the problems and experience of a new world outside of Hollywood and America."

Green Plans Offices Overseas for Globe

Globe Film Distributors, Inc., plans to establish overseas representatives in London, Paris and Rome shortly, Joseph Green and Michael Hyams, president and treasurer, respectively, disclosed here.

Discussing the foreign product situation, Green asserted that bargaining power for getting good foreign pictures now largely depends on the type of first-run that can be guaranteed in New York. And the subsequent success of a foreign picture in this country, Green continued, is largely determined by the length of a New York run. Foreign business here has progressed tremendously in the past few years, Green observed, but he pointed out that there has been a decline in the past several months proportionate to the decline of American films.

Besides heading Globe Films, Green and Hyams also head Hyamsgreen Theatres, a circuit of foreign film houses in New York. Speaking as an exhibitor, Green said that even among foreign film patrons, there is shopping for entertainment today.

Among product set for release in the next few months by Globe are "The Wandering Jew," "Strange Victory," "Long Is the Road" and "Interlude."

Reviews

"The Bribe"

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

IT would be difficult as well as decidedly unrealistic to minimze the cast power on display in this standard melodrama which falls back on formula for its punches. Robert Taylor, Ava Gardner, Charles Laughton, John Hodiak and Vincent Price are names for any showman to conjure with. Any exhibitor who is a showman will catch on and proceed from there.

On this occasion, Taylor is a Federal agent assigned to the task of running down the culprits who slip aeroplane motors into their large-scale purchases of surplus war material for resale to persons unidentified but by clear inference unfriendly to the United States.

This assignment takes him to a fictional island in the Caribbean where he poses as a sportsman after fish and gets caught on an emotional line cast by the attractive Miss Gardner. In more or less leisurely manner, the situation develops until Taylor is at the point where he is prepared to accept the persistent bribe dangled under his nose, not because he wants the money but because he wants to avoid embroiling the gal of his heart. But through circumstances she is induced to slip him a Mickey which puts him out of the running on the night the stuff is to be shipped out. He recovers in time to remember his duty by alerting the authorities who make the arrests. Then he shoots it out successfully with Price, the arch villain, through cascading fireworks let loose at a native fiesta which gets under convenient way in time for the climax. The romance thereafter is clinched.

Performances are competent although the softness made to surround Miss Gardner might be argued as being out of focus with her role of night club singer in a low waterfront dive. Chiefly, what keeps "The Bribe" bound to the ground is the familiar ring it strikes with many predecessors although the attraction should give a satisfactory, if unspectacular, account of itself. There is always that cast, too. Frederick Nebel wrote the short story on which Marguerite Roberts prepared her screenplay. Robert Z. Leonard directed and Pandro S. Berman produced.

Running time, 98 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, March. RED KANN

"The Woman in the Hall"

(J. Arthur Rank—Eagle-Lion)

TESTIFYING strongly to many British film-makers' reputations for turning out superior suspense films, J. Arthur Rank's "Woman in the Hall" is richly endowed with the sort of ingredients that bring audiences to the edges of their seats. But by no stretch of the imagination can the forthright story be placed in the strictly thriller or mystery category, since little in the way of guesswork is demanded from the theatre patron.

Produced by Ian Dalrymple and directed by Jack Lee, the tale tells about a woman with a great talent for telling "phoney" hard-luck stories to persons of means, and who, by using her two young daughters as "props," succeeds for years in mulcting money from her benefactors. This background of cheating has a psychological effect on one of the daughters, who, when she grows up to be a beautiful 'teen-aged girl, forges and steals, not for herself but to give gifts to others to make them happy. As it develops at her trial, her behavior is explained because she was "tired of saying thank you all the time."

The mother, meanwhile, having tricked a wealthy baronet into marrying her, is turned out of the house by her husband when he discovers her deceit. After some excellently presented, if somewhat contrived melodrama, the mother appears at her daughter's trial and confesses that she is really responsible for her daughter's waywardness.

Jean Simmons, who plays the daughter-turned-thief, is excellent, her characterization being mature and studied. Ursula Jeans as the mother-without-conscience is likewise top-rate and Cecil Parker makes an impressive baronet. Photography and general production are tops, and so is the screenplay, by Dalrymple, G. B. Stern and Jack Lee.

Running time, 93 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, not set.

Changes Jurisdiction

Federal Judge Edward A. Conger yesterday signed in U. S. District Court here an order dismissing Robert W. Perkins and Joseph Bernhard from the action alleging conspiracy in behalf of United States Pictures to the detriment of Warner Brothers filed by minority stockholder William Weinberger who is one of eight Warner stockholders to bring such actions since last September.

Plaintiff, meanwhile, has brought suit against Perkins and Bernhard in New York Supreme Court. Plaintiff is still continuing his suit in Federal Court against other Warner executives.

37½-Cent Loew Dividend

Directors of Loew's have declared a regular quarterly dividend of 37½ cents per share on the company's common stock, payable on March 31.

'U' Stock Case Appeal

Universal minority stockholder Stephen Truncale yesterday appealed in U. S. District Court here from the court's dismissal last month of company executives J. Cheever Cowdin and Matthew Fox as defendants in Truncale's action against various "U" officers and board members because of improper stock transactions. Federal Judge Samuel Kaufman had dismissed the suit against Cowdin and Fox on the ground that the action against them had abated.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 3.—Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught today declared a recess over the weekend in the Griffith mandate hearing in order to permit government and defense attorneys to classify documents to be presented in evidence when the trial continues next week.

Para., Loew Split Pool in Buffalo

BUFFALO, Feb. 3.—Break-up of the Paramount-Loew pooled operation of Buffalo Theatres, Inc., will become effective on Feb. 28 with Loew's and Vincent McFaul taking over seven houses and Paramount to operate five.

Paramount's theatres will be the Great Lakes, Hippodrome, Niagara, Kenmore and Seneca, in Buffalo.

Loew and McFaul, who was president of the joint theatre company, will have the Buffalo, Elmwood, Kensington, North Park and Teck, all in Buffalo; the Bee Bellevue, at Niagara Falls, and the Lackawanna, in Lackawanna.

Asked whether there is any chance of any other decree with any other company being announced when the Paramount decree is announced, one top official gave a flat "no" as the answer. He said that the other companies "have hardly been near us" since the last round of proceedings in New York District Court.

"Apparently they're setting back and watching the Paramount negotiations," he declared. "But we're hopeful that they'll come in as soon as the big one is announced."

concern was over the status of theatres which new operating companies will be permitted to control following divorcement from production-distribution companies.

The Department was informed of SIMPP's views on theatre buying power, closed and controlled situations and of its desire to see the freest possible competitive theatre market established. No closed situations should be perpetuated or permitted under any decrees to be entered into by the government, SIMPP contends.

No further action is planned by the organization pending entry of individual decrees, it was stated.

Sues U-I on Copyright

Universal-International, the J. Arthur Rank Organization, and British producers Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger were named defendants in a copyright infringement suit filed in U. S. District Court here yesterday by author Beth Brown who alleges that the film, "Stairway to Heaven," was copied without permission from her novel, "Universal Station." Plaintiff seeks unstipulated damages and an accounting of profits.

financing are expected to be considerable. He not only is highly regarded in the industry as a financial authority but has close connections with the First National Bank of Boston and with Serge Semenenko, its vice-president, whose association with motion picture financing is well known. The First National of Boston already is identified with financing of Pathe Industries, the Eagle-Lion parent company.

Pinanski was for many years associated with the large New England circuit, Mullin and Pinanski, in partnership with Paramount. On January 1 last, the circuit was reorganized, with Paramount selling its interest in Netoco, a circuit of approximately 50 theatres, to Pinanski, who operates it as an independent circuit under the name of American Theatres Co.

The remaining theatres, about 56 in number, are wholly-owned by Paramount. They are operated by Martin Mullin, Pinanski's former partner, as New England Theatres, Inc.

Army Pre-Releases

isfied to get pictures currently with first-run theatres or immediately behind them if nearby first-runs date pictures at or near pre-release dates.

Brylawski informed Lockwood that Francis Harmon, vice-president of the Motion Picture Association of America, when told that Army and Navy theatres do not require pre-releases, suggested to the TOA investigator that a letter to that effect from Armed Forces chiefs is desirable. Brylawski indicated in his report, however, that he doubted if such letters will be forthcoming.

Meanwhile, according to the Brylawski report, Harmon conferred with Robert Mochrie, vice-chairman of the distributors committee of the MPAA, on the question of TOA's complaint of competition from Army and Navy theatres. Reported Brylawski: "Mochrie said that distributors wanted to do exactly what exhibitors wanted them to do; that the distributors had originally been opposed to pre-releases and current releases to Army and Navy theatres."

Brylawski then quoted Mochrie as having told Harmon that distributors refuse to accede to requests for pre-releases unless they had the assent of exhibitor organizations.

Brylawski was accompanied in the investigation by Paul Williams, general counsel of the Southern California Theatre Owners Association and a director of the national TOA.

Brylawski said additional conferences will be held.

that producers can obtain help when they can prove at least one finished production of more than 1,300 metres, shot in 35mm. and done in France; the public showing must have taken place after Jan. 1, 1946, and before the application for aid under the new law. Films must either be produced by French interests using French capital exclusively or, if co-produced with the help of foreign funds, aid will be forthcoming only on a pro-rated basis. Before financial aid is granted, the Board of Awards must have given its approval and the picture must be in its second week of production.

Aid also will be granted for all improvements in safety facilities, repairs and the purchase of new material.

The new fund will further provide for the organization, subject to government directives, of a concern to promote French films abroad. Until receipts from the new taxes are collected, the Centre National de la Cinematographie will grant loans from its official funds.

Says It Would Restore Competitive Bidding

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Allied States Association's general counsel Abram F. Myers today bitterly assailed the arbitration plan being proposed by the major defendants in the Paramount case as an "insult to the intelligence of the Court, the Attorney General, the other distributors who have been invited to join in it, and the exhibitors—whether they choose to recognize it as such or not."

Myers said that the plan submitted by Warner, Loew's, Paramount and 20th Century-Fox is "in effect a final decree containing substantive provisions which are not only out of place, but which are clearly contrary to the Supreme Court's opinion." He declared that "the only arbitration plan

Depinet Honored at 'Brotherhood' Meet

A plea for the elimination of bigotry was made by Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO, at the 20th anniversary luncheon of the amusement division of the National Conference of Christians and Jews at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel here on Friday. Depinet, the division's national chairman of the Brotherhood Week committee, was presented an award by J. Robert Rubin, M-G-M vice-president and general counsel and the division's general chairman, for his services in behalf of inter-faith understanding. Rubin made the presentation in the absence of Mayor William O'Dwyer.

Rodgers Opens MGM Meeting on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—Some 70 M-G-M delegates from all over the country arrived here today for the first Metro studio product conference of its kind in more than 11 years. They were preceded by William F. Rodgers, sales vice-president, who arrived from the East on February 1. Tomorrow's session will officially open the meeting scheduled to run a full week.

Muni Quits Screen, Lashes Coast Films

Boston, Feb. 6.—Paul Muni stated here that he is quitting motion pictures "forever," claiming pictures made now are just nonsense. He said he never got any fun out of the excitements of Hollywood and added the majority of pictures made now are bad; only a few good ones are made. The idea that Hollywood makes good pictures some of the time does not impress him, Muni declared. He said he will devote himself to the stage in the future.

Studios Employed 13,000 in 1948

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—Considerably upsetting the popular impression that Hollywood production employs some 30,000 workers in all but very top classifications, the highest peak in employment during the past 12 years did not exceed 25,000, in 1939, and went as low as 13,000 last year. Not included are those in the top echelon, or the very top stars and top directors.

Based on the last figure available, it has been established that those who worked in studios averaged $98.26 for an average 40.4-hour week, as reported by the state's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Para. Consent Decree Said To Be Signed

Settlement Pact Awaits Clark's Signature Now

Paramount officials signed the proposed consent decree providing for divorcement of its theatre interests from production-distribution operations and the advance divestiture of approximately 550 theatres late last week, it was reported at the weekend.

Various company officials and attorneys reached for comment declined to confirm or deny the report in the absence of Barney Balaban, Paramount president, who had left for Miami and could not be reached.

The signed decree, according to the reports, was forwarded to Attorney General Tom Clark in Washington at the weekend for his signature, which is expected momentarily.

The decree still must be approved

Answer Johnston Today on Anglo-U.S. Meeting Delay

LONDON, Feb. 6.—British industry resistance to Eric Johnston's proposal that the Anglo-U. S. Films Council meeting scheduled for March 23 in New York be postponed to early summer has stiffened, giving rise to the impression that even minor differences between leaders of the two industries are almost irreconcilable.

J. Arthur Rank, chairman of British Films Council group, is endeavoring to hold Johnston to the March meeting date. He will meet tomorrow with Sir Henry French and Sir Alexander Korda, the other British Council members, to agree upon a formal reply to Johnston's proposal for postponement of the meeting.

Tradewise . . .

By SHERWIN KANE

LUCKY are they who toil for Hal Wallis Prod.

The Wallis-Joseph Hazen company has not found it necessary to dismiss a single employee in the course of the present Hollywood economic crisis.

It has not been obliged to impose emergency measures in any department of operations.

It has no need to trim its production budgets to a latter-day lower level.

And why?

Simply because it has been operated on a sane and sound business basis from its outset.

It did not employ unneeded workers so it has none who are expendable now.

Its expenditures in good times were not wasteful. Thus there is no need for cut-backs in slack times.

It has been the custom of the Wallis-Hazen company to plan its productions carefully in advance, to have the right script ready at the right time, to avoid costly delays and changes after shooting began. It does not have to learn how to do those things now in order to bring in a class picture within the budget limits.

There may be other production companies that operate as efficiently. If so, we haven't heard of them, but records such as that are none the less unique, wherever they may be found.

Regrettably unique, too, in that such records have to do only with the application of good business methods to the production community where they should be no more unique than in any other enterprise.

Steve Broidy, the Allied-Artists-Monogram dynamo, told a press conference in Hollywood recently that reissues will alienate motion picture patrons in the long run, even though they may be profitable over the short haul.

Box office reports, on the other hand, show that good reissues will outdraw and outgross many a brand new release, for the simple reason that some pictures were better made years ago than some which are being made today. Why a good reissue should alienate patrons, if it is sold as a reissue and not misrepresented by the exhibitor to the public, is difficult to comprehend.

We were privileged to see Samuel Goldwyn's "The Pride of the Yankees" recently. It will be reissued in April. We found it just as entertaining as the first time we saw it, some six years ago, and frankly believe it to be a better motion picture than many in current release. We could not help thinking, too, that it was mighty decent of James Mulvey, Goldwyn Prod. president, not to have reissued it last year when every newspaper in the nation was front-paging the late Babe Ruth's fatal illness and when, incidentally, Broidy's "Babe Ruth Story" was making its bow. Goldwyn's picture offers The Babe himself. Broidy's has William Bendix as Ruth.

There are some theatres around the country which will not book reissues. Others will take them only with a second feature; still others insist upon arbitrarily low playing terms which have no relation to either the quality of the reissue or its potential grossing power. The policy of such theatre managements apparently is that a new picture, even if it's a turkey, is deserving of better playing terms than a strong-drawing reissue.

There are, on the other hand, many prosperous exhibitors whose policy it is to offer patrons the best pictures available at any given time. That's a policy that takes the customer into consideration. It usually pays off.

McDonald is convinced that, 30 years after, admission prices should be higher, not lower.

Notices Given 300 Rank Studio Workers

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Dismissal notices were issued on Friday to approximately 300 employes of J. Arthur Rank's Denham and Pinewood studios, whose jobs were regarded as redundant.

Rank had agreed to withhold the dismissal notices until after George Elvin and Tom O'Brien, studio labor officials, had conferred with Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade.

Rank will meet Wilson for lunch tomorrow. Whether or not Wilson will attempt to persuade Rank to rescind the notices it is known that the latter currently is adamant about the need to effect production economies.

Para. Decree

by the U. S. District court here and by Paramount stockholders before becoming effective.

Balaban, according to general but also unconfirmed reports, would remain with the new Paramount production-distribution company, should the plan become effective.

One Year to Effect Changes

Paramount will be allowed one year from the date of final approval of the plan to carry out the changes required.

Indications are that the new theatre company will have interests in more than 600 theatres. Paramount has agreed that no "closed" situations will be maintained by the new company.

It is reported that the new production-distribution company will retain a limited number of show-case theatres in principal cities, as RKO is permitted to do under the decree it entered into with the government last December.

Paramount stockholders will receive equities in both new companies, presumably on the basis of one share in each company for every share held in the present company.

Clark's Approval Believed Assured

Signing of the decree by Clark is regarded as virtually certain, with the plan being presented to the court within the next few weeks. When signed by the court Paramount will be eliminated, as RKO already has been, from the 10-year-old government anti-trust suit, still in litigation.

Warner's, Loew's and 20th Century-Fox, agreeing to the split-up of some joint theatre partnerships and the elimination of closed situations where they may exist, currently appear inclined to rest their cases with the court on that basis. Whether the Paramount settlement will cause any of them to alter their presently indicated course in the remaining litigation is unknown.

Myers Assails

that conceivably could be appropriate is one that is purely procedural and merely provides the machinery for settling differences arising under the Court's final decree."

The "obvious purpose and intent" of many of the plan's provisions is to force a return to competitive bidding, Myers charged.

Myers said that the fact that the plan embodies substantive provisions and that these provisions are "plainly contrary to the Supreme Court's decision precludes any possibility that the plan will be approved by the Department of Justice or by the District Court. Congress can, in effect, reverse the Supreme Court by the enactment or repeal of legislation, but we know of no other tribunal or agency that has such power."

Lauds Court's Selling Method

The Allied official said that the Supreme Court had devised the "most satisfactory" selling method in allowing films to be bought in blocks or groups so long as there is no requirement for the purchase of more than one film and providing a 20 per cent cancellation right for the exhibitor if a group of films is licensed without being trade shown.

"Now these distributors by their so-called arbitration plan," he continued, "propose an injunction binding on themselves and such other distributors as may be included in it, from offering or licensing their pictures other than theatre-by-theatre and picture-by-picture. This method of selling, it will be recalled, was a part of the District Court's plan for competitive bidding, which was opposed by all exhibitors and was thrown out by the Supreme Court."

Myers said he believed the high court in the Paramount case had meant to bar the defendants from dealing with their wholly-owned theatres on their own terms, and said that the Jackson Park and Goldman case decrees, which the Supreme Court refused to review, made no exception in favor of wholly-owned theatres.

Rockefeller is national chairman of "Brotherhood Week," which the NCCJ will sponsor from Feb. 20-27. Louis Nizer, attorney and author, was toastmaster. The National Anthem was sung by Lucy Monroe and an invocation was delivered by the Rev. Edwin H. Brown.

In receiving his award, Depinet said, "We who are concerned with the making and showing of motion pictures have never allowed a bigoted message on our screens. Rather, our films have time and again told the American story of fellowship and equality. Therefore, it is only natural that we in the motion picture industry should come forward now in behalf of Brotherhood Week. I am sure that all of us will continue this battle against bigotry as long as necessary with the same vigorous sincerity that we are putting into it now."

has hit distribution of U. S. pictures in Brazil.

Undersecretary of State Webb and Assistant Secretaries Willard Thorpe and George Allen will meet with the company officials at luncheon at MPAA headquarters here, and, after lunch, the foreign managers will meet with top ECA officials, especially those charged with administering the convertibility guaranty program.

John G. McCarthy, manager of MPAA's international division, will also come here from New York to participate in the meeting.

Weekend reports from Rio de Janeiro indicated that refusal of Brazilian authorities to permit an increase in theatre admission prices has resulted in a virtual halt in imports of U. S. pictures. The American film companies, it was said, have not sent any new pictures to Brazil since early last month after they failed in their efforts to obtain higher admissions.

Anglo - U. S. Meet

itors' Association representatives, not members of the Council, be permitted to accompany the British delegation whenever the meeting occurs. Rank is opposed to that suggestion, too.

British exhibitors are active opponents of Britain's 45 per cent film quota law.

Despite trans-Atlantic telephone conversations with Rank, Johnston still is anxious for a postponement of the meeting.

The situation is viewed here as indicating the apprehension of the British members of the Council over the forthcoming report of the Lord Portal committee inquiring into industry operations for the government. It is generally conceded there is a good chance the committee will recommend divorcement of exhibition from production-distribution here.

Britons Prefer Scheduled Date

British industry members of the Council, therefore, would prefer the meeting to be held on the scheduled date since there is little possibility of the report being issued then. Americans, on the other hand, are regarded as favoring the postponement of the meeting until after the report—which could alter the whole complexion of the forthcoming discussions—is issued. Nicholas Schenck and Barney Balaban are the other members of the American Council group.

Sir Henry told the press on Friday that he does not regard the forthcoming Council meeting as a bargaining occasion, despite his view that American distribution of British pictures inevitably will be an item for discussion on the meeting's agenda.

He claimed that it is absolutely necessary for representatives of the American and British film industries to gather around a table at the earliest possible date to dispose of the causes of embitterment on both sides.

Lord Portal's Committee To Hear Trade Union

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Lord Portal's committee conducting an inquiry for the government into industry-wide practices will complete hearing evidence on distribution operations with the appearance before it on Tuesday of Sam Eckman, Loew's managing director here.

It will hear trade union representatives next. Producers already have been heard. Exhibitors have not sought to put in testimony but have prepared information in the event they are summoned.

Albany TOA Meet

and Troy was defeated by action of alert exhibitors.

Under the proposed subdivision, legislative committees in the Albany, Buffalo and New York zones would coordinate their work with the statewide committee already existing here.

Another topic discussed was whether exhibitors can belong to a TOA branch without also maintaining membership in the national organization. Several exhibitors, it is understood, believe national TOA dues, now set at 10 cents per seat, but scheduled for a reduction to five cents in September, are too high for them. They have asked to join the Albany area TOA only. No decision on this question was made, and the fixing of local dues was deferred.

VOL. 65. NO. 27 NEW YORK, U.S.A., TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1949 TEN CENTS

Para. Partnerships Must Be Ended in 1 to 3 Years

Decree Calls for Dissolution of One-Third Of Partnerships Annually; Balaban to Head Picture Company, Goldenson Theatre Co.

Paramount would have to wind up its affairs in one-third of the theatres it now owns with partners within one year, in another third by the end of two years, and in the final third by the end of three years under the proposed consent decree which it is entering into with the government.

The decree permits Paramount to acquire the interests of the partners in a limited number of cases. In the other cases, it must sell out to the partners. All theatres held with partners would have to be settled one way or the other on the schedule outlined above.

The proposed decree, which was ratified by the Paramount board last week and is slated to go to U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark late this week, sets up three different deadlines for Paramount to do various things.

By the end of the first year, the company would have to be split into producer-distributor and exhibitor companies — in other words, divorcement.

By the end of the second

'Little 3' Hit Arbitration in Memo to Court

Majors' Plan Is Rejected; Proposed Separate Decree

United Artists, Columbia and Universal, in a joint memorandum filed yesterday, told the New York Federal Court that the majors' proposals for an arbitration system is unacceptable to them, and proposed a separate decree without provision for any such system.

No further comment was given by the Little Three in the memorandum which also contained their proposed findings and conclusions in the case. However, Columbia's counsel, Louis D. Frohlich, is on record as firmly opposed to arbitration on the grounds that it serves no purpose and failed to avert any private court actions. Universal and UA attorneys have told the New York court that the costs which arbitration would entail would be their primary consideration.

So far the arbitration system has the endorsements of Paramount, Loew's, 20th Century-Fox and Warner. RKO will consider it when it finalizes its reorganization under its

More Storms Bring More Film Delays

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 7.—Film deliveries are being delayed in the Salt Lake City exchange territory as new snowstorms and drifts isolate many cities, blocking trains and trucks.

Pocatello has been paralyzed and Idaho Falls has been blockaded. Theatres with Tuesday openings expect to suffer further if prints are held up many more hours. Attendance is away down in many areas, although it is pretty good in Salt Lake. It is, however, below normal in all of the biggest places in Idaho. In Montana, severe cold has cut some attendance.

Untapped Market Is Seen by Del Giudice

A vast potential market exists among millions of discriminating people who rarely go to a theatre because of stereotyped films, Filippo Del Giudice, British producer, asserted here yesterday on his arrival on the S.S. Caronia. Through proper production

Keep Sales Within The Law, Rodgers Warns MGM's Force

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—Pointing out that "living up to the law is an individual responsibility," M-G-M distribution vice-president William F. Rodgers today warned sales managers and field personnel attending the company's "25th Anniversary" convention here to adhere closely to the dictates of court directives when marketing product.

"The company," Rodgers cautioned, "can't go to jail, but you may, if you are found to be in contempt of the courts."

In an address which ranged over sundry aspects to motion picture sell-

Mayer Links Own, Schenck's Tenure

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—Louis B. Mayer told the M-G-M sales conference here today that he expects to continue as head of the studio as long as Nicholas M. Schenck remains company president, rumors to the contrary notwithstanding. Mayer said he never has been "in such good health and spirit."

The assemblage of home office, field and studio personnel and executives

Dubious About Tax Breakdown for TOA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Bureau of Internal Revenue officials said they doubted the government would be able to accede to the request of the Theatre Owners of America for a better breakdown of admission tax collections.

TOA has asked the Treasury to report a separate monthly figure on collections from motion picture theatres. At present, these collections are reported together with collections from sports events, concerts, legitimate theatres and other general admission events.

Bureau officials said that the change would be extremely costly, requiring completely new tax reporting forms.

Skouras Favors U.K.-U. S. Meet in March

London, Feb. 7.—Spyros Skouras, 20th Century-Fox president, told a press conference here today he would welcome a meeting of the Anglo-American Films Council on the originally fixed dates, March 23-25, in New York.

Eric Johnston has urged postponement of the meeting, against wishes of the British members, until early summer. Skouras is not a member of the Council.

Skouras Reveals U.K. Filming Plans

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Spyros Skouras told a press conference here today that 20th Century-Fox plans to produce three more pictures in Britain after completion of "Male Bride," Cary Grant starrer now in production.

He said 20th-Fox is utilizing every available pound in making pictures here and said that in its ambitious program it would match a dollar against every frozen pound.

The next three to be made here, he said, will cost an average of $3,500,000 each, beginning with "Black Rose."

Skouras said Sir Alexander Korda's present arrangements with David Selznick prevent 20th-Fox from distributing Korda's pictures in America. He said if Korda and J. Arthur Rank offer pictures suitable for American distribution they are assured of success, adding "if only they had audience appeal like 'Red Shoes' and 'Hamlet'."

He denied current reports that Rank

E-L Aims for 12,000 Dates for Drive

Highlight of Eagle-Lion's current Jack Schlaifer testimonial drive will be "President's Week," which will run from April 29 to May 5, in tribute to E-L president Arthur B. Krim. Announcement of the tribute was made here by William J. Heineman, sales vice-president, at the two-day New York weekend sales meeting which is setting off a nationwide series of sales sessions.

Goal of the week, Heineman declared, would be a minimum of 12,000 bookings of Eagle-Lion films during the week. In general release, he revealed, will be "He Walked by Night," "Red Stallion in the Rockies," Walter Wanger's "Reign of Terror," Wanger's "Tulsa," "The Big Cat," and J. Arthur Rank's "Scott of the Antarctic." Also in release will be Eagle-Lion's reissue of David O. Selznick's "Since You Went Away," and two Red Ryder Westerns in Cinecolor, "Ride, Ryder, Ride" and "'Roll, Thunder, Roll."

Horwits Named U-I Studio Publicity Head

Al Horwits, Eastern publicity manager of Universal-International, will assume the duties of studio publicity director on March 1, it was announced here yesterday by David A. Lipton, national advertising-publicity director. John Joseph, former national advertising-publicity director for U-I, had assumed the duties of studio publicity manager when J. L. (Les) Kaufman resigned several weeks ago.

Horwits joined the Universal publicity staff here in 1942 under Maurice Bergman and a year later was named publicity manager. Previously, he was a newspaperman in Philadelphia and also engaged in public relations activity. After a quick trip to the studio next week for meetings with Lipton, Horwits will return to New York to clear his desk.

Zimbalist on Leave; Gross in Ad Post

Al Zimbalist, advertising-publicity director of Film Classics, is taking a leave of absence from the organization beginning Saturday, for a rest. He plans to spend several weeks in Florida.

Sydney Gross, assistant to Zimbalist, will assume the duties of advertising-publicity director, according to B. G. Kranze, sales vice-president.

Harry Rapf, 68, with Metro for 25 Years

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Wilshire Boulevard Temple for Harry Rapf, 68, a vice-president and production executive of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who died here Sunday in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital after a heart attack. He had worked regularly at the studio until he was stricken on Thursday.

Rapf produced dozens of film hits for M-G-M, in the course of which he discovered and developed such stars as Joan Crawford and Margaret O'Brien and produced all the films starring the late Marie Dressler.

He was among the first crusaders for sound pictures.

Rapf was born in New York City and was reared in Denver. He organized a minstrel show in Denver when he was 18 and caught the eye of showman Gus Edwards, who put him in charge of a revue, and he remained with the vaudeville artist for six years before opening his own agency in New York City.

About 1914, he joined World Film in the production of silent pictures in Fort Lee, N. J. He went to Hollywood in 1921 and became production manager for Warner Brothers. He went with M-G-M in 1924.

His last completed picture was "Gallant Bess"; he started shooting "The Scene of Crime" last week. The widow, two sons, Mathew and Maurice, and a brother, Arthur, survive.

Spyros Skouras Heads N. Y. Red Cross Drive

William S. Hedges, vice-president of National Broadcasting, will lead New York's entertainment world and, the publishing, advertising and graphic arts industries in the 1949 Red Cross campaign. Serving with Hedges as a group chairman is Spyros P. Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox, who will head the entertainment group, including the motion picture industry, legitimate theatres, the radio field and the music world.

11 'Depinet Drive' Meetings This Week

Walter E. Branson, RKO Radio Western division manager, will cover Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Sioux Falls, Seattle and Portland this week on behalf of the "Depinet Drive," accompanied by his assistant, Harry Gittleson.

Nat Levy, Eastern division manager, and his assistant, Frank Drumm, will hold drive meetings in Buffalo, Detroit and Cleveland. Charles Boasberg will be in Charlotte, Atlanta and New Orleans, accompanied by his assistant, Carl Peppercorn.

'Green Promise' Premiere

HOUSTON, Feb. 7.—A premiere celebration will be staged here on March 18 when Glenn McCarthy's "The Green Promise" will open at the Majestic Theatre. This RKO Radio release was made with the cooperation of the National 4-H Clubs.

N. Y. 1st-Run Business Big

Handsome array of new product, given added support by top stage-show names, is providing New York first-runs with big business this week. Majority of the holdovers, too, are contributing to the prosperity.

The Roxy is raking in magnificent returns with "Yellow Sky" and the stage appearance of Danny Kaye. The show figures to draw $138,000 in a first week. "The Bribe," with Arthur Godfrey and his Talent Scouts on stage probably will give the Capitol a top-notch first week's income of $101,000.

At the Strand, "John Loves Mary" with Jack Carson among others on stage, looks good for $60,000, in an initial week. An estimated $55,000, which is about what was expected, is apparent for the first week of "My Own True Love" with the Three Sons and Monica Lewis on stage at the Paramount.

"He Walked By Night" is likely to reach $35,000, vigorous business, in a first week at the Criterion. "Tarzan's Magic Fountain" is off to a good start at the Globe where $17,500 is seen for the first week. "So Dear to My Heart" is doing nicely at the Palace with $25,000 expected for a second week.

"Letter to Three Wives" continues splendidly at the Music Hall where $130,000 is indicated for the third week. "Wake of the Red Witch" probably will do $20,000, which is good enough, in a fifth and final week at the Mayfair; it will be replaced on Saturday by "My Dear Secretary."

At the Astor, "Enchantment" is holding up well enough with $19,000 likely for the seventh week. The Astor's next will be Columbia's "Knock on Any Door," to open on Feb. 22. "Command Decision" is strong at the State where the third week's take probably will hit $47,000.

"Snake Pit" continues to take big money at the Rivoli, the 14th week's income being estimated at $34,000. At the Park, "Hamlet" still is playing to capacity and the 19th week's gross is estimated at $16,000. Another steady top grosser is "Red Shoes" at the Bijou where $15,800 is apparent for a 17th week.

Hope's Video Plans Hit

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Federal Communications Commissioner Hyde has turned down Bob Hope's request for a 60-day delay of the hearing now set for Feb. 28 on bids by Hope and two other applicants for Louisville station WHAS and its television construction permit. If Hyde's action is upheld in an appeal, Hope's bid of $1,925,000 for the station probably will be withdrawn, it was said.

Leonard in New Post

ATLANTA, Feb. 7.—Charles Leonard, formerly with Columbia and Warner here and Astor Pictures in Charlotte, has returned to Atlanta as manager of the new Madison Exchange owned by Bob Pinson.

USO Thanks Industry

The USO fund-raising trailer, released yesterday, has proved an outstanding example of cooperation on the part of the industry, according to George J. Settle N. Y. Labor Row in Two Weeks

Mass shop elections which will settle "in a single stroke" the long-standing AFL-CIO rivalry for jurisdictional supremacy at film company home offices will be conducted by the National Labor Relations Board in about two weeks, it was indicated yesterday following a meeting at the NLRB here among attorneys and representatives of six companies and the two "white collarite" union locals involved.

Since the union rivalry broke open early last year, AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63 has succeeded in winning only United Artists' home office "collarites" away from CIO's Screen Office and Profesional Employes Guild. The only other contested shop, RKO Radio, reverted to SOPEG, while uncontested NLRB elections reaffirmed SOPEG's bargaining control at 20th Fox, National Screen and Monogram.

The forthcoming mass elections will decide the future bargaining agent for the following shops where SOPEG reigned before the now-settled non-Communist affidavit issue caused the companies to reject that union: Columbia, Paramount, Republic, De-Luxe Laboratories, Loew and RKO Service Corp. Some 1,500 "collarites" are involved.

UA "Collarites" Vote 92-22 In Favor of a Union Shop

United Artists home office "white collarites" yesterday voted 92 to 22 in favor of a union shop in an election held by the National Labor Relations Board here, it was reported by Russell Moss, business agent of IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63, the employes' bargaining representative. The local recently won a 10 per cent pay increase for UA workers.

RKO and 20th Give Operators a Raise

CHICAGO, Feb. 7—RKO and 20th Century-Fox have signed a new contract with the Chicago operators union, Local No. 110, which grants a 10 per cent raise for its operators' union-employer fund. Projection room screenings were resumed here today, thus ending a four-week hiatus in both exchanges. It is understood the two companies balked at the raise because of its possible effect on other 20th-Fox and RKO exchanges in the country. Contract became effective last September 1, when local theatres and all other distributors approved the raise.

Willard Acquires 3, Is Now Operating 6

SEATTLE, Feb. 7.—Gene Groesbeck, dean of Northwest exhibitors, has disposed of his three theatres to Frank Willard of Tacoma. The theatres include the Avalon and Liberty, in Enumclaw, and the Cosmo in Buckley. Willard owns, in addition, the Parkland, Tacoma, a theatre in Yelm, and another in Orting.

"A Woman's Secret"

(RKO Radio)

WITH such cast names as Melvyn Douglas, Maureen O'Hara, Gloria Grahame and Victor Jory available for marquee purposes, and a title that poses itself as a lure for the distaff trade, this pat and polished Herman J. Mankiewicz production of a Vicki Baum novel seems assured of good commercial sailing. However, aside from the fact that its plot unfolds in retrospect through the use of the flashback technique, "A Woman's Secret" does not emerge as much of a story.

A young radio singer (Miss Grahame) is shot following an argument in her apartment with her mentor (Miss O'Hara). The latter confesses to firing the pistol, but Douglas, co-mentor and a big radio personality in his own right, is certain that Miss O'Hara is lying. But why? To find out, he reconstructs in conversations with police detective Jay C. Flippen the fabric of past associations with the two women. His flashback recitations completed, Douglas has convinced the detective as well as himself that the assumption of Miss O'Hara's innocence was correct. She lied, it appears, because she had projected her own personality so fully in the singer in replacement of the singer's own that suicide for the singer would be tantamount to suicide for Miss O'Hara. Well, the singer doesn't die anyway, and after Miss Grahame confesses to the fact that the shooting was an accident in consequence of a struggle between the two women over possession of the gun, Miss O'Hara indicates that she herself had been thinking about going back on her confession. As it turns out, there was much ado about nothing, more or less.

Douglas functions with seasoned efficiency in his role, although it is to be regretted that he was given very few opportunities to lighten its burden of straight-faced seriousness. Miss O'Hara registers satisfactorily as his romantic opposite, and Miss Grahame gives a good account of herself in the role of a smalltown girl turned radio artist. Flippen is mellow in a part calling for wry humor. Other players are Mary Philips, Bill Williams, Robert Warwick and Emory Parnell. Nicholas Ray directed, from a screenplay by Mankiewicz. Picture is identified as a Dore Schary presentation.

Running time, 85 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

Canadian Assn. Post Goes to Fred Dillon

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—Fred C. Dillon, former newspaperman, will succeed E. H. Wells as executive secretary of the Canadian Moving Picture Distributors Assn., it was announced here today. The appointment will be effective March 1.

Dillon will make his headquarters in Toronto and his first important assignment will be to establish the Children's Film Library throughout Canada.

2nd Para. vs. Brandt Suit Dismissal Denial

The Appellate Division of New York State Supreme Court yesterday affirmed Justice Samuel Hofstater's denial of dismissal of Paramount's $500,000 percentage action against New York exhibitor Harry Brandt, et al.

Brandt appealed to the Appellate Division from Justice Hofstater's denial, having originally appealed to the Supreme Court itself for dismissal.

Bryson Reports Two Adverse Measures

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Jack Bryson, legislative executive of the Motion Picture Association of America, reports here the introduction of a censorship measure in West Virginia and a bill in Indiana which would impose a temporary 20 per cent tax to raise enough money to pay a soldiers' bonus.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 7.—The Griffith mandate hearing continued its recess until Friday, when the government hopes to complete its review. Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught said that the case may then be recessed for "several weeks."

Academy Nominates 5 Documentaries

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Science committee on documentaries today nominated two feature documentaries and three shorts, from which Academy Award winners will be chosen following a screening Feb. 27.

The features are M-G-M's "Secret Land" and "The Quiet One," produced by Film Documents and distributed by Mayer-Burstyn. The shorts are "Operations Vittles," U. S. Air Force; "Heart to Heart," Fact Films; and "Toward Independence," U. S. Army.

KINGSPORT, Tenn., Feb. 7.—Claiming that eight out of 10 persons in this city favor the showing of films on Sunday, Mayor J. E. Armitage has signed an ordinance permitting shows until 11 P.M. on Sundays.

ECA Would Spend $10-Million a Year

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The Economic Cooperation Administration today asked Congress to allow it to use up to $10,000,000 in any fiscal year through June 30, 1952, for its information media guaranty program to cover film distribution costs in Marshall Plan countries, and for other channels.

ECA officials said that this did not mean $10,000,000 would be so used every year, but that it was merely a top limit on how much could be used. In fact, said one top ECA official, $10,000,000 is enough to "take care of all the calls we now have or can foresee in the near future."

Congress last year, in setting up the ECA, approved a program to guaranty distributors of films, books, magazines and other information media convertibility into dollars of some or all of their costs of operating in Marshall Plan countries. It said that during the first year, ECA could not write more than $15,000,000 worth of such guaranties. Congress later appropriated only $10,000,000 for the first year, the figure to be used for the program in later years being left in the air.

Today, Administration-approved bills were introduced in both House and Senate to finance ECA operations through June 30, 1950. One section attempts to settle the future of the information media guaranty program. It continues this program provided that the amount of guaranties made in any fiscal year does not exceed $10,000,000. Presumably this would hold for any year in which the ECA operates—at present, through the 1952 fiscal year.

So far, information media guaranties have been made sparingly. Only one film guaranty—$457,000 to the Motion Picture Export Association for operations in Germany—has been issued.

ECA spokesmen said that another film contract might be announced in "a month."

Install Blumenstock As Ad Council Head

Mort Blumenstock, vice-president in charge of advertising and publicity for Warner Brothers, was installed as chairman of the Advertising and Publicity Directors Council of the Motion Picture Association of America at a luncheon held here yesterday.

Honor guest of the meeting was Dr. Daniel A. Poling, editor of the Christian Herald, who spoke on the Protestant Motion Picture Council in its relationship to the film industry.

Cleveland Clearance Cuts Are Expected

Cleveland, Feb. 7.—Opinion is strong that all major distributors will give heed to the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association demand for clearance reductions from 35 days to 21 for all first-run independent subsequent-run houses. The request, made last week in writing to all branch managers, has been answered by only M-G-M, saying the matter has been referred to the home office.

Para. Decree

year, all closed towns must be opened.

By the end of the third year, all partnerships must be settled as outlined above.

Insiders who have seen the decree, which has been printed by the company in final form for submission to the court, say that they believe the theatre-owning company will end up with between 600 and 650 theatres.

They also said that the company has already served notice on the Department of Justice that Barney Balaban will head the producing-distributing company, and that Leonard Goldenson will head the theatre-owning company, and that the Department has not objected.

Another section of the proposed decree provides for trusteeing of all stock in the exhibition company of stockholders owning more than a certain amount and not disposed of during the first year. This would be trusteed until the owner had disposed of it, or of his stock in the production-distribution firm.

The decree contains sections on trade practices similar to the RKO decree, it was reported.

Not Yet Submitted to Clark

Meanwhile, in Washington, Attorney General Clark said the Paramount decree has not yet been submitted to him for signing.

He said he might not have it on his desk before the end of the week. He explained that it will have to be gone over first by Assistant Attorney General Herbert Bergson, who has been out of town since the end of last week. Bergson is due back at his desk tomorrow.

Clark admitted he had seen a draft of the proposed decree last Wednesday, and had made some "suggestions." He would not discuss what these were, but it was learned from an industry source that at least one of the suggestions was to cut down the length of time given Paramount to carry out some of the provisions of the decree.

'Little Three' Memo

consent decree in the suit, an executive of that company has said.

The Little Three's proposed decree would allow them to include admission prices in exhibition contracts for the sole purpose of determining rental terms; to license films on a franchise basis except where this would "unreasonably restrain competition or create a monopoly," and to roadshow product without restrictions.

The Little Three propose to enjoin themselves from: price-fixing; granting excessive clearances; agreeing with any other distributor to maintain a system of fixed runs and clearances; making formula deals and master agreements; from conditioning the sale of one film upon the sale of others. However, that last injunction would be limited to the extent that the films were not tradeshown prior to licensing and the exhibitor would be given a 20 per cent cancellation privilege.

In its proposed conclusions of law, the three contend that move-over runs are not illegal provided there is no discrimination, and also hold that extended runs are legal so long as the distributor does not discriminate in favor of or against any exhibitor.

"Streets of Laredo"

(Paramount)

WILLIAM HOLDEN, Macdonald Carey and William Bendix are a trio of amiable outlaws until the alliance is split and Carey becomes a vicious killer in this choice Western, in Technicolor, which boasts some solid dramatic punches amid generous outpourings of conventional physical flare-ups. It is flavorful and robust entertainment, this "Streets of Laredo," well stocked with the stuff that can banish box-office blues.

Mona Freeman is the gal in the Charles Marquis Warren screenplay, being romantically attracted to Carey until he is unmasked as a ruthless desperado. The three not-so-bad badmen become separated when they are tailed by a gang of sagebrush thugs of the more nefarious type. Holden and Bendix join the Texas Rangers and Carey becomes a "Post Office pin-up," the reward posters telling of his lawless exploits. They meet again and Carey exploits the friendship for his own gains, kills Bendix and the vendetta is on between him and Holden. Miss Freeman comes upon the scene to kill Carey in time to save Holden whom she has come to love.

Sweeping camera views of the wide open spaces down Mexico way where the film was shot on location, are especially attractive. The blazing six-shooters, fights and chases which punctuate the telling of the yarn are effectively staged under Leslie Fenton's competent direction. Supporting players include Clem Bevens, Stanley Ridges and James Bell. Robert Fellows produced.

Running time, 92 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, March 25.

GENE ARNEEL

"The Rangers Ride"

(Monogram)

LATEST in the Jimmy Wakely series of Westerns for Monogram has the cowboy star singing and fighting his way through many formula outdoor adventures. Aided by his comic side-kick, "Cannonball" Taylor, it unfolds the story of how, after the Texas Rangers are disbanded, a private state police force extorts money from the public with the ultimate design of setting up a totalitarian state. Wakely, an ex-ranger, attempts to fight the illegal police and a price is put on his head after a murder for which he is blamed. The expected outcome eventually materializes: the police force is broken up and its leaders captured—all through the efforts of Jimmy and "Cannonball."

Produced by Louis Gray and directed by Derwin Abrahams, from an original screenplay by Basil Dickey, the film provides supporting roles for Virginia Belmont, Riley Hill, Marshall Read, and Steve Clark, and others.

Running time, 56 minutes. General audience classification.

Untapped Market

and distribution, this market can be profitably tapped, he asserted.

Del Giudice recently formed Pilgrim Pictures, Ltd., and he is here from London to arrange for distribution among a special circuit of some 12 theatres throughout the country. He said that he would produce pictures of artistic merit and they will receive special handling like "Hamlet." He declared that these films would be handled on a reserved seat, two-a-day basis. Britain has its own art, and they can do best by developing it instead of attempting to imitate Hollywood, Del Giudice declared.

Del Giudice, who was formerly managing director of Two Cities Films, said he resigned from the J. Arthur Rank organization because of a difference over the types of pictures that should be made.

Britain at the moment is undergoing the same uncertainties as Hollywood, he declared. "The reason for this," he asserted, "is that the business is run on the same lines as 40 years ago." As the first step towards correction, Del Giudice recommended divorcement of production-distribution and exhibition. "Art is not merchandise," he said. "If the sales department has too much to say over production, the art suffers," he added. He also saw some unhealthy aspects in the Film Finance Corp. which will subsidize production in Britain. The result of this may be more stereotyped films for a mass audience, he said.

Mayer Links

heard Mayer speak highly of the work of Dore Schary, production chief, whom the rumors have mentioned as Mayer's early successor. He said that now that Schary has rejoined the company "our organization has never been so united and inspired as now."

Other Loew-M-G-M executives whose work and activities were lauded by Mayer were Schenck, E. J. Mannix, L. K. Sidney, Arthur Loew, J. J. Cohn, Lawrence Weingarten, Kenneth McKenna, William F. Rodgers, and a number of the company's stars.

Mayer presented to the gathering an outline of the company's progress over the 25 years it has been in operation, and expressed confidence in its future in terms of production and merchandising. He described television as "more an adjunct of radio" at present, and said he has yet to learn from anyone how those who are managing the new medium expect to achieve revenues that will enable them to pay for entertainment comparable to motion pictures.

Skouras

had offered to buy 20th-Fox's interest in the Gaumont-British circuit.

Skouras has attended numerous gatherings since his arrival here Saturday endeavoring to impress Britons with the need for reinforcing the Greeks in their fight against Communists. His company's publicists here made the mistake of only inviting film writers to his press conference at which he aired those views.

Rodgers Warns

ing, including showmanship and exhibitor relations, Rodgers indicated a constant awareness on the part of the company of the legal entanglements which must be avoided in consequence of the various industry litigations which have been introduced over the past two decades.

"Never attempt to evade responsibility or ward off criticism by blaming 'New York'," Rodgers cautioned his listeners. "This," he said, "weakens you in the opinion of those with whom you do business."

Rodgers said that "the surest way to create the suspicion" that sales representatives are not responsible representatives of a company "is to allow an exhibitor to sign a contract you can't get approved."

Rodgers, who conferred in New York recently with Allied States' special "forced percentage selling" committee, told the M-G-M sales personnel that "you must know whether it is the lesser calibre of the pictures or the exhibitor's lack of showmanship that is responsible for apparent over pricing. If an account is being undersold," he added, "it is necessary to know why and to know what the correct deal should be."

The M-G-M distribution chief urged company salesmen to attend exhibitor meetings, and suggested that sales men be routed so they also could attend.

U. S. May Sign Para. Consent Decree Today

May Be Another Week Before Court Gets It

The Paramount consent decree will be signed by top Justice Department officials before the end of the week, it was learned reliably yesterday.

The final decree, which already has been approved by the Paramount board, will get the signatures of Attorney General Tom Clark, Assistant Attorney General Herbert Bergson, and Special Assistant Robert Wright today or tomorrow.

It will probably be the end of next week or early the following week before details are made public. Five days' notice to all parties is required, and then it must be filed with the New York District Court.

Some details of the decree appeared in yesterday's MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

It provides basically for the establishment of a Paramount Pictures Co.

UA Concludes First Two Television Deals

United Artists has concluded its first major distribution agreement, to handle several hundred film programs to be made especially for television by Video Varieties Corp., said to be the largest independent TV film producing organization in the East, it was disclosed here yesterday by John Mitchell, head of UA's television department.

Video Varieties' first two series will be a program of eight five-minute musical shorts, featuring Shorty Warren, and another series of musicals featuring The Striders, a quartet.

UA has also concluded a distribu-

Trust Action Vs. 20th, WB

J. J. Theatres, Inc., yesterday filed in U. S. District Court here a $2,400,000 triple-damage anti-trust action against 20th Century-Fox, Warner, Skouras Theatres, and Spyros P. and George P. Skouras. Plaintiff charges conspiracy and combination in opposition to J. J.'s alleged attempts to secure first-run, non-exclusive product for its Luxor Theatre in the Bronx since 1941. Filing attorney was Monroe E. Stein.

Asking for a permanent injunction to restrain the defendants from allegedly conspiring to favor with first-run product Skouras Theatres' Park Plaza in the Bronx, the plaintiff claims that the Luxor and Park Plaza are not in direct competition. J. J. charges also that Spyros Skouras is financially interested in Skouras Theatres.

66 from M-G-M In 1949-50; Schary Reveals

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—Expressing full confidence in the future, Dore Schary, production vice-president for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, today announced plans for 66 productions to be filmed and released by the organization in 1949 and 1950. Schary disclosed the schedule at the studio sales conference.

Of particular importance on the line-up, Schary said, will be "Quo Vadis," to be produced in Technicolor by Arthur Hornblow, Jr., and to be directed by John Huston. "In a day when so many others are talking about cutting expenses, digging in and retrenching, only a studio with our large resources would dare contem-

Pinanski to Give Theatre Viewpoint to E-L Product

Expressing the need for greater cooperation between production and exhibition, Sam Pinanski, veteran New England showman and head of the newly-formed American Theatres Corp., Boston, formally announced his association with Eagle-Lion Films at a press interview here yesterday.

He said the move was at the company's request and that he would serve "purely in an advisory capacity." He added that he would receive no pay and that he has "no financial interest" in E-L.

At the same time, Arthur B. Krim, E-L president, reviewed the history of the company which this month is observing its second anniversary in distribution, and cited its "steady progress." Krim asserted that the company is trying to make sound "bread-and-butter" pictures for all exhibitors in the country and that to do so a closer partnership between pro-

Johnston, Rank Still Trying to Set Date

Washington, Feb. 8.—Trans-Atlantic phone conversations are still going on between MPAA president Eric Johnston and J. Arthur Rank on a new date for the Anglo-American Films Council meeting, according to an MPAA spokesman. No new date has been agreed on yet, he emphasized.

Johnston has asked that the meeting, scheduled for March 23-25, in New York, be postponed until early summer, and that representation at the meeting be enlarged to include British exhibitor organization officials. Rank opposes both proposals.

Monogram's Broidy Not a Casting Agent

There's a "character" in New York who is assuming the name "Steve Broidy, president of Monogram." He scans the papers for pictures of show girls or models, telephones them at their homes advising he wants to give them screen tests. The girls keep the appointments but the imposter never appears, and later annoys them with numerous phone calls.

Monogram's office here yesterday issued a warning that its Steve Broidy has had no connection with this situation and seeks knowledge of the imposter's identity.

MP Council Is Not Folding: Cheyfitz

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—"Reports of the collapse of the Motion Picture Industry Council (formed by labor and production management to develop industry goodwill), are like those of Mark Twain's death, greatly exaggerated," declared Edward Cheyfitz, Eric Johnston MPAA aide, who has arrived here from New York.

Cheyfitz said he will confer with constituent groups of the MPIC during the next two weeks and arrange for Johnston to meet with them on his arrival here about Feb. 21.

Pointing out that the Hollywood AFL Film Council, which withdrew from the MPIC following the selection of Cecil B. DeMille as chairman, is the only organization that has done so, and that its withdrawal was conditional, Cheyfitz said he is confident that the basic enthusiasm for the project remains intact. He added Johnston, who originated the MPIC project, still holds to the belief that a cross-industry organization devoting its activities to the betterment of public and trade relationships can function to general advantage. He expects Johnston will spend a fortnight here, with an Association of Motion Picture Producers meeting taking place during his stay.

USO Fund Show Feb. 21

Top names from the screen, radio, stage and sports are promised for the program to be staged on Feb. 21, at Loew's Victoria here in conjunction with the current USO fund drive. Performers have been secured through the efforts of Abe Lastfogel, honorary chairman of the USO entertainment industry committee, and Dan Burley, managing editor of the New York Age.

New Allied Perc'tage Talks Begin Tom'row

Col. H. A. Cole of Texas, chairman, and other members of Allied States' special "forced percentage selling" committee, are scheduled to arrive here tomorrow to resume conferences with company sales chiefs. First on the committee's latest conference agenda is Robert Mochrie, RKO Radio's distribution vice-president, who was in Hollywood when the Cole committee was here two weeks ago in connection with Allied's opposition to percentage picture selling to small low-grossing theatres. Mochrie and the Cole group will confer tomorrow morning.

A detailed report of the committee will be submitted to the Allied board at its Feb. 14-15 meeting in Washington.

Jack Ellis Starts Distribution Firm

Jack Ellis, until recently district manager here for United Artists, has entered independent distribution on his own. His first release will be a reissue of the British-made "Pygmalion," American distribution rights to which he had secured from Gabriel Pascal, the producer. It was first released by M-G-M in 1938.

Ellis said here yesterday that he will first set the production in key city first-runs.

Booking Combine to End Buying 'Freeze'

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 8.—Ending a six-month "freeze' on buying M-G-M product, Theatre Associates, buying combine, has concluded negotiations for "a large majority" of the distributing company's current and early releases. TA also is dickering with Paramount for "The Paleface." The buying group has contracted for only occasional pictures from Paramount during the last two years, and is still shying away from RKO Radio terms.

Complaints by members for "quicker" buying and top product from all companies reportedly prompted the sudden TA-Metro "peace."

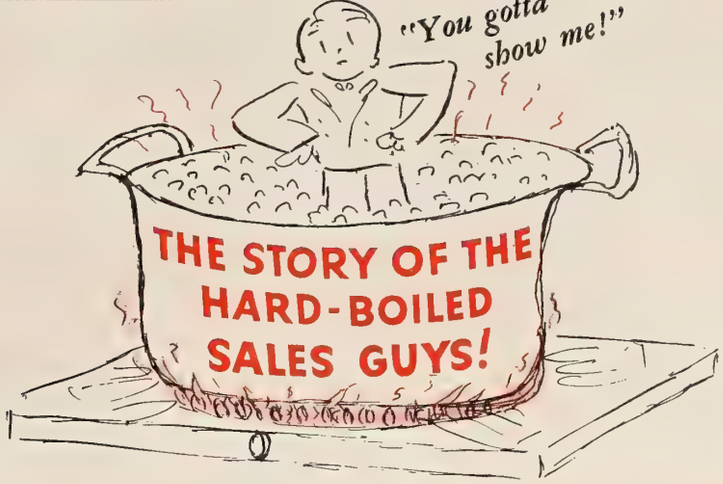
Relief for the South From Weatherman

MEMPHIS, Feb. 8.—Floodwaters are receding in Tri-states, the snow and ice have melted and theatre owners are breathing easier. However, danger of a major flood has not passed, U. S. engineers point out, but conditions are improved at present.

Springlike weather, with warm sunshine, replaced freezing temperatures and prolonged rains have ceased over the territory.

Four Mid-South theatres, closed temporarily as a result of the weather, are back to normal.

Film Transit reports that its trucks, by taking detours and in some cases transferring film across swollen streams where bridges were closed or washed out, in rowboats, kept a steady flow of prints to all of the theatres it serves in the territory.



Mulvey, Hovell and Dowden To Aid Drive

Bishop Thomas E. Molloy, STD, of the Brooklyn and Long Island Diocese has named James A. Mulvey, president of Samuel Goldwyn Productions, and Albert A. This is the composite story of the visit of M-G-M Sales Representatives to their "Preview of Product" in California!

"THIS IS HOW WE LOOKED WHEN THEY TOLD US ABOUT THE PRODUCT!"

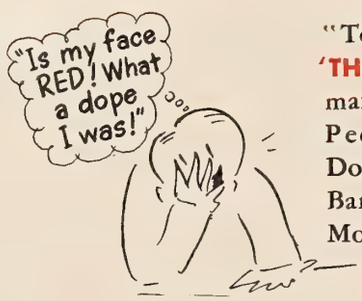
"First came 'TAKE ME OUT TO THE BALL GAME' — No wonder everybody's raving about this Technicolor Musical. It's sensational. The gay cast includes Frank Sinatra, Esther Williams, Gene Kelly, Betty Garrett!"

"Then came 'LITTLE WOMEN.' Honestly, this is a Technicolor honey, a joy and what a cast! June Allyson, Peter Lawford, Margaret O'Brien, Elizabeth Taylor, Janet Leigh!"

"When they showed 'THE SECRET GARDEN' we predicted it would be one of 1949's Ten Best. Great Cast! Great Picture!"

"'BARKLEYS OF BROADWAY,' Wow! Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers reunited in a rousing, tip-top Technicolor Musical. Oscar Levant is a riot. A Sure-fire hit!"

"Great! Great! Great! 'THE STRATTON STORY,' a true-life dramatic romance starring James Stewart, June Allyson. Laughs, tears, thrills. It's wonderful!"



"Gosh! Another big, bountiful M-G-M Technicolor Musical, 'NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER'! Esther Williams, Red Skelton, Ricardo Montalban, Betty Garrett, Keenan Wynn, Xavier Cugat!"

"And still they come! 'EDWARD, MY SON' is Great among the Great! Spencer Tracy, Deborah Kerr — rhymes with Ah! Broadway's No. 1 Stage Hit a Screen Masterpiece!"

"Terrific! Positively a gold mine! 'THE GREAT SINNER' is the climax! Look at the cast! Gregory Peck, Ava Gardner, Melvyn Douglas, Walter Huston, Ethel Barrymore, Frank Morgan, Agnes Moorehead! Gosh!"

"And I saw others in production, Garson's new picture and Gable's and Garland's and many more Big Ones. I can't wait to get back to Film Row to tell my customers the good news. YOU'LL CHEER M-G-M's ANNIVERSARY YEAR!"

To Clarify Decree on Warner-MacArthur

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Justice Department and Warner Brothers are working out a stipulation to clarify any ambiguity about the MacArthur Theatre in the court decree providing for Warner to end its joint ownerships.

The decree said Warner must terminate its interest in the MacArthur Corp., which its subsidiary, Stanley Co. of America, owns jointly with K-B Amusement, but the theatre is actually being operated by a partnership of K-B and Warner, under lease from the MacArthur Corp. The decree said nothing about Warner giving up this operating lease as well as its stock interest in the company.

Characterizing this situation as "just an oversight," Justice Department officials confirmed that they are now finishing a stipulation to make it plain that Warner must give up the operating lease as well as its stock interest. They pointed out that Warner has admitted all along that this was the intent of the decree, but since there is a suit pending by K-B against Warner it "might be just as well to remove any ambiguity."

$18-Millions from Canadian Rentals

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Canadian theatres paid $18,285,000 in rentals for 35 mm. films in 1947, according to a belated report from the U. S. Commerce Department. Distributors got another $655,000 from the sale of advertising material and accessories. The figures are for all distributors, not just American companies.

The report says 930 were features released in Canada during 1947, an increase of 131 over 1946. U. S. accounted for 706, Great Britain 61, and other countries the remaining 163.

Col. Forms Product'n Unit in England

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Joseph Friedman, vice-president of Columbia Pictures International Corp., following his return here from New York has begun formation of the new production unit which will make three British films annually for the next three years, commencing in May or sooner.

Friedman holds a lease on Nettlefold studios here for 26 weeks annually and believes it to be possible to make three pictures within that time under a speed-up policy and employment continuity. The films will be aimed primarily at the British market but it is expected that some may merit international distribution.

Await Power Cut

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—As the result of a 33 per cent slash in industrial power consumption due to the shortage of power, it is expected that theatre lighting in British Columbia will be curtailed until the situation improves.

Greets French Train

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Charles A. Smakwitz, Warner zone manager in Albany, served on the mayor's reception committee appointed to greet France's "Gratitude Train" on its arrival here today.

SPG, Companies Meet Tom'row on 25% Rise

Screen Publicists Guild's bid for a 25 per cent pay increase for publicity personnel at home offices will be aired tomorrow in a conference at Paramount's board room here between a distributors' committee and an SPG negotiating group. The companies and the union agreed recently to negotiate a new contract on an overall distribution basis, rather than by individual companies.

The SPG committee includes Guild president Sig Matles, the union's executive board, and Herman Silver, Dave Weisman, Frances Simon, Herb Haines, Lamar Baker, Harry Hochfeld, Al Mendelson and Ed Altschuh.

AMPP Gives Coast SGP 60-Day Termination Notice

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—Charles S. Boren, vice-president, Assn. of Motion Picture Producers, formally notified the Screen Publicists Guild that producers will terminate the Guild's contract April 9 in view of the membership's rejection January 18 of proposals submitted by the negotiating committee after conferences that began May 20, 1948. According to Boren's letter of notification to the SPG, chief point of difference is seniority.

SPG president Lesley Mason said that the effect of the AMPP action is to limit the continuance of negotiations to the next 60 days. The next meeting is scheduled for Friday.

SAG Negotiates Here

Screen Actors Guild has begun negotiations with Eastern producers on a new contract whose terms the Guild is bent on bringing in line with wage-and-hour provisions prevailing in the SAG's contract with Coast producers.

St. Cloud Not in a Deal with Sussman

Five Westchester theatres operated by William Sussman have not been disposed of to the St. Cloud Amusement Co., despite reports to the contrary, the former 20th-Fox Eastern district manager declared here yesterday. The theatres are in Pleasantville, Mt. Kisco, Amenia, Brewster and Wappinger Falls.

St. Cloud, headed by Harvey Newins, operates 17 theatres in New Jersey and Washington, D. C., and the Tower and Oriental in Milwaukee, previously operated by Warner Theatres under a lease, and purchased from the Annenberg Estate of Philadelphia.

Luncheon for Barker

Lex Barker will meet RKO Radio sales executives at luncheon today in Toots Shor's here, at which Irving Lesser and Seymour Poe will be hosts, representing Sol Lesser Productions for whom Barker stars in the current "Tarzan's Magic Fountain." The RKO delegation will include Ned E. Depinet, Robert Mochrie, William Clark, Leon J. Bamberger, Ned Clarke, William Dahler, Leonard Gruenberg, Robert K. Hawkinson, Emmett Cashman, Wladimir Lissim, Bev Lion, L. H. Miller, Frank Mooney, M. G. Poller, Mark Speigel, Herb Wappaus, Rutgers Neilson and Terry Turner. Lee Sholem, director of the picture, will also be present.

Mid-South Allied

National Allied leaders are scheduled to speak at tomorrow's session of the newly-formed Allied unit. Efforts will be made at the meeting to obtain scores of members, according to Edward O. Cullins, Memphis exhibitor, who is president. A program of entertainment, including a luncheon, has been arranged.

William L. Ainsworth, national president of Allied, and Trueman J. Rembusch, national treasurer, are scheduled to be the principal speakers. Morris M. Finkle, Allied president of Western Pennsylvania; Col. H. A. Cole, Texas Allied board chairman; Maurice J. Artigues, manager of Allied of the Gulf States; W. A. Pruitt, Jr., president of Gulf States, and John W. Wolfberg, president of Rocky Mountain Allied, also are scheduled to speak.

All independent theatre owners are eligible for membership, Collins said.

The exhibitors will be shown the permanent offices which are being opened by Mid-South Allied at the Hotel Chisca. They will meet Bob Bowers, of Memphis, who took over this week as manager. Bowers was with M-G-M for five years.

plate bringing to the screen and to the audiences of the world a picture with the size and scope of 'Quo Vadis'," Schary said.

Speaking generally of the product, Schary added: "I believe that by making good films we can again confound our critics by demonstrating the power of the medium in which we work."

Schary paid tribute to Louis B. Mayer, who, he said, "has guided the fortunes of M-G-M with unflagging enthusiasm and a consistent sense of showmanship and broad vision." Schary also lauded president Nicholas M. Schenck and M-G-M executives E. J. Mannix, Ben Thau, Louis K. Sidney, J. J. Cohn, Lawrence Weingarten and Kenneth MacKenna.

DC Meet on Bonds

The industry leaders will lunch with Treasury officials as well as meet with them the rest of the day. Snyder is expected to cite the industry's cooperation in the past, and how much more is expected in the future.

MPAA president Eric Johnston heads the list of those who have promised to attend. Others are: Universal's Nate Blumberg, Columbia's Jack Cohn, Paramount's Arthur Israel, Jr., RKO's A. E. Reoch, and Loew's Leopold Friedman and Carter Barron. Gael Sullivan and Robert Coyne will represent the Theatre Owners of America, while Abram F. Myers will represent Allied States and Lauritz Garman the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Maryland. Warner 20th-Fox and the AMPP have also promised to send delegates.

Deny Alger Petition

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Master-in-Chancery Joseph W. Elward has denied the petition by distributors to transfer their Alger film rental percentage actions from Federal Court here for determination in another court until attorney Thomas McConnell receives lawyer's fees of $4,000.

Return of Ohio Tax On Tickets Pends

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 8.—Return to a state admission tax, granting authority to the Ohio division of film censorship to censor television films and prohibition of video sets in automobiles are provided in bills introduced in the Ohio legislature.

Senators Nicholas Bernard and Clingan Jackson have introduced a bill which would give the state authority to levy admission taxes and deny that authority to cities. Over 100 Ohio cities and towns enacted admissions tax legislation in 1947 after the state had repealed the state admission tax law.

'Photoplay' Medals

"Achievement Award"—a gold and mahogany plaque—will be presented to Darryl F. Zanuck for 20th Century-Fox's "Gentleman's Agreement," because "his courage and skill brought great popular appeal to the presentation of a national problem."

On February 14, the annual Photoplay "Gold Medal" banquet will be held in the Beverly Hills Hotel in Beverly Hills, Cal. At that time, Samuel G. Engel, Walter Lang and F. Hugh Herbert will also receive Photoplay medals as producer, director and author of "Sitting Pretty," respectively.

Photoplay lists the following as the next most popular actors and actresses for the year:

June Allyson, Rita Hayworth, Jennifer Jones, Esther Williams, Humphrey Bogart, Bob Hope, Alan Ladd, and Gregory Peck.

The pictures following "Sitting Pretty" in popularity are: "I Remember Mama," RKO Radio; "The Street With No Name," 20th Century-Fox; "The Naked City," Mark Hellinger Productions; "A Date With Judy," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "State of the Union," Liberty Films; "Life With Father," Warner Brothers; "Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House," RKO Radio; "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," Samuel Goldwyn Productions; "Gentleman's Agreement," 20th Century-Fox; "Call Northside 777," 20th Century-Fox.

WPIX's Filming of Newsreel to End

New York's television station WPIX, owned and operated by the New York Daily News since it was set up about a year ago, will abandon production of its own newsreel on Feb. 12 if a sponsor does not turn up meanwhile, it is disclosed here.

Production and presentation of the newsreel, it was explained, is too costly an operation to be continued unsponsored beyond the Feb. 12 deadline.

Cohn Columbia Pact

consists of seven members; additions are contemplated.

An insistently vocal group of minority stockholders, who rallied 49,562 per-share votes in opposition to the Cohn contract, assailed the contract's $300,000 death benefit provision as "unjustified" in the light of the "Hollywood battle cry of economy," and termed its salary and expense provisions as "excessive." Spingold, Columbia vice-president, who presided at the meeting, branded many of the opposition assertions as "inaccurate." Shares voted in favor of the contract totalled 323,062, not including the block owned by Cohn himself. The company has some 654,788 common shares outstanding. Approximately 560,000 shares were represented at the meeting.

20 Years Without a Contract

If this year Cohn does not decline, as he did following last year's stockholders' meeting, to sign the contract, he will receive under it $3,500 a week and an expense allowance of $300 a week, the same compensation and expense allowance he has been receiving for many of the 20-odd years he has been without a contract. The contract voted on at the stockholders' meeting last year provided for certain stock options in addition to the same salary and expenses. Cohn rejected that contract on the ground that the opposition vote was higher than he had thought it would be.

At yesterday's meeting, minority stockholder William I. Rosenfeld offered a resolution, which was defeated, calling for officers' salary cuts.

Minority stockholders Edmund P. Waterbury and Sidney Pepper was nominated from the floor as candidates for director, but each received only 11,356 share votes, against 533,577-plus for management-nominated candidates.

Cohn Sees Improvement

A statement read to the stockholders from Harry Cohn sounded "a note of hope and encouragement," despite what he termed "all the clamor and gloom" in the industry. He said that in spite of difficulties that have manifested themselves, the company's estimate of December quarter earnings will show an improvement over the September quarter when Columbia reported a loss of $23,000.

Said Cohn: "We are benefiting from economies within the organization as a whole and they have contributed to the showing we are presently making under adverse conditions. We have not yet begun to benefit fully from the economies instituted in production because of the fact that many of the more expensive pictures produced earlier have not yet been fully released and amortized. By the end of the March quarter these pictures of greater cost will have been substantially amortized."

tion agreement with Edmund L. Dorfmann Productions for the first of a long-range series of television films to be specially produced for video. Dorfmann was formerly a Columbia producer, and more recently was production vice-president for Universal's United World.

Video Varieties yesterday absorbed the full facilities of West Coast Sound Studios, New York.

George W. Goman becomes president of Video Varieties, with other West Coast Studios' officers assuming respective posts in the new television company: Martin P. Henry, production vice-president, and A. W. Manchee, treasurer. Leonard Anderson, short subject producer-director, will be associated with the company.

UA says Video Varieties has assets in the $1,000,000 bracket.

Manchee was a pioneer in film sound recording with Bell Laboratories, Wagner and Metro-Goldwn-Mayer. Originally an executive of Joseph P. Kennedy's film enterprises, Goman became a member of the RKO executive committee in 1928, later founding Sight and Sound Corp. Henry began in motion pictures with Famous Players-Lasky in 1926 at the Astoria Studios. Later he was with 20th-Fox.

British Video

certain theatres publicly to screen BBC programs.

J. Arthur Rank's and Sir Philip Warter's circuits are anxious for an agreement, a number of their choicer London theatres having already been wired for TV. However, independent exhibitors see little advantage to them in having access to BBC's television programs, which hold little entertainment value for theatre audiences, and there still appears to be little likelihood of an agreement, in consequence.

The most probable outcome now seen is that the government may break the tight monopoly exercised by BBC and permit film producers to transmit on their own short-wave transmitters to their own theatres.

BBC's television chief, Norman Collins, recently returned from the United States, claims that British television leads the world, both in quality of programs and clarity of reception. Exhibitors don't bother to dispute him. They just look at BBC programs and declare there is no place for them on a theatre bill. All they want is outstanding special events and those, they say, are too few and far between and may well involve delicate questions of copyright.

To give BBC films in order to get its current programs for theatres is a one-sided proposal with all the advantages going to BBC, the exhibitors contend. Film men generally are skeptical now of the prospects of early big-screen television.

Pinanski

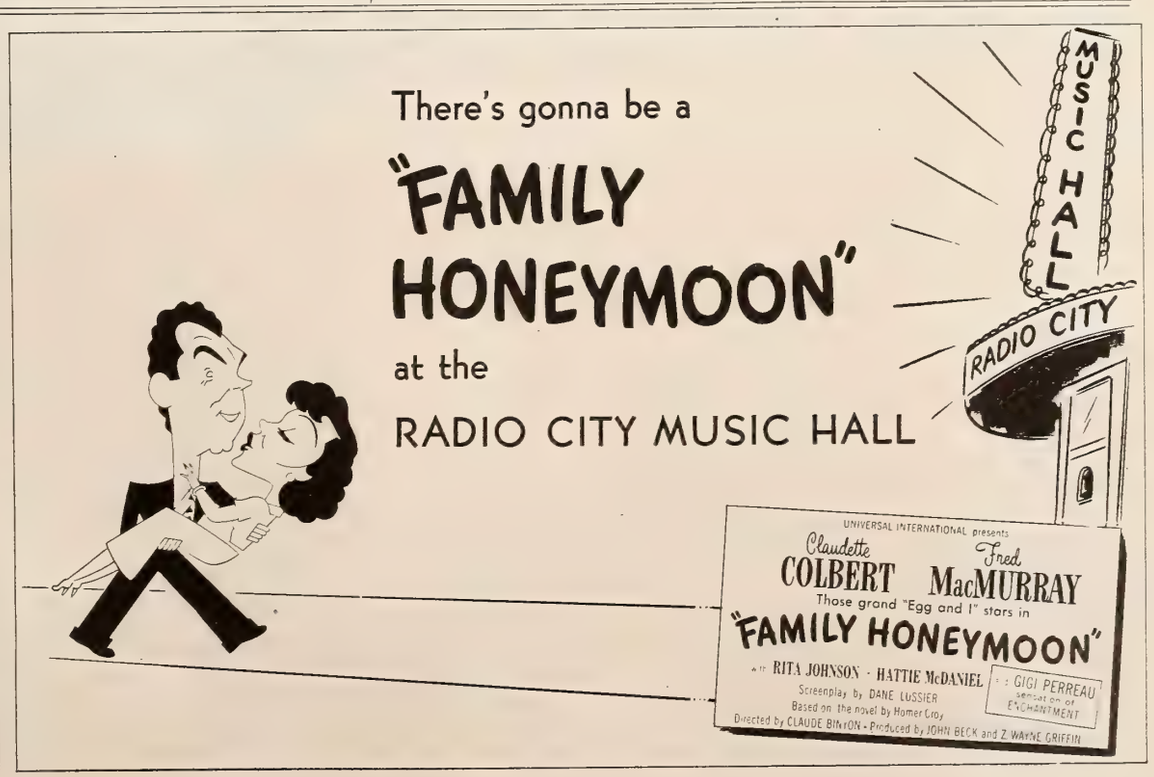
ducer and exhibitor was necessary. With this in mind, he said, he has "persuaded Pinanski to join us" and give the exhibitor's view on patterning production.

Pinanski said that the exhibitor "ought to have the privilege of a voice in the industry" and he hoped his move would persuade many other exhibitors to do likewise. He remarked that he didn't think that "theatres can do the business they need unless there is coordination between production and exhibtion." Pinanski characterized his new affiliation as "selfish because he wants to see good productions since he has an investment in theatres." He said that his future with the company was "unknown." He stated that he would devote whatever time was necessary to E-L beyond the need of his own business, and that he would occasionally go to Hollywood to "convey what we need at the box-office."

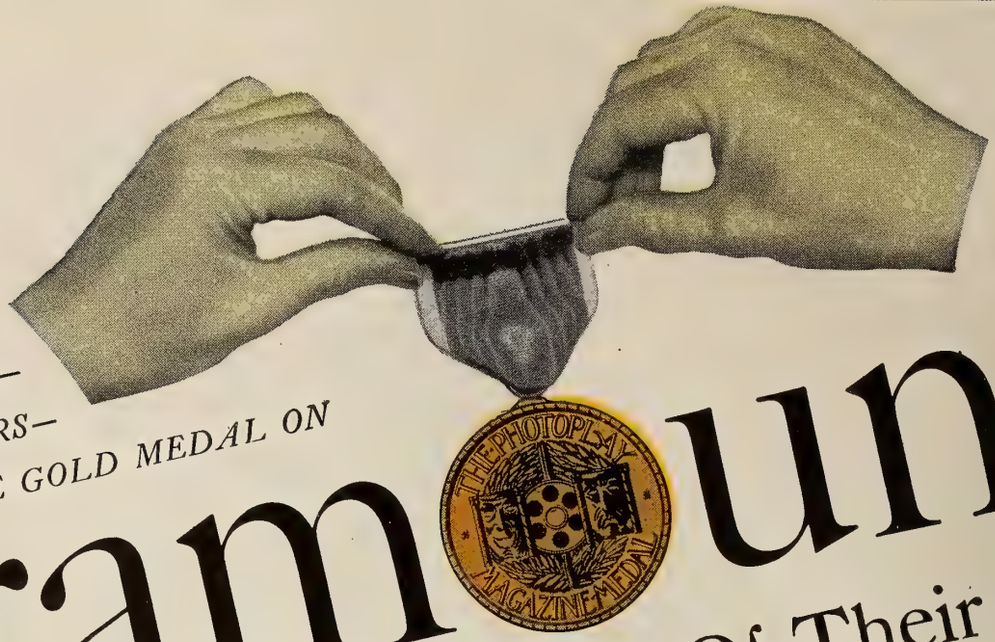
Pinanski disclosed that he would be advised by Benjamin Trustman, his legal counsel, who was present at the interview.

There was no indication at the interview that William C. MacMillen, Jr., would resign as E-L vice-president.

Cites Bank's Aid



Pinanski declared that the industry has the assistance of great financial institutions, and cited the First National Bank of Boston. He disclosed that for the past 10 years he has been adviser to the bank on film loans. Pinanski also has close connections with Serge Semenko, its vice-president. The First National Bank of Boston is identified with the financing of Pathe Industries, the E-L parent company.



Pinanski deplored unnecessary extravagance in the industry without regard to box-office values. He cited the trade papers "for servicing the exhibitor in an efficient manner" and commended this medium as an excellent way to reach the showman.

Krim said that E-L does not plan to acquire theatres and Pinanski's association is not for that purpose.

Total Billing Shows Rise

Krim said that the company's total billing for 1948 is 65 per cent better than in 1947 and that the same kind of showing is expected in 1949. In two years the company has put 95 films in release, and they have been of every variety, he observed. He said that the company has sold to 14,000 accounts or better, and that top pictures now go to more than 12,000 accounts. He declared that several top productions have grossed a revenue of $1,300,000 and that $3,000,000 is expected for "The Red Shoes." Krim cited the "magnificent jobs" accomplished by William Heineman and Max Youngstein, distribution and advertising-publicity vice-presidents, respectively. Krim asserted that many important independent producers have entrusted their product to them, naming as a few David O. Selznick, Walter Wanger, Bryan Foy and Edward Small. Krim also disclosed that "90 per cent of the company's advertising is now allocated for point of sale advertising with exhibitors."

BAN DUAL STOCK HOLDINGS IN PARA.

All Shareholders Must Choose Between One or Other of New Companies

Under one of the most spectacular provisions of Paramount's trust suit settlement with the government individual stock ownership in the two new Paramount companies to be formed will be prohibited.

Moreover, when stock in the present parent corporation is exchanged for shares in the new companies share holders must elect which of the companies' securities they prefer to hold. Their shares in the other company will be held in trust until sold, and the sale is to be made within one year. Brokers said yesterday they believe the arrangement to be without precedent.

At its annual stockholders meeting last June, Paramount reported there were 7,000,000 common shares outstanding. Since that time the company itself has acquired about 750,000,

Para. Stock Sales Heavy; Price Rises

Final developments in Paramount's trust suit settlement with the government resulted in heavy trading in the company's shares on the New Stock Market yesterday. A total of 11,700 shares changed hands, the stock closing at 24, up 1¼. Other film issues also were up, most of them from ⅛ to ¼.

Arbitration Plan Can Cut Suits: Levy

Urges 100% Support of 'Catch - All' Provision

Exhibitors, distributors, the courts and the American Arbitration Association should encourage full use of the so-called "catch-all" provision of the proposed arbitration system in the industry anti-trust suit, Herman M. Levy, general counsel of the Theatre Owners of America, declared in a statement issued yesterday to the TOA membership. TOA, like Attorney-General Tom Clark, holds the general arbitration plan to be of value to exhibitors, while, on the other hand, severe criticism of it has come from Allied States general counsel Abram F. Myers.

What Levy terms the "catch-all" provision sets forth that any controversy, aside from disputes over runs, between exhibitor and distributor, may be submitted to arbitration if at least one of the parties is a distributor defendant in the Paramount anti-trust suit or has consented to arbitration proceedings under the proposed system

5% Remittance Now Permitted from Italy

By ARGEO SANTUCCI

ROME, Feb. 9.—Five percent of the 1949 earnings of American films in Italy may be converted into dollars and remitted to this country, according to new regulations of the Italian government. The earnings outside Italy of films made in this country by American companies with blocked accounts may be freely retained by the owners. These two new rules also apply to other foreign film enterprises in Italy.

Up to this year no official remittances of earnings on films shown in Italy had been permitted since before the war and the disposition of earnings of American films produced in Italy had been discussed officially.

Allied May Act on Films on Video

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9. — Allied States Association may soon speak out, in words as sharp as those used recently by the Theatre Owners of America, against film producers making their products too readily available for television.

This was indicated here today when Allied general counsel Abram F. Myers released the proposed agenda for Allied's mid-winter board meeting here next Monday and Tuesday. The agenda discloses that Trueman Rembusch will discuss the television situa-

U. K. Unions Urge Studio Nationalization in 'Crisis'

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Association of Cine and Allied Technicians, headed by George Elvin, called upon the government today to requisition two idle film studios, to organize production therein and to guarantee distribution and exhibition of the resultant films.

The Elvin broadside accused British producers of deliberately evading their responsibility to the nation by not employing the entire available studio labor force.

Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, will be compelled to ignore the demand, it is believed, inasmuch as his own committee, after a study, made a report in which it advised against government acquisition of studios.

Capital Toppers to 'Command' Opening

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—A klieglight, Hollywood-type premiere is planned for the Capital premiere of M-G-M's "Command Decision," at Loew's Palace on February 16.

President and Mrs. Truman, Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson, Secretary of State Acheson, Attorney General and Mrs. Clark, Vice-President Barkley, Treasury Secretary and Mrs. Snyder, Defense Secretary and Mrs. Forrestal, Generals Vandenberg, Eisenhower, and Bradley, Admirals Leahy and Denfeld, Speaker Rayburn and other Capitol Hill and Embassy Row officials are expected to attend.

On the afternoon of the 15th, a ground and tactical demonstration of U.S. Air Force fighters and bombers will be staged at nearby Andrews Field.

On the Palace stage on the night of the premiere, MPAA President Eric Johnston will formally accept, on behalf of M-G-M and the motion picture industry, a citation from the Air Force Association, commending the film for "Furthering the cause of air power in the interests of national security and world peace."

Lipton Names Herzoff 'U' Studio Ad Chief

Archie Herzoff has been appointed studio advertising and promotion manager of Universal-International studios by David A. Lipton, advertising publicity director. Herzoff moves to U-I from Columbia studios in Hollywood where since June, 1946, he has been studio advertising executive handling basic campaign approaches. Previously, he had been employed by Balaban and Katz Theatres in Chicago for 15 years as an advertising-publicity executive. He will move into his new post within a few weeks.

'Bank Nights' Users Could Be Jailed

Des Moines, Feb. 9.—"Bank night" would be outlawed in Iowa theatres if a bill filed in the state legislature is passed. Fines up to $500 and jail sentences up to six months are proposed under the bill.

"Bank night" practices have been under attack here before, but a Supreme Court ruling several years ago said the plan then in use did not violate lottery statutes.

Sen. George Against Federal Tax Rise

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9. — Senate Finance Committee Chairman George today threw his influence against any tax increase this year. George said he thought the budget could be held in line without an increase in taxes, and that a bill increasing taxes could precipitate a depression.

George's opposition makes a tax increase bill very unlikely either this year or next. Congressmen rarely increase taxes in a Congressional election year, as 1950 will be.

Two More Bills Filed For U. S. Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Two more bills to reduce the 20 per cent admission tax to the pre-war 10 per cent have been introduced in the House by Rep. Forand, Rhode Island Democrat, and Rep. Multer, N. Y. Democrat.

Some half-a-dozen Federal tax reduction bills are pending in the House, introduced both by Democrats and Republicans.

A.B.P.C. Official Here On Mono. Sales Meet

Macgregor Scott of Associated British Picture Corp. arrived here from London yesterday on the Queen Mary to confer with Monogram officials on the U. S. release of "Temptation Harbour" and "My Brother Jonathan," the latter one of Britain's best grossers of 1948.

He will go to Toronto from here for conferences with executives of International Film Distributors who handle A.B.P.C.-Pathe films in Canada. He plans to return to London at the end of the month.

Six More Named for MGM Training Course

M-G-M has slated six more of its field personnel to participate in its next executive training course, which includes lectures by and discussions with home office officials and sessions at the Dale Carnegie Institute of Effective Speaking and Personality Development.

See Top-Level IA Pact Talk

IATSE's reported unwillingness to yield in its demands for a general wage increase for 6,300 exchange workers in 32 exchange centers is expected to bring into the Federal mediation proceedings here top executives of the eight companies involved if today's scheduled meeting of union and distributor representatives fails to produce signs of a definite break in the deadlock. Today's meeting will be the fourth to be presided over by Commissioner L. A. Stone of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Thus far, a negotiating group of company labor directors, headed by Clarence Hill of 20th Century-Fox, has been representing the distributors, while the "IA" negotiators are headed by the union's assistant international president, Thomas J. Shea.

It is understood that if the "IA's" present demands are granted, the companies' payrolls would be increased by a total of about $1,500,000.

E-L Sales Meeting In Chicago Today

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Eagle-Lion's third meeting of a projected nationwide series of sales meetings will open here tomorrow at the Hotel Blackstone, with William J. Heineman, distribution vice-president, heading the speakers, who will outline sales policies and production plans to sales personnel from the company's nine Midwestern branches.

Among those attending the two-day meet will be L. Jack Schlaifer, general sales manager; Fred Stein, "Red Shoes" special representative; Edward Heiber, district manager; and branch managers Clarence Phillips, Chicago; Joe Imhof, Milwaukee; Abbot M. Swartz, Minneapolis; Clair Townsend, Detroit; Gordon Craddock, Indianapolis; Edward Cohen, Omaha; F. J. Lee, Des Moines; Eugene Snitz, Kansas City; J. F. Woodward, St. Louis.

'U' Negotiating Pact For Rank 16mm. Film

Adolph Schimel, Universal home office attorney, and Matthew Fox, head of Universal's 16mm. operations, are in London to negotiate a contract under which J. Arthur Rank films will be added to Universal's 16mm. catalogue. Ratification of the contract probably will wait upon the arrival here of Rank and his company executives in a few months.

Universal already has included some Rank films in its 16mm. releases despite the fact that no formal contract for the rights has been in existence.

U.S. Bans Canadian Gov't Dope Film

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—The Canadian National Film Board's production of "Drug Addict" is reported to have been temporarily banned from distribution in U. S. theatres by United States authorities who demand revision of the film to depict drug addicts as criminals rather than as being sick.

Loew, Dietz, Speak At MGM Convention

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9.—A "new frontier" must be created for proper selling of product to the public and exhibitors "if we are to get most out of our pictures," Howard Dietz, M-G-M director of advertising-publicity, told the MGM convention, today, adding "a lot of things have been done in this industry before, but if we approach it differently, with feeling and inspiration, there is no doubt that we will succeed."

Arthur M. Loew, president of Loew's International, reviewed company operations, stressing the diversity of problems presented in various countries, restrictions on remittances, admission price ceilings imposed in many lands, and said the 16mm. market now amounts to $2,000,000 annually. Describing conditions abroad, Loew said, "We are educating masses all over the world to better understanding among all peoples. We are selling America and American democracy overseas, not consciously, for we are producing for entertainment, but indirectly."

Loew lashed out at press critics who habitually attack Hollywood product but praise every foreign-made film shown in this country. He said this "foolishness" starts in the press, and that it could seep gradually down to influence public thinking.

Crescent Amusement Plans 3 Theatres

NASHVILLE, Feb. 9.—Crescent Amusement Co. has filed a petition with Judge Elmer Davies of the U. S. District Court, for permission to construct a new theatre in the Greenhills suburban section of Nashville. The petition has received the approval of U. S. Attorney General Tom C. Clark's office in Washington.

A site has been secured and plans are in progress for the construction of an open-air theatre on Mt. Pleasant highway, near Columbia, according to A. E. Shortley, manager for Crescent, to cost $75,000. Bids have been received by Crescent for the construction of a new house at Alabama City, Ala., to cost $250,000.

Build, Remodel, Two Houses in Catskill

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 9.—William W. Farley, Albany realtor and theatre operator, will resume operation of the Community Theatre in Catskill and has announced that he will spend $30,000 modernizing the house.

Samuel E. Rosenblatt, an exhibitor from the Watervliet-Lake George area, is also building a new theatre in Catskill.

J. Balaban in Fund Drive

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—John Balaban, head of the Balaban & Katz circuit, has been named vice-chairman in charge of special assignments for Chicago's 1949 Red Cross fund campaign, it was announced by James E. Day, general campaign chairman, today.

Chicago SRO Meet

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—David O. Selznick will meet here Friday with division managers of the Selznick Releasing Organization to discuss forthcoming company policies, the second meeting called by Selznick.

Mitchum Conviction Halts RKO Production

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9. — Incarceration of Robert Mitchum on a marijuana conviction today forced suspension of production on RKO Radio's "Big Steal," in which the actor co-stars and which had been shooting several weeks, with three more to go. The actor was sentenced to one year in jail, with all but the first 60 days suspended. Counsel waived appeal and Mitchum entered jail immediately. The studio said production will be resumed on the actor's release. Sentence ordinarily implies 10 days off for good behaviour.

19 Productions in Work on the Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9.—The production index dipped to 19 from last week's 20. Three films were started, while four were finished.

Shooting started on "Border Incident," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "Law of the Golden West," Republic. "The Western Story," Universal-International. Shooting finished on "Kazan," Columbia; "Highland Lassie," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "Susanna Pass," and "Death Valley Gunfighter," Republic.

Named in Percentage Action, Hits Back

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 9.—Ten distributors are charged with trade restraints in a $1,600,000 treble-damage suit filed in U. S. District Court here by Narragansett Pier Amusement Corp. Plaintiff charges the companies with combining to fix minimum admission prices, charging excessive rentals and denying it the opportunity to show films first-run.

Meanwhile pending in the same court here is a percentage rental action filed against Narragansett Pier by Loew, Paramount, Warner, RKO Radio and 20th Century-Fox.

Schine Requests a Delay on Hearings

BUFFALO, Feb. 9.—Schine Chain Theatres has asked Federal Court here for another delay, of a month, on the argument and hearings in the government's anti-trust action, now slated for February 18 and 23. On the 18th, they are supposed to argue whether Schine can introduce new evidence; on the 23rd, to they are to start presenting evidence if Judge McKnight so rules. Schine now wants March 18 and 25 as the new dates.

$300,000 Voted for Two House Groups

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The House today voted $100,000 for its Small Business Committee to carry on its work, and $200,000 for the Un-American Activities Committee for the same purpose.

Record for Wayne

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Some sort of a new record here is being established by actor John Wayne, who is currently appearing in five different films in Loop theatres, with a sixth to open next week. The films are: "Red River," at the Woods; "Three Godfathers," McVickers; "The Long Voyage Home" and "Stage Coach," at the Grand; "The Sea Spoilers," at the Rialto. "Wake of the Red Witch" will open at the State Lake next week.

Boost U.S. Bonds

paign will begin on March 16, opening date of the Treasury's spring bond drive.

Bergman was chosen at a luncheon attended by top Treasury and industry officials. A morning meeting was opened by Treasury Secretary John Snyder, and the industry leaders resumed meeting with the Treasury people after the luncheon. Details of the promotion drive will be worked out by the committee tomorrow in further meetings with Treasury officials present at today's meetings.

Serving on the working committee with Bergman are William I. Ainsworth, president of Allied States Association; Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Theatre Owners of America; Carter Barrom, M-G-M Washington representative, and Tony Muto, Washington representative for 20th Century-Fox. The committee tomorrow will set up sub-committees to include representatives of production, distribution and exhibition.

In opening the session Snyder paid high tribute to the cooperation given by the industry during the war loan drives and asked for a renewal of its efforts during the 1949 campaign, which will be the greatest peacetime campaign put on by the Treasury.

If the committee follows the pattern of other industry committees, it will remain as a permanent industry committee.

Others present at today's meeting were: Nate Blumberg, Universal president; Kenneth Clark, MPAA information director; Ben Caplon, Columbia executive vice-president; Leopold Friedman, Loew's vice-president; Lauritz Garman, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Maryland; Arthur Israel, Jr., assistant to the president of Paramount; Eric Johnston, MPAA president; Abram F. Myers, Allied board chairman; A. E. Reoch, RKO assistant treasurer; Frank La Falce, area publicity director for Warner; and Y. Frank Freeman, executive of AMPP.

N. J. Film Censor Bill

censorship" act, the measure would enable municipalities to set up eight-man boards with the power to ban any picture found "obscene, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious or of such character that to exhibit or show same would tend to corrupt the morals or incite to crime, or may be considered against the general good and welfare of the community."

The bill provides that the boards be made up of three members of city police departments and five citizens. Upon introduction it was assigned to the Assembly Municipalities Committee, whose members Jersey Allied's legislative committee, headed by George Gold, have marked for persuasion to withhold the act from floor action. It is expected that public hearings on the measure will be called by the Municipalities Committee before members vote on it.

Principal backer of the bill is Newark's director of public safety, John Keenan, who applied for legislative action after the courts blocked his attempts to ban showing of "Mom and Dad," a so-called sex-education picture, and "Passionelle," a French-language import.

The censor boards called for in the bill would have the power to revoke theatre licenses.

Decree May Help Para. Video Status

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Paramount attorneys are hopeful that a consent decree in the New York case may ease the path of film firms into television.

The Federal Communications Commission has said it will announce—sometime in the next few months—a policy on whether or not Paramount case defendants should be allowed to own television stations.

FCC attorneys are now preparing a memorandum on the pros and cons of the question, citing all the laws and decisions involved.

But Paramount officials say that the Commission's final decision might be affected by a consent decree. "We'll still have been guilty of violating the anti-trust laws, all right," one company spokesman said, "but if the Justice Department should put out a lot of fanfare about how the consent decree ends the monopoly threat, or how Paramount cooperated and went even further than might have been required, the Commission might decide a lot differently than it would otherwise."

Para. Stock Holdings

reducing the total outstanding to about 6,250,000.

For each parent company share now owned, the holders will be given one share in each of the two new companies, namely Paramount Pictures and Paramount Theatres. Thus, if the stockholder elects to retain stock in Paramount Pictures, his shares in Paramount Theatres must be trusteed.

This is said be one of the most stringent conditions insisted on by the government, whose obvious aim is to preclude the possibility of any interlocking ownership, no matter how apparently insignificant. The restriction does not end with the actual reorganization and does not apply to present holders only, it is said.

In the future, as a prerequisite to the purchase of stock in one of the two companies the purchaser must provide an affidavit setting forth that he does not own shares in the other, according to reliable reports here.

It was not disclosed whether the Securities & Exchange Commission has formally approved the arrangement. However, Wall Street observers were of the opinion that such an operation, while hampered some by the restriction, would not be too objectionable.

Responsible sources in the industry would not say with any degree of certainty that they believed Paramount stockholders, when called upon to vote on the plan, would readily approve.

U. K. 'Crisis'

here as mere window-dressing designed to reassure his union members, many of whom have been declared redundant, or surplus, by studios, and many others who are threatened with layoffs for the same reason.

General opinion is that the layoffs are justified if essential production economies are to be achieved. Producers contend that if labor costs are not cut all production companies will go broke. They also point out that the carpenters, plasterers and others who have been laid off readily found work in the home construction field where they are sorely needed, though admittedly at lower wage scales than those prevailing in studios.

The unions also asked J. Arthur Rank to meet with them on Friday to discuss the implications of his use of the "production frame" method which, while still in limited use, has accounted for considerable savings in manpower. Rank, however, pleaded a previous business engagement.

Wilson to Be Queried Today

Wilson will be questioned in the House of Commons tomorrow on what action he proposes to safeguard production in view of the widespread studio closings.

Lord Portal's government committee inquiring into industry difficulties will examine trade union representatives tomorrow on their evidential memoranda advocating virtual nationalization of the industry.

Meanwhile, Rank saw Wilson privately and insisted to him that current layoffs of studio employes are essential to the continued functioning of Rank's enterprises.

Tomorrow, the Personal Managers Association will meet the producers to discuss stars' salaries. Producers will suggest that stars work for token pay, taking a participation in profits, if any. British Equity dissociated itself "completely from statements that actors will take cuts," asserting that it has taken part in no discussions on the subject.

ductions; John Davis, top J. Arthur Rank executive; Sir Henry French, head of British Film Producers Association, and F. A. Hoare, managing director of Merton Park Studios, London.

Trade union representatives are George Elvin, Association of Cine and Allied Technicians; Tom O'Brien and A. H. Mingay of National Association of Theatrical and Kine Employes, and F. L. Haxell, Electrical Trades Union.

Independent representatives are W. Coutts Donald, accountant; and S. C. Roberts, member of the previous Gater committee and master of Pembroke College, Cambridge University.

20th Taking U. K. Film to Hollywood

LONDON, Feb. 9.—In view of an indefinite delay in production here of 20th Century-Fox's "I Was a Male War Bride," due to the illnesses of stars, the company has decided to complete the production in Hollywood.

After months spent on location in Germany, the picture was in work for 10 weeks at the Shepperton studio here with costs already far exceeding the budget.

Allied May Act

tion, and the board will then consider a suggestion of secretary Charles Niles that distributors be petitioned to put an adequate age limit on televised films to insure that they will not compete unfairly with theatres.

The board will also hear recommendations from Myers for "protecting exhibitors' rights under the final Paramount case decree, and offer suggestions for an "Exhibitors' Blue Book" to be issued by Allied as a guide for exhibitors.

To Report on Audience Survey

It will listen to a report by Rembusch on his survey to ascertain audience preferences in motion picture entertainment, and will discuss possible release of the report in the light of the indefinite postponement of the Hollywood all-industry conference, for which the report was originally prepared.

Other items high on the agenda are a discussion of activities on the Fineran star-discipline plan since the Allied convention and a report of the committee that has been meeting with distributors on forced percentage playing, a proposal to retain a national field secretary whose services will be available to Allied units providing they pay the costs, and a discussion of cooperative advertising.

This last item will delve into the amounts invested by major film companies in cooperative advertising in New York and Los Angeles, with the suggestion that "such allowances be granted to all theatres, not a selected few, and that the advertising expense on percentage pictures be shared by the distributor and the exhibitor in proportion to their respective shares of the gross receipts."

Will Elect Officers

The meeting will receive Myers' annual report and will elect officers. Current president is William L. Ainsworth. If he is not a candidate for reelection, Rembusch is considered the most likely successor.

Other points up for discussion are: A report on the present situation and future prospects in Federal, state and municipal admission taxes; a report on the present status of the Berger and Brandt Ascap cases; reports on Allied cooperation in "Brotherhood Week"; the 1949 membership drive.

Mid-South Allied

States and the ability of independents to "stand up for their rights," Ainsworth said, "Some of the distributors are taking the changed situation like good troopers. Others, naturally, are put out, but the little guy that's independent doesn't get picked on any more after these many years of battling."

Edward O. Cullins, president of Mid-South, welcomed Ainsworth and visiting independent theatre owners. Also attending the session were: Trueman T. Rembusch, Indianapolis; Morris M. Finkel, Pittsburgh; William A. Prewitt, Jr., and Maurice J. Artigues, both from New Orleans.

Permanent officers elected at the meeting were Edward O. Cullins, president; John Mohrstadt, vice-president; Mrs. Clara M. Collier, secretary-treasurer; and Bob Bowers, manager. Board of directors elected were Tom Ballas, Paul T. Myers, Jim West, Bill Malin, David Flexer, Lyle Richmond and Lawrence Landers.

Levy on Arbitration

and voluntarily submits to arbitrate the controversy.

The provision, Levy holds, "can be a means of cutting down substantially the amount of litigation in so-called minor grievances that is well nigh strangling the industry." It will prove to be of great benefit to exhibitors specifically, and to the industry in general, he said, "if intelligently and wisely developed." The provision calls for submission in writing to be filed by all parties to a controversy. It does not require that the complaining exhibitor go to arbitration; he may still resort to the courts for litigation if he so desires.

Referring to the clearance arbitration rules set down in the proposed system, Levy points out that "it puts all distributor defendants on guard and will compel them to lean backward in determining reasonable clearances." That, he added, "is a fact whether these proposals ever become the law or not."

Relative to the provision on "conditioning," Levy contends that "these provisions should be broadened and elaborated sufficiently to encompass expressly the claim of certain exhibitors that the price of a better feature is conditioned by some distributors on whether other poorer features are taken with it." He added: "It may very well be that this (broadening) was intended by the draftsmen of the proposals. To eliminate any doubt on the point it should be expressly included."

Commenting on the extent to which arbitration is "binding" and calls for "compliance," Levy had this to say: ". . . where a party attempts, after a final arbitration award, to proceed in litigation on the same subject matter as was heard and decided by the award, the award would be conclusive and might be pleaded as a defense. Certainly, the courts would be inclined, according to one important authority in arbitration, to refuse to give the men 'two bites on the same cherry'."

Greenberg Resigns

been with the Society for the past 12 years, was named to replace Greenberg. Collins formerly was with the Paramount legal department.

Greenberg plans to take a long vacation after which he will make his services available to Ascap in an advisory capacity. Greenberg was identified with the faction within Ascap which stood for high license rates for users of the Society's music. This faction brought Ascap into a major rate war with radio broadcasters and led to the formation of BMI, and also is regarded as responsible for the theatre and music rate increases which led to the Federal Court ban.

Para. Raps US Demand for Divorcement

Files Court Brief in Case Settlement Fails

Guarding against possible collapse of its proposed trust suit settlement with the government, Paramount yesterday continued its defense in the case with a brief and memorandum submitted to New York Federal Court which answers the plaintiff's charge of monopoly and divorcement demand by pointing to the increase of 2,293 independent theatres constructed or re-opened within the last three years, many of them in competition with Paramount.

Paramount states that it has already lost 106 of its houses and through the termination of the majority of its joint interests, will lose 335 more, "assuming equal division of assets," and through the dissolution of joint

Warner to Produce Mindszenty Film

Jack Warner today announced immediate preparations for the production of a screen play to be entitled "The Trial of Mindszenty," based on a story of the Prelate martyred this week by a Communist court.

Warner stated that his studio intended to produce the picture in the interests of democracy, freedom of religion and the fundamental rights of human dignity. "Our aim will be to reach every possible corner of the world with this major news story of oppression and injustice," he said.

"Our plan is to produce this picture as quickly as a screenplay can

Mayer, Schary Speak At MGM Windup

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 10.—In the most impressive show of talent strength staged in more than a decade, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer today seated approximately 75 stars and name players in front of the speakers' table occupied by company executives and presided over by Louis B. Mayer at the company's 25th anniversary party.

Attended by about 700 persons, the affair highlighted the company's sales convention, and was held on the studio's biggest sound stage, with the entertainment following addresses by Mayer, Dore Schary and William Rodgers.

Reviewing a quarter of a century of the company's history, Mayer dealt candidly with present conditions. He declared, "Lost revenues cannot be recouped with a cheap product. We will not cheapen ours. We will produce the finest pictures possible with

Third Censor Bill Introduced in Week

With censorship bills already introduced in West Virginia and New Jersey, the Georgia legislature yesterday became the third to receive a similar measure this week. The New Jersey bill would give local autonomy to municipalities to enact censorship laws, which would give local boards the power to revoke a theatre license.

A bill was introduced in the Georgia Senate by Sen. Gus Stark of Monroe, that would create a state board of censors and require all motion pictures, views and slides to be approved by the board before they can be shown in Georgia. The measure also would prohibit misleading advertising of motion pictures.

ECA Assures Industry of Help Abroad

Promises Cooperation On Monetary Problem

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—A meeting of company foreign managers today received a pledge from a top official of the Economic Cooperation Administration that ECA will cooperate fully with the industry in plans to convert some current earnings in Marshall Plan countries.

The pledge came from Wayne C. Taylor, ECA director of programs. Representatives of nine motion picture firms met with Taylor, top State Department officials, and officials of the Motion Picture Association at MPA headquarters here today.

Taylor said that he recognized convertibility was the industry's number one problem and that ECA would do its best to keep motion picture com-

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Atlas Corp. sold warrants for 10,000 shares of RKO common and Republic president Herbert C. Yates bought 7,644 shares of his firm's common to head a list issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission today of trading by "insiders" in film company stocks.

Though the report theoretically covers the period between December 11 and January 10, many transactions reported today are from earlier periods. Insiders trading in film stocks generally were active in the market during the period.

Atlas after selling the warrants, had warrants left for 317,812 shares.

Would Mark Tickets To Obstructed Seats

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Tickets to seats which allow only a partial view of a screen, stage, ring or arena would have to be so marked under a bill introduced in the state legislature by Assemblyman Francis X. McGowan of New York City.

The bill, which, presumably applies to reserved seats, would affect "every person, firm or corporation owning, operating or controlling a theatre or other place of public exhibition."

'Exhibitor Lethargy' Flayed by Lippert

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 10.—Exhibitor lethargy, producer shortsightedness and banker interference combine to impede industry progress toward a solution of its problems, says Robert L. 29 Radio Shows Will 'Plug' 'Down to Sea'

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 10.—Twenty-nine different radio shows, a number of which will emanate from here, have been lined up by 20th Century-Fox for exploitation of "Down to the Sea in Ships," which will have a three-theatre world premiere in this New England whaling city on Feb. 15. Facilities of the American Broadcasting network, Columbia, National Broadcasting and New Haven station WNBH have been enlisted for promotion of the picture on such programs as "We, the People," the Alan Young show, Nancy Craig's program, and others.

Richard Widmark, the picture's star, will broadcast from New Bedford on the evening of the premiere. He will also make personal appearances here as will actor Cesar Romero. The premieres will be marked also by a number of parties and receptions to which trade press representatives have been invited.

Suit Says Drive-ins Do Not Compete

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Claiming drive-ins are not in "substantial" competition with indoor houses, the Harlem Avenue and North Avenue outdoor theatres will ask Federal Judge William Campbell tomorrow for a preliminary injunction against Paramount, defendant in an anti-trust suit brought by the drive-ins.

The plaintiffs will ask that non-Loop Balaban and Katz houses be denied clearance over drive-ins on new films. Because drive-in patrons must have a car and for other reasons do not constitute a regular motion picture theatre audience, the motion states, outdoor theatres are not in direct competition with indoor houses.

Goldberg Denies Windsor Charge

BALTIMORE, Feb. 10.—Denial of conspiracy charges pending in Federal Court here as filed by the Windsor Theatre, has been made by Thomas Goldberg, owner of the Hilton and Walbrook theatres, through his attorney, J. Purdum Wright.

Owners of the Windsor, located across the street from the Hilton and the Walbrook, have charged that Goldberg and his theatre companies "conspired" with several film producers to keep their house from getting product.

New Pact To Be Topic At SDG Meet in N. Y.

5,644 shares for a total holding of 79,331 shares.

An interesting item in the report was heavy selling by officers of American Broadcasting, frequently mentioned as up for sale to 20th Century-Fox and other firms. ABC president Mark Woods sold 30,500 shares in eight separate lots, leaving himself with 6,500 shares. Vice-president Robert Kintner sold 17,300 shares, dropping his holdings to 16,000 shares. C. Nicholas Priaulx sold 14,000 shares, leaving him only 1,000.

Holds Warrants in Own Name

Universal board chairman J. Cheever Cowdin took warrants for 4,662 shares out of a personal holding company and put them in his own name, giving him warrants for a total of 91,538 shares. He holds 11,637 shares outright, and his holding company owns another 1,990 outright. Nate Blumberg, "U" president, reported giving away warrants for 1,300 common shares in May, June and September of 1947, and had warrants for 27,200 shares left at the end of September, 1947. In January of this year Daniel M. Sheaffer sold 500 shares of Universal common, and now has 1,007 left. Robert Benjamin sold 230 shares of common in April and May of 1947, liquidating his holdings.

Frederick I. Ehrman bought 2,800 shares of RKO common, bringing his holdings to 3,000 shares. Through Lehman Brothers he purchased another 5,000 shares. At Republic, Frederick R. Ryan sold 1,000 common shares and now holds none. Walter I. Titus, Jr., bought 300 shares, bringing his holdings to 990 shares. His wife held 260 shares and through Tonrud, Inc., he held 106,635 shares of common and 12,200 shares of $1 cumulative preferred. Edwin Van Pelt sold 600 shares, leaving 3,000.

Ginsburg's Sons Sell Shares

At Paramount, Henry Ginsburg's sons sold 125 shares, and had 275 left. Ginsburg held 1,000 shares.

Leonard H. Goldenson gave away 300 jointly-owned shares. He had left 700 jointly-owned shares and 1,100 in his own name. Stanton Griffis gave away 300 shares, leaving 8,700 shares in his own name and 15,800 in trust accounts. Maurice Newton gave away 235 shares and bought 225, for a net drop of 10 shares. He has left 18,595 shares in his own name and 18,380 in trust.

Columbia president Harry Cohn, who is reported as having bought 1,500 shares in November, gave away 1,168 shares in January, leaving him 142,727 shares.

Warners Gave Away 1,000 Shares

Albert Warner gave away 200 shares of Warner common, and had 444,300 shares left in his own name and 21,000 in trust. Harry M. Warner gave away 600 shares, dropping his personal holdings to 282,550. He holds 16,000 in trust.

Harry Brandt bought another 200 shares of Translux common. He holds 90,865 shares in his own name, 1,000 through Broadyork, Inc., and 1,400 through Harday, Inc. The Brandt Foundation bought 200 shares, for a total of 800. Mrs. Harry Brandt is listed for a total of 14,700 shares. Herbert E. Herrman bought 200 shares of the firm's common, for a total of 5,400 shares.

Harold J. Mirisch was reported as owning no Monogram common stock when he became an officer of the firm.

corresponding period last year was equivalent to 54 cents per share.

Prior to Aug. 31, 1948, the close of the last fiscal year, film rentals reflected in the WB consolidated income account included film rentals of principal subsidiary companies operating in foreign territories. Thereafter only the U.S. companies' share of foreign film rentals which was remittable in dollars has been included in the income account.

Film rentals, theatre admissions, sales, etc., after eliminating intercompany transactions, for the three months in 1948 amounted to $33,734,000.

Company has current and working assets of $69,722,332, including cash of $16,975,898, against current liabilities of $25,654,455. Company listed a backlog of completed product worth $17,201,655, and productions in work worth $12,881,485. Released productions at cost, less amortization, were litsed at $8,653,388.

25-Cent Warner Dividend

Drastic Raise in Mexico Censor Fees

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The Mexican government has drastically increased its fees for censoring films, from 90 cents to about $15 per reel, Commerce Department film chief Nathan D. Golden reports.

Fees have been six pesos (90 cents in U. S. currency) per roll of film 300 meters per reel or less in length, irrespective of width. Under a new decree, already in effect, fees will be 100 pesos ($15) per reel of 35mm. film 300 meters or less in length; 50 pesos ($7.50) per reel of 35mm. advertising film or trailers per reel or less in length; 25 pesos ($3.75) per roll of 16mm. film or less in length, and 10 pesos ($1.50) per roll of 16mm. advertising film or trailers 100 meters or less in length.

Golden also reports that Chilean railways have increased their express rates on motion picture film by 25 per cent.

Lux Films Forms Distributing Firm

Lux Films (USA), sole agent for Lux pictures produced in Italy and France, has formed Lux Film Distributors Corp. E. R. Zorgniotti is president of both firms. The new company will release all of its imports from its home office here with Bernard Jacon as sales vice-president.

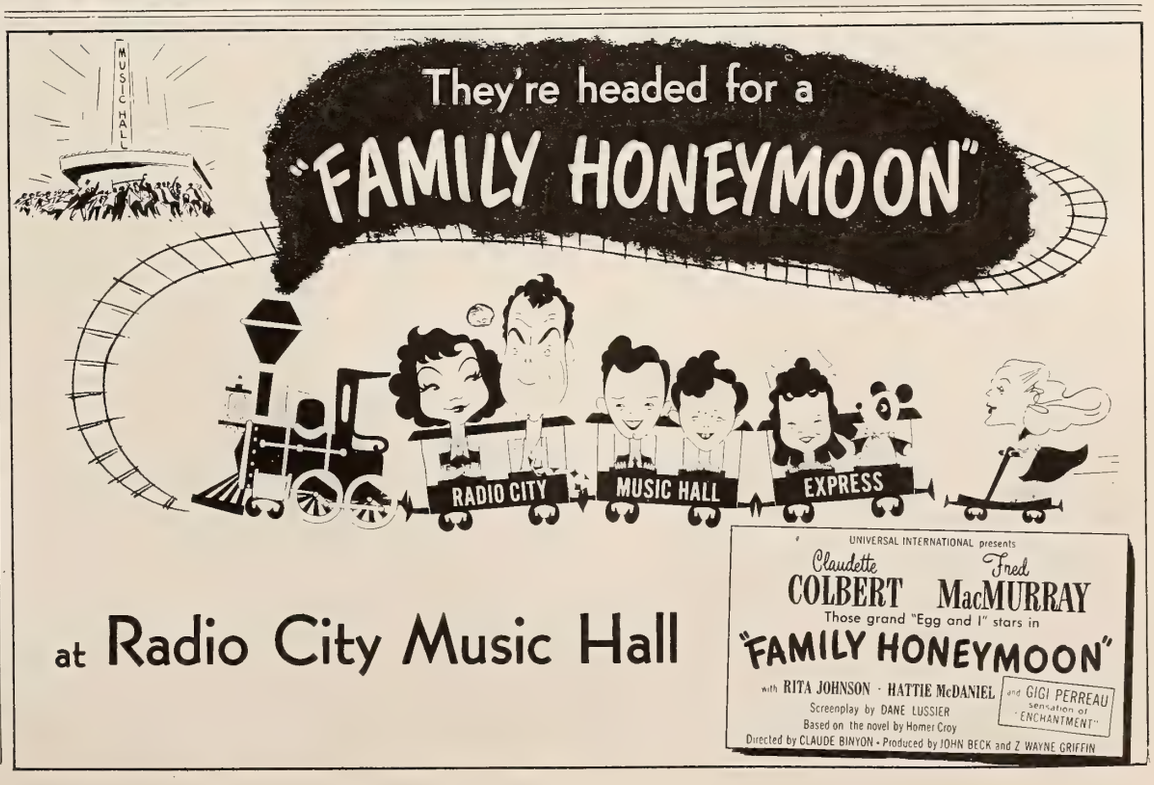
this great array of talent and skills, exercising reasonableness, of course, because we believe that great pictures are essential now, as they have always been to this industry's success."

He paid individual tributes to his principal aides, and hailed Schary's return to M-G-M as presaging fine future product. Mayer scouted pessimistic opinion about the trade's prospects as unwarranted and presenting "a challenge which we shall answer."

Schary, company production executive, outlined the company's production purposes, saying that "a proper reward for effort" is its prime consideration, but he added that the screen "must live up to its responsibility as the world's favorite entertainment medium."

Rodgers, sales vice-president, said, "The public's enthusiasm for motion pictures is as keen as ever, and our enthusiasm must be maintained at the same high pitch. On our 20th anniversary our sales force put M-G-M's trademark on every screen in America. On our 25th anniversary we will place it on every screen in the world to which American films have access."



The convention ends tomorow, with sales representatives departing over the weekend for their respective stations.

'Get Acquainted' Meeting

MPA officials released little else about the meeting, which they said was held mainly to get the company foreign managers acquainted with top State Department and ECA officials.

After lunch with the ECA and State Department leaders, the industry officials discussed the ECA program with Taylor and then went into a closed session of their own.

The luncheon, given by MPA president Eric Johnston, really drew out the top State Department dignitaries. Present were Under Secretary James I. Webb, Assistant Secretaries Willard Thorpe, George Allen and John E. Peurifoy, Commercial Policy chief Winthrop Brown, Department counselor Charles I. Bohlen, and film chief Merrill C. Gay.

Company Representatives

Company representatives present at the meeting were Joseph A. McConville, Arnold M. Picker and Jack Segal from Columbia; Joseph Rosthal, Loew's; J. William Piper, Paramount; R. K. Hawkinson and W. Lissim, RKO; Murray Silverstone and Manny Silverstone, 20th Century-Fox; Charles A. Kirby, Universal; John J. Glynn, Warner Bros.; Norton V. Ritchey, Monogram; Richard W. Altschuler and Douglas T. Yates, Republic.

MPEA vice-president Irving Maas was present, and in addition to Johnston, MPA officials attending were John McCarthy, F. W. Duvall, Joyce O'Hara, Tim Healy, Kenneth Clark, G. M. Cahill, Manning Claggett and Tom Waller.

'Exhibitor Lethargy'

ship into the selling of it to their patrons. They leave the operation in charge of hired subordinates."

Lippert cites as the antithesis of this his own operation of 61 theatres, which he says he can prove yield almost twice as much return to his companies as any other comparable setup.

He says this results in part from the fact that he sees every feature that is produced, operates his theatres with no set opening dates, allowing every film to run as long as it stands up and yanking it the moment it doesn't, and conditions the advertising of each picture to the known likes and dislikes of his communities. He believes exhibitors anywhere can expand their and the industry's intake by adopting the same principles of selectivity, flexibility and showmanship.

Lippert mentions as a significant indication of exhibitor apathy the fact that non-exhibitors, for the most part, pioneered the drive-ins, with established exhibitors coming awake tardily to a realization that the field had been invaded by novices.

Lippert declares, "In no other industry are the two ends so far apart. In this one the producer does not know what is going on in exhibition, and the exhibitor does not pay much attention to what is going on in production. I have even heard exhibitors gloat when a film company is reported about to go broke, apparently not realizing that this would injure him directly by cutting down his source of supply."

He believes there ought to be a steady exchange of information between exhibitor and producer, for the benefit of both, and bases this belief on his own experience.

Reviews

"State Department—File 649"

(Film Classics)

FILM CLASSICS ventures into the field of documentary-styled melodramas in "State Department—File 649" and comes up with an honest-to-goodness thriller. Produced in Cinecolor and featuring Virginia Bruce and William Lundigan, the film marks an important production effort for the company. The events have been shaped in formula mold, with many exploitation angles provided.

It deals with the foreign service of the U. S. State Department and provides a fairly comprehensive picture of the workings of that agency which has vital "listening posts" all over the world. Upon graduation from foreign service school, Lundigan is assigned to a post in Peiping, China, where a surprising number of American nationals have been mysteriously killed, and varied other forms of skullduggery taken place. In time, Lundigan traces the events to a Mongolian war lord, as evil a character as has been seen on the screen in many a season. It is not long before he captures the entire village and holds a group of Americans prisoners. From this point on it becomes a cunning game of life and death between the warlord and Lundigan, with the latter, in the climax, blowing up the outlaw's headquarters and in doing so, he loses his own life.

The action takes place in Washington and Peiping, showing many highlights of both cities. Miss Bruce holds up the romantic angle as a morale worker assigned to the troubled area and in love with Lundigan. The screenplay, provided by Milton Rasion, is one which resorts to standard devices to develop terror. A Sigmund Neufeld production, it was produced by Neufeld and directed by Peter Stewart. Others in the cast are Raymond Bond, Nana Bryant and John Holland.

Running time, 87 minutes. Adult audience classification. For March release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"The Affairs of a Rogue"

(Two Cities-Columbia)

A LEISURELY, ponderously detailed chapter from the history of England's royal family is offered American film-goers in this British-made costume picture. No doubt the popularity here of its star, Jean-Pierre Aumont, and its eyebrow-raising title were the factors which determined its importation, because there is little else about it to commend it to audiences here. Not, of course, that it is not efficiently acted by the substantial cast of predominantly British players. Actually, there is a strong suggestion of authenticity about "Affairs of a Rogue," and one who is unfamiliar with the historical facts of the British royal family's activities around 1810 might well assume that these things really happened after profligate, vain, pompous Prince Regent George was elevated to the English throne. But so lacking in dramatic pace is this picture that the few possibilities it has in terms of impact and wit are lost in the sedentary settings, over-drawn sequences, avoidance of sharp physical action, and the cliche-cluttered dialogue.

Cecil Parker's performance as the rogue prince is pure caricature, and gives an occasional chuckle. Otherwise, the story of his fruitless attempts to marry his too popular daughter, Princess Charlotte (Joan Hopkins), off to an unattractive Dutch nobleman to get her out of his way, is played straight. Charlotte, it happens, loves Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg (Aumont), and refuses to marry the boorish Dutchman. After much daughter-versus-father squabbling, the Prince Regent consents to her marriage to impecunious Leopold. Their first child is born dead, and she dies in childbirth in Leopold's arms (a scene which is certain to have women patrons in tears). The baby boy would have been in line for the throne, but as fate would have it the next heir is Victoria, born shortly afterward to the Duke and Dutchess of Kent.

Producer credits go to Joseph Friedman and Ivan Lassgaliner, as associate. Cavalcanti directed. Screenplay, written by Nicholas Phipps, was from a play by Norman Ginsbury, with adaptation by Reginald Long and additional dialogue by Wilfrid Pettitt. Supporting cast includes Ronald Squire, Athene Seyler, Anthony Hawtrey, Gerard Heinz, Margaretta Scott and several others.

Running time, 95 minutes (over-long). Adult audience classification. For February release.

Bercholz arrived here on the SS Queen Mary Wednesday with Louis Metayer, vice-president of Pathe Cinema of France, and both are to discuss with industry interests here a project to produce in France a picture in two versions, French and American.

Citing the rise in production costs in France, Bercholz stated that a picture which cost $150,000 before the war now costs about $350,000 to $400,000. Bercholz, who also produced "Symphonie Pastorale," brought with him a print of his latest film which is tentatively titled "Souvenoir." He will leave for Washington today.

ownerships with other defendants, an additional 119 theatres will go. This "total loss of many hundreds of theatres" means that Paramount could not possibly hold any control over any segment of exhibition, the company asserts.

Hundreds of Adjustments Made

Paramount states that the numerous ("literally hundreds") of clearance adjustments it has made, together with the injunctions it now is abiding by precludes any need for additional injunctive measures on trade practices. It recommends, too, the arbitration system as a further means of eliminating any inequities.

Paramount asks for a court finding which would permit it to split its joint ownerships by way of division of theatres in a partnership, or "division of theatres on the basis of present stock interest or in such manner as may be negotiated, subject to court approval or purchase by Paramount of the co-owner's interest, followed by a sale of part of the assets."

Paramount says it is willing to terminate these partnership companies by a division of assets and in a manner which will result in the establishment of competition between those who are now joint owners:

5-Year Limit On Trusteed Para. Stocks

Trustee Must Sell Stocks Within Five-Year Period

There's a five-year deadline in the Paramount case decree on trusteeing stock in the new exhibition company that will result from the reorganization, it was reliably learned here this weekend.

Here's how the set-up works:

When Paramount is split into a production-distribution company and an exhibition company (within a year after the decree is entered), stock in one or the other company must be sold or the exhibition company stock must be deposited with a court-appointed trustee.

The stock can be left in trust—that is, dividends received but the stock not voted—for up to five years. Any time after four years, the trustee can sell the stock out to a third party if the owner refuses to dispose of it himself. The trustees must sell all trusteed stock by the end of the fifth year.

Allied Board Meets In Capital Today

Washington, Feb. 13.—Abram F. Myers, chairman, will preside at the semi-annual Allied States board meeting to be held at the Hotel Statler here tomorrow and Tuesday. Among subjects on the agenda are a Cole committee report on forced percentage, television, the Paramount decree, a report on the Finneran plan, a national Allied secretarial service, cooperative advertising, Myers' annual report, taxes, Ascap and the election of officers.

Rathvon About Set To Begin Loans; Opens Coast Office

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13.—N. Peter Rathvon and Co., newly-formed California investment corporation, is about ready to start functioning, furnishing financing to independent motion picture producers, both old and new. At the time of the announcement of the company last January 6, N. Peter Rathvon, president, and former president of RKO, publicly stated that the firm had "virtually an unlimited amount of Eastern capital."

Rathvon and Co. has established its headquarters at the Goldwyn Studio, with Norman Freeman, long associated with Rathvon, in charge, and from where, tomorrow, Rathvon will depart for New York for conferences with his banking sources concerning his financial management. Freeman was Rathvon's assistant during the latter's tenure at RKO.

Goldwyn Sees Video Improving Films

Samuel Goldwyn sees only good resulting from television competition with motion pictures.

In an article in yesterday's New York Times Magazine, the producer said television will eliminate the "weak sisters" of the motion picture industry, will provide new opportunities for producers and will improve film quality.

"It will take brains instead of just money to make pictures" in the television era, Goldwyn wrote. "This will be hard on a great many people who have been enjoying a free ride on the Hollywod carousel but it will be a fine thing for motion pictures as a whole."

If the industry is to survive, Goldwyn wrote, "it will have to turn out

'IA' Exchange Pact Settlement Seen

Observers appeared certain at the weekend that a settlement on a new contract for 6,300 exchange workers in the 32 exchange centers has been reached here by IATSE and distributor negotiators. Although the negotiators declined to comment following a 14-hour session with Federal Mediator L. A. Stone, it was said that the fact that Stone did not set another meeting date would in itself signify that a settlement has been reached.

Negotiation and mediation meetings have been continuing for about two months.

Final Eagle-Lion Sales Meet Today

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13. — Final meeting in Eagle-Lion's nationwide series of sales sessions will open here tomorrow at the Clift Hotel, with branch managers and sales personnel from six West Coast branches gathered for two days with top sales executives of the company.

The meeting will follow the same pattern as previous sessions in New York, New Orleans and Chicago, with addresses by William J. Heineman, distribution vice-president; L. Jack Schlaifer, general sales manager; and Fred Stein, special representative on J. Arthur Rank's "The Red Shoes."

Present to receive official sales policy on currently-available product and advance information on production plans will be: branch managers Lloyd Katz, San Francisco; Sam Milner, Los Angeles; Wallace Rucker, Seattle; Ralph Amacher, Portland; Martin R. Austin, Denver; Arthur M. Jolley, Salt Lake City; and sales personnel from the six branches.

U. S. Film Imports Off in Argentina

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The Commerce Department reports that a large reduction in the number of U. S. films released in Argentina was the principal factor in a 27 per cent drop from 1947 to 1948 in the number of features released in Buenos Aires.

A total of 408 were released in 1948, Commerce film chief Nathan D. Golden reported, compared with 557 in 1947. The U. S. supplied 228 in 1948, compared with 375 in the previous year.

Warner Should Stay Intact, NY Court Told

Suggests Arbitration For All in Trust Suit

Point-by-point denial of the government's charges of illegal advantages in exhibition and restraints in production-distribution is made by Warner Bros., which, in a brief submitted in the industry anti-trust suit on Friday, asks the New York Federal Court in effect for a judgment that would keep the company intact.

The company furnishes evidence which it says "finishes once and for all any claim that the present position of Warner theatres was due to Warner's vertical integration or to any conspiracy or combination to which Warner was a party."

Warner claims its theatre acquisitions were made solely to "meet the Republic Loss Is $349,989 for 1948

Republic Pictures in the 53 weeks ended last October 30, had a net loss of $564,499 before deducting a claim for refund (under the loss "carryback" provisions of the Internal Revenue Code) of federal taxes paid in prior years amounting to $214,509. The net amount charged to earned surplus was therefore $349,989.96. This compares with the net income, after federal taxes, of $570,200 for the 52 weeks ended October 25, 1947, ac-

By SHERWIN KANE

THE provision in the Paramount consent decree designed to prohibit stock ownership by any individual in both new companies, pictures and theatres, which will emerge from the decree looks like a joker to most observers.

The only apparent method of enforcing the provision appears to be a requirement that the stock in one or the other of the two new companies issued to present shareholders must be turned over to a trustee to be sold within a year following the effective date of the decree.

However, it is to be assumed that the securities of both new companies will be listed on stock exchanges. The decree will endeavor to discourage purchase of stocks of both companies by any individual by requiring that the prospective purchaser of the shares of one company sign an affidavit that he is not the owner of shares of the other Paramount company.

That is not likely to deter either an enthusiastic speculator or an earnest investor who might convince himself that the restriction is as meaningless as it appears to be. Individual stock purchasers are not defendants in the Paramount case and more likely than not will have little regard for what appears to be a whimsical addition to a settlement decree.

Who will police such a provision?

Certainly not the broker, who is in business to sell securities to the willing purchaser.

The government?

By what means?

And suppose its agents discover an individual who has elected to purchase the securities of both companies? Under what law would it prosecute such a person?

The decree provision would appear to be more difficult of enforcement than the Federal prohibition laws of the 1920's. They, at least, were on the statute books, and Treasury officials have long since tired of admitting that the prohibition laws were unenforceable.

The Anglo-American Films Council, established with the idea, or hope, that it might agree on solutions of the major problems besetting the industries of the two nations, appears to be unable to agree even on a date for the convening of its first meeting.

Eric Johnston, chairman of the American group, who is generally credited with the idea of forming the council, set a date for a meeting last fall but, according to the British council members, neglected to consult with them beforehand with the result that the suggested date was found to be unacceptable to the Britons.

Thereafter, Johnston consulted with the British members and a date and place for the first meeting, March 23-25 in New York, was mutually agreed upon.

Several months later Johnston suggested a postponement of the meeting to early summer and the inclusion thereat of representatives of the British exhibitors' association, who are as much opposed to Britain's 45 per cent quota as are members of our industry.

J. Arthur Rank, as chairman of the British council group, opposed both a postponement of the meeting and the inclusion of British exhibitor representatives.

It is being argued both here and in London that the American industry representatives have a perfect right to meet with the representatives of their best customers in Britain, the exhibitors.

Of course they have. But since Johnston did not see fit to include British exhibitor representatives when the council was suggested, why do so now against the wishes of the British council members?

A very simple solution would be to proceed with the council meeting as planned, since it was mutually agreed upon well in advance, and at that meeting settle the question of whether or not exhibitor representatives should be admitted to membership in the council.

If they are admitted, it might be well to consider, too, whether American exhibitor representatives should be included also. Industry leaders for long have argued that the exhibitor at home has an important stake in the foreign market problems confronting the American motion picture. Then give him a voice in their solution.

If it is decided not to admit British exhibitors to membership in the council, there is nothing to prevent the American members from meeting with them separately at any time.

M-G-M Concludes 6-Day Coast Meet

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13.—M-G-M's six-day "Preview of Product" conference wound up here on Friday with closing talks by Louis B. Mayer, William F. Rodgers, Dore Schary and Howard Dietz.

The delegates saw "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," "The Stratton Story," "The Great Sinner," "Little Women," "Neptune's Daughter," "The Secret Garden" and "The Barkleys of Broadway" in completed form, and portions of "Madame Bovary," "That Midnight Kiss," "Any Number Can Play," "Conspirator" and "The Good Old Summer Time." Sixteen pictures have so far been announced for release in the first five months. Rodgers will continue studio talks another week, and before leaving here will decide on summer releases.

Discuss Individual Problems

After the general meetings, sales managers met with their assistants, district managers and branch managers, discussing individual problems. On the return of the men to the field they will hold meetings immediately to pass on information Rodgers discussed and also plans for the pictures screened.

Among final speakers from the studio were Richard Powers, music head; Jesse Kaye, records; and William McCrystal, local Loew radio station head.

Rodgers announced plans to send M-G-M men abroad to see at close range the operations of the company on an international scale. "We plan to select 10 men from the ranks of branch managers, district managers, sales managers and assistant sales managers," he said, "to go to Europe and meet with representatives from other countries, probably in Rome, Paris and London."

International Exchange

He added, in order to complete the exchange, a number of men from the foreign field will come to America to meet representatives of the domestic organization.

Dietz reported on sales plans for the anniversary year, mentioning in particular the promotion of "Little Women," which he called "perhaps the greatest job of commercial tieups we have seen since 'Gone With the Wind'."

He also told the conference of a two-reel promotional short, entitled "Some of the Best," which he said would be distributed to all M-G-M theatre accounts. The film will show clips from pictures of the past as well as forthcoming films.

John Leo Is Named To New E-L Post

John Leo has been appointed to the newly-created post of special representative for L. Jack Schlaifer, general sales manager of Eagle-Lion Films by William J. Heineman, sales vice-president. The appointment is effective today, with Leo assigned to the territory covering San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, Denver and Salt Lake City.

Leo, who joined Eagle-Lion in January, 1947, as a salesman in San Francisco, is at present sales manager in that exchange. He entered the industry in 1944 as a booker for Republic.

Hollywood Play Buys Hit a New Low

The sale of screen rights to Broadway plays reached its lowest ebb in two decades during 1948. Authors and producers took a record $4,350,000 from the film industry for 17 plays in 1947, while last year the total was only $350,000 for five plays.

During the early and middle 1930's, depression years, the figures ranged as widely as $2,000,000 in 1936 and $586,000 in 1934. In 1940, 35 plays brought a comparatively low $965,500; in the following year, $2,100,000 was paid for 21 plays.

260 Pre-Releases For 'Vets' This Year

U. S. Veterans Administration plans to exhibit 260 pre-release features this year in "VA" hospitals and homes throughout the country, it was reported here on Friday at the close of a week-long conference of VA executives and distribution representatives at the Hotel Barbizon Plaza. Approximately the same number were exhibited in hospitals last year. Some 156 of the total will be on 35mm. and the remaining 104 wil be on 16mm. A complement of short subjects also are to be shown by the VA.

The conference will submit to Gen. Carl Gray, VA chief, through Gen. F. R. Kerr, assistant administrator of Special Services, recommendations regarding the proposed new structure of VA motion picture operations. VA has eliminated its 13 field booking offices, and it is now up to Gen. Gray to decide whether a central office will handle bookings, unassisted in the field, or whether some field offices will be reopened. The distributors release films to VA at cost. Gen. Gray is expected to reach his decision in a week.

The meetings here were presided over by E. J. Kelly, VA chief of motion pictures, assisted by William J. Jones, Jr., previewing and booking director. Attending from the film companies were: Jay Gove, Loew; Edward McEvoy and A. J. O'Keefe, Universal-International; Maurice Grad, Columbia; Sid Kramer and Malcolm Scott, RKO Radio; Julian Chapman, Film Classics; Frank Soule, Eagle-Lion; Harry Mercer, 20th-Fox; Ira Michaels, Selznick Releasing; Jack Curtin, Republic and Ed Ezzes, United World. Other VA officials on hand were Cliff Bream, Robert Wise and Mrs. Adenia Stern.

Will Not Fire Binford

MEMPHIS, Feb. 13.—Mayor Watkins Overton, to whom the Commercial Appeal directed a suggestion that he ask Lloyd T. Binford to resign as chairman of the Memphis Board of Censors said he did not plan to follow the suggestion. The newspaper hit Binford for some questionable decisions in banning motion pictures, particularly Hal Roach's "Curley."

Walt Disney Dividend

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13.—A regular quarterly dividend of 37½ cents for Walt Disney Prod. stockholders was declared by the company's board today.

Eight 'Depinet Drive' Meetings This Week

RKO Radio will hold "Depinet Drive" meetings this week in Indianapolis and Cincinnati, where district manager M. E. Lefko is drive captain; also in Pittsburgh, where district manager R. J. Folliard is captain. The home office will be represented at these meetings by Nat Levy, Eastern division manager, and his assistant, Frank Drumm.

Drive meetings will also be held in San Francisco, starting today, and in Los Angeles, where Western district manager J. H. MacIntyre is the captain. Present from tahe home office will be Harry J. Michalson, short subject sales manager; Walter E. Branson, Western division manager, and his assistant, Harry Gittleson.

Memphis, Dallas and Oklahoma City will also have drive meetings starting today, and where Ben Y. Cammack, Southwestern district manager, is captain. Charles Boasberg, North-South division manager and his assistant, Carl Peppercorn, will represent the home office.

The 1949 "Depinet Drive" will extend over a 20-week period, ending May 5.

Tax Bills Filed in Four More States

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Bills have been introduced in four more state legislatures to tax admissions, but an Indiana bill calling for a temporary 20 per cent tax to pay for a soldiers bonus has been defeated, according to Jack Bryson, legislative representative of the Motion Picture Association of America.

New tax bills were offered in Tennessee, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota. The Tennessee bill calls for a three per cent general sales tax, including admissions, while the Nebraska bill is for a two per cent general levy, also including admissions. Bryson said he did not yet have details of the Dakota bills.

Ask House Group to Reverse Video Ban

An appeal to the House Committee on Un-American Activities to reconsider its recent decision to ban television cameras from its public hearings has been made by J. R. Poppele, president of the Television Broadcasters Association.

In a letter addressed to John S. Wood, chairman of the House committee, Poppele pointed out that television has expanded rapidly to the extent that now some 54 stations are linked by coaxial cable and microwave relay, permitting millions of Americans to "attend" events of public interest originating in Washington.

Newsreel cameras are also barred from the hearings.

Selznick Meet Shifted

CHICAGO, Feb. 13. — The Selznick Releasing Organization meeting of divisional managers, scheduled to open last Friday was postponed because of the inability of David O. Selznick to leave Hollywood and instead will be held on the Coast this week.

Engineers Meet Feb. 16

The Society of Motion Picture Engineers will hold its monthly meeting here Wednesday in the auditorium of the Western Union building, with the discussion devoted to recent developments in sound-on-film recording.

N.Y. Variety Tent Committees Named

Committees which will launch the new New York Tent, No. 35, Variety Clubs International, and direct arrangements for the local benefit premiere of Allied Artists' "Bad Boy" at the RKO Palace, March 8, were appointed on Friday by Max A. Cohen, president of Motion Picture Associates, which will be chartered as the tent.

For the premiere, the co-chairmen, who will select their own aides, are Charles Schlaifer and Robert Weitman.

The Palace is being turned over to the new tent for the evening by Sol Schwartz, of RKO Theatres. The evening's proceeds will be used by the tent to cover its organizational expenses, the $51,328 in the MPA treasury being reserved for its philanthropies.

Other committees are:

Clubrooms: Harry Brandt, Tom Connors, William Girden.

Finance: Herman Robbins, Walter Reade, Jr.; Sol Trauner and Robert Fannon.

Planning: Morris Sanders, Jules Rieff, Harold Klein, Leonard Goldenson and Jack Alicoate.

Intra-Amusement: Abel Green, Max A. Cohen, with additional members to be named later.

Organization and Membership: Leo Brecher, Fred Schwartz, Jack Farkas, Edward Lachman, William German.

Journal: Allen Smith, with other members to be named later.

Dinner: David Weinstock, Morton Sunshine, Herman Schleier.

Golf Tournament: Don Mersereau, with other members to be announced.

Start Theatre List In World-Telegram

Commencing with today's issue, the New York World Telegram inaugurates a theatre listing covering houses in the five boroughs and Long Island and Westchester. The listing will give the names of the features and their starting time. There will be no charge for the service. The listings are to be under the supervision of George Case. The paper also plans to cover theatres in nearby New Jersey.

Para. Treasury Now Has 816,733 Shares

Paramount purchased last month on the open market 27,500 more shares of its common stock, bringing to 816,733 the total accumulated in its treasury under the stock-purchasing program instituted in November, 1946, by company president Barney Balaban.

Other recently monthly purchases follow: December, 41,700; November, 21,500; October, 40,500; September, 32,500; August, 22,200; July, 31,000.

Refuses Mitchum Plea

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13.—Production on RKO's "The Big Steal" is at a standstill after a plea to get Robert Mitchum, actor in the film's cast, out of jail where he is serving a 60-day sentence for conspiracy to possess marijuana. Judge Clement D. Nye, in refusing the request, said RKO should have known that Mitchum's case presented a "hazard" to production.

needs of new markets," and, moreover, its theatres have gained no competitive advantages since they were acquired. In 13 of the cities of 100,000 population or over, Warner continues, the position of its theatres actually has deteriorated.

Warners asks that it be considered as an individual company, rather than having the court look upon all defendants in the case collectively.

Claim Injunctions Unnecessary

The company joins its theatre-owning co-defendants in pointing to the changes made in distribution practices, such as the avoidance of arbitrary refusal of run and picture-by-picture and theatre-by-theatre licensing, which, with arbitration, make further distribution injunctions unnecessary.

In one respect Warner goes a step beyond other theatre owning companies on the proposed arbitration, i.e., suggesting to the court that it may in its discretion "impose upon any reluctant party a system of arbitration sufficient to remedy the industry-wide evils criticized by this Court. . . ."

United Artists, Universal and Columbia last week told the court in a memorandum that they are opposed to the arbitration system devised and proposed by the majors.

Plan Would Relieve Judiciary

Says Warner: "Arbitration would relieve the judiciary of the continuous complex administrative duties which the Supreme Court envisaged in any compulsory system of competitive bidding.

"It would also relieve the industry of a continuing avalanche of private anti-trust litigation involving the very same complex questions, and relieve the judiciary and the parties herein of endless resort to motions for clarification of the provisions of the decree, as applied to specific situations, and to motions to punish for contempt."

Under the consent decree of 1940 only the companies which agreed to accept arbitration became a party to it. These were, of course, the five majors. The Little Three did not.

Para. Decree

During the five year period, anyone buying trusteed stock must certify that he does not own stock in the production company.

The decree, which is more than 50 pages long, follows the model of the Lehigh Valley and old Union Pacific cases, it was understood.

After five years, it is reported, there is no control over the stock. However, Department of Justice officials are reported to believe that by the end of five years divorcement will be so complete that there will be no chance of anyone regaining control of both companies. Anyhow, if that should happen, the decree could be reopened and a court order to break up such control obtained speedily.

Justice officials are reported to have said that they do not fret about anyone buying up one or 10 shares in both companies; what they are concerned over is control, and they feel that they can keep a check on that.

This week is expected to see the final signing of the decree, with details made public next week. As yet, Paramount has not forwarded a signed copy of the decree to Washington. Justice officials are reported reluctant to put their signature on the decree until the company officials do.

Reviews

"The Clay Pigeon"

(RKO Radio)

"THE Clay Pigeon" is a standard melodrama, unpretentious in production, but generous in action and excitement. The cast, headed by Bill Williams and Barbara Hale, does well with the material, and the direction by Richard O. Fleischer is satisfactory for a film of this classification.

The story concerns a war-stunned sailor and his efforts to clear himself of a charge of treason. Williams, the sailor, supposedly killed a brother-in-uniform as well as betrayed his country to the Japs. A victim of mental blackouts, the entire incident seems hazy to Williams when he escapes from a naval hospital in order to get to the bottom of the story. He calls upon a former navy friend for help, but as it happens, the friend is the real villain and at present is collaborating with the Japs in a counterfeiting deal. Subsequent developments involve several chases and moments of suspense before the real culprits are brought to justice in a two-fisted climax. Miss Hale is pleasing as the girl who first suspects Williams but then helps him. Carl Foreman provided the screenplay which has Richard Quine as the untrustworthy friend and Richard Loo as another evil henchman. Herman Schlom produced.

Running time, 63 minutes. General audience classification. For March release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"My Brother's Keeper"

(Gainsborough—Eagle-Lion)

IF Hollywood had made "My Brother's Keeper," it would have fallen into the slot of gangster films. Also, the probability is it would have had more of the incisiveness and the bite which are the normal assets of this home-made type of story.

But, this attraction was made in England where the tempo is different and so is the approach. Thus, while the general story line bears marked resemblance to many films produced down through the years in Hollywood, the results do not. The consequence is "My Brother's Keeper" emerges as an offering of decidedly minor value for average American audiences despite the believability of most of its performances, which are played in conservative British key.

The principal is hardened-criminal Jack Warner. Handcuffed to George Cole, who probably is innocent of the crime charged against him, both effect an escape while en route to prison. This sets in motion a man hunt with attendant characters and dramatic circumstances, including a murder. The climactic scene finds Warner, closed in by police on all sides, seeking freedom through war department territory where he is blown up by a mine. The finale achieves an interesting degree of suspense, but is not enough dramatic compensation for what precedes. Antony Darnborough produced and Alfred Roome directed for Gainsborough.

Running time, 97 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, not set.

cording to a statement to stockholders by Herbert J. Yates, company president.

Gross revenue for the 53 weeks amounted to $27,072,636, as compared with the previous fiscal year of $29,581,911.

"Your corporation, not being engaged in theatre operations, felt the full effect of the current unfavorable trends in the motion picture industry including the reduction in dollar remittances from foreign markets, high production and distributing costs, and falling off in theatre attendance in the United States," Yates told stockholders.

Cites Funds Abroad

"Practically all foreign countries throughout the world, with relatively few exceptions have taxes, regulations and restrictions which limit and control the distribution of American motion pictures or the remittances from such countries. The cash on deposit by your corporation, accounts receivable and inventories in foreign countries have increased from the equivalent of $625,522 on Oct. 25, 1947, to the equivalent of $1,095,907.74 on Oct. 30, 1948, based upon the rates of exchange prevailing on such dates respectively," Yates said.

"In anticipation of the possible decline in revenues, your corporation during 1947, instituted an economy program throughout its entire organization and as conditions developed during 1948 such program was intensified with regard, however, so as not to impair the efficiency of operations. While general wage and salary levels could not be reduced due to union agreements, managerial and general administrative expenses were reduced including a 50 per cent reduction in the basic salary of the president of your corporation. This economy program will continue until adverse conditions affecting the motion picture industry improve," he added.

"Because of the time-lag inherent in the operations and accounting of a motion picture company such as the period of time between the production of a picture and its release and the subsequent amortization over a period of 65 weeks (domestic) the earnings for the past year reflect the results of high cost pictures before present economies became effective," he said.

Omitted 1948 Dividend

"The board of directors did not, with the greatest reluctance, declare the dividend usually payable on the preferred stock on Oct. 1, 1948, and Jan. 2, 1949. In view of the conditions affecting the industry throughout the world, it was deemed desirable to apply all funds not required in its normal operations towards liquidating bank loans.

"Although your corporation's operations resulted in a loss, its outstanding bank loans were reduced from $3,875,000 as of Oct. 26, 1947, to $2,700,000 as of Oct. 30, 1948. Since Oct. 30, 1948, the bank loans have been further reduced by $750,000 so that as of Feb. 1, 1949, such bank loans amounted to $1,950,000. Your management expects that bank loans will be substantially or entirely liquidated during 1949," said Yates.

As of Oct. 30, 1948, Republic had total current assets of $14,224,240, including cash on hand of $1,670,039, against liabilities of $6,708,885. Inventories at that time amounted to $3,500,605 in released productions, at cost and less amortization, and $3,313,104 in completed productions not released.

Brazil Removes Its Controls on Rentals

The Brazilian government has removed controls on film rentals, according to telephonic advice received here yesterday from Rio de Janeiro by John G. McCarthy, managing director of the international division of the Motion Picture Association of America. Theatre admission prices, however, are to remain frozen at present levels, pending further deliberations, it was reported.

Referee Okays Settlement Of N. T. Suits

New York attorney Jacob S. Demov, acting as referee in the settlement of National Theatres minority stockholder actions against 20th Century-Fox, recommended in a report filed yesterday in New York Supreme Court here that the settlement proposals made before New York Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora last October be approved.

Terms of the proposed settlement, which stemmed from 15 stockholder actions in protest against profits resulting from resale in 1946 of National Theatres' stock to 20th-Fox under 1944 option deals, call for relinquishment of $1,314,250 by Charles P. Skouras, National Theatres president; $198,000 each by executives Elmer C. Rhoden and F. H. Ricketson, Jr., and $39,750 by executive Harold J. Fitzgerald.

Meanwhile, according to Demov's report, National has withheld and segregated all percentage compensation due and payable to the four executives under their contracts for 1946 and 1947 in the following amounts:

FOX AIMS TO SETTLE SUIT, SAYS SKOURAS

Ad Costs Are Up to Exhibitors: Skouras

Up to 1942 exhibitors paid for theatre advertising, then the distributors to a large extent assumed that responsibility. Now it is time again for exhibitors to pay, Spyros P. Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox, said here yesterday in announcing that the company is curtailing the policy of cooperative advertising.

But Would Not Separate Theatres; Talk Terms When Para. Pact Is Set

Twentieth Century-Fox will renew full-scale negotiations of a consent decree with the government in the industry anti-trust suit upon the anticipated formal announcement of Paramount's settlement, Spyros P. Skouras, president, told a press conference here yesterday.

He said that, unlike the terms of the RKO agreement and the one impending with Paramount, 20th-Fox aims to strike a deal with the Justice Department which would allow for continuation of the basis of the company's operations, that its, with exhibition still integrated with production and distribution.

Skouras declined to go into any detail on the nature of proposals which the company is prepared to make. He merely said that 20th-Fox was the "first to reach an understanding" (as he put it) on the dissolution of partnerships in theatre companies with the inference being that an "un-

Allied Urges Tax Repeal, Reduces Official Posts

Mexico Halts Reels Pending Tariff Boost

Mexico City, Feb. 14.—New American newsreels are not now being exhibited in Mexico. Distributors and exhibitors, complaining to the Ministry of Foreign Relations, were told that the case is in the hands of the censors, who referred it to the Ministry of National Economy which explained that it has not finished arranging new and higher tariffs for the supervision of imported reels.

All other pictures are being exhibited without difficulty. Only old American reels, those of a month or more, are being exhibited; they arrived before new tariffs were enacted.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Repeal of the Federal admission tax was urged today by the board of directors of Allies States Assn. on the opening of its two-day mid-winter meeting here at the Statler Hotel.

Indications were, however, that Allied will not do too much in the next 60 days to get action on this resolution. In the first place, many members are known to feel that it would be a waste of time and effort to launch a tax repeal drive now when the House Ways and Means committee will not begin work on taxes until at least mid-April. They believe that Allied should save its strength until taxes come up for hearings.

Secondly, board members were understood to favor delay on the grounds that many state legislatures, which are now meeting, will have adjourned by April and so will not be in a position to pass state admission taxes, or legislation enabling localities to tax theatre admissions should the Federal tax be repealed or reduced.

The Allied board, which held mornderstanding" on the overall differences could be similarly reached. Company has entered a stipulation with the government on breaking up 28 jointly-owned theatre circuits.

Occasion for the press meeting yesterday was Skouras' return to New York after about three weeks in Europe, including Greece, where he attended the enthronement of Athenagoras as the new Patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church.

Skouras spoke at length on the crisis now facing Greece, the atrocities being committed, he said, by Communist guerrillas, and the need for more tangible aid, in the form of munitions and such, from the U. S.

Will Produce Abroad

Tradewise, he disclosed that 20th-Fox will liquidate its blocked funds abroad through foreign production and he specifically mentioned England, France, Italy and Sweden. He said that production in England of "Male War Bride" is near completion with final scenes to be shot in Hollywood, that "Black Rose" is to be started shortly and others to follow will include "Lydia Bailey," "Impulse," and a story on Scotland Yard. "Rose," with Tyrone Power in the lead, will be the most expensive, Skouras said, adding, however, that actual budgets for any of the films have yet to be set. He specifically denied reports from London quoting him as saying that the company would spend $3,500,000 each for three to be made in England.

He said that the company probably will make one or two annually in France and declared that a more ambitious program in that country, announcement of which had been attributed to production chief Darryl Zanuck in reports, is not contemplated at all.

Speaking generally, not limiting his observation to the film business, Skouras said that England's economic position is improving. He said he conferred with Sir Alexander Korda and J. Arthur Rank "on business" (no elaboration). In Italy, 20th-Fox had completed production of "The Little Foxes," Skouras announced.

As for business in the United States, Skouras would be "very happy" if it continues at its present level. He was referring to theatre grosses, reporting that they are only slightly under last year's pace except in areas where severe weather conditions crippled business.

Wins New Delay In Anti-trust Action

BUFFALO, Feb. 14.—A request for 30 days' delay on arguments and hearings in the Schine Chain Theatres defense against government anti-trust charges has been granted by Federal Judge Knight here.

Under the ruling, Schine will present arguments to permit submission of new testimony on March 18, and if the court rules new evidence is permissible, attorneys for the chain will present evidence beginning March 25.

Says U. S. Films Destroy Bigotry

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Motion Picture Association of America president Eric Johnston declared today that "no medium in the world has done more to rip up the evil weeds of bigotry and intolerance than the American motion picture. No industry has done more in a practical and positive way to help bring about greater understanding among the diverse peoples of this earth," he added.

Johnston was guest speaker at the annual Brotherhood luncheon of the Variety Club of Washington at the Hotel Statler here. The club combined with the Brotherhood luncheon its annual Valentine Day party.

New Peskay Suit

Playhouse, both in Greenwich, Conn.

Peskay filed a similar action in 1941 and this was settled out of court in 1947. However, according to the plaintiff's attorney, Saul E. Rogers, the defendants continued with the alleged conspiracy.

Peskay claims that affiliated theatres in surrounding areas were given clearance over his houses "which would not be granted under free and untrammeled competition."

He says if there were free competition instead of the alleged conspiracy, his Pickwick would realize a yearly profit of $125,000. Because of the charged restraints, the house is losing about $40,000 per year, he asserts. Peskay further charges that he has been "virtually compelled" to keep the Greenwich Theatre closed at an additional annual expense of $5,000.

Defendants are: Loew's, 20th Century-Fox, RKO, Warner, Universal, Columbia, United Artists, Skouras Theatres, Metropolitan Playhouses, Spyros P. Skouras, George P. Skouras, Charles P. Skouras, Nicholas M. Schenck, William F. Rodgers, Joseph R. Vogel, Ned E. Depinet, Robert Mochrie, Ben Kalmenson, Nate J. Blumberg, William A. Scully, Jack Cohn, Abe Montague and Gradwell Sears.

NSS Offers to Return Albany Area Office

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 14.—The Albany office of National Screen Service will be reestablished if, at the end of 90 days, exhibitors in this territory still feel that service has been impaired by its transfer to New York, Herman Robbins, NSS president, said in a letter to Leonard Rosenthal, executive director of the local TOA.

Expressing confidence that NSS service will be up to par within the trial period, Robbins said that final disposition of the matter is up to exhibitors. Criticism of the shift of the NSS Albany office came up at a recent meeting of TOA members with George Dembow, NSS national sales manager, and Robbins' letter was in response to a letter from Rosenthal outlining exhibitor complaints.

Golden Assigns Lavery

Emmet Lavery has been assigned by producer Robert Golden to do the screenplay "Guilty of Treason" based upon the book "As We See Russia" by members of the Overseas Press Club of America, it was announced here yesterday by Golden Productions. Golden and Lavery were the producer and writer respectively of "Hitler's Children."

Referee Okays

Skouras, $1,500,238; Ricketson, $126,341; Rhoden, $144,128, and Fitzgerald, $39,796. Thus, in the case of Skouras, there is a credit due him in excess of $185,000, while deficiences exist for Ricketson and Rhoden, and Fitzgerald just about breaks even.

Justice Pecora is expected to call a hearing on the report at an early date. Meanwhile, motions for acceptance or rejection of it can be made. It is held unlikely that an appeal of the referee's ruling will be granted, because great expense would be involved, thus adding to the costs to date.

Stockholder plaintiffs charged in their actions that Skouras under the option deals gained $4,281,250, that Rhoden and Ricketson gained $1,027,000 apiece, and that Fitzgerald got $513,000.

SPG Funds for Sopeg In Election Campaign

CIO's Screen Publicists Guild has voted "to give every support, financial and otherwise," to its "sister union," Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild, in the coming National Labor Relations Board elections in several film company home offices here. Earlier, SOPEG had passed similar resolutions designed to strengthen the ties between the two guilds.

Specifically, according to an SPG announcement yesterday, the motion passed by SPG calls for the contribution of $2,500 from the SPG treasury for the election fight against AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63. Meanwhile, both SPG and SOPEG have voted to withdraw picket lines from New York theatres in the belief that the "cold strike" picketing has served its purpose.

Hollywood Extras Approve New Pact

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 14.—Screen Extras Guild members have approved a new contract with producers by a vote of 2,028 to 198.

The five-year pact provides for a union shop and preference in hiring for those already registered with casting agencies. The agreement also establishes new wage rates for classifications not previously covered by contract and allows reopening rights at stipulated dates in 1949 and 1951.

Fall Release for 'Eiffel'

Actor Franchot Tone, whose A. and T. Productions recently completed filming in France of "The Man on the Eiffel Tower, reported here yesterday that the picture very likely will be released next autumn. A distribution deal for it has not yet been set.

Schussel Leaves E-L

Seymour Schussel has resigned as Eagle-Lion's New York district manager, effective March 11, it was reported here yesterday by E-L distribution vice-president William Heineman. Announcement of a successor is due to be made shortly.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 14.—New officers were installed by the Albany Variety Tent at its seventh annual dinner dance held here last Saturday at the De Witt Clinton.

Hollywood, Feb. 14

JOHN FARROW is to direct "Copper Canyon," Paramount's upcoming Technicolor melodrama of the Old West, featuring Ray Milland and Macdonald Carey. . . . Lester Cowan will leave here next month for England, where he will prepare to produce "Sorrell and Son" jointly with Associated British Films. American distribution has not been determined. . . . Michel Kraike has been given a seven-year contract to produce for Universal-International.

Sol Lesser has exercised his option on the continuing services of Lex Barker, who recently replaced Johnny Weismuller in the Tarzan role, and has instituted a $225,000 advertising-publicity campaign on an international scale in behalf of the Tarzan series. . . . Robert Fellows, producer of the unreleased Bing Crosby picture, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" and currently producing "Red Hot and Blue," has signed up for another year under the Paramount trademark. . . . Robert Stevenson, David O. Selznick contract director, has been loaned to RKO Radio to direct "I Married a Communist."

Screen TV Series

in the series will be presented late next month by 20th Century-Fox and American Broadcasting over its television network.

At the screening yesterday, Spyros P. Skouras, 20th Century-Fox president, stated that the films are for television exclusively "and will not be sold to any theatre."

Produced by March of Time, the 26-week program of 20-minute episodes provides a pictorial history of World War II. The first in the series shows the events before the war's outbreak, the Nazi blitz across Europe and their eventual surrender. It makes a graphic documentary. Installment two deals with the general lethargy of America before Dec. 7, 1941, and then the task of converting civilians into soldiers.

Video-Awareness

many writers and directors are being approached to do television work. He cited one unnamed interest that is trying to set up a group of 10 leading directors and writers for TV films.

Butler stated that "good pictures will always be needed and television will never affect them." He also pointed out that video may now give Hollywood the spur "to try harder and produce even better pictures."

As a result of high production costs every step in the making of a picture is now carefully planned in advance, Butler said. Many new time and money-saving devices have been introduced, he asserted.

Among other things, Butler said that trade press reviews are eagerly awaited and read on the Coast.

"Pictures that are most popular today," in Butler's opinion, are "good comedy-dramas, good mysteries and Westerns."

Butler is under contract to Warner to direct three films a year.

CONGRATULATIONS AND THANKS

Warner Bros. is deeply proud of the splendid artistry of the men and women who made it possible for our studio to win twenty-three Academy Award nominations for motion pictures produced in 1948, including two of the five nominations for Best Motion Picture of the Year.

We are particularly proud of the fine spirit of cooperative effort which brought recognition in every phase of motion picture making.

We want to thank everyone who contributed so much to make this imposing array of nominations possible and to express special appreciation to Henry Blanke, producer of "Treasure of Sierra Madre"; Jerry Wald, producer of "Johnny Belinda" and Steve Trilling, my associate.

We are grateful to all whose splendid achievement won for them and Warner Bros. the highest recognition of their associates in the motion picture industry.

Myers Scores

"that has pervaded the industry during the past year stems from those whose monopolistic privileges are being curbed. In the collapse of their house of cards, they profess to see the end of the world."

While he centered his fire on producer-distributor "pessimists," the Allied counsel had caustic words for exhibitor hand-wringers, too. "Men of little faith are muttering about a business recession, about television and other problems which they have magnified out of all proportion," he stated. "Yet it is obvious that exhibitors will not be required to face difficulties which even compare with those they have already surmounted."

Highlights Listed

Other highlights of Myers' 15-page report:

The Paramount consent decree means "genuine divorcement" and if other defendants follow the pattern, "the controlled market will be destroyed."

Producers should "cease concentrating on Broadway and turn their thoughts to Main Street," and in order to guide them in making pictures for Main Street, the data gathered on audience preferences in film entertainment by Trueman Rembusch for the cancelled all-industry Hollywood meeting should be made public and given wide publicity.

Percentage selling serves no purpose except to allow prdoucers to "squander" more money, but as long as it is used, distributors should make due allowance for a proportionate share of the exhibitors' costs, and should have a cooperative advertising program for all theatres in which each party shares promotion costs in proportion to his share of the gross receipts.

The industry's public relations should be improved by action to discipline erring stars, cutting exorbitantly-high salaries, and putting an end to anti-trust law violations.

Attacks Arbitration

Myers again attacked the arbitration system being proposed by the Paramount case defendants. He included his usual pats on the back for Allied's efforts on behalf of exhibitors, and his usual gibes at "rival associations formed and subsidized by the monopolists to divert exhibitors' attention from the vital issues and beguile them with inconsequential busy-work."

The report said Allied's membership goal this year is 1,000 new members. With the new Mid-Central Allied and Allied Mid-South, there now are 20 regional Allied units, with members in 32 states, it stated.

Myers put in special plugs for Col. H. A. Cole and for president William T. Ainsworth, "who in his first term, has traveled farther and worked harder than any president since the early days." This was taken here as a further indication that Ainsworth will certainly be elected tomorrow to another term as president —if he wants it.

Claims Credit for Allied

Myers opened his report with the declaration that "the operation was successful," referring to the Supreme Court's Paramount case decision. "Having originated the idea of theatre divorcement," he said, "Allied is entitled to crow a little." But he warned that much is still to be done, and "the road is strewn with the wreckage of do-nothing exhibitor associations."

"Most of the major issues that have divided the industry into warring camps have been or are being settled," the report said. "If the parties make a bona fide effort to comply with the rulings, and other needed reforms are adopted, the way will be cleared for genuine cooperation in reinforcing the motion pictures' position as America's basic entertainment and stimulating theatre attendance."

Myers said percentage selling meant that exhibitors had no incentive to exploit films better, or could not afford to. "The history of the industry proves that the theatre owner will pay a fair flat rental for meritorious product," he stated. "The industry has not advanced notably—except in the capacity of the production manager to squander—since the transition from flat rental to percentage selling."

Asks 'Coop' Ads for All

As to cooperative advertising, Myers said that allowances should be granted to all theatres playing on percentage and not just to a few in large cities where the theatres are mostly producer-owned.

Turning to means of bolstering the industry's public relations, Myers attacked MPAA president Eric Johnston for not doing anything about "certain motion picture stars who by their immoral and licentious conduct have not merely discredited themselves but have bespattered all Hollywood and jeopardized the entire industry."

He said that another obstacle that independent exhibitors have to contend with is "the never-ending publicity about the fabulous salaries and bonuses paid big company executives and the Hollywood stars. The publicity cannot be helped—the Treasury is required to release the figures—but there is nothing to prevent the producers from acquiring an improved sense of values and putting into effect needed reforms."

On the subject of Ascap, Myers said that both the Nordbye and Leibell decisions embodied Allied's plan to have the producers clear the public performing rights for film music. He stated that the producers are now doing this, and "now that the practicability of this method has been established, there should never be a return to the old method of collecting those royalties from theatres."

Myers Sees Para. Decree As 'Effective Divorce'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The consent decree now being entered into between Paramount and the Justice Department means "a genuine divorcement," Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States Association, told his organization's mid-winter board meeting here today.

Myers said that if a similar pattern is followed with Loew, Warner and 20th Century-Fox, "the controlled market will be destroyed, and the producers will have to make pictures for sale on their merits in a competitive market." This, he contended, would lead to more and better pictures.

The Allied counsel left no doubt that he believes Paramount divorcement, under the proposed decree, will "stick."

Warns on Complaints

Once a decree is final, he warned, exhibitors must not go running to the Justice Department with every little complaint about how the decree is violated. Instead, they should document their complaints and forward them to national Allied. Myers said he would put all the complaints together, and as soon as a definite pattern was established as regards any one defendant he would forward the entire dossier to the Justice Department, "with reasonable expectation that they (the complaints) will then receive consideration."

Myers said that while the Department "has not been averse to a little horse-trading in regard to the number and location of the theatres which might be retained by a particular circuit, it has been adamant in its insistence on total divorcement. This led to a rift in the ranks of the defendants, who had theretofore held together in a common defense."

No provision against discrimination was included in the RKO decree, Myers said, "but it is believed that the Paramount decree will contain a provision against discrimination in the granting of runs which will bring into operation picture-by-picture, theatre-by-theatre selling in those situations in which the cry of discrimination has been raised. In all other situations and occasions, selling will be in accordance with the elastic method approved by the Supreme Court."

ports not handled under sterling exchange.

Tomorrow a meeting of distribution foreign managers will be held at the Motion Picture Association of America office here to hear a full report on the South African situation.

Said Seidelman yesterday: "As is well known, exhibition in South Africa is concentrated in a few hands, and consequently restrictions on importations became more of a local problem than that of an overseas problem. We (the U. S. companies) have the complete support and cooperation of local interests, and it is only by a united effort on the part of local interests and American interests that some relief can be hoped for."

U. S. companies, Seidelman asserted, are determined to secure a complete revocation of the order.

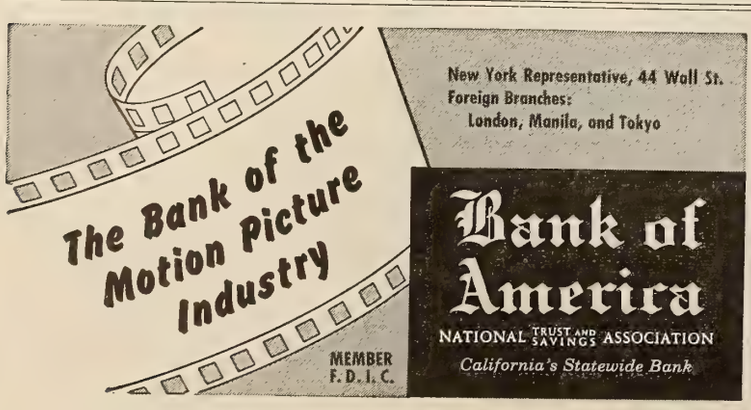
ing, afternoon and night sessions, also voted to streamline the organization's officer set-up. It abolished the six regional vice-presidencies and the nine-man executive committee. Allied States' general counsel Abram F. Myers said that neither vice-presidents nor the executive committee had had any function for some years. He said control in the future will rest entirely in the 20-man board of directors and remaining officers.

Tribute to Myers

Allied's new membership drive—to get 1,000 new members by the next mid-winter board meeting—will be tied in with a personal tribute to Myers. Members will be asked to expand the organization as a mark of appreciation for the general counsel's work in the past.



The board admitted to membership the Allied Independent Theatre Owners of the Mid-South, bringing the total number of units to 20, with members in 32 states.

The board, which will wind up its meeting tomorrow, is expected to make public a lengthy report on audience tastes in film entertainment, the result of a meeting between Allied and distributor representatives on forced selling, and a report on the Allied Caravan committee. It will also elect new officers and discuss a site for the 1949 convention.

AFL Council Wants Ban on Foreign Films

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 14.—Declaring that the production of films abroad by American producers constitutes "unfair discrimination against American workers in Hollywood," the Hollywood AFL Film Council voted today to ask the banning of pictures made in countries where remittances to U. S. producers are frozen.

A committee appointed by the council has conferred with Eric Johnston on the problem, and it is prepared to enlist the support of the entire AFL in urging the State department and Congress to establish the ban.

RKO Bidding To Continue After US Suit

Competitive Licensing Now in 300 Situations

RKO Radio, the lone non-defendant among the eight major film companies in the government's anti-trust suit from which bidding operations sprouted, is still practicing that type of product licensing in upwards of 300 situations and has no intention of eliminating or curtailing it. A ranking RKO executive disclosed here that the company believes the bidding system is the "only fair way" of resolving legitimate disputes on terms

W. B. Is Not Talking Decree with U. S.

WILMINGTON, Feb. 15.—Warner Brothers stockholders at their annual meeting here today were informed that there are no current negotiations between Warner and the Department of Justice with respect to a consent decree in the government's anti-trust suit. The statement on behalf of the management was read to the meeting by the presiding officer, former Federal Judge Hugh M. Morris of Wilmington.

The shareholders re-elected five directors whose terms expire this year: Samuel Carlisle, Stanleigh P. Friedman, Charles S. Guggenheimer, Samuel Schneider and Morris Wolf. Last February stockholders elected John E. Bierwirth, Waddill Catchings, Robert W. Perkins, Albert Warner, Harry M. Warner and Jack L. Warner directors for two years.

New Extension for Loew's Trust Brief

Loew's brief in the industry anti-trust suit is now due next week, another time extension having been granted by the Justice Department and approved by New York Federal Court. Company is expected to seek to justify its system of integrated operations in the new document, deadline for which originally had been extended from Feb. 1 to yesterday and is now again off to next Tuesday.

Thomas Proposes Industry Round-Table on Problems

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—Defeatists within the motion picture industry were bitterly lashed today by Harry Thomas, president of Equity Pictures, who suggested formation of a semi-annual Hollywood round-table involving the production, distribution and exhibition branches of the industry as the first of a two-fold means of solving its problems.

Allied Proposes an Industry Forum to Guide Production

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Allied States Association today proposed the creation of an all-industry forum, to meet twice a year to discuss what the theatre-going public wants to see and why.

It said such a step would bring production in closer touch with the retail market, insure pictures of genuine box-office appeal, and boost theatre attendance.

Participants would include the heads of studios, officers of the Screen Actors Guild, an exhibitor committee and a distributor committee.

Canadian Music Seat Tax Raised

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—Increases ranging from two to five cents in the music royalty per seat assessments levied on theatres by the Canadian Composers, Authors and Publishers Association, have been approved by the government, which controls assessment rates set by the association.

At the same time, the government's Copyright Appeal Board, headed by Justice J. T. Thorson of the Exchequer Court, rejected a Canadian Broadcasting Corp. request for a reduction in the royalties it pays.

N. Y. First-runs at Satisfactory Level

Although some first-run situations in New York are faltering, grosses in the main are satisfactory. "Letter to Three Wives," the "Yellow Sky"-Danny Kaye combination and "The Bribe" teamed with Arthur Godfrey are tops in town.

"Three Wives" with a stage presentation at the Music Hall is hitting a robust pace with $122,000 expected for a fourth week; it will run a fifth, to be followed by "Family Honeymoon." "Yellow Sky," with Danny Kaye topping a stage bill, probably will give the Roxy a second week's take of $111,000, which is plenty big. The Roxy's next will be "Down to the Sea

Loew Considering Enlarging Board

Loew's annual stockholders' meeting is slated to be held the latter part of March, probably on the 25th, at the home office with all 10 directors up for reelection. The company reportedly is considering the nomination of an 11th board member for the purpose of more easily reaching a quorum at routine meetings.

The stockholders' meeting will be followed by the annual meeting.

Benjamin Dismisses Any Curtailment

Plans for continued and most active British Rank Organization film production, instead of plans for curtailment, was what Robert S. Benjamin, president of the American Rank Organization, found in England during his three weeks visit with the British film leader. Benjamin so reported here yesterday on his return to his New York headquarters.

Benjamin explained reports of production curtailment, by saying: "This is due in part to the failure of some outside producers, with whom commitments had been made for studio stage space and distribution, to obtain their own outside money, always necessary for such deals. Also, such curtailment is partially due to closing of a number of our sound stages for reconstruction in preparation for further expansion of the 'independent frame' method of production."

Special Handling for Paramount's 'Laredo'

Paramount's "Streets of Laredo's" release date has been delayed to May 27, instead of March 25, in order to arrange for special handling, an extra build-up and additional advertising, it was disclosed here yesterday by Alfred Schwalberg, Paramount's general sales manager.

At the same time, Schwalberg moved the release date of "El Paso" from May 6 to April 1 and the date of "Bride of Vengeance" from May 27 to May 6.

Dismiss New Orleans Case Against Ascap

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15.—U. S. in Ships," opening on Feb. 22. At the Capitol, "The Bribe," with Arthur Godfrey and his Talent Scouts, is another strong contender, with $84,000 anticipated for a second week, after a tremendous first week's gross of $100,000.

The lone newcomer was "My Dear Secretary," at the Mayfair, and its first week's gross is likely to hit about $20,000, a moderate sum. At the Criterion, "He Walked By Night" is moving at a good clip with about $25,000 seen for the second week. The Strand's "John Loves Mary," with Jack Carson's troupe on stage, should wind up a second week with about $47,500, which is good. "My Own True Love," with the Three Suns and Monica Lewis, among others, on stage, at the Paramount, dropped to a minor $35,000 in its final five days, two short of a full second week; it was replaced on Monday by "Whisperin' Smith."

"Hamlet" still is a favorite at the Park where $15,200, just a little short of previous marks, is apparent for the 20th week. "Enchantment" is fair enough with $17,500 likely for an eighth week at the Astor. The third week of "So Dear to My Heart" should gross about $18,000 at the Palace, which is fair business. "The Snake Pit" still is showing unusual strength at the Rivoli where the 15th week's gross may reach $27,500.

"Command Decision" is dropping off at the State where the fourth week's business is estimated at $23,000. "Red Shoes" continues in the top-money bracket at the Bijou which looks for about $14,800 in an 18th week. "Tarzan's Magic Fountain" should give the Globe $10,000 in a slow second and final week; it will be followed on Friday by "State Department—File 649."

Allied Proposes

The suggestion was contained in the report prepared by Trueman Rembusch for the all-industry Hollywood conference called by MPAA president Eric Johnston and then cancelled. The report was approved by the Allied Board here today.

The all-industry forum, Rembusch said, would be limited to discussion of what elements contributed to successful pictures during the previous months (successful not only in box-office terms, but in bringing credit to the industry), what elements contributed to poor box-office results, and what pictures brought discredit to the industry.

The meetings would be closed.

Urge Company Participation

Another suggestion for better intra-industry relations was for each company head to attend at least three exhibitor meetings a year, have salesmen of all companies on hand at exhibitor meetings to contact customers, and have carefully-selected stars attend exhibitor conventions.

The report was prepared by Rembusch, president of the Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, on the basis of answers to "hundreds" of questionnaires he sent Allied members at the end of last year.

One key suggestion among the replies was to "keep pictures clean." Another was to have all advertising material for blood and thunder pictures emphasize the theme "crime does not pay." Other suggestions were for shorter pictures, more variety and an end to cycles of one particular theme, better story material, better casting of stars, better balance in religious pictures, so that Protestant themes would be "glorified" as well as Jewish and Catholic, better disciplining of erring stars, more emphasis in advertising on mass family appeal rather than on sex and passion, less publicity about how many million dollars a particular picture cost, and a greater number of prints with print quotas on all "A" pictures increased at least 25 per cent.

Want More Selling Aids

The report repeated Allied's demands for an end to advertising in films, better advertising material than is now being obtained from National Screen Service, cooperative advertising for all theatres and not just a chosen few, and more enthusiastic and better selling by the distributors.

The report had this to say about various types of films:

Westerns: Exhibitors agree that they have never had a first-class Western (sometimes called super-Westerns) that was a box-office failure. These do not even have to be super-Westerns if they have a good logical story, competent direction and good acting. They exclude cheap, quickie Westerns.

Out-Door Pictures: "Nature, kid and animal pictures with adequate production and an appealing story seem to be sure-fire at the box-office."

Comedies: "Absolutely sure-fire if the writing is good, the direction sharp, the acting first-class and there is at least a semblance of a story. The people are hungry for laughter; mix it with a little romance and it cannot fail."

Romance: "Pictures which feature romance must be carefully put together. The direction and acting must be good, and the story is very important."

Musicals: "Can be absorbed in moderation, but some new formulas must be developed."

Who-dun-its: "There have been too many in recent years, and the public is getting fed up. Nevertheless, when the story is good and the direction is sharp, these attractions do very well."

In reply to a question about "top grossers," exhibitors answering the questionnaire gave "Fuller Brush Man" first place, followed by "Green Grass of Wyoming," "My Wild Irish Rose," "Easter Parade," "Best Years of our Lives," "Scudda Hoo, Scudda Hay," "Wistful Widow of Red Gap," "Road to Rio," "Bride Goes Wild" and "Sitting Pretty."

"Worst grosser" among high allocation pictures was "Captain from Castile," exhibitors said.

"Down to the Sea in Ships"

(20th Century-Fox)

HERE is the most recent entry in the keen competition for the honors of the best motion picture production of a sea story. Twenty-seven years ago the Elmer Clifton film of the same name was released and hailed in the industry as a masterpiece. Despite the identity in title, this film, elaborately produced by Louis D. Lighton and skillfully directed by Henry Hathaway, has no story relationship to the other except that both pictures start in New Bedford.

In addition to the appealing title, exhibitors have for drawing power good characterizations by Richard Widmark, Lionel Barrymore and Dean Stockwell. In a sense Barrymore's portrayal of the whaling captain determined to train his grandson to follow worthily is the crowning achievement in a long acting career. He and the boy, Dean Stockwell, dominate almost every foot of the tale that is told through two whole hours. Widmark is satisfactory in the difficult role of the one who comes between the boy and his grandfather.

The screenplay, by John Lee Mahin and Sy Bartlett, from the latter's story, moves along quietly and gives full rein to sentiment. With the exception of some moving whale chases and a collision with an iceberg, the action is quite restricted and the drama is developed largely by conversation. Barrymore makes clear the great lesson learned by "the iron men who sailed in wooden ships"; the just man, the man of character, who must at times do things which he knows are right even though they run against his personal wishes.

Following his return from a voyage the boy is passed in his fourth grade examination. This enables the aged whaleship master to make one last trip. The ship owners and insurance men distrust his health and arrange for a young man, a qualified captain, to be the first mate. The stern old sea captain has misunderstandings with both his grandson and the mate. In the end, just before he dies, the others realize the wisdom of his judgment.

Children and young people will especially be thrilled by "Down to the Sea in Ships." Some women will be moved to tears by the touching sentiment of a number of the scenes between boy and grandfather. The action scenes will hold fast the attention of all audiences.

Running time, 120 minutes. General audience classification. For March release. —M. Q. Jr.

that major exhibitor organizations and large circuits form committees to spend two months a year in Hollywood working with producers on all phases of production.

The round-table forums would last one week and would follow intensive meetings lasting three weeks of the committees with producers on all the phases of film production, Thomas stated.

"The committees, consisting of 100 men with proportional representation awarded exhibitors of all types—circuit operators as well as those with one theatre, urban as well as small town—would be chosen by balloting on a regional basis," he continued.

While some bidding is conducted by other distributors they still are enmeshed in the trust action and thus the course of their future operations is not devoid of uncertainties. Other means of meeting exhibitor complaints are product splits, competitive negotiations and conciliation.

Under its settlement with the government, as approved by the New York Federal Court, RKO will not be bound by any new and possibly more onerous provisions of the court's decree, if and when it comes. Consequently, if the court were to order a new method of licensing films, RKO would not necessarily have to comply.

US-UK Meet in April

Allied Retains

the Spring board meeting in May. The board meeting will overlap the convention of Texas Allied, and will be part of an Allied tribute to Col. H. A. Cole.

Today's meeting, among other things, lined up Allied behind a continued drive to eliminate "must" percentage selling, reaffirmed the importance of the Finneran Plan, sent back to the local level the problems of television and cooperative advertising, and authorized a field survey to determine the need of a national field secretary to help local membership drives.

Further Consideration Later

Myers said that any suggestion that producers be asked to place an age limit on any films before making them available for television would be "in restraint of trade," and declared that exhibitors simply would not buy any product with which they would have to compete on television screens. The board then sent the whole question back to the territories for observation and consideration at a later date.

The report on "must" percentage selling, made by a committee headed by Cole which met with sales managers in New York for several weeks, told the board that the work of eliminating the practice had just been started and that even though several companies had expressed a willingness to go along with Allied's policy, there was still "a very wide area between the policies of these companies and the desires of many exhibitors to operate their theatres without the unwelcome partnership which 'must' percentage pictures force on the exhibitor.

Interviews 'Friendly'

The committee emphasized that every interview with the top executives of major companies was friendly and developed progress over conditions which previously prevailed.

The resolution on the Finneran Plan declared that although producers have the primary duty of instituting the necessary reforms to correct errant stars, "The exhibitors also have a public duty not to try to cash in on such notoriety by running pictures featuring such stars." The board reminded exhibitors that any gains derived from such exploitation are temporary and that in the long run "the loss of prestige and good will resulting from an affront to the moral sensibilities of the community will more than offset such gains."

Says 'Package Sales' Illegal

Current "package sales" offered by distributors were discussed in the light of Myers' analysis that such practices were "in the teeth" of the Supreme Court decision in the Paramount case, and recommended that exhibitors use that argument.

Competition from Army and Navy theatres were discussed and Allied members having complaints about competition from service theatres were requested to send in authenticated complaints, to be taken up with the War Department.

In connection with the rental of the industry public relations shorts, the board agreed to send a committee of three—Rembusch, Ray Branch and Sam Switow—to MPAA president Eric Johnston, to remind him that it was previously agreed that no rental terms would be fixed without the committee's participation. It was agreed that not more than four of the films should be released now.

Adverse Tide Of Legislation Still Mounting

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. — State legislation inimical to exhibition and distribution continues to be a constantly mounting threat with new taxation and censorship bills being reported daily as a record number of state legislatures continue in session, Jack Bryson, Motion Picture Association of America legislative representative, reports.

Bills to increase both theatre and distribution taxes have been introduced in West Virginia.

One measure calls for a two per cent reel use-tax on every reel used in the state, while another "enabling" bill would allow municipalities to levy a two per cent tax on each theatre ticket sold.

One of the few recent actions favorable to the industry was Idaho, where the legislature passed a bill permitting theatres to stay open on Sundays. The governor must still approve the measure, but Bryson said that there is no reason to believe he would not.

Bryson said developments affecting

Would Fine Theatres $63,850,000

St. Louis, Feb. 16.—Suits asking for fines of $63,850,000 have been filed against seven theatres in Southeastern Missouri under the "public informer" clause of a law of Civil War vintage requiring theatres to have three-foot aisles.

The statute, passed in 1869, was unearthed by two Cape Girardeau lawyers. Under its provisions they could recover half the fine and are asking the maximum penalty of $5,000 for each day of operation for five years.

Theatre owners against whom suits have been filed are: Fox Midwest (Cape Girardeau), Edwards and Plumlee (Ironton), Bud Mercier (Fredericktown) and O. W. McCutcheon (Sikeston and Charleston).

Lawson and Trumbo Appeal Up Feb. 24

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Argument on the appeals of screen writers John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo from their convictions for contempt of Congress, has been scheduled for Feb. 24 in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here.

The two writers were convicted in District Court for being in contempt of Congress in refusing to answer whether or not they belonged to the Communist Party, during testimony before the House Un-American Activities Committee in the Fall of 1947. The fate of eight others of Hollywood also cited for contempt depends on the outcome of the Lawson and Trumbo cases.

A decision is not likely until April.

Cost-and-Profit Problems Are Solved By Popcorn and Candy Sales: Ruffin

Profits last year from popcorn and candy concessions in theatres are cited by Kentucky-Tennessee circuit owner W. F. Ruffin as having rescued many a theatre from losses sustained by the exhibition end of operations. A member of the Theatre Owners of America's national executive board, Ruffin has been vacationing in New York with Mrs. Ruffin following the recent TOA executive committee meeting in Washington. He is president of Ruffin Amusement Co., with headquarters in Covington, Tenn.

So impressively profit-performing are theatre candy counters, in Ruffin's opinion, they serve to compensate measurably for steadily mounting theatre operating costs and falling exhibition profits. He said that was the experience of his 14-house circuit last year. If theatre candy counters were during the last depression the "institution" they have been in recent years, Ruffin believes theatres would not have been hit then as hard as they were.

Paramount Decree Would Permit 'a Few Houses'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Industry and government sources here were of the opinion that a consent decree between the Justice Department and 20th Century-Fox might permit the film company to keep an integrated production-distribution-exhibition firm but only if the theatre holdings were limited to a few showcase houses.

Allowing 20th Century-Fox to keep anything more would not only be a departure from the government's traditional policy but would be "a breach of faith with Paramount," which was not permitted to maintain an integrated set up.

Officers Hear DeBra On Films for Youth

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 16.—Arthur H. DeBra, director of the community relations department of the Motion Picture Association of America, spoke here last night before the Probation Officers of New York on the subject of motion pictures and juvenile delinquency.

Through the restrictions of the Production Code and the work of previewing committees to classify films for children, DeBra said, "the motion picture theatre today exercises a constructive influence in the lives of children."

Harry Lamont, as temporary chairman of the Albany TOA, speaking on "what theater owners are doing to help combat juvenile delinquency through TOA's National Youth Month" said the TOA short, "Report for Action," was sent to 14,000 theaters last September. It outlines the procedure by which a community organizes to fight delinquency.

Boston Industry To Honor Horan

BOSTON, Feb. 16.—George (Bill) Horan, newly-appointed Warner district manager here, will be honored at a luncheon Feb. 28 at the Hotel Statler. Dervin, Ben Rosenwald, Ben Abrams, Ross Cropper, Gus Schaefer, Al Daytz, Harry Segal, Clayton Eastman, Frank Dervin, John Moore, Al Swerdlove, Arthur Howard, Harry Kirchgassner, Joseph Levine, Max Farber.

Also expected to attend are Ben Kalmenson, Warner general sales manager, and Jules Lapidus, Warner Eastern sales manager.

Goldwyn Calls Off Rossellini Deal

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16.—Samuel Goldwyn yesterday withdrew from the recently-announced deal with Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini for the production of one picture by the latter starring Miss Bergman in Italy this summer. Although Goldwyn declined comment on his withdrawal, it was reliably reported the move came when the impossibility of resolving certain details developed. The project had been launched with all principals presiding at an elaborate press conference on Feb. 2.

RKO entered the picture today, with negotiations reported to take over the financing and distribution of the film. Music Corp. of America is representing Rossellini and Miss Bergman in talks with Howard Hughes.

Premiere for Hotel, Film

Marguerite Chapman, Walter Brennan, Robert Paige and Natalie Wood, stars of "The Green Promise," will go to Houston for the joint premieres on March 17-18 of Glenn McCarthy's Shamrock Hotel and the picture which he produced for RKO Radio release. More than 200 film notables and correspondents will attend.

TOA, Distributors To Discuss Shorts Costs

Gael Sullivan, Theatre Owners of America executive director, reported yesterday that he expects to confer here before the weekend with distribution executives Robert Mochrie, Andy W. Smith, Jr., and A. Montague in an attempt to settle the disagreement which has arisen over the absorption of costs in connection with the production and exhibition of the industry's institutional short subject series. The trio make up a committee, under Mochrie's leadership, assigned to examine protests of circuit owners against paying full short-subject prices for the industry public relations pictures.

It was reported also by Sullivan that TOA will shortly sponsor a screening of the first four subjects of the series for New York exhibitors.

Short Subject

"Our Daily Bread"

(This Is America-RKO Pathe)

The story of bread—from its simple production to its world consequences—is told in this latest of RKO's This Is America series. Like others in the series, the subject is serious and informative. It has a batch of interesting statistics, but for the most part the film is concerned with the efforts that go into the making of bread, from the planting of wheat to the baking. Also shown are how scientists examine wheat from all parts of the world to find the most suitable type. Running time, 17 minutes.

Egypt Liquidates Dollar Remittances

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The Egyptian Finance Ministry has approved about $241,000 in dollar remittances for U. S. distributors, and this, plus acceptance of sterling transfers by the various companies, liquidates the accounts accumulated since May 15, 1948, for remittance. The government allows 35 per cent of earnings to be remitted.

The payment does nothing toward reducing the amount of earnings in excess of 35 per cent which have been blocked since July, 1947. A report on the liquidation was made here by U. S. Commerce Department film chief Nathan D. Golden.

Delay Brief Filing in 5th & Walnut Appeal

Distributor defendants named in the Fifth and Walnut Amusement Co. appeal brief have been granted two additional weeks in which to prepare and file briefs with the U. S. "South of St. Louis"

(Warner Brothers)

Hollywood, Feb. 16

THERE'S a wealth of background, historical as well as scenic, for this big-scale and Technicolored attraction offering Joel McCrea, Alexis Smith, Zachary Scott, Dorothy Malone, Victor Jory, Douglas Kennedy and Alan Hale in its principal roles and a big, competent cast in support. The production, by Milton Sperling is vast and measured, in the tradition of the "outdoor epic" so much in vogue at this time, and contains, in addition to the stirring conflicts common to its kind, the special value that accrues from a firm backgrounding in the nation's history. The general setting is the Texas border, and the time is during and after the Civil War, the story concerning the unofficial but violent conflict which raged between guerrilla bands engaged in smuggling arms to the embattled armies. The attraction has what it takes to make its profitable way in a market currently manifesting a healthy appetite for this type of product.

Written by Zachary Gold and James E. Webb, and directed by Ray Enright, the film presents McCrea, Scott and Kennedy as partner-owners of a ranch from which cattle are being rustled. Returning from an unsuccessful pursuit of the rustlers, they learn that Jory (as Luke Cottrell) and his raiders have burned their buildings. Abandoning temporarily their attempt to operate the ranch under wartime conditions, the partners set out to bring Jory to justice, and become involved variously in the several threads of a story, violent in some of its phases and romantic in others, woven tapestry-fashion to make up a convincing representation of the period and its people. There are fights and killings, misunderstandings and readjustments, spiritedly dealt with, the end coming in the post-war period with McCrea and Miss Smith returning to the ranch to repair the ravages of war.

Running time, 88 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

"Slightly French"

(Columbia)

DON AMECHE, herein a film director of the perfectionist type, elevates Dorothy Lamour from carnival chorine to glamorous movie queen in a pleasant and diverting romantic comedy entitled "Slightly French." Though the plot unravels with few surprises, the situations are humorously done and the players come through with engaging performances, the story takes time out for numerous musical divertisements, Miss Lamour's repertoire ranging from the can-can to something of a combined adagio-ballet number. She sings "Let's Fall in Love" over and over again, good but overdone. On the whole, "Slightly French" stacks up as agreeable fare and looks like satisfying box-office material.

"Slave-driver" Ameche works his French star, Adele Jergens, to exhaustion, her big picture is shelved, and he is fired by "J. B.," unseen studio chieftain whose authoritative voice is heard throughout over a dictaphone. Ameche sees a substitute in Miss Lamour, Brooklyn's gift to tent-show artistry. He schools her to masquerade as a new French "find" and his picture resumes to everyone's delight. Ruse is discovered but "J. B." recognizes the value of the publicity, clears the way for the film, one which, it is inferred, will have exhibitors jumping over fences to get to. Ameche realizes that he is in love with Miss Lamour, who had taken to him right at the start. Ameche's sister, Janis Carter, also finds a partner in romance in amiable Hollywood producer, Willard Parker. Other performers are Jeanne Manet, Frank Ferguson and Myron Healy. Irving Starr produced and Douglas Sirk directed the Karen DeWolf screenplay. Film is sepia tinted.

Running time, 81 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

tinsky, David Snapper, Harold Klein, Nathan Furst, Jack Farkas, Charles Penser, Howard Levy, David I. Levy, Cy Seymour, Ray E. Moon, Lew Brecher, Harold Rinzler and Fred J. Schwartz.

Organization work for the new tent is progressing and it is expected that applications for members of tents in other cities for transfer to No. 35 will be ready within ten days.

Conversion of former members of Motion Picture Associates to the new tent will also be handled at the same time.

To Aid 'Bad Boy' Premiere

First big activity of the new tent will be the premiere of "Bad Boy" at the RKO Palace here on March 8. A committee headed by Charles Schlaifer is lining up a stage show and promotional activities in connection with the performance.

It is expected that the New York tent will take an active part in the operation of the Will Rogers Hospital in Saranac Lake when International Variety takes over the project.

Temporary offices for the new tent will be established at 214 West 42nd Street until clubrooms in the Hotel Astor are ready. Patricia Sheeky will be club secretary.

Three committee meetings of New York's tent were held here yesterday.

Name International Delegates

A board meeting named Cohen, Klein, Saul Prauner and Morris Sanders delegates to the International Variety conference and set local dues at $25 annually.

The committee on organization and membership also held its first meeting, with Fred Schwartz, Century Theatres, as chairman. Other committee members are Brecher, Farkas, Ed Lachman and William German. An initiation fee of $15 was decided upon.

Another committee, on constitution and by-laws, has been set up with Ira Meinhardt, Bert Sanford and William Murphy serving as members.

$200,000 Variety Club on the Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16.—A Variety Boys Club building costing $200,000 and accommodating 2,000 boys will be opened with suitable dedication ceremonies on Feb. 24, chief barker Charles Skouras announces. Located in East Los Angeles, the club was designed and constructed in cooperation with the Boys' Clubs of America.

Rank Dismisses 550 British Workers

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Dismissal of another 550 film employees was announced here today by J. Arthur Rank, bringing the total of laid-off Rank workers to 2,500, one-quarter of the number normally employed.

Intervention by Prime Minister Clement Atlee to "save the industry" has been asked by Tom O'Brien, secretary of the National Assn. of Theatrical and Cinema Employees and a member of Parliament.

Monday that his firm would resume negotiations with the Department of Justice for a consent decree leaving Fox an integrated firm, as soon as the Paramount decree was announced. No negotiations have started yet, Justice officials said today.

Justice officials now set Friday or Saturday as the date for final signing of the Paramount decree. Assistant Attorney General Bergson will be in New York tomorrow addressing the New York City Bar Association, and it is extremely unlikely that the signing will take place in his absence. Signing has been delayed by "minor details," officials said.

Meanwhile, in New York, it was learned that while the proposed Paramount decree does not permit the production-distribution firm that will result from the reorganization to keep even showcase theatres, there is nothing in the decree to keep the firm from buying or building such theatres later. It could not buy theatres from the Paramount exhibition firm or from any other Paramount case defendant, but it could buy a few showcase theatres from non-defendants or build its own without running afoul of the Justice Department or the anti-trust laws.

new separate and independent companies will be formed, one for theatre operation and the other to engage in production and distribution. Under the plan for re-distribution of the shares a holder must elect to take stock in either of the two companies, but may not have interests in both.

Greatest concentration of stock in the present parent corporation is in the hands of the University of Chicago, which is believed to hold about 30,000 shares.

Stockholders' approval of the reorganization, which is the basis for the company's industry trust suit settlement with the government, requires an affirmative vote of 66⅔ per cent. Paramount has about 6,000,000 shares outstanding.

It is understood that last-minute changes in phraseology of the consent decree with the Justice Department, all said to be relatively minor, have been holding up the actual signing.

"Easy Money"

(Rank—Eagle-Lion)

A THOROUGHLY delightful screenplay that puts a humorous mirror to human frailties has been fashioned by Muriel and Sydney Box in this J. Arthur Rank presentation of "Easy Money." Much of the film's joy results from the accomplished character delineation of a cast headed by Gretna Gynt, Dennis Price and Jack Warner. Selective audiences are in for a highly satisfying time with this Eagle-Lion release.

The film presents four separate stories about people who strike it rich in a football pool. Each episode has a self-contained plot and shows the influence of the "easy money" on each set of characters. All the irony and humor inherent in such a theme has been fully realized in the picture.

Episode one introduces a typical British family presided over by Warner as the father. The complications caused by the prospect of a fortune provides the theme. Episode two depicts the effect of the fortune on a little henpecked city clerk who tries to summon up enough courage to resign from his job. Episode three is an adroit little drama about a night club singer and her lover who try to cheat the pool. Episode four offers a hilarious caricature of a dispirited bass player who fulfills his inner-yearnings by winning the pool.

All four episodes have quality and substance. A Sydney Box production for Gainsborough, it was produced by A. Frank Bundy and directed by Bernard Knowles.

Running time, 94 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

U. S. Business in Mexico Decreases

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 16.—Complaint is heard in American distribution circles here about a steady decrease in profits resulting from higher taxes and expenses and diminishing business. While some in these circles say hiking the admittance price for front line first-runs to $1, even to $1.50, is the only out, general opinion is that there is no hope in that direction because the 62 cents which has held for so long is as much as exhibitors dare charge, in the face of many complaints about the high cost of theatregoing and the economic plight of most in this country at present.

It is said that Mexico may soon have to follow the example of most Spanish American and many European countries and freeze dollars.

Trade estimates are that American pictures grossed some $11,000,000 in Mexico last year.

10-Day Coast Meet

tives of overseas developments and their anticipated effect on industry operations here.

According to an MPAA spokesman in New York, presidents of the film companies are not expected to participate in the Coast conferences, although probably one or more of the top executives will be on hand from time to time during the conferences.

McCarthy met here yesterday with film company foreign managers for a review of overseas affairs, including the recently-settled situation in Brazil where controls on rentals no longer are in effect. Additionally, Joseph Seidelman, Universal-International's chief of foreign operations, presented an analysis of import restrictions adopted in South Africa, from where he returned recently. In due course, it was said, a group of U. S. film company foreign heads and MPAA executives will go to South Africa to protest the South African government's action. It is expected to be some time, however, before the situation there attains "emergency" proportions which would justify such a trip. It is held possible, meanwhile, that protests by South African exhibitors may win repeal of the 50 per cent-of-earnings restriction on film import income.

the industry in state legislatures are coming thick and fast. He lists these other recent developments:

Tennessee: A bill to allow Nashville to tax theatre tickets has been proposed. The amount of the tax is not yet known.

Montana: Theatre license fees have been increased. Bryson did not yet have a report on the amount of the increase.

Colorado: A censorship bill has been introduced.

New Jersey: The state legislature has taken a three weeks recess without acting on a censorship bill.

Georgia: A censorship bill has been taken from the calendar and sent back to committee. The legislature recesses Friday.

Dollar a Reel Tax Asked In Iowa Legislature

DES MOINES, Feb. 16.—A bill filed in the Iowa legislature would allow the state to assess a $1 tax on each reel of pictures shown in Iowa theatres. Another provision of the bill, filed by state representative E. A. Burlingame, Jr., would require distributors to pay $1,000 for an annual permit.

The tax yield, estimated at upwards of $250,000 a year, would be used for old age assistance.

Connecticut May Tax Vending Machines

HARTFORD, Feb. 16.—A bill that would impose a $100 tax on each pinball, juke box, candy machine and cigarette vending machine in theatres and in other public places in Connecticut has been introduced in the state legislature here by Rep. Campbell. A sizeable number of state theatres maintain such machines.

Repeal of the state sales tax, the old stock tax, the estate penalty tax, and the unincorporated business tax, which bring in millions per year has been requested by Gov. Bowles.

Discuss Costs of Industry Shorts

A distributors' committee headed by Robert Mochrie and including William A. Scully, Andy W. Smith, Jr., and A. Montague yesterday conferred with Theatre Owners of America executive director Gael Sullivan on the question of exhibition and distribution cost-sharing in connection with the presentation of the industry public relations series of short subjects.

The Mochrie committee presented to Sullivan the distributors' viewpoint, presumably that exhibitors and distributors are equally responsible for the program. Sullivan, in turn, will report to the TOA board. Further meetings between Sullivan and the distributors are expected.

Exchange Pay Hike Is Due

By the end of next week an agreement is expected to be signed closing the long-standing negotiations between IATSE and distributor representatives on a national exchange workers contract. A pay raise for 6,300 exchange workers in 32 exchange centers is anticipated.

Since last weekend when the negotiators held their last meeting here with Federal Mediator L. A. Stone a number of meetings have been held without the mediator. Stone reportedly brought the two sides to a point of agreement from where they could set details to their mutual satisfaction. A final negotiation meeting is scheduled for next week to complete pre-signing arrangements.

US Will Watch Decree Compliance: Bergson

'Brotherhood Week' Starts on Sunday

Spearheaded by a large majority of theatre operators, "Brotherhood Week" will start this Sunday and will run through the following Sunday, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Under the slogan, "No Bigotry in America!", Brotherhood Week will be observed by all branches of the motion picture industry and by other businesses and organizations throughout the country. Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO, is the amusement division's national chairman for the Brotherhood Week committee.

Assistant U. S. Attorney General Herbert A. Bergson, in charge of anti-trust law enforcement, said here yesterday that "divestiture and divorcement are the most expeditious means of eradicating the economic consequences of monopoly."

Consent judgments, Bergson said, "always present problems of compliance and enforcement, and to meet this, we have assigned a number of attorneys to study compliance with judgments."

Bergson, who has handled the negotiations for the impending Paramount consent decree, signing of which is expected today or tomorrow, spoke before the New York Bar Association. He did not mention the Paramount case by name, but mentioned several things which bear on the case.

Bergson defended the entry of con-

Maker of dreams . . .

● To make dreams like this convincing . . . to show them with the smoothness that brings life and reality . . . that is the job of the optical-effects man.

Yet it is only one of his many contributions to modern pictures. By his skill with the optical printer . . . his production of fades and wipes, of dissolves and laps . . . he plays an important part in giving American movies their high standard of technical excellence.

If the optical-effects man is to play this part to the full, he must use dependable film of superior quality. That's why he usually prefers to work with the large and well-known family of Eastman motion picture films.

"Caught"

(Enterprise-M-G-M)

JAMES MASON'S first American-made picture provides showmen with many a peg on which to hang an exploitation angle. A tangled romantic triangle done in a realistic pattern, it also features Robert Ryan and Barbara Bel Geddes. A sturdy production treatment has been accorded the Enterprise picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release.

The story, for the most part, revolves around the role of Miss Bel Geddes, a pleasant young girl who falls in love and marries Ryan. Unfortunately, Ryan, a millionaire playboy, has his sadistic tendencies and it is not long before his cruelties cause Miss Bel Geddes to run away. At this juncture she meets Mason, a struggling pediatrician, and gradually the two fall in love. Thus the situation develops to the point from which the film derives its title, as Miss Bel Geddes is "caught" between the man she loves and the twisted creature she married.

The screenplay, by Arthur Laurents, frequently delineates the psychological motivations of some of the extreme conduct and it stirs many moments of dramatic intensity. Before the film reaches its conclusion, Miss Bel Geddes has a prematurely-born baby, but the baby's death frees her finally from Ryan's hold. The three principals give sharp and adroit focus to their characters. Ryan stresses cruel emphasis to his portrait of a man on the brink of madness, and Mason's suave mannerism is matched by Miss Bel Geddes' vigorous vignette.

Others in the cast are Ruth Brady, Curt Bois and Frank Ferguson. Max Opuls directed and Wolfgang Reinhardt produced. The screenplay was from the novel "Wild Calendar, by Libbie Block.

Running time, 88 minutes. Adult audience classification. For March release.

luncheon at the Hotel Astor here, at which trade press cooperation was requested for the drive, to be held May 16 to June 30.

Aims of the drive were described by Vernon Clark and Louis Carow, Jr., representing the Savings Bonds division of the U. S. Treasury Department. Industry activities and plans for the drive were discussed by Bergman, Max Youngstein, chairman of the industry's advertising-publicity committee; Sullivan, Sam Shain, representing Smith, and Tony Muto, Movietone News Washington representative.

Sullivan said it is planned to retain intact for the bond drive most of the field organization already set up for the industry's participation in "Brotherhood Week," which will be observed next week. Youngstein plans to make the services of his entire Eagle-Lion advertising-publicity department available for the industry bond campaign in lieu of designating a general committee to handle advertising-publicity work on the drive.

Early plans for industry campaign activities include production of a six-minute subject by the Hollywood committee; brief newsreel clips to be included in all reels, star tours, and special trailers to be provided by National Screen Service.

Importance of the trade press role in the campaign was stressed by all speakers. "Without its cooperation the drive cannot be a success," it was emphasized.

Rank's Layoffs

Commons demonstration, is expected to resume activity tomorrow. Meanwhile, Rank has met with trade union secretaries, including Tom O'Brien of the National Association of Theatrical and Cinema Employes, who is a member of Parliament. Rank reportedly stated that he will continue to develop his cost-saving "independent frame" production methods, "whatever the cost," claiming that "these modern methods" ultimately will benefit both producers and workers.

Rank said he hopes it will not be necessary to issue any further lay-off notices, and will not do so unless causes beyond his control demand such action. He has agreed to meetings every two weeks with the union secretaries to discuss developments.

Board of Trade president Harold Wilson next Wednesday will preside at a meeting of the National Film Production Council which will discuss the entire British production situation. O'Brien has asked Prime Minister Clement Attlee to receive the Council to discuss the crisis, but the government has maintained that the matter does not rate cabinet level discussion on the ground that the BOT is the proper authority.

Both Denham and Pinewood studios are producing one picture at a time, thereby making impossible fulfilment of Rank's previous claim that he can make 60 first features annually.

Responsible exhibitors are increasingly convinced that the 45 per cent film quota here will collapse soon.

Rank Claims He's on Right Road at Last

Sticks By New Policies; Besting U.S. Monopoly

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Asserting that production extravagances have been responsible for over-employment in British studios, J. Arthur Rank said on Friday that he had postponed for as long as possible the dismissal of unneeded workers.

It was Rank's first public statement since development of the studio redundancy (over-employment) crisis.

Streamlining of British production to conform with the current box-office potential for current releases made numerous employes redundant and led to their dismissal, Rank said. It is estimated that 2,500 British studio em-

Map Plans for 14 at Feb. 28 Para. Meet

Releasing and promotional plans for some 14 Paramount features will be mapped by the company's top New York and Coast executives at a week-long studio meeting which will begin in Hollywood on Feb. 28. New product will be screeened for the group and among the more prominent matters on the agenda are huddles with Cecil B. DeMille and William Wyler on campaigns for "Sampson and Delilah" and "The Heiress," respectively.

It appears likely, according to sources here, that the company's plan for reorganization and its effects on the studio operations also will be taken up although discussion of this has yet to be slated for the meeting.

Participating from New York will be Barney Balaban, president; Adolph

Paramount Plan Is Filed with the SEC

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Paramount Pictures' proposed reorganization plan to carry out terms of its anti-trust consent decree has been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

SEC officials said they would try to get their opinion of the plan out to the company early this week, since the company has told them it has tentatively planned to mail out the proxy statements on the plan to its stockholders at the end of the week or early in the following week.

Harry LaVine Elected N.Y. Colosseum Head

Harry A. LaVine of Monogram has been elected president of the New York lodge of the Colosseum of Motion Picture Salesmen of America, succeeding Charles Penser of RKO Radio.

Reelected were Harry Fellerman, Universal - International, vice - president; Lee Mayer, Warner, secretary, and Howard Levy, M-G-M, treasurer. Tony Ricci, Republic, was elected sergeant-at-arms.

Basil O'Connor, American Red Cross chairman, will speak on the forthcoming annual drive for funds to be conducted in Metropolitan New York.

$4½ MILLIONS FOR HUGHES' 24% OF NEW RKO THEATRES

New RKO Companies Keep Same Officers

Initial managements and staffs of the new RKO pictures company and new theatre company will in general be the same as at present, RKO directors state in the notice to stockholders of the company's divorcement reorganization plan. Boards of the new companies will elect officers subsequently.

It is also the plan to divide the present RKO Building home office space at Rockefeller Center, New York, between the two new companies.

Hughes Has Option On RKO Warrants

Howard Hughes has an option to purchase from Atlas Corp. its 327,000 RKO common stock warrants. Hughes last year purchased 929,020 shares of RKO common stock held by Atlas, representing 24 per cent of the outstanding shares of RKO.

Maximum Price Under Option to Atlas Corp.; Reorganization Plan Set

A maximum cash price of $4,500,000 for Howard Hughes' 24 per cent stock interest in the new independent RKO Theatre company, to be formed as part of the consent decree reorganization of the present company, is provided for in the option held by Atlas Corp.

Hughes has the right under the option agreement to seek cash offers for his theatre company stock from outsiders and if they are obtained, Atlas Corp. has the right to meet them. The theatre company stock is to be offered by Hughes at a price not to exceed $4,500,000 only in the event he is unable to obtain outside offers.

The plan of reorganization for RKO, to be voted on by stockholders of the company on March 28 at a meeting at Dover, Del., was made public on Friday. Unless the plan is approved by two-thirds of the stockholders then or prior to March 30, it will become ineffective.

Hughes, Dietrich to Go on RKO Board

Howard Hughes, owner of 24 per cent of RKO's common stock, will go on the board of directors of the company together with Noah Dietrich, his business associate. Both are candidates for election at the meeting of RKO stockholders on March 28.

They will replace N. Peter Rathvon, former RKO president, and Floyd Odlum of Atlas Corp. Stockholders will vote on reduction of the board membership from nine to seven. Other board candidates are Ned E. Depinet, Frederick L. Ehrman, L. Lawrence Green, George H. Shaw and J. Miller Walker, all of whom are presently members of the RKO board.

"A Connecticut Yankee In King Arthur's Court"

[Paramount]—Ace-High Crosby

MARK TWAIN'S famous story is such an obvious natural for Bing Crosby that it is to wonder why Paramount neglected getting around to it sooner. But whether sooner or later, here is an attraction to warm the cockles of any audience's—and any exhibitor's heart.

This is the third time for the yarn. Fox made it twice, first as a silent film in 1920 with Harry Myers, and then as a talking film with Will Rogers 11 years later. Therefore, it is almost two decades and, significantly, almost another generation, since there has been a film about the Connecticut blacksmith who was conked on the head by a falling tree and transported backward 13 centuries into Camelot, King Arthur's court, his Round Table and the delicate lady so fancily named Alisande La Carteloise.

The story ought to require no detailed accounting. Bing is the blacksmith who finds himself cluttered in the lances, maces, armor and

Rank Claims

ployees are idle now, about one-fourth of the total previously employed.

Rank said his organization, unlike independent producers here, has no financial difficulties.

"I can go to the National Provincial Bank and get what I want at any time," he said.

But Rank will not put additional money into production before the commercial results of his new operating plans have been tested, he asserted. He claims that the public will not see the difference in his new independent frame and the old standard production process. The independent frame method has eliminated the need for numerous Rank studio workers.

However, employes also have been laid off as a result of curtailed production plans, Rank having stated that he expects to make only 42 pictures this year, whereas six months ago he claimed he would make 60 pictures in 1949. That was when he was assuring the Board of Trade that British producers would be able to supply sufficient product to meet the 45 per cent film quota law. It is now apparent that producers can do no such thing.

Rank claims his production experience has passed through the experimental stage and that he has won a substantial share of the world's screens from the American film monopoly.

"We've got our feet in so firmly they'll never shift us now," he said.

He claimed that two unnamed films of his, presumably "Hamlet" and "Red Shoes," will bring $4,000,000 in rentals to Britain this year. He admitted that hitherto he had been worried about costly production adventures such as those two pictures, but claimed he has the know-how now to make a few of these while concentrating mainly on medium-cost features. He said his 42 pictures this year will not cost more than $600,000 each.

Rank blamed the entertainment tax as being largely responsible for the crisis of independent producers whose diminished receipts prevent them from offsetting the loss on one picture against the profits from another. He claimed his organization is over the hill and its position consolidated.

RKO Plan

vember in U. S. District court here, the plan provides for the formation of two independent companies, picture and theatre, by next Nov. 8.

Holders of stock in the present company will receive one share in each new company for every share presently held. Prior to consummation of the plan, RKO Theatres will make an extraordinary distribution to the present parent company of $10,000,000 in cash, by way of a dividend and reduction of capital. The parent company will allocate the $10,000,000 to the new picture company to provide it with initial working capital.

Assets to Picture Company

The picture company, in addition, will receive all production and distribution assets presently held by the parent company, including RKO Television Corp.

The new theatre company, under the terms of the consent decree, will have 79 wholly-owned or leased theatres and has the right to acquire interests of co-owners in 33 additional partly-owned theatres. No decision has been made yet as to the number of such co-owners the new company will buy out, the reorganization plan states.

RKO must terminate joint interests in 273 other theatres in which it holds minority interests. The book value of such interests is given as $467,789.

Book value of the 79 theatres to be retained, plus 12 additional theatres, is given as slightly in excess of $32,500,000.

Can Acquire New Houses

RKO has the right to acquire additional theatres in the future with the approval of the court and both the new theatre company and the new picture company will be accorded all benefits of any future court order which may be entered in the government's anti-trust suit in New York which is more favorable to defendants than the terms of RKO's consent decree.

There is no provision in the RKO plan for the trusteeing of stockholders' shares in one of the new companies, to prevent individual holdings in both at the outset, such as has been incorporated in the Paramount consent decree.

The authorized and issued capital stock of both new companies will be the same as RKO's present authorized and issued capital stock. Exchanges of the RKO stock will be tax free.

Dissolution Jan. 31

The present RKO Corp. will be dissolved after the expiration next Jan. 31 of outstanding option warrants originally issued to stockholders of the predecessor corporation.

Tentative consolidated balance sheet of the new RKO Theatre company shows assets of $50,308,541, including $14,418,138 of current assets, substantially cash and government securities. Total liabilities and reserves are estimated at $30,688,100, of which $4,470,411 are current liabilities, leaving net working capital of $9,947,727.

Net profit of RKO Theatres in recent years was as follows: 1945, $3,967,437; 1946, $6,195,354; 1947, $7,023,135, and for the first nine months of 1948, $5,198,480.

Profits of the new theatre company, had it existed in the above years, the RKO proxy statement to stockholders says, would have been: 1945, $3,680,244; 1946, $6,073,150; 1947, $6,359,635, and, first 9 months of 1948, $3,002,980.

The new picture company will have tentative current assets of $49,188,268, and current liabilities of $4,918,086, indicating net working capital of $44,270,182. Total assets would be $57,383,466 and total liabilities and reserves, $19,679,455.

RKO picture companies had the following profits or losses in recent years: 1945, $2,793,419 profit; 1946, $7,303,370 profit; 1947, $1,036,845 loss, and first 9 months of 1948, $5,166,221 loss.

Translated to the new picture company, the results would be: 1945, $2,111,489 profit; 1946, $6,271,157 profit; 1947, $1,787,417 loss, and first 9 months of 1948, $5,552,221 loss.

"A Connecticut Yankee—"

anachronisms of sixth century England. There, he introduces modern methods, steps up the tempo and outwits Murvyn Vye who plays Merlin, the magician plotting to seize the king's crown. He also falls in love with Alisande, played fetchingly by Rhonda Fleming, whose first important role this is. In due time, another conk on the head ends the dream, hurtles him back through the centuries and onto a meeting with the modern counterpart of his lady love for the happy ending.

To have an understanding of what gives here there must be envisioned the imperturbable, easy-going Bing in the dead center of a long-departed world. The contrast in itself is an opportunity for comedy and is seized on all sides under Robert Fellows' production auspices, and Tay Garnett's apt direction, from a script by Edmund Beloin.

There is nothing weighty about "A Connecticut Yankee" except its melodramatic phases when the film stalks into the area of the plot. But practically all the way, there is slyness in performance and tempo and tongue-in-cheek in treatment. And, of course, there is Bing warbling at his best in several tuneful numbers by his traditional tunesmiths, Johnny Burke and James Van Heusen. Since Technicolor was indicated for the pageantry, Technicolor is on generous display. Sir Cedric Hardwicke is especially effective as the king and William Bendix is good as Sir Sagramore.

Running time, 107 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April.

RED KANN

"Knock on Any Door"

(Santana Productions—Columbia)

HUMPHREY BOGART's first production outside his Warner commitments is a panting cops-and-robbers, courtroom-trial drama, which commands interest throughout because of the desperate criminal character whose story it tells and because of the sustained uncertainty in the trial scenes over whether or not the criminal will escape the chair for the murder of a policeman.

In theatre situations where crime films are not in disfavor it should be an above-average attraction. Elsewhere it will require restrained handling, probably with the sales emphasis best placed on the sociological problem it touches upon, the influence on youth of slums, reform schools and broken homes. It is not a picture for children.

Bogart is a successful criminal lawyer, having the same slum and reform school background as the 21-year-old hoodlum-murderer, played by John Derek, whom he endeavors to save from the chair. Derek's sordid story is unfolded in flashback sequences as Bogart recites it to the jury and trial court. Perjured testimony and the defense attorney's eloquence almost win an acquittal for Derek but the youthful criminal finally breaks and confesses his crime on the witness stand when the prosecuting attorney turns his questioning to the suicide of Derek's bride, apparently the only decent thing in his life. Allene Roberts, as the bride, turned on the gas when Derek reverted to type after a brief try at honest work following their marriage.

Bogart's courtroom forensics indicting society for permitting the slum and reform school conditions, which he blames for breeding Derek's type, are made pointless by repeated references to Bogart's origin in the same environment, which he apparently overcame successfully. It appears to brand Derek as a congenital criminal and leaves him, on the whole, with no claim to audience sympathy other than the sentimental one engendered by his youth.

Performances are convincing, including those of George Macready, as the prosecution attorney; Miss Roberts and Barry Kelley as the judge. Underworld character parts and bit roles are adequately cared for. Nicholas Ray directed the Daniel Taradash and John Monks, Jr., screenplay, from the novel by Willard Motley. Robert Lord produced.

Running time, 100 minutes. Adult classification. For March release.

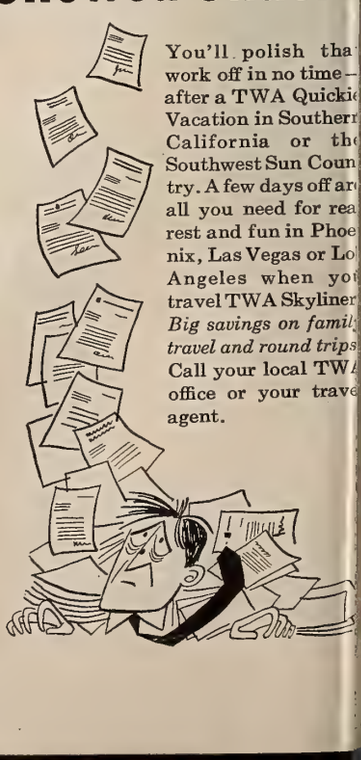
Mexico Regulates U.K. Film Imports



MEXICO CITY, Feb. 20.—Distributors of British pictures here fear their practical exclusion from the Mexican market as the result of new import regulations which specify that a special permit is necessary for each film. Accurate Concise and Impartial

VOL. 65. NO. 37 NEW YORK, U. S. A., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1949 TEN CENTS

Sharp Upturn Recorded by Field Grosses

1949 Starter Tops 1948; $16,544 Weekly Average

Theatre business got off to an exceptionally good start this year, with the first month's average weekly gross outdistancing that recorded for January, 1948, according to reports on some 167 key theatres received from MOTION PICTURE DAILY correspondents in the field. Additionally, last month's figure was substantially higher than that for the previous month.

Average weekly income for January rose to $16,544 from

Holiday Spurs N.Y. Grosses; 'Letter,' 'Smith,' 'Shoes' Big

Bolstered by expected big holiday business yesterday, Washington's Birthday, New York's first-run theatres are anticipating singularly good grosses this week. Lending impetus to the prosperity potential of the holiday were openings yesterday of new pictures at the Roxy, Mayfair and Astor.

Out front, meanwhile, as one of the most consistently solid grossers, is "A Letter to Three Wives" which,

Canada Would Get RKO 16mm. Product

Sovereign Film Distributors has been named RKO Radio's 16mm. distribution agency in Canada, announces Harry J. Michalson, RKO short subject sales manager.

In an agreement just concluded, Sovereign Films will start immediate exclusive distribution of RKO features, heretofore unavailable in 16mm. width in Canada, together with short subjects. Upon expiration, at an early date, of the agreement now in effect with another 16mm. distributor, Sovereign will be the sole distributor of all RKO 16mm. film in the Dominion.

Negotiations were conducted by Sid Kramer and Leo Devaney representing RKO Radio, and A. W. Perry and Walter Kennedy of Sovereign.

Smith Named 20th-Fox 'VP'

Andy W. Smith, Jr., general sales manager of 20th Century-Fox, has been signed to a long-term contract and at a meeting of the board of directors was elected a vice-president of the company, it was announced here by Spyros P. Skouras, president.

Andy W. Smith, Jr.

Smith was appointed general sales manager in May, 1947. He had formerly been Eastern division sales manager, having become associated with 20th Century-Fox in this latter capacity in 1942. Smith entered the film industry in 1914 at Pathe.

Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, will be awarded a plaque by the Independent Motion Picture Producers "in acknowledgment of outstanding efforts to bring fine public recognition to the motion picture industry," at a dinner in his honor next Monday evening.

IMPPA president I. E. Chadwick revealed that this will be the fourth time the award has been given. Joe E. Brown, Jean Hersholt and Bob Hope having been honored previously.

13 Bills to Cut US Tax Now Pending

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. — Twelve Congressmen, at the last count, had introduced bills to repeal or reduce the 20 per cent Federal admissions tax.

Congressman, Rep. Multer (D., N.Y.), has sponsored two separate bills, one to repeal the 20 per cent levy entirely, the other to cut it back to the pre-war 10 per cent.

Rep. Havenner (D., Calif.) has also introduced a bill to repeal the tax entirely. All the other legislators propose cutting it back to 10 per cent. Sponsors of these bills are Representatives Colmer (D., Miss.), Dingell (D., Mich.), O'Toole (D., N.Y.), McDonough (R., Calif.), Hagen (R., Minn.), Talle (R., Iowa), Martin (R., Mass.), Forand (D., R.I.), Jonas (R., Ill.), and Mansfield (D., Mont.).

RKO Theatres Attendance Off About 6%

Indicated Ratio for 1948 Compared to '47

Paid attendance at RKO theatres dropped from 94,137,204 in 1946 to 86,090,981 in 1947. For the first nine months of 1948 the paid attendance was 60,795,598, according to information supplied company stockholders in connection with RKO's divorcement-reorganization plan to be voted on March 28.

Box office receipts at RKO theatres declined from $46,673,540 in 1946 to $45,087,661 in 1947. For the first nine months of 1948 receipts were $30,747,515.

"Little Women"

[Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer]—Entertainment Unlimited

EVERYTHING'S all right with show business again. This picture proves it. Here is entertainment unlimited, entertainment of the highest order and for all kinds of people. Here is the incomparable type of entertainment that comes of pouring unstinted talent, time and money into the telling of a story worth telling. "This," said a delighted cynic after the Hollywood preview, "is like old times," and that's what a likewise delighted public is going to be telling delighted exhibitors in cities, towns and hamlets throughout the land as the picture goes its way. Give it everything you have and it will give you back a handsome dividend, not only in dollars but in the rekindling of your customers' enthusiasm for motion pictures.

How to sell it? Well, the names are June Allyson, Peter Lawford, Margaret O'Brien, Elizabeth Taylor, Janet Leigh, Mary Astor, Lucile Watson, Sir C. Aubrey Smith, Harry Davenport, Rossano Brazzi, Elizabeth Patterson, Leon Ames, Connie Gilchrist and Ellen Corby. It is a cast to tax the marquee capacity of the Music Hall, and it turns in per-

Tax Rule Delaying Paramount Decree

Paramount's insistence that the U. S. Treasury Department formally declare the company's re-distribution of stock under its proposed reorganization to be a tax-free operation has resulted in an unexpected delay in finalizing the consent decree with the government. Paramount refuses to sign until the Treasury ruling is given, in writing. Fred Mohrhardt, treasurer of the company, was in Washington from New York on Monday, presumably on this matter.

Studio Executives At MPAA Meet Today

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 22.—First in a series of conferences to be held here during a 10-day visit of Eric Johnston and other Motion Picture Association of America executives was scheduled to be held at the Beverly Hills Hotel today.

Expected to be in attendance, according to AMPP board chairman Y. Frank Freeman, were 80 to 100 executives from all major studios, with Louis B. Mayer, M-G-M executive, presiding. Speakers will be Johnston, Robert Chambers, head of MPAA research department; Dr. Arno Johnson, of the J. Walter Thompson agency's research and statistical department; John McCarthy, managing director of the MPAA international division; and Francis Harmon, MPAA vice-president in charge of the New York office.

AFL or CIO? Six NLRB Tests Start

Loew's and Paramount's home office "white collarites" today will vote in National Labor Relations Board-sponsored elections to determine whether their collective bargaining agents will be AFL's IATSE Motion Picture Home Office Employes Local No. H-63 or CIO's Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild. Today's balloting will be the first in three successive days of NLRB elections at six film company home offices where the rival unions have been contesting for control.

Elections will be held tomorrow at RKO Radio and DeLuxe Laboratories and on Friday at Republic and Columbia. The results of each of the individual "white collarite" elections will be announced simultaneously after the entire six have been held, that procedure having been agreed upon by the two unions to prevent influencing elections to follow.

Suit Asks $225,000 For Film 'Freeze'

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 22.—Rose and Louis Deutsch of the Granada at Virginia, Minn., through their attorney, Ben Deinerd of Minneapolis, has served papers in a $225,000 damage suit against Minnesota Amusement Co. and six distributors charging a product "freeze out."

Distributors charged jointly with the Paramount subsidiary circuit are Paramount, RKO Radio, 20th-Fox, Universal-International, Columbia and United Artists. Minnesota Amusement's Maco and State were pooled in operations with the Deutschs' Granada at Virginia for 10 years prior to Apr. 26, 1946, when the pool was terminated at the request of Deutsch.

Dismiss Stockholder Action vs. Universal

Universal Pictures has won dismissal in New York State Supreme Court here of the action brought last July by minority stockholder Rose Polaski who had attacked certain provisions of contracts with Universal executives relating to profits realized by them on options to purchase stock of the corporation and contingent profits on unexercised options.

Universal and Robert S. Benjamin as one of the directors, the only defendants served, had moved for summary judgment, dismissing the complaints on the ground that Mrs. Polaski was not an owner of Universal stock at the time of the events complained of. Louis H. O. Fischman, is counsel for Mrs. Polaski.

Meiselman Suit to Resume on March 7

CHARLOTTE, Feb. 22. — Presentation of evidence will be resumed March 7 in H. B. Meiselman's suit to enjoin distributors from allegedly favoring theatres of Wilby-Kincey. Harold Schilz and John Claggett, attorneys for Meiselman, presented evidence here for two days last week, winding up with an examination of H. F. Kincey. Kincey will return to the stand when the proceedings resume next month.

Meiselman told Judge Wilson Warlick that he would be forced to close his Center Theatre unless the first-run film market were opened to neighborhood houses.

Roberts in New Post

Neil Agnew, president of Motion Picture Sales Corp., has appointed Joseph L. Roberts as publicity and public relations director.

Prior to his new association, Roberts was Eastern publicity director of David O. Selznick's Vanguard Films and Selznick Releasing Organization. Before joining the Selznick companies, Roberts was publicity director of the Center Theatre in Rockefeller Center.

"Red Canyon" Premiere

World premiere of "Red Canyon," Universal - International Technicolor Western, will be held in Salt Lake City on March 17, it was announced by David Lipton, U-I national director of advertising-publicity.

London CEA Hits Weak Quota Films

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Inability of British producers to supply films in sufficient number to meet the 45 per cent quota was termed "alarming" by J. W. Davies, retiring chairman of the London and Home Counties Branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association at its most recent meeting.

"Apart from the number of films available," Davies said, "box-office showings of recent releases are worrying if not alarming."

Sir Sidney Clift, newly-elected branch chairman, said: "In my opinion the greatest menace to us as exhibitors has been the arrival of Sir Henry French."

Sir Henry is director-general of the Producers' Association and championed the new quota.

Said T. H. Fligelstone, vice-chairman of the London branch: "British exhibitors are loyally showing British pictures. We show them to empty houses. I have a feeling that this country's producers are devoting too much time to the costs of production rather than the entertainment value of a picture."

Those sentiments, which have been conveyed to Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, and to J. Arthur Rank, are characteristic of the growls arising among exhibitors in every part of the country.

Sears Urges More Top-Budget Films

"Hollywood has been pessimistically premature in writing off the big budget movie as a thing of the past," Gradwell L. Sears, president of United Artists, declares.

"'Big' movies can still reap big rewards," Sears states, and offers as evidence the box-office showing of "Red River," which, he reports, is expected to reach a distribution gross of $4,500,000. The film, which cost $2,800,000, "is having a profound effect on current thinking in producing circles," he said.

"Low-budget pictures can too easily become low-effort pictures. These, no matter how "economical', can be uneconomic; added all up, they stand to make less and lose more," Sears continues. "Parsimony can be as foolhardy as wastefulness. The trick is to spend intelligently."

Sam Dembow, Jr., Quits Board of United Artists

Mary Pickford, co-owner of United Artists, yesterday reported the resignation of Sam Dembow, Jr., as one of her representatives on the board of directors. The resignation takes effect immediately.

Meeting of the board yesterday heard a report on conditions abroad by Arthur W. Kelly, executive vice-president, who recently returned from England and the Continent. David Coplan, former British chief for UA, also addressed the meeting.

Pine Tours 16 Cities To Promote 'El Paso'

William H. Pine, of the Paramount producing team of Pine-Thomas, was in Buffalo on Monday and in Toronto yesterday on the first leg of a 16-city cross-country tour in behalf of the duo's "El Paso," which will be released nationally on April 1. Prior to his departure Pine held a meeting here with Paramount executives Alfred M. Schwalberg, E. K. (Ted) O'Shea, Hugh Owen, Stanley Shuford, George Brown and Ben Washer.

Pine will return here today and will be in Boston tomorrow and in Philadelphia, Friday.

DuMont Objecting to FCC Trust Suit 'Taint'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Allen B. DuMont Laboratories is expected to soon tell the Federal Communications Commission that its television plans should not be held up because of any anti-trust law violations by Paramount Pictures.

The FCC claims that Paramount controls DuMont and it recently gave DuMont only a temporary license, for station WABD in New York and various DuMont experimental video stations. This was done, the FCC said, pending a ruling on whether anti-trust law violators should be allowed into the radio-television field.

DuMont's stand, which will go to the FCC shortly, according to a DuMont representative, is that it is "being tainted with the sins of someone we don't even acknowledge to be our father." DuMont will tell the FCC that it has been a television pioneer and its plans should not be viewed with suspicion because of anti-trust laws violations of a firm that happened to own large blocks of its stock.

Today DuMont filed with the Commission exceptions to the Commission's proposed ruling that Paramount does control DuMont. The DuMont argument follows closely one filed by Paramount last week—that the Paramount interest in DuMont is an investment one and not for purposes of control.

DuMont, Philco and the Television Broadcasters Association today filed a petition asking the Commission to suspend, pending an investigation, new rates proposed by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. for its Eastern seaboard coaxial cable. The new rates are slated to go into effect on March 1.

Salesmen Must Face Trust Action Hearing

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—District Court Judge Matthew F. McGuire has denied for the second time a motion to dismiss two theatre-owning film salesmen as defendants in the $150,000 damage and injunction anti-trust case brought by the Center Theatre of Centreville, Md.

The theatre is suing Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, RKO Radio and Columbia, and Charles Wingfield and F. B. Klein, salesmen for Columbia and 20th-Fox, respectively, who own theatres in Church Hill and Chestertown, Md. The suit accuses the distributors of giving the Klein and Wingfield houses a monopoly of first-run product, with undue preference being given them because of their posts as salesmen for the two film firms. The two salesmen now have 10 days to file answers to the original complaint before the case is set for trial.

Second Petition for Cut in Clearance

CLEVELAND, Feb. 22.—Having received no replies from distribution companies to a request that a 21-day general clearance be granted to first-run subsequent-run houses in Greater Cleveland, Ernest Schwartz, president of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, has addressed a second letter to them, stressing the general trend of reduced clearances and asking for consideration of his request, made in the name of independent first-run subsequents.

"Little Women"

haps the best group performance witnessed since "I Remember Mama,"

The title, of course, tells the wide world that the picture is Louisa May Alcott's imperishable story of Boston in the 1860's, but it is up to showmen to add that the filming's been done with impeccable fidelity on the grand scale and with magnificent use of Technicolor. Few books have been dealt with as faithfully and gratifyingly in the whole long history of the screen.

Production and direction by Mervyn LeRoy are of a kind to install that young veteran of many hits on a new and higher plane in his and your art-industry. His craftsmanship is superbly demonstrated throughout the picture, notably in the utter appropriateness and delivery of the dialogue, and again in the splendid simplicity of scenes and sequences taxing technological skills to the utmost. You have got to go back to "Meet Me in St. Louis" for a comparable job of reproducing a period and a place and a manner of living. LeRoy establishes all these in his opening shot, and there is never a letdown from there on. He allows what appears to be an intentional breather after about 90 minutes, but this turns out to be just what is needed to add impact to the incidents which follow. These include one which had the ladies in the preview audience weeping blissfully.

There are no audience limitations. The grandparent generation represented in the story by the late Sir C. Aubrey Smith and Lucile Watson, the parent-age contingent represented by Mary Astor and Leon Ames, and the juniors, represented by the others, will find in the picture, as they always have found in the novel, maximum interest, charm and understanding. The appeal is as universal as the screen. The screenplay, by Andrew Solt, Sarah Y. Mason and Victor Heerman is a triumphantly straightaway presentation of narrative, devoid of flashbacks or other trickery of any character, and the music score by Adolph Deutsch is brilliantly subordinated to the story it backgrounds.

Showmen wishing to focus advertising down to a single performance can truly declare Miss Allyson's portrayal of Jo a championship achievement.

Running time, 122 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

Field Grosses Up Sharply

December's $15,138. Weekly average per theatre for January last year was $16,192. Top week last month was the second, with $19,018 registered. Best week in January, 1948, was the first, which brought a $19,031 average per theatre.

"The Paleface," one of the two pictures which tied for top grossing honors in December, continued in the lead spot last month, sharing that position with "The Snake Pit" which rose from third position to replace "The Three Musketeers." In second place last month was "Words and Music," followed by "Yellow Sky," in third. Close behind the latter were "The Red Shoes" and "Paisan."

Other pictures which appeared frequently as better-than-average grossers last month were: "Blood on the Moon," "The Three Musketeers," "Hamlet," "The Accused," "You Gotta Stay Happy," "The Wake of the Red Witch."

Also registering well last month, but less frequently than the foregoing, were: "Red River," "A Song Is Born," "Road House," "One Sunday Afternoon," "Adventures of Don Juan," "The Boy With the Green Hair," "Kiss the Blood Off My Hands," "Unknown Island," "Whiplash," "He Walked by Night," "The Man from Colorado," "That Wonderful Urge," "Rogues' Regiment," "Mexican Hayride," "Every Girl Should Be Married," "Letter from an Unknown Woman," "Time of Your Life," "The Kissing Bandit" and "So Dear to My Heart."

Composite key city box-office reports for 1949 to date, compared with corresponding weeks of 1948, follow:

1949 Week Ending	No. of Theatres	Total Gross	Average Per Theatre
Jan. 1- 2	164	$2,855,800	$17,413
Jan. 6- 7	168	3,195,000	19,018

Coast SPG Set for 'Invasion' by 'IA'

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 22.—Screen Publicists Guild president Lesley Mason called a special meeting of the membership tonight to consider the situation precipitated last Friday when the IATSE petitioned the NLRB for certification as the bargaining agent.

The IATSE move, which seeks to revive the publicists' local set up during the 1945 strike but was unsuccessful in winning a majority support at that time, came in sequel to objections by a large number of SPG members to approval given the producer contract okayed in a membership meeting last week. SPG is affiliated with the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, which was a leader in the 1945 strike.

Threats Mark Italian Producers' Quota Bid

Italy's film producers have threatened to shut down their studios on April 30 unless legislation is passed before then to prevent the Italian exhibition market from being "swamped" by foreign films, it is reported in press dispatches reaching New York from Rome. A shutdown would mean the laying off of 50,000 workers. Communist agitation for "protection of Italian films" also was reported in conjunction with the producers' threat.

The present law, which obliges exhibitors in Italy to dedicate 20 days every three months to Italian films, will expire at the end of the year. The producers want it replaced with one that will afford them even greater protection.

New York Grosses

together with a stage presentation, is seen winding up its Music Hall tenancy with a galloping $127,000 in a fifth and final week on the basis of $74,000 grossed Thursday through Sunday.

A number of New York's first-runs, notably the Paramount, Roxy, Park Avenue and Bijou, held extra performances yesterday. At these houses, as elsewhere, of course, holiday admission prices prevailed.

$110,000 at Paramount

First nine days of "Whisperin' Smith," plus a stage bill headed by comedian Henny Youngman, are expected to bring the Paramount a very robust $110,000. At the Roxy," "Yellow Sky" and Danny Kaye on stage brought a husky $94,000 for the third and final week; "Down to the Sea in Ships" took over at the Roxy yesterday in company with a stage bill featuring Rudy Vallee and a one-performance personal appearance of the picture's star, Richard Widmark.

"Hamlet" continues strong at the Park with a $16,000 capacity week in store, and at the Bijou "The Red Shoes" is expected to gross $17,000, which, by virtue of an extra holiday showing is considerably above capacity. The former film is in its 21st week and the latter is in its 19th.

Continuing at a strong clip at the Rivoli is "The Snake Pit" whose 16th week is due for $20,000, which is very good. Another long-runner which is holding up impressively is "Joan of Arc" at the Victoria where $26,000 is indicated for a 15th week.

'Enchantment' Closes

"Enchantment" did all right in the final 10 days of its nine-week run at the Astor where $21,000 was expected; "Knock on Any Door" opened at that theatre yesterday. At the Strand, "John Loves Mary," plus a stage bill topped by Jack Carson, is seen heading for $50,000 in a third and final week, a very substantial figure; starting Friday, the Strand will offer a special return engagement of "Johnny Belinda" and "The Treasure of Sierra Madre," in consequence of the Academy Award nominations embodied by each.

The Capitol, where "Caught" and Charlie Spivak's band on stage are in their first week, indicate a satisfactory $51,000 gross; third and final week of "The Bribe," together with Arthur Godfrey and his talent scouts on stage, brought the Capitol a splendid $84,500.

Also satisfactory is "State Department—File 649," at the Globe where $18,000 is seen for a first week. "The Return of October" opened yesterday at the Mayfair where a three-day second and final week of "My Dear Secretary" brought a mild $7,500. Third and final week of "He Walked by Night" is expected to bring the Criterion a so-so $17,500; "The Fighting O'Flynn" will take over on Saturday.

National Theatres' 3-Day Meet Opens

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22.—National Theatres will hold its convention here tomorrow, Thursday and Friday, attended by district managers and department heads. From San Francisco will be Fay Reeder, George Milner, Elmer Hanks, Clarence Poos, Cliff Reynolds; from Oakland, Herman Kerskin; Sacramento, Jim Runte; San Jose, Harry Seipel.

A Lift of Spirit

(Editorial in Boxoffice Feb. 5th Issue.)

Leave it to those perennially young bloods of MGM. The roaring lion does it again. The tail is not timidly between the legs; it's wagging joyously to let this whole industry know of MGM's confidence in the motion picture business, in the MGM product and in the MGM organization.

At a time when too many have been viewing the outlook with pessimism, Leo and his pals step forward with the most optimistic enterprise the trade has witnessed since the prewar days. The preview-of-product meeting of their sales personnel in California spells good news for exhibitors. The men went out to look at a flock of completed pictures. No company would invest in such an undertaking unless it had something mighty wonderful to show the boys; something for the boys to tell you about. Our grapevine from the coast hints that you will not be disappointed.

Good news is what we're all listening for nowadays. MGM's preview of product gives all of us a much-needed lift of spirit.

SOUNDS MORE LIKE BUSINESS

(Editorial in Motion Picture Herald Feb. 5th Issue.)

Back in the gay lush days of promotional exuberance, the distributors used to organize ornate transcontinental junket expeditions to far places. They took trainloads of writers, wet-packed, to previews, expecting them to tell the world. MGM has a new efficiency version, assembling top personnel of sales next week at Culver City to look at nine pridefully completed productions — expecting them to go back to their key posts and tell the exhibitors. Sounds more like business.

Saying It With Product

(Editorial in Showmen's Trade Review Feb. 5th Issue.)

From every standpoint of the business, it seems smart operating to have the men who will sell and service the theatres with MGM films become well acquainted with the pictures they will offer. And there's no better way to find out than to see the show itself unreel right on a screen.

But that's the strictly business side of it. The phase of the event which strikes this corner as significant in a more general sense, is the encouragement it offers for everybody who wants to see more pep, enthusiasm, confidence in the product the industry has to offer. This element has been sadly lacking; has been smothered under the nebulous gloom and vapors steamed up by accents on the negative.

So, hooray! we say, for the good cheer there is in this slightly terrific demonstration of enthusiasm—cockiness, if you will—over the pictures they've finished and are bringing to completion at the MGM studios in Hollywood.

OPTIMISM AND FAITH

(Editorial in Greater Amusements Feb. 11th Issue.)

This "Chins-Up" expedition of Metro is not only a sales hypo for its own organization, but it is a challenge for other companies to return to the principles of showmanship, and the greatest kind of public relations! Hats off to MGM for its great display of courage in again taking the initiative in leading the motion picture industry out of the wilderness.

The Lion Roars

(Editorial in Film Daily Feb. 7th Issue.)

● ● ● METRO'S "PREVIEW-OF-PRODUCT" sales convention which gets under way in Los Angeles today is of interest to everyone in film biz, whether they play the product for which Leo roars or not, or whether they're on the Loew's payroll or not. . . . How come? you ask. . . . An easy question to answer, that. . . . For lo, these too many months by far, you've been hearing the blues sung. . . . And the crying towels, too, have been much in evidence. . . . Film biz, one sourpuss after another has lamented, is hanging on the ropes. . . . Which of course it is not. . . . But the repetition of the sad lament registered psychologically, and things had come to a pretty pass indeed before some folks, topside, realized that pessimism begets pessimism with a rabbit's fecundity. . . . But you know how it is—there's gotta be a sign, to convince many. . . .

● ● ● WELL, SIRS, that's where the Metro sales conclave comes in. . . . There's a sign for you. . . . A healthy sign. . . . A sign o' promise of good things to come. . . . Meaning box-office pictures. . . . Putting it succinctly, Metro has guts enough to spend money, and a Coast sales convention obviously cuts a pretty penny. . . . (And perhaps you've noticed Metro is also spending more money to sell the exhibitor where he is best sold—in the industry press). . . . It follows, obviously, that Metro sees biz to be gotten, profits to be made for the friendly company . . . and its friendly customers. . . . So its chin is up. . . . It's out to do a job. . . . And surely, the possibilities are there. . . . Eighteen odd thousands of 'em, incidentally. . . . And now the question becomes, and rightly: Who's next? . . . Will the band please strike up the theme song, "Now is the Hour?". . .

Twenty-five Years Of Leadership!

(Editorial in Independent Film Journal Feb. 12th Issue.)

For the past quarter of a century, the M-G-M trademark has reflected the highest standards in motion picture entertainment. It is therefore fitting that the company's slogan for its Silver Anniversary should be "Twenty-five years of motion picture leadership."

But Metro is not content to rest on its laurels. There could be no finer expression of confidence in the future, both for the industry in general and for its own product in particular, than was evidenced by M-G-M this past week.

A trainload of top sales personnel and home office executives, representing every exchange area in the country, was transported to the coast to celebrate the first formal occasion of M-G-M's 25th Anniversary and participate in the "Preview of Product" conferences. These men are certain to carry back with them to their respective territories a fresh enthusiasm for the product to be sold in the year ahead.

Leo Starts To Roar

(Editorial in Exhibitor Feb. 9th Issue.)

AT A TIME when any optimism within the industry is more than welcome, the decision of MGM to hold a "Preview Of Product" on the coast should be hailed eagerly by theatremen everywhere.

AS FAR AS MGM is concerned, it is definite proof that the company is confident of the merit of its product. Otherwise, why take more than 70 men from all parts of the country to see future pictures? Definitely, Leo must feel that he has what the boxoffice needs.

AS FAR AS the industry in general is concerned, this also serves notice that MGM, at least, is going to do considerable shouting this year. It is already heralding its Silver Anniversary, marking "25 Years Of Leadership In The Motion Picture Industry," which probably means that Leo will be roaring through all of 1949.

AT A TIME when some companies are talking in whispers, a roar is a novelty.

EVERY SEGMENT of MGM and Loew's is represented at the coast confabs, both from the United States and in the international area, and they will all get the same message, that MGM thinks that the best way to combat any letdown in theatre going is by supplying the kind of product that makes patrons regular customers, regardless of television or any other kind of opposition.

THIS DEPARTMENT, for one, is ready to hail any tendency on the part of any unit within the industry to get the business back on a showmanship level, and MGM, through its coast confab, is observing the one fundamental rule, "come through with pictures that mean dough, and no one will have to worry".

IT IS TO BE HOPED that others of the business will also endorse the MGM idea, backing their own product, and showing the business that there is nothing wrong with this industry that good pictures will not cure.

"As goes M-G-M, so goes the picture business."

(Editorial in Hollywood Reporter Feb. 7th Issue.)

• THE ACTION of Bill Rodgers in bringing more than one hundred MGM sales representatives out here for a convention starting today, has real significance. This is the first time in twelve years that MGM has had a sales meeting here and coming at a time when, seemingly, much of the bottom has dropped out of the picture business in the minds of too many, it should tell the entire industry that MGM has full confidence in its current progress.

The MGM sales executives will be shown all the new product which the studio heads, Mayer, Schary and Mannix, believe compares favorably with any program the studio has ever put together. The studio wanted the men who guide the sales of its product to see for themselves, rather than be told in that old routine convention pep talk, that's now grown a bit corny through wear over a period of years.

Dore Schary, up until now, has accomplished one very important task in the administration of his job at MGM. He has the entire line-up of pictures set and scheduled for production for the entire year of 1949. The scripts are all prepared, requiring only casting and stage space to get them into production. This IS an accomplishment and is looked on by Mayer, Mannix and the rest of the executive staff at that plant as just that. The studio has never been so far ahead in finished scripts, all of which will be outlined to the sales executives during their current convention sessions.

There used to be a saying, "as goes MGM, so goes the picture business," and if the enthusiasm now being shown by this company, which is reflected in bringing all this sales crowd to Hollywood, is any indication, the business, generally, should react to the lead and jump back out of its slump.

RKO Theatres

and are exclusive of miscellaneous theatre income from rentals, concessions, etc.

Figures for earlier years were: 1943, $35,509,083 receipts from 85,621,642 paid admissions; 1944, $37,493,608 from 82,656,265, and 1945, $39,391,233 from 86,214,999.

In an eight-year period beginning with 1940, RKO theatres paid a high of 46 per cent of their total film rentals for pictures distributed by RKO Radio (in 1946), and a low of 31 per cent (in 1940 and 1941). For the first nine months of last year, the figure was 34 per cent.

The revenue from RKO theatres, however, represented only from nine to 13 per cent of RKO Radio's total domestic film rentals for the same eight-year period, and six to 10 per cent of its world-wide gross.

11,000 Theatre Accounts

RKO Radio Pictures had more than 11,000 theatre accounts in the 1947-'48 season out of approximately 13,000 theatre possibilities, the report to stockholders says.

Since 1943, its domestic film rentals have ranged from a low of $34,831,362 in 1943 to a high of $54,897,725 in 1947. Foreign revenues varied from $11,033,886 in 1943 to $22,057,375 in 1947.

For the first nine months of 1948, RKO Radio domestic film rentals were $34,881,756, and foreign rentals, $16,131,113.

Rentals from films made by outside producers and distributors by RKO Radio ranged from $14,780,318 in 1943 to $36,984,084 in 1946. During the same period rentals from RKO Radio pictures ranged from $31,084,930 in 1943 to $42,716,825 in 1947, when total film rentals amounted to a high for the period of $76,955,100.

In the first nine months of 1948, product from outside producers was running ahead of RKO Radio pictures in total gross at the rate of $26,616,005 to $24,396,864.

The report states that in 1947 "gross film rentals for independent productions represented approximately 44½ per cent of the aggregate gross film rentals and yielded to Radio Pictures over $7,280,000 as its share or such gross film rentals."

The report notes that while distribution of outside product was "very profitable" for RKO for a number of years, the results have been unfavorable during the past two years.

After referring to "a comprehensive economy program at the studios," the report says that 14 completed features on Oct. 2, 1948, represented the following costs: five at less than $250,000 each; five at between $500,000 and $1,000,000; two between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, and two "over $1,500,000."

RKO Negotiates for Hughes Film Assests

RKO is negotiating with Howard Hughes for the purchase of an unidentified completed feature, reissue and remake rights to 10 other features, stories and scripts, service contracts of three undesignated artists, production equipment, stock film, music rights and film titles, RKO stockholders are advised.

Purchase is being sought at "their fair market value," the company's report states. It notes that last year Jane Russell was obtained for an RKO feature through Hughes Tool Co. for $100,000. Hughes has agreed with RKO not to engage in independent production while he remains a dominant stockholder in the company.

RKO Pension Plan To Be Continued

The RKO employes pension plan will be continued by the two new companies which will emerge from the divorcement and reorganization of the company, RKO stockholders are advised.

Pension funds will be divided according to theatre and picture company employes who are members of the plan and two separate pension trust plans will be maintained by the two new companies thereafter.

Estimated annual pension at normal retirement age would give Ned E. Depinet, RKO president, $18,408; Malcolm Kingsberg, vice-president in charge of theatres, $18,514; N. Peter Rathvon, former president, $6,481, and J. Miller Walker, secretary and director, $7,365.

Review

"Prejudice"

(New World Films-M. P. Sales Corp.)

THE DANGEROUS evil of bigotry is thrown into dramatic outline in "Prejudice," a documentary-styled drama produced for commercial exhibition under the sponsorship of the Protestant Film Commission and other religious organizations. The picture, made in Hollywood, with a cast of professional actors, dramatizes the story of a plant executive who has religious prejudices without realizing it.

As the story progresses, just about all of the prejudices which stem from a difference of creed or color are shown. Their causes and irrational nature are explored, as well as their corrupting effect. As a drama, the story in itself stands up rather well, even though its intention is always obvious. It goes without saying, however, that the intention is commendable.

An Edmund L. Dorfman production, this New World Films presentation was directed by Edward L. Cahn, with Paul F. Heard as executive producer. The original story was by Jarvis Couillard who also did the screenplay with Ivan Goff and Ben Roberts. Among those in the cast are David Bruce, Mary Marshall, Tommy Ivo and Bruce Edwards.

Running time, 58 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

said that it would make financing more easily available and would assure SG sufficient product for distribution in the U. S. and Canada.

At the meeting the company's affairs of the previous year were discussed and the board unanimously voted approval of Lippert's actions.

In a discussion of the results being obtained on Lippert's "I Shot Jesse James," it was asserted at the meeting that the over-all plan assures the picture over $1,500,000 nationally.

The board approved the balance of this year's program, and with the completion of seven more films, SG will have delivered every picture promised at the beginning of the season. Lippert asserted that writers now are working on four pictures which will have a combined budget of $2,000,000 or more. They are "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," in color; "Baron of Arizona," "Pillar Mountain," and a sequel to "I Shot Jesse James." Other films, to be released in 1949-50, are: "Mustang Fury," "Son of Shep," "Isle of Zorda," "Aloha," "Harbor Lights," "Deputy Marshall," "Top Secret," "Hollywood Square Dance," "Highway Westward" and eight Lash LaRue Westerns.

There will be a complete merger of the SG home office and Lippert Productions, with Lippert as the head of the consolidated companies.

Allow Para. to Buy, Then Sell Partnerships

Bid to Exercise Stock Options Approved by US

Paramount's terms of settling the industry trust suit provide that the company may buy out the interests of partners in jointly-owned circuits, and then in turn sell the 100 per cent holdings where necessary as a means of salvaging stock purchase options which, the company contends, are worth millions.

For example, in a recent brief filed with Federal Court, Paramount insisted that its option with E. V. Richards alone is worth over $1,000,000. However, the Richards' agreement was admitted to be an extreme illustration. Under many of its option contracts, a Paramount co-stockholder may be required to fix a price at which Paramount may purchase his stock or sell its shares to the co-stockholder.

Paramount has stated that it obtained the unusual option advantages with Richards because the latter had purchased his 50 per cent in the Paramount-Richards circuit "for a very small price." Under the pact which

Johnston Starts Studio Meetings

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—First in a series of individual studio meetings which will be addressed by Eric Johnston and other Motion Picture Association of America staff executives, will be held at M-G-M tonight.

Basic data on the industry's prospects and present situation will be the subject presented by Johnston and his staff, with most of the material to be a condensed version of the information covered at yesterday's Beverly Hills Hotel meeting of more than 100 top studio executives. At that meeting, Johnston emphasized that 1948's national domestic gross was only 8½ per cent below 1946, a figure first revealed at the presidents' meeting in Miami.

Johnston also pointed out that disposable income in 1948 was eight per cent higher than in 1946, and that

Attlee Wary of Further Help; Wants Studios to Put Own House in Order

LONDON, Feb. 23.—No substantial new government assistance to Britain's film producers is likely to be forthcoming and, if their fortunes are to be improved, high government officials are convinced, the producers will have to put their own house in order.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee, it is authoritatively learned, feels that the time has not yet arrived to give Cabinet level consideration to Britain's film production crisis. The subject is not included in the agenda for tomorrow's meeting of the Cabinet.

Attlee feels that further financial support of film production by the government can serve only to perpetuate the present allegedly wasteful and extravagant production methods, and that producers themselves must take steps to cut production costs. Furthermore, the Prime Minister definitely

Court Weighs Coast Injunction Plea

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—Following protracted presentation of arguments by opposing counsel, Federal Judge Campbell E. Beaumont took under advisement an application by Griffith-Coleman, Inc., for a temporary injunction restraining seven distributors from depriving La Tijera Theatre of first-run service. The jurist at the same time denied a similar application by Phil Isley Theatres in behalf of its Picwood Theatre.

Griffith-Coleman had brought suit for $1,317,000 damages and sought a preliminary injunction compelling distributors to enter into negotiations for first-run product, citing the decision in the Goldman case at Philadelphia as demonstrating "the Federal court's viewpoint concerning the right of first-run theatres to have free and fair access to film product in the competitive market."

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—The board of directors of the Screen Actors' Guild has voted to conditionally approve participation in the Motion Picture Industry Council, recently cripped by the withdrawal of the Hollywood Council AFL guilds and unions following the selection of Cecil B. DeMille as chairman, stipulating that the MPIC must abandon its present system of picking names from a hat to appoint a chairman and substitute an election by nomination and secret ballot.

SAG's move comes on the eve of a projected meeting of the MPIC next week at which MPAA president Eric Johnston is expected to again proffer aid and cooperation in setting up a functioning organization to handle public and trade relations.

N. Y. SPG's Future

ing state of affairs within SPG: (1) resentment over alleged Communist influence in the guild and (2) the apparent inability of the guild's negotiating committee to secure satisfactory terms for a new contract in current negotiations with film companies.

One SPG executive hastened to deny yesterday that the union's future is in jeopardy, although he did acknowledge that factional warfare within the guild is heading for a showdown. Queried on the guild's financial position, he said it has in its treasury some $15,000 in cash and bonds.

SPG Considers 'IA' Affiliation

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—Screen Publicists Guild membership has voted to invite IATSE international representative Roy Brewer to attend a meeting on March 1 to explain any advantages which he believes SPG would gain by switching its affiliation from the Painters Brotherhood to the IATSE, which last week filed an NLRB petition for an election to determine the proper bargaining agency for publicity workers.

SPG's membership is sharply split on the affiliation question in consequence of recently-voted approval of a contract with producers waiving a seniority clause, and the situation is complicated by the fact producers have not yet signed the new contract.

economies in the last quarter of 1948 represent a savings 59 per cent higher than the same quarter in 1947.

Perhaps the most striking point was made by Dr. Arno Johnson, J. Walter Thompson agency vice-president in charge of research, who declared that "the ability of Americans to buy theatre tickets is 50 per cent greater than before the war.

"The number of tickets sold is approximately the same," he continued. "The desire to attend rather than the ability to pay is the governing factor in ticket sales."

Dr. Robert Chambers, head of the MPAA research department, presented charts to substantiate the 8½ per cent figure and showed further that business in 1948 was equal to 1945.

Other speakers, including Francis Harmon, MPAA vice-president, and John McCarthy, MPAA international division head, said that no trend toward a slump in national economy is in sight, 1948 world grosses were less than 10 per cent below 1946, the State Department is cooperating with the industry to the fullest extent it has legal authority to do so, and that the outlook for world trade is good but the outlook for remittances from abroad is not.

Loew Proposes

March 25. The latter date is in lieu of the annual stockholders' meeting deferred from last December.

Nominated for the post of 11th director is F. Joseph Holleran, vice-president of National City Bank of New York. The bank is one of the company's financial depositories and during the last fiscal year, ended August 31, 1948, a subsidiary of Loew's made long-term loans from the bank, guaranteed by the parent, aggregating some $5,000,000.

Nominated for reelection are Leopold Friedman, Eugene W. Leake, Charles C. Moskowitz, William A. Parker, William F. Rodgers, J. Robert Rubin, Nicholas M. Schenck, Joseph R. Vogel, David Warfield and Henry Rogers Winthrop.

Officers or directors of the company who received salary and other remuneration of more than $25,000 during the fiscal year follows: Friedman, vice-president, secretary and counsel, $130,714; E. J. Mannix, vice-president, $159,471 salary, $43,142 bonus; Louis B. Mayer, production head, $156,857 salary, plus $260,406; Moskowitz, vice-president and treasurer, $156,857; Rodgers, distribution vice-president, $115,028; Rubin, vice-president and counsel, $104,571, plus $53,850; Schenck, president, $130,714, plus $94,121; Vogel, vice-president, $156,857.

Additionally, the company placed a total of some $480,969 in benefits in its retirement fund for the foregoing eight persons during the year.

Review

"City Across the River"

(Universal-International)

PLAUDITS are in store for producer-director Maxwell Shane. Working with a cast of relative newcomers, he has made a film of excellent results. In bold and absorbing patterns, "City Across the River" recounts the disfiguring effects of slum conditions on the human personality. With a prologue and epilogue delivered by news commentator Drew Pearson, the story has a semi-documentary flavor, but it is never lacking in excitement or emotional intensity. It should bring handsome box-office returns in situations that are receptive to top-grade gangster dramas.

The picture's locale is a slum section of Brooklyn where a hard-as-nails gang called "The Dukes" hold unchallenged sway, and whose customary activities range from petty hoodlumism to Saturday night dances in a crowded basement clubroom. Dominating the gang dramatically is a teen-age lad, Peter Fernandez, and his hard-working, economically-pressed folks. First the lad plays hookey, indulges in minor delinquencies, and reacts bitterly to his sordid environment. Gradually he becomes embroiled in the larger crimes of his gang and finally his doom is sealed when he and a buddy (Al Ramsen) engage in a fight with a school teacher and the latter kills the teacher. From this point on the story becomes a mystery drama, with the police using all of their ingenuity to gather evidence on the reckless young criminals.

The screenplay, by Shane and Dennis Cooper, moves with measured beat to its inevitable conclusion. The very anonymity of the actors strengthens the quality of realism. The question of whether society or the individual bears the burden of responsibility for juvenile delinquency is implied but it is a disturbing one. Shane, in his directon, neatly balanced the action. Performances are all sharply etched. Others in the cast are Thelma Ritter and Louis Van Rotten, as the boy's parents, and Sharon McManus, his little sister. Stock roles as a social center director and a detective are made considerably appealing by Stephen McNally and Jeff Corey, respectively. Joshua Shelley, as a half-demented knifer, provides an effective vignette. Adolescent girl friends of gang members are portrayed by Sue England, Barbara Whiting and Sara Berner. The story was adapted from the novel, "The Amboy Dukes," by Irving Shulman.

Running time, 90 minutes. Adult audience classification. Set for April release.

will first spend two weeks at the Coast studio seeing new pictures and conferring on campaigns to accompany their release. He will then go to New York to carry out the campaigns.

With the addition of Joseph, the M-G-M promotional staff now consists of Howard Strickling, director of publicity; Si Seadler, director of advertising; W. R. Ferguson, director of exploitation; Herb Crooker, New York publicity manager; Frank Whitbeck, studio advertising manager; and Ralph Wheelright, studio publicity and promotion manager.

is to expire on April 29, 1950, Paramount may request Richards to fix a base price at which he would sell to or buy from Paramount. Paramount then could buy out Richards at 50 per cent of the price so fixed or sell to him at 150 per cent of the fixed price.

In all cases, it appears that Paramount has won its prime objective so far as buying and selling are concerned. The company had told New York Federal Court that direct sale of its interests in partnerships, under compulsion, and without the advantages of the options it holds, would mean "wholesale destruction" of the values of its properties.

Meanwhile, Paramount is still holding up on signing the consent decree, firm to its attitude of no signatures until the Treasury Department gives a formal ruling that the reorganization of the company will be a tax-free stock transaction. Justice Department is said to be putting pressure on Treasury for quick action.

be the immediate result as producers aligned with major companies will no longer have large numbers of immediate customers in their own affiliated theatres, but instead will have to operate on the highest competitive basis in winning market outlets. Said Pine: "It will be a matter of survival of the fittest so far as producers are concerned."

He made the remarks in a discussion of trade matters during a luncheon given in his honor by Paramount at the Hotel Astor yesterday. Paramount division manager Hugh Owen was host.

Pine-Thomas have been forced to abandon low-budget type productions because conditions have changed to the extent that a "solid" box-office film requires an expenditure of at least $1,000,000.

from the Los Angeles house, which the plaintiff alleges is held on a lease, on condition that all Paramount pictures be played.

Partmar contends that "the picture company has been enjoined from compelling the exclusive use of its pictures in the theatre." Partmar asserts that Paramount and the government "have agreed to dispense with this requirement." Presumably this is a reference to the terms of Paramount's expected settlement of the case.

U-I Asks Suit Dismissal

Universal-International has moved in U. S. District Court here for a dismissal of minority stockholder Florence R. Long's action against the company and a number of its officers and directors. The company claims what Miss Long holds were improper stock option deals actually were set up "in the best interests of the company."

is inclined to blame producers for yielding too easily in the past to union demands for wages and working conditions. He suggests they correct that situation before asking further governmental aid.

Attlee, in addition, is mindful that special governmental concessions to the film industry inevitably will provoke other industries in making similar demands upon the government when the anticipated recession in the present "sellers' market" occurs.

It is understood that Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is considering some form of modification of the government's heavy entertainment tax, to be incorporated in his April budget, but that the relief to be accorded will in no event be passed on to film producers. Rather, it will be specifically designed to lower the cost of entertainment to the public.

Despite the government's present unwillingness to accept the production crisis as a Cabinet level problem, Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, undoubtedly is discussing the situation with Cripps. Wilson is greatly concerned over the threatened collapse of his 45 per cent film quota and the growing uncertainty of his other film industry plans.

J. Arthur Rank assured an emergency meeting of Wilson's National Film Production Council today that he will deliver 40 films during the quota's first year and expressed the view that the quota will be amply met. Rank previously had promised at least 60 features.

A BOT spokesman said he foresees quota trouble next year in consequence of the current production dislocation. He warned that miracles will not happen through governmental help, the limit thereof being the Film Finance Corporation's present subsidies. The rest is up to the industry, he said.

Today's meeting provided a "free, friendly and frank discussion," the spokesman said, which at least "cleared the air."

Future meetings of the joint committee will be held monthly, he said.

The feeling is spreading here that the only solution for the present crisis lies in abrogation of the quota legislation in return for guaranteed American showings up to a given small percentage of British pictures.

In this connection, authoritative circles already are urging the government to utilize the Export Guarantees Act to enable producers to collect currently-frozen currencies earned by British pictures in non-sterling countries.

Film Firm Income

ported on 4,278 returns filed by film industry firms. Another 268 returns did not have income data.

Of the total, 3,424 returns showed a net income, while 854 showed a net deficit. The returns with a net income reported $1,890,731,000 in compiled receipts, a net income of $369,575,000 and total income and excess profits tax payments of $128,316,000, consisting of $116,746,000 in income taxes and $11,750,000 in excess profits tax.

The firms reporting a net income paid $113,275,000 in dividends in cash and assets other than their own stock, while the firms with a deficit paid $35,000 in such dividends. The 854 deficit firms had total compiled receipts of $58,644,000 and a net deficit of $13,409,000.

Twenty-six consolidated returns were filed by film firms, 23 showing a net income and three showing no net income. The 23 firms reporting on the plus side covered 328 subsidiaries in their consolidated returns, had total receipts of $357,151,000, a net income of $49,426,000, paid $17,852,000 in dividends other than in their own stock, and paid $18,847,000 in taxes—$18,827,000 in income and $20,000 in excess profits tax. The returns with no net income covered three subsidiaries, showed receipts of $1,471,000, a deficit of $231,000, and dividends of $10,000.

The industry firms received $44,258,000 in dividends from stock of other domestic corporations, and $1,092,000 in interest on Government obligations.

Loew's Wants 'Clean Slate' From NY Court

New Brief Asserts More Restraints Not Needed

"No further relief is required by the government or should be granted to it as against Loew's, Inc." This was Loew's sparsely-worded conclusion to a 154-page brief which it submitted to New York Federal Court yesterday, setting forth an extensive argument against the government's bid for divestiture and new trade practice injunctions in the industry's anti-trust suit.

Like its co-defendants, Loew's asks the court to consider the company in the light of present-day operations, as against the pre-trial era, holding that practices today are devoid of any injustices to, or unfair advantages over, any other interests in the industry. Since the New York court's opinion

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—United Artists has discontinued the sale of films here under the competitive bidding-zoning plan, thus concluding an experiment that began several months ago with the picture, "The Time of Your Life."

Forthcoming films, including "Red River," now playing here in outlying houses, will be sold on the basis of negotiations. RKO, 20th Century-Fox and M-G-M sell their product here under the bidding setup.

N. Y. Exhibitors to Test Television For Theatre Usage

Some 25 to 50 New York exhibitors, anticipating the eventual widespread application of large-screen theatre television, are contemplating early experiments in conjunction with telecasters and telephone equipment manufacturers, according to a spokesman of the Theatre Owners of America, who admits that the interested exhibitors are both from within and outside the ranks of TOA members.

Kirsch Again Heads Illinois Allied

CHICAGO, Feb. 24. — Jack Kirsch was re-elected president of Allied Theatres of Illinois for a three-year term at the 19th annual meeting of officers and directors held today at the Congress Hotel. Re-elected for one-year terms were Van A. Nomikos, vice-president, and Ben Banowitz, secretary-treasurer.

Directors re-elected for one year terms were the following: Richard Salkin, Samuel Roberts, James Gregory, Saul Lockwood, Arthur Davidson, Verne Langdon, Jack Rose, B. Cheruhas, Joseph Stern, Lou H. Harrison, John Semidalis, Ludwig Sussman, Nate Platt, Howard Lubliner and Charles Lindau. Harry Nepo was again appointed sergeant-at-arms.

Monogram In ABPC's Plan

LONDON, Feb. 25. — Monogram as well as Warner will be included in Associated British Pictures Corporation's 2,000,000 pounds ($8,000,000) two-year production plan, it was expected here today as ABPC executive producer Robert Clark confirmed a report that ABPC will launch such a program. Coast Production Seen Increasing

Hollywood, Feb. 24.—Indications that the production activity level is due to rise in the near future is seen in the disclosure by the Screen Writers' Guild that 470 motion picture writers were employed by the studios on Feb. 15, which compares with 448 on Jan. 10.

Industry Bond Drive To Start on May 15

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The industry will launch its program for the Treasury's 1949 bond drive on May 15, when Hollywood stars and covered wagons loaned by the studios will highlight a ceremony at Independence, Mo.

This was announced here by Maurice Bergman, chairman of the industry's committee for the drive, at the close of a two-day meeting of the chairmen of 19 industry committees cooperating in the drive.

Bergman today outlined the industry's plans for the Treasury campaign, the symbol of which is the covered wagon. These include sending covered wagons over the country, with stars making personal appearances in a dozen large cities, newsreel clips, and production of at least one six-minute short subject with Western stars and featuring covered wagons.

Morris May Get Roach's Video Films

William Morris and Co. is expected to be designated by Hal Roach to handle sales of the latter's films produced for television, a Roach associate indicated here yesterday.

Roach has arrived here from Hollywood to confer with television broadcasters. He brought with him prints of four of the six pictures he has already completed. Two more are to be forwarded from Hollywood to Roach who is expected to remain in New York for at least two weeks.

Skouras, Bowron At Boys' Club Opening

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 24.—Civic officials headed by Mayor Fletcher Bowron joined with chief barker Charles P. Skouras and other leaders in show business in a formal opening of Variety Boys' Club, with David W. Armstrong, national director of the Boys' Club movement, here from New York for ceremonies affiliating the new club with Boys' Club of America, which now numbers 309 units.

Roy Rogers and other stars welcomed the youngsters to the club, which was equipped with a gymnasium, showers, game rooms, craft shops, photo laboratory, television-radio room and a library at a cost of $200,000. Formal dedication takes place Monday evening at a banquet at the Ambassador Hotel.

Scores in Industry Receive Tax Refunds

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The U. S. Internal Revenue Bureau today made public a list of scores of persons and corporations receiving tax refunds in the fiscal year ended last June 30. Interstate Circuit, Inc., of Texas, leads the industry company list with a refund of $68,701. Virginia and Darryl F. Zanuck headed the list of individuals receiving refunds, each getting $174,973. 'IA,' Video Union Fight Jurisdiction

Charges and counter charges by the heads of the two unions in the jurisdictional battle over various categories of television production workers here have brought the fight into the open. John R. McDonnell, president of the National Association of Broadcast Engineers, an unaffiliated union, has accused the IATSE (AFL) of holding up labor peace in the video industry. He said: "NABE officers met with the IATSE and discovered in addition to the question of lighting in television that the IATSE now demands additional work which normally is in NABE's field of technical operation."

Richard F. Walsh, "IA" international president, countered yesterday: "Effort to adjust the jurisdictional clash in the television labor field has been made through numerous meetings between representatives of NABE and the IATSE. NABE is a union of electronic technicians now trying to extend its jurisdiction into the fields of stage work and lighting, motion picture filming and projection and the work of film laboratory technicians. The 'IA' still is trying to adjust the differences between the two unions and further conferences can be held at any time NABE wishes."

Rogers Feted on 25th Anniversary

The film reissue business is here to stay, Budd Rogers, Realart distribution vice-president, said here yesterday at a luncheon at Toots Shor's given by business associates in observance of Rogers' 25th year in the industry.

Exhibitor acceptance of reissue programs is demonstrated by the 5,000 regular accounts and 7,500 occasional bookings of Realart's package releases, Rogers said. The company has more than a five-year supply of films, without adding to its present inventory, on the basis of current scheduling of 36 to 40 dual releases annually. With this supply, Realart finds it possible to plan package programs, merchandising campaigns and release schedules far in advance and on the soundest possible basis, Rogers pointed out.

He foresees no injurious effect on films from television but rather believes the new medium can be employed to stimulate both film interest and theatre attendance.

Rogers was presented with an anniversary desk set at the luncheon.

TOA Names Brokers For Insurance Plan

Theatreowners interested in liability insurance on a per seat basis instead of a per admission basis have been advised by Theatre Owners of America to send applications to either A. Yarkin and Co. or Frank Crystal and Co., brokers handling this type of insurance, routing the applications through TOA's New York office.

A survey made by TOA has determined, it is said, that a "decided savings" can be made by the use of liability insurance bought on a per seat basis instead of a per admission basis.

a healthy program. With the divorce decrees now being written, the splitting up of the circuits from production will make them more and more exhibition-minded and create added need for cooperation among all exhibitors."

TOA's directors, the report also states, have decided to make an annual five-cent per seat levy for dues for each theatre member, effective July 1, 1949, instead of the ten cents per seat contribution which has prevailed since the organization was formed two years ago.

"Mother Is a Freshman"

(20th Century-Fox)

A FRESH story idea is neatly carried off in "Mother Is a Freshman" with results which commend themselves highly to audiences and exhibitors alike. This is a well-turned, well-handled comedy buttressed by polished handling in performance, direction and treatment. In other words, it's got it.

The idea: Loretta Young is the mother—and thoroughly believable, too—of 17-year Betty Lynn, co-ed at Pointer College. Both of them have been going through their comfortable financial resources faster than the resources allow. The question is whether Betty can return to school. Under a family scholarship large enough to maintain her and her daughter scholastically until the bank balance adjusts itself, Miss Young enters Pointer as a freshman. The possibilities of the situation are obvious.

Daughter has to help mother cram in order to pass the entry exams. Mother has to shed her smart clothes for skirts and sweaters which on Miss Young are very becoming. Daughter thinks she is in love with Van Johnson, professor in English literature. Mother knows she is in love with him before long. Problem: How to bring off the romance without hurting daughter who conveniently solves it by turning to Robert Arthur, schoolmate, for romantic comfort.

The story framework has been fortified by amusing incident responsible for such guffaws and laughs on the part of an audience at RKO's 58th St. Theatre, New York, last Wednesday evening that frequently the dialogue was drowned out. Miss Young is excellent as the young widow and mother. Johnson executes his part with easy believability, Miss Lynn is good and Rudy Vallee, as the fuddy-duddy family lawyer, is amusing. Technicolor serves to enhance tasteful production values.

The late Walter Morosco produced and Lloyd Bacon, old hand behind the camera, directed, in the showmanly manner. Raphael Blau's story provided the basis for a well-knit screenplay by Mary Loos and Richard Sale.

Running time, 81 minutes. General audience classification. For release in March.

will be maintained at the rate contemplated by the decree.

The attorneys explained that while the arrangement varies from the literal language of the decree, it is consistent with the spirit and purpose of the decree in assuring a steady flow of product through the Loop to subsequent-run houses. It is also intended, the attorneys said, to lighten the work of the court by avoiding a contested hearing for modification of the decree that has resulted from previous petitions by other distributors.

formation of two new companies, one for exhibition, the other for production-distribution.

At the same time it was learned that Paramount has consummated a new financing deal with the First National Bank of Chicago and associated banks which will make available to the company a total of $30,000,000 at short-term, low-interest rates on a revolving fund basis. Money will be used to finance the exchange of theatre properties which Paramount contemplates with its exhibitor partners under the terms of the settlement.

Extends Old Plan

The bank arrangement actually is an extension of an old borrowing plan, which made $25,000,000 available to the company for general corporate purposes. Of this amount, the company took only $10,000,000, which it subsequently repaid.

Paramount will pay only one-quarter of one per cent as a service charge on the cash held by the bank and made available to the company, and will pay interest charges of two and one-half per cent on the cash it actually utilizes under the new deal, it is said.

Apparently, it is Paramount's intention to leave untouched the parent company's current assets, believed to include about $30,000,000 in cash, when it actually launches its program of buying out partners as a means of salvaging valuable stock purchase options. Although its interest in any particular jointly-owned circuit may be banned under the settlement, Paramount still is free to buy out a partner and then sell the entire circuit, or whatever part of it is necessary.

TV Raised Question

Questions on the tax aspects of the reorganization are understood to have stemmed from the proposed disposition of Paramount's television properties.

Barney Balaban, Paramount president, convened the meeting of the executive committee yesterday following his return to New York from a Florida vacation. The meeting was in session up to a late hour with continuing indications that the Paramount chieftains would sign the decree before adjourning. However, a ranking company executive declared late in the day that signatures had not been affixed but that everything appeared to be in readiness for signing today.

Ruling Spurs Rumors

Spurred by the Treasury's ruling that the exchange of Paramount stock under the company's divorcement-reorganization plan would be tax-free, reports that the company had signed the decree yesterday circulated widely in both New York and Washington. While the Treasury's ruling eliminates the main barrier to signing, company officials said there remained several angles which required further discussion and necessitated the calling of yesterday's executive committee meeting.

The delay in signing the decree probably will necessitate postponement to April 15 of the Federal Court hearing here now scheduled for March 30. As the decree now stands, Paramount stockholders must approve it by March 30, but indications are that more time will be needed to distribute proxies and have them returned in time for a stockholders' meeting by that date. Accordingly, the stockholders' meeting may be held about April 8 or 11.

Review Arguments In Lawson Appeal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, after hearing two hours of argument, today took under advisement the appeals of screen writers John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo from their convictions in District Court here for contempt of Congress.

A decision can be expected in six weeks. No matter how the Appeals Court rules, an appeal to the Supreme Court is almost certain.

The cases of the eight others also cited for their refusal to answer questions of the House Un-American Activities Committee during its October, 1947 hearings on Hollywood depend on the outcome of the Lawson-Trumbo appeals.

Loew's 'Clean Slate'

of June, 1946, Loew's asserts it has been selling picture by picture and theatre by theatre, has been affording exhibitors "throughout the country an equal opportunity" of obtaining product through competitive licensing, and has made no less than 4,984 changes in clearances to further equitable licensing.

Its vertical integration has the sanction of the U. S. Supreme Court which has held that exhibition, production and distribution under one roof is not illegal in itself, says Loew's. The company states that its operations never were tainted by any coercion, restraints or any other monopolistic practices, thus are within the meaning of the high court's "legal per se" finding.

Theatre-wise, Loew's states that it has competition in every area, both first-run and subsequent-run, where it operates; that actually it has favored the films of independent companies over the other four majors; that there is no evidence that a competing exhibitor was bought out or a predatory practice engaged in.

If Loew's was out to control exhibition, there is no indication of it in the record, says the company. "A very conservative policy regarding theatre acquisitions" always has been pursued, it is contended.

Loew's reports that when the hearings commenced in the case, in 1945, the company had a total of 131 houses and this constituted an increase of only nine theatres in 13 years.

By way of contrast, Loew's points to the theatre interests of other majors as follows: Warner, 501; 20th Century-Fox (National), 636, and Paramount, 1,395. Presumably because it has agreed to divorcement, RKO's holdings were not referred to.

SIMPP May File

control of so many wholly-owned theatres.

On the subject of arbitration, Lessing said: "Anyone who does not believe in arbitration just doesn't know what he is talking about." He expressed himself, however, in favor of "a free, competitive screen where we do not need arbitration proceedings."

The Disney organization, with its tremendous vault inventory of shorts, is watching television's growth but Lessing does not feel that the new medium is ready to pay enough for its use.

"One Night With You"

(Rank-Universal-International)

SELECTIVE patrons are in for a rewarding surprise in J. Arthur Rank's "One Night with You." A lampoon on film-making, the picture has sharp comic bite, fine character construction and a wonderful musical sound track. The two cast names relatively well known on these shores are the principals, Nino Martini and Patricia Roc.

The yarn concerns a group of film-makers who are stumped for a good story. Thereupon Martini relates a romantic adventure he has just experienced, and thus the basis for the screenplay is supplied. Through flashback comes Martini's adventure which consisted of being stranded overnight in an Italian railway station with a pretty English girl. After many stumbling blocks, romance eventually flowers and the happy ending is provided. Several clever sub-plots and fresh twists fill out the story.

Martini sings several numbers which are always a pleasure to hear. The London Symphony Orchestra provided the music. A Two Cities Film, it was produced by Josef Somlo and directed by Shaun Terence Young, from a screenplay by C. Brahms and S. J. Simon. It is a Prestige Picture released through Universal-International.

Running time, 90 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

"Brothers in the Saddle"

(RKO Radio)

A STOCK Western whose principal antagonists are two brothers played by Tim Holt (who represents goodness) and Steve Brodie (who portrays badness), this Herman Schlom production is composed of the customary horse opera elements. However, in addition to plenty of horseback chasing, fisticuffs, gunplay and card-shuffling, it offers a little more than the usual amount of blood-letting as the brothers shoot it out in the showdown finale.

Holt does his best to protect his brother from the unhealthy influences of gamblers in an Arizona border town, but his remonstrances are to no avail. Brodie doesn't even hesitate to mulct his pretty fiancee (Virginia Cox) of her savings. He kills a gambler in a gunfight, is caught and tried only to escape punishment with the assistance of Holt. The latter keeps his brother in hiding until it can be proven that the shooting was not unprovoked and that Brodie fired in self-defense. While Holt is busy finding witnesses, however, Brodie is busy robbing stagecoaches. Finally, after the fugutive does shoot an enemy in cold blood, the two brothers turn on each other in a hideout gun duel. Brodie dies and Holt survives the bullet-riddling he takes. The cast is rounded out with Richard Martin, Carol Forman and Richard Powers. Lesley Selander directed.

Running time, 60 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

sion projection equipment, these exhibitors are gathering data not only on the cost of the different types of projection apparatus, but also on line-charges, the cost of micro-wave relay, the time period involved until projectors could be turned out and installed and the types of special events available for television.

They also contemplated contacting advertisers and to prove to them that the showing of television programs in theatres would gain them a much wider audience. Once convinced of this, it is expected that the advertisers then would in turn pressure the networks into permitting theatres to pick up regular broadcasts.

Terming concrete action on theatre television a "protective gamble," a spokesman for the group said a hard push is needed to overcome the indecision and inertia shown so far and that it is imperative that someone pioneer in theatre television activity.

Meanwhile, DuMont Laboratories has told the Federal Communications Commission that any consent decree entered by Paramount in the New York case will profoundly change the status of the Commission's proposed ruling that Paramount controls DuMont, and that the latter will seek to reopen the record in the FCC case to include the decree and its effects.

The FCC has announced its proposed ruling that Paramount controls DuMont, and that applications from DuMont and from Paramount subsidiaries for five new television stations should be dismissed since Paramount-DuMont already control the five-station limit. Both Paramount and DuMont have filed their exceptions to this, denying control by Paramount, and all that remains is oral argument and a final FCC decision.

VOL. 65. NO. 40 NEW YORK, U.S.A., MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1949 TEN CENTS

PARA. DECREE SIGNED; PERMITS 620 THEATRES

Independents in All Para. 1st-Run Areas

"Substantial" independent first-run competition in all communities over 25,000 population where theatres are wholly-owned by Paramount, with but few exceptions, and the same in communities of less population with more than one theatre, will be the result of the Paramount consent decree settlement, according to a supplement to the consent decree which took the form of a letter to Attorney General Tom Clark from Austin Keough, Paramount vice-president and general counsel. Keough stated it is his understanding that the letter in effect will be incorporated in the consent judgment.

The company lists numerous partnership holdings which will be divided in such a manner that Paramount will have independent competition through numerical divisions of circuits, divestiture of its own stock, or purchase of co-stockholders' stock and a subsequent partial or complete sale to a third party. In no case will these interests be disposed of to other affiliated companies.

Exceptions are New Haven and Hammond, Ind., where Paramount operates one house and Loew's and/or Warner operate two or more; South Norwalk and Norwalk, Conn., where Paramount operates one downtown and one suburban theatre and Warner operates two downtown theatres, and Phoenix, Ariz., where 20th-Fox operates, and Paramount, under the consent decree, will dispose of its interest in a joint ownership operating a downtown theatre.

The decree supplement declares that Paramount has instituted two suits to break pooling operations and until a favorable judgment is obtained in each, they are not to be considered a violation. These are Louis B. Lausier's City Theatre and Paramount's Central Theatre, at Biddeford, Me., and L. J. Ludwig's State and Star theatres which are pooled with Paramount's Grand in Jamestown, N. D. Paramount has filed against Lausier and Ludwig to terminate the pooling arrangements.

Also declared not a violation is the pooling of the Cameo and Ritz Theatres, Newburgh, N. Y., which are operated by Dora Levy in conjunction with Paramount's Broadway Theatre, in the same city. This joint operation is to expire on May 31, 1949.

In conformity with the judgment, says the decree supplement, is the plan of Florida Coastal Theatres, a Paramount subsidiary, to construct a new theatre in West Palm Beach, Fla., which is to be wholly-owned by Paramount or the New Theatre Company.

Paramount declares that it shares on a 50-50 basis four theatres in Shreveport, La., with Mrs. Rebecca M. Frank and Miss Marie Schuler, both said to be investors only, and that the status quo may be continued there, rather than have any stock

Orders Ending of 774 Joint Ownerships of Theatres; Limits First-Run Holdings; Ends 'Closed' Situations; Sets Trade Practices

Paramount and the Department of Justice on Friday signed the consent decree providing for the divorcement of the company's theatre operations from its production-distribution operations and the reorganization of Paramount as two independent companies.

A hearing on the decree has been set for Thursday in U. S. District Court here and, with the anticipated approval of the court, Paramount stockholders will be asked to give their approval to the plan by April 19. Failure to obtain their approval by that date will render the decree null and void.

The decree permits the new Paramount theatre company to retain approximately 620 theatres and requires Paramount to dispose of interests in 774 theatres.

Disposal of the banned theatre interests is to be accomplished within three years from the date of entry of the decree, on a schedule calling for disposition of one-third of the total in each of the three years. The two new companies are to be operated wholly independent of one another within one year of entry of the judgment.

Canadian and all foreign theatre holdings of Paramount will be transferred to the new picture company, together with the Paramount Theatre Building in New York.

Though not a part of the decree, Barney Balaban, Paramount president, will head the new producing-distributing company, and Leonard Goldenson, present Paramount vice-president in charge of theatres, will head the new theatre company.

As previously reported, the decree prohibits the joint ownership by individuals of securities in both new companies.

Under the Paramount reorganization, as distinguished from the decree,

Highlights of Para. Decree

SALIENT points of the Paramount consent decree signed by the company and the government:

Paramount theatre operations to be separated from production-distribution.

Paramount to be reorganized into two independent companies with five-year prohibition on individual stock ownership in both companies.

New theatre company to have 620 theatres after disposing of 774 joint ownership interests; with closed situations ended and limits placed upon first-run theatre ownership in smaller cities. Disposal of theatres required within three years, one-third annually.

New producing-distributing company to take Paramount's foreign theatre properties, including Canadian, as well as all production-distribution assets, the Paramount Building in New York, and to share in Paramount television interests.

Decree requires court and stockholder approval, the latter by April 19, to become effective.

Incorporates trade practice regulations and bans previously affirmed by courts.

Reorganization of company must be completed within one year after entry of decree.

Court retains jurisdiction, but future hearing will be held before a single judge.

Houses Outside U.S. To Para. Pictures

The New Paramount Pictures Co. which will emerge from the reorganization of Paramount Pictures, Inc., under the consent decree in the government suit, will take ownership of all direct and indirect theatre holdings of the present parent corporation in Canada and in all other foreign countries, Paramount president Barney Balaban stated on Friday.

Additionally, the new picture company will own the Paramount Theatre Building in New York; television sta-

Justice Dept. Hails Decree as '2nd Step'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The Justice Department hailed the signing of the Paramount decree as the "second step toward our objective of restoration of competition through divorcement of the five major film distributors from their theatre operating affiliates."

The RKO decree, of course, was the first step.

Justice officials said the decree would go to the New York Court on March 3. At the same time, the

Mail Para. Proxies Anytime Now: SEC

Washington, Feb. 27.—A Securities and Exchange Commission official said today that Paramount can start mailing out its proxy statements to its stockholders "whenever they're ready."

He said that the SEC's opinion on the plan had already gone to the company, and that "little or no changes" are necessary.

Admission Tax Collections Off Only 1%

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Box-office business in 1948 was only about one per cent below 1947 and less than one per cent below 1946—if the tax collection figures of the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue are any indication.

General admissions tax collections for the period of February, 1948, through January, 1949—reflecting box-office business during the 12 months of 1948—totaled $382,207,440, according to figures released by the Bureau today. This compares with $386,789,733 collected in the February, 1947, through January, 1948, period, reflecting 1947 business, and $385,950,164 collected in the February, 1946, through January, 1947, period, reflecting 1946 business.

However, since there is no accurate way of telling how much of the total is accounted for by theatre admissions, attempts to reconstruct total box-office gross for any year from the tax collection figures are virtually impossible.

In any event, even if box-office business held near the 1946 and 1947 levels, it does not mean profits have stayed at those levels, since costs have risen sharply.

There were five months in 1948 in which collections exceeded 1947—reflecting business in February, May, July, October and November.

The January, 1949, figures, released today, did not get the New Year off to a good start. General admission tax collections in January, reflecting December business, totaled $25,766,798, compared with $28,688,455 collected in January, 1948.

Johnston, Aides At Paramount Meet

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.—Eric Johnston and staff members of the Motion Picture Association of America continued the series of studio conferences with two meetings at Paramount Friday, the first with top executives and the second with department heads and other production principals.

As at previous conferences at M-G-M and Columbia during the week, Johnston and his aides reviewed current economic conditions, pointed out that films have failed to keep up with the increased spending power of the population and counselled fashioning future product that will cultivate patronage not now attending motion picture theatres. Other studios will be visited this week.

TV, Screen Ads Are Topics at NT Meet

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.—Television development and its implications for theatres were among the major topics discussed at the annual meeting of National Theatres, which ended here yesterday, and the company is understood to be ready for widespread installation of large screen video as soon as technical developments warrant.

Screen advertising was also discussed extensively by NT executives, with Charles Skouras, president, expressing the opinion that only dignified, informative advertising dealing with national products is acceptable. He warned especially against local advertising on screens.

Giveaways, the meeting decided, must be limited to major articles, such as the automobiles used for this purpose several months ago. NT division presidents and their staffs left here today to return to their respective home stations.

Paramount Decree

it is planned to issue one share of stock in each new company for each share of Paramount stock presently outstanding. The decree provides that this be done by issuing shares in the new picture company and certificates of interest in the theatre company. The new stock of the theatre company will be held in trust for owners by the Bank of New York and Fifth Avenue Bank, as trustees.

The trustees are authorized to retain 50 per cent of any dividends paid by the new theatre company, but in the event that less than 51 per cent of the shares have been transferred to new owners within the first two years, the trustees will retain 100 per cent of such dividends. The clause is designed to speed dispersal of the theatre company stock by owners of stock in the new theatre company.

The decree states that Paramount accepts its provisions "for the purpose of avoiding discrimination against other exhibitors and distributors, promoting substantial independent theatre competition for the Paramount theatres and promoting competition in the distribution and exhibition of films generally."

Trade practice regulations made a part of the decree enjoin the Paramount defendants from fixing minimum admission prices by any means; from participating with anyone in the maintenance of a uniform clearance system; from granting any clearances between theatres not in substantial competition; from granting excessive clearance to a theatre having substantial competition, with the burden of proof that such clearance is not excessive placed upon the distributor.

Paramount also is enjoined from performing or making any franchise deals except for the purpose of enabling an "independent exhibitor to operate a theatre in competition with a theatre affiliated with a defendant."

It is also enjoined from making or further performing any formula deal or master agreement; from performing or entering into any license which conditions the exhibition of one feature on the purchase of another feature.

20 Per Cent Cancellation Right

If more than one feature is licensed at a time and they have not been trade-shown, the licensee must be given a 20 per cent cancellation right to be exercised in the order of release within 10 days after licensee has had the opportunity to see the pictures.

Paramount is required to offer all pictures "theatre by theatre, solely upon the merits and without discrimination in favor of affiliated theatres, circuit theatres or others," presumably encouraging a competitive bidding sales method.

The decree accords Paramount the right to receive the benefits of different film licensing provisions which may be entered by the court subsequently in connection with the continuing litigation of Warner, 20th Century-Fox and Loew.

In addition to being restrained from participating in any of the foregoing which is applicable to theatre operation, the new Paramount theatre company will be enjoined from engaging in pooling agreements; from making or continuing theatre leasing arrangements within its own competitive area which are based on a share of the profits of the theatres so leased; from continuing to own or acquiring theatre interests in conjunction with another defendant.

The new Paramount theatre company must dispose of its 25 to 33 per cent cent interests in Butterfield circuit theatres, Michigan, by next Nov. 8.

It must terminate its interests by next March 31 in Shea circuit theatres, Buffalo, except that it may elect to acquire the interests of co-owners in the Great Lakes, Hippodrome, Niagara, Seneca and Kenmore theatres in that area only.

It must dispose of its interest in the Parkhill Theatre, Yonkers, N. Y., by Nov. 8.

Pending termination of its present joint ownerships in theatres, Paramount may acquire new theatre interests as replacements for approved, wholly-owned houses which may be destroyed or converted to non-theatrical use; by renewing leases on approved, wholly-owned houses and, with court approval, by replacing approved houses on which it has been unable to renew leases on equitable terms.

It is also authorized, with court approval, to proceed with planned construction of theatres on sites it now controls for one theatre each in Miami, Chattanooga, Salt Lake City and Tampa, all of which are designed to replace former Paramount theatres or leaseholds.

Barred from Combines

The new theatre company also is restrained from participating in any form in film buying combines and from entering into any agreement restricting the right of another exhibitor to acquire a theatre.

Separate decree provisions are made to enable Paramount to comply with those provisions covering disposal of joint ownerships where difficulties are encountered by the company in obtaining equitable terms for the interests it is required to sell.

In addition, Paramount is required to dispose of theatres to eliminate 63 closed or semi-closed situations and is required to confine its operations to one first-run theatre in Tucson, Aurora, Alton, Danville, Decatur, Galesburg, Kewanee, Joliet, Waukegan, Grand Forks, Anderson, Greenville and Mitchell, and to two first-runs in San Francisco, Duluth and Sioux Falls.

Up to the time of the completion of the Paramount reorganization, the company may continue to sell to Paramount theatres on terms and conditions of its own specification. The reorganization is to be completed within one year after entry of the decree.

Future actions under the decree are to be heard by any New York District Court judge, rather than by the three-judge Federal Court currently presiding in the case. The decree extends the Federal Court jurisdiction over Paramount and the new companies, even for the purpose of settling disputes which may arise over termination of joint theatre ownerships due to the "unreasonableness" of either Paramount or the joint owner.

Approval of the decree by the court and Paramount stockholders will eliminate the company from the 10-year-old government anti-trust suit, as a similar divorcement-reorganization decree ended it for RKO, subject still to approval of stockholders of that company.

Para. B'way House To Either Company

The Paramount decree authorizes the company to transfer the Paramount Theatre, companys Broadway "flagship," to either the new picture company or the new theatre company.

However, the house may not be operated by the new picture company nor leased by it to any defendant in the government suit. It may be leased to the new Paramount theatre company on a non-profit sharing basis. Otherwise, the new picture company must sell it to a non-defendant within five years.

The picture company will receive the Paramount Building in which the theatre is located, in any event.

Justice Dept. Hails.

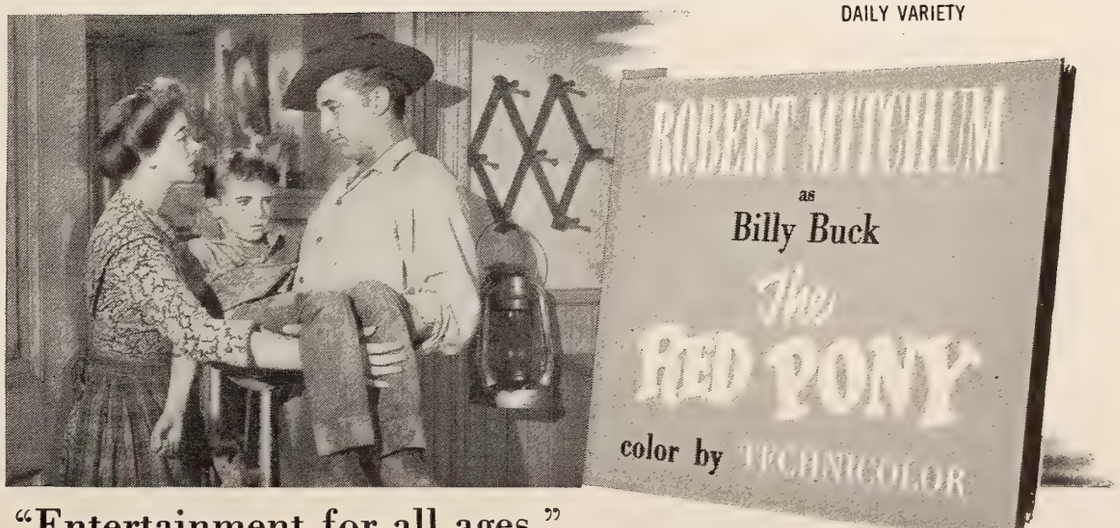
Department probably will ask to have final argument in the Paramount case set back from March 30 to April 19, the same date that is the deadline for stockholder approval of the Paramount decree.

The Justice Department stressed that when it filed the suit back in 1938, it was announced that civil rather than criminal proceedings were begun because attempts had been made "through the voluntary cooperation of Paramount and other major producers to adjust the difficulties of independent exhibitors who had brought their problems to the Justice Department. In the light of this history it was considered inequitable to institute a criminal proceeding."

The statement at that time, the Justice Department continued, said that the most direct way to restore competition was divorcement. "This proposed consent judgment," it stated, "is designed to carry out this purpose and to fulfill the announced desire of the Government to encourage and not to retard the development and orderly operation of the motion picture industry." Paramount's consent to this judgment should help to avoid further prolongation of an already protracted litigation and aid in the restoration of competition in the motion picture industry."



Competition 'Net Effect'

Justice officials said that "the net effect" of the divestiture provisions of the decree was "to provide an opportunity for independent first-run competition in substantially all cities over 25,000 where Paramount now owns theatre interests, and for independent competition in substantially all of the smaller communities where it has more than one theatre."

Justice officials estimated that the total number of theatres which may be held by the new company would vary from about 400 to 650 theatres, depending on the number of theatres partially owned by Paramount which are converted to full ownership. This means disposal of anywhere from 800 to 1,050 theatres, and since Paramount is usually accounted as wholly owning about 400 theatres, it means a top of about 250 on the number of partners it can buy out.

SAN FRANCISCO CALL-BULLETIN

Para. Product and Policy Meet Today

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.—Plans for the release, distribution and promotion of Paramount product for the remainder of 1949 and discussion of Paramount production, distribution and production policy for 1950 will be topics of five days of intensive meetings, starting tomorrow, at the studio, by New York and field executives with vice-president and studio head Henry Ginsberg, Y. Frank Freeman, Jack Karp, Samuel Briskin, D. A. Doran, and other studio executives.

Headed by Barney Balaban, president, and Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board, this will be the largest meeting of Paramount executives ever to take place at the studio. During the meetings they will see all films now in production as well as those in the cutting rooms. The Paramount decree in the government's New York case is almost certain to be a topic high on the agenda.

In addition to Balaban and Zukor the following executives are scheduled to arrive here today from New York: George Weltner, president of Paramount International; Paul Rajbourn, vice-president; A. W. Schwalberg, general sales manager; Russell Holman, Eastern production manager; E. K. O'Shea, executive assistant to Schwalberg; Hugh Owen, Eastern and Southern division sales manager; Jim Donohue, Central division sales manager; George Smith, Western division sales manager; Gordon Lightstone, head of distribution in Canada; Oscar Morgan, short subject and Paramount News sales manager; Fred Leroy, in charge of sales statistics; Stanley Shuford, advertising manager; Ben Washer, publicity manager; William Danziger, exploitation manager; Paul Ackerman, director of publicity-advertising for Paramount International, and Ruby Montgelas, president of Buchanan Advertising Agency.

Sweigert Quits Para. Phila. District Post

Earle W. Sweigert, Paramount district manager in the Philadelphia territory, has resigned, A. W. Schwalberg, general sales manager, disclosed here on Friday. Sweigert asserted that he has definite plans for the future but would announce them at a later date because of confidential negotiations being carried on at this time. Sweigert announced he would carry on until a successor is named.

Sweigert has been with Paramount for 32 years, starting in Philadelphia as a salesman. He later served successively as a branch manager in New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia, was mid-Eastern division manager and manager in New York and Philadelphia.

When the mid-Eastern division was recently returned to New York, Sweigert continued in Philadelphia as district manager.

RKO Backs Rossellini

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.—RKO financing and distribution of a picture to be made in Italy by Roberto Rossellini and starring Ingrid Bergman is announced by Howard Hughes. The negotiations followed the withdrawal of Samuel Goldwyn from the project.

New Board Members Must Be Non-Para.

A majority of the board of directors of the new Paramount theatre company must be persons without prior connection with Paramount or the new production-distribution company, the consent decree directs. Candidates for the theatre company board must be approved by the court and the U. S. Attorney General.

Replacements of members of the board of the new picture company, likewise, must have had no previous connection with either Paramount or the new theatre company, until the board consists of a majority of such non-Paramount persons. Thereafter, such a majority must be maintained on the board.

$1,500,000 Trust Suit in Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 27.—The "Big Eight," Minnesota Amusement Co., and the old Publix Theatres are named defendants in a $1,500,000 anti-trust suit for treble damages brought by W. L. Crouse, owner of the Regent, State and Grant theatres in Eveleth, Minn.

The complaint, which was filed in Federal District Court here, alleges that since 1932, when Crouse bought the Regent in Eveleth from Publix, all of the defendants have combined and conspired to force him to run pictures two weeks behind theatres now owned by Minnesota Amusement, a subsidiary of Paramount, in Virginia, Minn., four and one-half miles from Eveleth. Minnesota Amusement took over the Publix theatres in Virginia in 1932.

Crouse claims that when Publix operated in Eveleth, it played pictures there at the same time as they were played in Publix theatres in Virginia, but that since he began operating in Eveleth, he was "moved back" two weeks and since then has been forced to operate as second-run the Regent, State and Grant which he opened subsequently to 1932.

This clearance of 14 days in favor of Minnesota Amusement is illegal under the Sherman Act, it was stated here by Stanley Kane, one of Crouse's attorneys.

Crouse asks for an injunction to end the two weeks' clearance, and for treble damages in the amount of $1,500,000.

In addition to Minnesota Amusement and Publix Northwest Theatres, named defendants are Loew, Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, RKO Radio, Warner, Columbia, United Artists, and Universal.

Roman Bohnen, 48

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.—Roman Bohnen, 48, veteran character actor of stage and screen, died here Thursday at the end of the second act of a Little Theatre play in which he was appearing. He had been suffering a heart ailment for some time. Among the films he appeared in were "Song of Bernadette," "Of Mice and Men" and "Arch of Triumph." He is survived by a daughter.

Hear F. & M. Move to Block Decree Thurs.

Motion by the Fanchon and Marco subsidiary which operates the Paramount, Los Angeles, and which seeks to revise or actually block the Paramount settlement of the industry trust suit will be heard in New York Federal Court on Thursday when the Court convenes to consider the decree judgment.

F. and M. claims that the settlement would permit Paramount, which holds the lease, to evict it from the Los Angeles house and that this is contrary to the U. S. Supreme Court opinion in the case.

US Asking Another Month To Answer Defendants

Department of Justice on Thursday will ask New York Federal Court for an extension of the deadline, from March 1 to April 1, by which it is to submit answering briefs in the industry anti-trust suit. This action primarily concerns Loew, 20th Century-Fox and Warner which remain as immediate parties to the suit.

Rose's UK Filming Plan 'Beats' Quota

David E. Rose, head of Coronado Productions, said here at the weekend that he will set in motion next June in England a production program which will make it possible for his future pictures to overcome marketing obstacles in both hemispheres.

Rose, who will leave New York by plane today for London, said he will return here in three weeks with details of a long-range operation. Explaining it in terms of the single picture he has planned thus far, Rose said Coronado will use an American star, director and script to make in England, with sterling funds, a picture budgeted at approximately $1,250,000. With Robert Montgomery as star and director, and with a script by Hugo Butler and Ann Hunter of Hollywood, it will be an American picture in treatment and approach, but it will be a British picture for British film quota purposes. Rose, a former managing director for Paramount in Britain, pointed out that a simliar program has been adopted by M-G-M.

Coronado's head indicated that he expects to produce several pictures in England under his program.

Houses Outside U.S.

tion KTLA, Los Angeles, and the television interests represented by the holdings in Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, Inc.

Balaban hailed the terms of the trust suit settlement as opening "the way to one of the most constructive moves in the history of the corporation." He said: "It will leave the New Theatre Company with a large, well-selected and thoroughly sound theatre circuit. In my view, it will be a strong, prosperous enterprise. The New Picture Company will be a leader in the field of motion picture production-distribution with excellent studio facilities and an unexcelled worldwide distribution organization. Both companies will be strongly equipped in manpower and financial resources to carry on successfully."

Para., Independents

transferred. The same holds for three houses in Jackson, Miss., where Paramount has 50 per cent and "the Kennington interests," said to be investors but otherwise not identified, have the remaining 50 per cent.

Film company further states that, "We believe certain of the co-owners" of houses in Alabama, North and South Carolina and Tennessee are investors and it is understood that if Paramount can "satisfy" the Attorney General that this is a fact, the company need not acquire the co-owners' interests.

May Keep Chattanooga House

Paramount need not dispose of one first-run in Chattanooga, Tenn., as called for under the judgment, if there shall be an independent first-run in competition with the Paramount house within 18 months of entry of the consent decree, according to the supplement.

It is understood, says Keough's letter, that Paramount may sub-lease the Annex Theatre, Detroit, under certain competitive conditions, but with court approval being unnecessary. Paramount states that it is permitted to continue the existing joint ownership with investors in these situations: Paramount, Fort Fairfield, Me.; Brockton, Brockton, Mass., and the Liberty and Majestic Theatres, at Johnson City, Tenn.

Paramount confirms that on Dec. 30, 1948, it sold to Sam Pinanski's American Theatres Corp. its interest in 45 theatres, mostly in Massachusetts.

Relax Limit for Three

It is understood, according to the supplement, that because of the large size of their holdings, in excess of 5,000 shares, there would be no time limit for directors Maurice Newton, Stanton Griffis and A. Conger Goodyear for disposition of their certificates of interests in New Theatre Co. if they become directors of New Pictures Co. They must make "a showing of due diligence" to complete disposal of their holdings without undue hardship, however.

One part of the supplement contains the first official confirmation that Barney Balaban "will become an officer and director of the New Pictures Co." Balaban, it says, holding convertible notes of the present parent corporation, will, prior to the expiration of the trust to be set up, dispose of or exercise his option to convert the notes into Paramount stock. If the warrants are exercised, he will dispose of the holdings in New Theatre Co. which would be so acquired as soon as sale may be made "without undue hardship."

Hollywood Junket For Para.'s 'El Paso'

Another Hollywood junket is planned for Texas in connection with the premiere of the Pine-Thomas production "El Paso," to be held at El Paso's Plaza Theatre on March 26.

Upon arrival on a special railroad car from Hollywood, the troupe will be met by a sheriff's posse and escorted to their hotel in buckboards, accompanied by a 15-block parade. After the opening, the caravan will proceed across Texas and into Oklahoma, making personal appearances at other openings.

Theatres That Para. Agrees To Relinquish

There are 774 theatres in which Paramount owns a joint interest with actual or potential independent exhibitors.

Under the terms of the company's consent decree it agrees to dispose of its interests in those theatres within three years from the date of entry of the decree. Disposition of the interests is to be at the rate of one-third of the total annually, equivalent to 258 theatres each year for three years.

The company likewise agrees not to acquire similar theatre interests in the future.

The joint ownership may be dissolved either by a sale or other outright transfer of the interest of Paramount or the new theatre company to the c-owners or to others who are not defendants or affiliated with the defendants in the government suit.

Following are the theatres in which Paramount's partial interests are to be disposed of:

More Competition in 56 Towns Created by Decree

Paramount will dispose of one or more theatres, including numerous first-runs, in 56 communities, for the purpose of "creating substantial motion picture theatre operating competition," under the terms of its consent decree. Disposition of at least one-half the properties is to be made in one year and the remaining 50 per cent within the second year of entry of the consent judgment.

Presumably designed to open "closed" situations, although this is not specifically stated, Paramount will sell to unaffiliated interests the following properties:

Florida: Two in Clearwater, including the Belleview; one first-run in Daytona Beach; one theatre in Deland; two in Fort Lauderdale, one of them a first-run; the Ritz, Fort Myers; one first run in Gainesville; one in Hollywood (not the one located in the Hollywood Hotel); three in Jacksonville, one of them a first-run; two in Lakeland, one a first-run; one each in Fort Worth, Plant City, St. Augustine, Sanford, Sarasota, and Winter Park; one first-run in Ocala; two in Orlando, one a first-run; four in St. Petersburg, one of which shall be a first-run.

Georgia: One first-run in Atlanta.

Idaho: One theatre in Preston.

Illinois: One first-run each in Bloomington, Elgin, Kankakee and Peoria; one theatre in Pekin.

One first-run in South Bend, Ind.; one in Danville, Ky.; one in Bath, Me.; the Regent and the Annex, Detroit, Mich.

Minnesota: One theatre in Austin; one first-run each in Mankato, Minneapolis, St. Cloud and St. Paul.

Also, one theatre in Peekskill and one first-run in Poughkeepsie, New York; one first-run each in Charlotte, N. C., Fargo, N. D., and Minot, N. D.; one theatre in Bellevue, O., and one first-run in each of these cities in Ohio: Fremont, Hamilton and Middletown.

South Carolina: One first-run theatre in both Columbia and Spartanburg, and one theatre in Sumter.

South Dakota: One first-run each in Aberdeen, Huron and Watertown.

Tennessee: One first-run in Chattanooga and two first-runs in Knoxville.

Also, one theatre in each of the following towns: Logan and Provo, Utah; Barre, Vt., and Eau Claire, Wisc.

Provision is made for Paramount, if unable to dispose of the properties on "reasonable terms," to lease up to 12 of the theatres to unaffiliated interests on condition that the leases or sub-leases are not based upon any profit-sharing. Further condition is that Paramount must sell as soon as "reasonable terms" can be obtained and in any event prior to the expiration of its leases and sub-leases.

251 May Be Acquired for Later Sale

Decree Silent on Para. 'Showcases'

No apparent provision is made in the Paramount consent decree for ownership of "showcase" theatres by the new production-distribution company, even with court approval.

There appears to be no stated ban, either. However, the RKO decree permits that company to acquire showcases with the approval of the court.

CINCINNATI MAYOR PROCLAIMS "THE LIFE of RILEY WEEK"!

BULLETIN #5

CINCINNATI—Proclamation of official "Life of Riley Week" by Mayor Albert D. Cash launches week-long celebration to honor world premiere of U-I's "The Life of Riley" on March 5th at RKO Grand Theatre.

City's leading stores mark celebration with full-page newspaper ads and window displays. Enquirer, Times-Star and Post tie up with special news-making "Riley" contests. Traffic Safety Council campaign heralds "Riley" in posters throughout Cincinnati. City-wide tie-up by Procter & Gamble, sponsors of "The Life of Riley" hit radio show, puts "Riley" displays in every drug store window.

The whole town's got that "Life of Riley" feeling!

UNITED

Flight Facts

"Haven't I seen you somewhere before?" I asked a passenger the other day. He looked so familiar he might have been one of the crew.

"You may have," he replied, "I travel a lot—and I've flown United to Los Angeles 5 times in the last 4 months!

"I like United because, comparing everything—meals, speed, fares, frequency of flights, and your famous 'Service in the Mainliner Manner'—United's got every other airline backed right off the map! And what a honey your DC-6 Mainliner 300 is!"

Biased? Well, maybe. But I wish you'd try United's Los Angeles service yourself—then make up your own mind.

US Victory is Claimed Under Decree: Clark

More Than Courts Could Yield, Says Atty.-General

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. — Attorney General Tom C. Clark today said that the Paramount consent decree was "a great victory for us, possibly as much or more than we could have gotten in the courts."

Clark pointed out that the case is 11 years old, and said that "for us finally to be able to get complete divorcement, plus the dissolution of partnerships, plus the opening of those towns where we don't think there is competition, is really something."

The decree should "prove very beneficial to the industry, particularly if we get the rest of the case settled quickly," the Attorney General declared. He said he understood independent exhibitor groups like Allied States Association "like it too."

Clark put in a plug for Paramount and the other defendants. "All the companies have been very considerate; they have cooperated very well with the Government since the Supreme Court decision last May."

Hearing Opens Here In NT Settlements

Motions for and against acceptance of special referee Jacob S. Demov's report in the settlement of National Theatres minority stockholder actions against 20th Century-Fox were heard here yesterday by New York Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora. Demov has recommended that court approval be given to a settlement whereby 20th-Fox will benefit by approximately $3,500,000.

Under the terms of the settlement

New Building Code Is Proposed in Missouri

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 28.—Proposed legislation setting up a new state building code for theatres has been introduced in the Missouri legislature. Its chief provisions would set up new aisle and row requirements, and eliminate "informer" clauses in old statutes which give any complainant half the fine

Balaban Hails Para. Future

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Speaking before the entire personnel of Paramount studio, Barney Balaban, Paramount president, called 1950 "the year of rebirth of our company" and said that the intervening months when the new company takes shape "is an exciting opportunity — a challenge to each of us."

The meeting, first in a series over a five-day period, attended by Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board, and other top Paramount executives from New York and the field, marked the first open discussion of plans and policies of the production-distribution company to be set up under terms of the Paramount consent decree signed Friday.

Balaban warned his listeners not to be mistaken about the far-reaching

AMPP Structure on Coast Overhauled

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—The board of directors of the Association of Motion Picture Producers has been overhauled, strengthened and reimplemented, and all officers have been reelected, including Eric Johnston, president; Y. Frank Freeman, board chairman; Charles S. Boren, vice-president in charge of industrial relations, and James S. Howie, secretary-treasurer. The board has created two new vice-presidencies, which have been filled by the election of B. B. Kahane and Louis K. Sidney.

Also, the association's bylaws have been amended to increase the board,

TOA Warns Theatres On Censorship Seals

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 28.— The local Theatre Owners of America is warning exhibitors that the State Education Department, censorship division, is checking theatres in this district to determine whether all films carry censor seals. Some situations brought to the TOA's attention indicated that prints are being serviced by out-of-state exchanges without censor license numbers.

RKO and Disney in New 3-Picture Deal

A new releasing agreement has consummated between Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Radio, and Roy O. Disney, president of Walt Disney Productions, for the worldwide distribution of the next three Walt Disney features. The three comprise, in the order of their release, "Ichabod and Mr. Toad," "Cinderella" and "Treasure Island." All will be in Technicolor. "Cinderella" will be entirely in animation and is expected to be ready for release at Christmas. "Ichabod and Mr. Toad" will be ready for release in September.

Bing Crosby will narrate the story of Ichabod and sing three songs. Basil Rathbone will be the narrator of the Toad story. It will be entirely in animation. "Treasure Island," by Robert Louis Stevenson, will be the first 100 per cent live-action picture by Disney. It will be personally produced by him. Bobby Driscoll will play young Jim Hawkins.

'IA' Wins More SOPEG 'Collarite' Territory

Mandel Will Handle Promotion of Bonds

Max E. Youngstein, chairman of the motion picture industry's advertising-publicity committee cooperating in the U. S. Treasury's savings bond drive, has named Harry Mandel, RKO's national director of advertising-publicity, to the New York promotional chairmanship of the campaign.

Mandel will direct the campaign in this area and will coordinate the activities of national circuits operating out of New York.

Disclosure here yesterday of final results in the National Labor Relations Board's elections held late last week at six film company home offices indicates that the IATSE's year-long assault on the "white collarite" strongholds of Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild has yielded the former three full shops and part of another.

In addition to the United Artists shop which was won away from CIO's SOPEG, the following former SOPEG units will henceforth come under the jurisdiction of AFL's "IA"

Para. Is Free To Acquire 'Show Cases'

New Picture Company Also May Sell by Bids

Although free to acquire "showcase" theatres under the terms of the consent judgment in the industry trust suit, the new Paramount Pictures Co. plans to engage solely in production and distribution, with no plan for first-run exhibition having been given any consideration.

"As a matter of fact," one official here said, "we don't even have a theatre department." This of course presupposes that the reorganization of corporation is approved by the New York Federal Court at a hearing on Thursday and by stockholders by April 19.

According to the executive's interpretation of the decree, Paramount Pictures Co. may acquire showcases under certain conditions since the document contains no specific injunction which would enjoin it from doing so. The new Pictures Co., however,

Myers Terms Suits 'Not Confiscatory'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. — Allied States Association general counsel Abram F. Myers today reluctantly added two more aphorisms to those he has already made about the Paramount and RKO consent decrees.

TOA Decision This Week in Shorts Row

Theatre Owners of America's board will have ready this week its decision on whether to reaffirm or alter its position in the dispute with distributors over rentals to be charged for the industry public relations short subject series, Gael Sullivan, TOA executive director, indicated here yesterday.

Sullivan, who has conferred on the subject with a distributors committee headed by RKO Radio vice-president Robert Mochrie, said he will poll the board by mail rather than ask for a special meeting to submit his report of the conference. After board members read the mailed report, Sullivan explained, they will be asked to indicate whether or not TOA should persist in its demand that exhibitor rentals be held to a nominal fee, and, if not, to recommend what new approach should be taken. Meanwhile, RKO Radio is still holding up the release of "Let's Go to the Movies," first of the series, which originally had been scheduled for release today.

TOA members contend that production of each short should not have cost more than $8,000 or $9,000. Actual cost of each was approximately $35,000, it is understood.

AMPA Group Elected To Select New Slate

A nominating committee of seven, headed by David A. Bader, was elected yesterday at a luncheon-meeting here of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers. Others on the committee, which will submit a slate of officers for the 1949-50 term, are: Rutgers Neilson, Vincent Trotta, Gordon White, Blanche Livingston, Charles Alicoate and Chester Friedman. Yesterday's membership meeting was presided over by AMPA vice-president David Blum in the absence of president Max Youngstein.

A special AMPA benefit committee of nine has been appointed by Youngstein to make arrangements for a fund-raising film premiere in New York. Committee members are: Blum, Jacques Kopfstein, Alicoate, Friedman, Herman Schleier, Phil Williams, Harry McWilliams, John Phillips and Hap Hadley.

Oliver C. Broughton, field auditor, has been promoted to succeed Charles Fogle as M-G-M roving exchange amintenance head, by William F. Rodgers, sales vice-president. Both Broughton and Fogle are on a tour of exchanges in the West, following which Fogle will retire after 20 years with the company.

Film Content Is Up To Women: Johnston

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, placed responsibility for a steady flow of "pictures with broad vision" squarely in the hands of American women in an address today before representatives of 14 women's groups at Hollywood Beverly Christian Church.

Outlining reasons why such films must pay their way in the U. S., Johnston said, "the industry recognizes beaten paths are for beaten men, and constantly is looking for new horizons and new roads to travel. We all know there exists a steady audience for conventional pictures. We also know there exists a potentially great audience, which you and your organizations typify, which want pictures with broad vision and intelligent recognition of what is going on in the world."

Johnston pointed out that 37 per cent of the present adult population is composed of high school graduates, which compares with seven per cent in 1920. MPAA vice-president Francis Harmon also addressed the forum.

Independents Hail Johnston at Dinner

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—The Independent Motion Picture Producers Association tonight hailed MPAA president Eric Johnston as the "premier salesman of American films and the vigorous exponent of the American way of life" at a banquet in his honor where a plaque was awarded Johnston.

Johnston and his staff will be guests of the Motion Picture Industry Council tomorrow night at a meeting called by MPIC chairman Cecil B. DeMille.

SIMMP Offices Seen Shifted to New York

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Formal announcement of the opening of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers' office in New York as principal headquarters will be made later this week, detailing decisions made by the executive committee at an unheralded meeting held here Friday. It was attended by SIMPP president Ellis Arnall, who left over the weekend for New York via Louisville.

Arnall's presence in Hollywood had been closely sheltered "so that he could accomplish several SIMPP matters without interruption," it was said. Although details of the new division of responsibilities between New York and Hollywood offices are withheld pending a formal announcement, it was learned that the Coast office will continue to maintain legal and labor departments under the present heads.

1st-Runs Are Spotty Here

Business is uneven this week among New York's first-run theatres. Three pictures in their first weeks are registering nicely, but two others proved to be disappointing business-wise. Meanwhile, four films which have been running on Broadway for 16 weeks or more are maintaining a good grossing pace, while some of the shorter term holdovers are making unimpressive showings.

Newcomers which are performing brightly are "Family Honeymoon," with a stage presentation, at the Music Hall, where a very satisfactory $138,000 is indicated for the first week; "Knock on Any Door," the first week of which ended yesterday, brought the Astor a snappy $55,000; "The Fighting O'Flynn" is expected to yield the Criterion a big $30,500 in its first week.

Second week of "Whisperin' Smith," plus a stage bill topped by comedian Henny Youngman, is giving the Paramount a fair second week's $62,000; the picture will hold for a third week after which it will be followed by "Alias Nick Beal."

The four long-runners that are holding up well are: "Hamlet," Park Avenue, 22nd week, $15,000; "The Red Shoes," Bijou, 20th week, $15,000; "The Snake Pit," Rivoli, 17th week, $19,000; "Joan of Arc," Victoria, 16th week, $26,000.

At the Roxy, "Down to the Sea in Ships," plus a stage bill headed by Rudy Vallee, wound up a first week yesterday with a disappointing $85,000; "Mother Was a Freshman" is scheduled to take over at the Roxy on March 11. Special return engagement of Academy Award nominees "Johnny Belinda" and "The Treasure of Sierra Madre," gave the Strand a very mild $30,000 for a first week. It should be borne in mind, however, that each of the return engagement films had long, successful runs when they played at the Strand during the past year.

A slow $24,500 is indicated for the first week of "The Return of October," at the Mayfair. Equally unimpressive is "Caught," together with a stage bill including Charlie Spivak's band, which will bring the Capitol an estimated $49,000 in a second and final week: "Three Godfathers" will move into the Capitol on Thursday. "Moonrise" will replace "State Department —File 649" on Saturday at the Globe where the second and final week of the latter is expected to bring a moderate $14,500.

M-G-M's Rodgers to Send 12 to Europe

Although it was originally planned to send 10 from the sales department to Europe to expand their ideas on selling to embrace the international picture, William F. Rodgers, M-G-M sales vice-president, has increased the number to 12 and at the same time has broadened the scope of men eligible for the trip.

In the new list of possibilities, an exploiteer and salesman from the field will be included. These two categories will supplement the previous announcement for branch, district and sales managers and their territorial assistants.

'IA', SOPEG

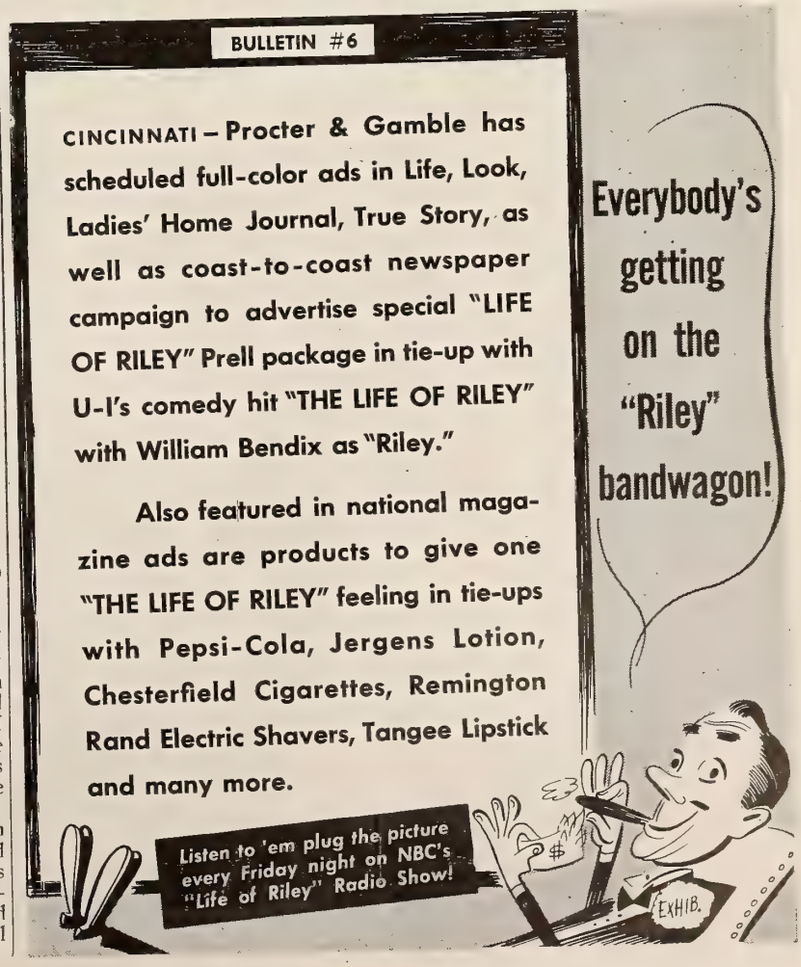
Motion Picture Home Office Laboratories. Results of the elections made it possible for SOPEG to retain control over Columbia, Loew's, RKO Service, and four out of five separate units at Paramount.



Both sides claimed "victory" in the elections. H-63 business agent Russell Moss, who pointed out that it was the opposition's shops which were at stake, expressed satisfaction over "IA" jurisdictional advances at home offices here. A year ago "IA" was bargaining agent for "white collarites" of only two distribution companies, Universal-International and Warner, whereas it now is in full control at a total of four.

Sidney Young, SOPEG president, termed his union's retention of control at four of the six companies at stake as an "overwhelming victory." Young served notice that the NLRB elections did not end the two unions' rivalry when he predicted that the employes who had gone over to "IA" would "soon return" to SOPEG.

Off-street Parking Sought in N.Y. Bill

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 28.—Theatres and other places of public assembly hereafter erected in cities in New York would be required to furnish off-street parking of 200 square feet for each 10 persons of total seating capacity, under a bill introduced by Senator Thomas C. Desmond.

The measure, which also sets off-street minimum parking standards for hotels, apartments buildings and factories is similar to one which passed the Senate and died in the Assembly last year.

Para. 'Show Cases'

may not purchase theatres from the New Paramount Theatres Co. or any other defendant in the trust case. Additionally, it may not enter exhibition in any area to such an extent that the result would be the creation of closed situations.

It was said here yesterday that theatre acquisitions have not even been discussed by Paramount executives. To that, one spokesman added, "Besides, who has first-runs for sale?"

Various portions of the decree, which runs 79 pages in length and is not devoid of technical phraseology, came into clearer focus yesterday.

No More Partnerships

It means the end of all partnerships. It means, too, that Paramount Theatres Co. will be comprised practically of all theatres which the present corporation wholly-owns now in addition to more than 200 which it may acquire from present co-owners.

As for trade practices, Paramount Pictures Co. has substantial leeway in licensing product to exhibitors. The company is called on to sell theatre-by-theatre and in non-discriminatory fashion, but is not enjoined from selling in any manner it sees fit so long as these two directives are abided by. Company may sell by competitive bidding, as it is now doing in some situations, and by competitive negotiation, and product splits in "problem" situations. There is nothing to prevent the company from rejecting an exhibitor's request for a run so long as the request is considered on its merits in the light of competitive theatres also seeking the run. In other words, bidding is not mandatory. Within two years, Paramount must dispose of 68 of its approximately 450 wholly-owned theatres, the divestiture having been included in the decree for the purpose of opening closed situations.

Wholly Owned Circuits

Except for these 68 houses, New Paramount Theatres substantially will consist of the circuits which the present parent corporation wholly owns, including:

Minnesota Amusement, Balaban and Katz, Florida State Theatres, Northio Theatres, New England Theatres, Publix Great States (Southern Illinois) and United Detroit Theatres. Some additional divestitures by wholly-owned circuits are ordered in first-run areas. This amounts to an injunction on operating more than one first-run in these cities: Tucson, Ariz.; Aurora, Alton, Danville, Decatur, Galesburg, Kewanea, Waukegan and Joliet, all in Illinois; Grand Forks, N. D.; Anderson and Greenville, S. C.; and Mitchell, S. D. Paramount Theatres Co. may have two first runs in San Francisco, Duluth, Minn., and Sioux Falls, S. D.

May Acquire 236

In addition to these the company is free to acquire up to 236 of the total of 774 theatres which are operated in partnership arrangements. Company also may take over full operation of nine houses operated in partnership but where the partner is said to be an investor, rather than a potential exhibitor. It is generally figured that New Paramount Theatres could emerge with about 620 wholly-owned houses.

The main partnerships companies which are to be dissolved are these: Tri-States and Central States in Iowa and Nebraska, A. H. Blank; Texas Interstate, Karl Hoblitzelle and Robert O'Donnell; Paramount-Richards, E. V. Richards, New Orleans; Malco, Memphis, M. A. Lightman; Maine and New Hampshire Theatres; John Ford; Wilby-Kincey Theatres; the Notopoulos circuit in Pennsylvania; Lucas and Jenkins in Georgia; Publix, Bamford, North Carolina, Carl Bamford; Dominion Theatres in Virginia, Hunter Perry; Paramount Nace Theatres, Phoenix, Harry Nace; Butterfield Theatres and Michigan State Theatres; Jefferson Amusement in Texas, Julius Gordon; Western Massachusetts Theatres and Comerford Publix, Scranton, Pa.

Paramount Pictures Co. will own the theatres in Canada and other foreign countries. These include the Famous Players Canadian circuit of 370 houses, seven theatres in Great Britain, and five elsewhere in Europe.

Will Continue Court Fight, H. M. Warner Discloses

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, discloses that his company would not sign a consent decree in the industry anti-trust action.

"We will not give up our theatres without a court fight. We have taken years to accumulate the company assets we have, and we will fight to hold them," Warner said.

Myers on Suits

RKO stockholders except Howard Hughes.

Today, after studying the RKO reorganization plan and the Paramount decree, he said:

"The purpose of anti-trust suits is not to confiscate property, but to bring the defendants into obedience of the law.

"You can't make people compete. All you can do is remove the barriers to their competing, and then rely on their cupidity. Theatre owners have a lot of cupidity."

Myers and Mrs. Myers will leave Washington tomorrow for a two to three-week rest in Palm Beach with Nathan Yamins.

Review

"A Kiss in the Dark"

(Warner Brothers) Hollywood, Feb. 28

AMUSING is the word for this excursion into light comedy by David Niven, Jane Wyman, Victor Moore, Wayne Morris, Broderick Crawford, and others, which is at its best when asking for smiles or chuckles and is in trouble when it goes out for heavy laughs. When it is good it is very good indeed, with Niven handling handily the role of a sheltered concert pianist brought abruptly into contact with plain people, and when it is bad it is ludicrous instead of funny. By and large, it is likely to account for itself with plus but not spectacular grosses in the better and medium class houses, but figures to lie still in lesser spots.

Produced and written by Harry Kurnitz, from a story by Everett and Devery Freeman, the film concerns the experiences met up with by Niven, a concert pianist weary of his keyboard, when he is lured into taking personal charge of an apartment house which his manager has bought him for investment purposes. Moore, the philosophical former owner who becomes resident manager, and Miss Wyman, a tenant who is a photography model and with whom Niven falls in love, transform Niven from a stuffed-shirt to a humanitarian in a series of humorously complicated incidents which hug the border of probability closely enough except when dwelling overlong and tiresomely on the case of a sleep-hungry tenant, played by Crawford, this exaggeratedly slapstick section of the picture flapping like a loose shutter in a gale and inflicting considerable damage upon the principal structure. (Shortening of this section by two or three minutes would improve the property materially.)

Delmer Daves directed, giving Niven and Moore the burden of the entertainment, which they bear admirably. Miss Wyman, whose name means a good deal more on the marquee since "Johnny Belinda" and the Academy nomination than it did way back when this picture was made, figures about third in story prominence but makes the most of the role assigned her.

Running time, 88 minutes. General audience classification. Release date not set.

approved by Demov, who was appointed by Justice Pecora, Charles P. Skouras, National president, and other executives agree to the amendment of their employment contracts enabling the company to save a total of $1,750,000 for the next seven years. Additionally, it calls for a ceiling to be placed on further compensation to these executives, which has been estimated might reach a total of $1,750,000. The company also obtained from some officers and key executives stock options on common stock of 20th-Fox. These options cover 18,500 shares of common at $22.50 per share and expire on Dec. 31, 1949.

Hearings on the motions are expected to continue today before Justice Pecora.

heretofore composed of one representative from each member studio, to include two, immediate appointments under this provision indicating that studio chiefs and their labor-management executives will comprise the board henceforth.

Third step in the program is interpreted as presaging a concerted attack on industry problems, which have been subject to daily discussion since the arrival here of Johnston, was the establishment of an executive committee empowered to act quickly and decisively, within a province outlined by the board. Membership of the executive committee has not yet been decided upon.

Balaban Hails

nature of the decree. "If our stockholders approve," he said, "starting Jan. 1, production and distribution in Paramount will stand on its own feet. There can no longer be any claims that one end of our business is dependent upon or favors the other. There can be no shifting of responsibility."

Reviewing the course of the developments leading to divorcement, Balaban said that "we knew a consent decree was in the making" by the latter part of 1948. He authorized the studio to plan its 1949 production schedule on the same budget as in 1948, Balaban said, "provided the studio could effect savings to give us an additional number of quality pictures." This meant work for production employees, Balaban said, and it meant that production continued during a critical period.

Ample Funds Available

"We face the future with ample funds to meet the needs and opportunities of the new company," Balaban continued, but he warned that the problem of costs is still of vital importance. If the balance between production costs and film rental revenues breaks down, he warned, production will falter.

"Our ability to keep production going at full blast depends upon the economical operation of our studio and the kind of pictures we produce," Balaban said.

"If the studio makes the right pictures," he continued, "I promise you that advertising and distribution will deliver the dollars to keep the wheels turning here. That applies even in the face of a highly selective market and foreign restrictions."

Despite signs of decline in the domestic economy and the difficulties of the foreign market, Balaban insisted that the domestic film market shows a decline only in relation to the "freak" boom year of 1946 and that American films still dominate the world market.

'Live Within Means'

Nothwithstanding this favorable condition," he continued, we must continue to live within our means. We cannot afford to spend more for the making and marketing of pictures than we can collect."

The Paramount chief said that, with 11 features complete, six others being edited, five in the shooting stages and 18 others in preparation, the studio has forty pictures ready for the future.

He paid tribute to Zukor, Henry Ginsberg, Y. Frank Freeman, Jack Karp, George Weltner, Paul Raiborn and Al Schwalberg, all top leaders of Paramount production-distribution, and asked the support of the entire personnel in attaining the goal of "world leadership in the production and distribution of motion pictures."

levied for an infraction of a theatre regulation.

Under the proposed law the main aisle would be at least three feet six inches in width; in theatres of less than 450 seats, two feet eight inches; if there are side aisles, two feet four inches. Side aisles would be required where there are more than 18 seats in a row, or 25 seats with an 18-inch space between self-raising seats. The measure also sets stringent exit requirements.

$1,500,000 Yearly Raise At Exchanges

6,300 'IA' Workers Will Get $500,000 Back Pay

Salary increases totaling nearly $1,500,000 a year, under two-year contracts, have been won by the IATSE for 6,300 exchange workers in the 32 exchange centers, following over three months of negotiations, "IA" headquarters here disclosed yesterday. Retroactive to last Dec. 1, the new scales will go into effect the week ending March 19, and back pay checks totaling nearly $500,000 will be issued as soon as possible thereafter, the union reported.

The salary increase amounts to $4.50 per week per employee—11¼ cents per hour on a 40-hour basis. The new contracts, scheduled for signing on Friday, establish a minimum of $34 per week, which is an increase of $4.90, in the minimum, with scales ranging upward from that point to an

British Can Split Dual Film Bookings

London, March 1.—The so-called "Eric Johnston Plan" requiring British exhibitors playing double bills of Hollywood films to book both of them from the same distributor, has been altered. The Motion Picture Association of America and the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association have agreed to an amendment of the plan to permit an exhibitor to book one feature from one U. S. distributor and the second from another provided the exhibitor informs the first company of the name of the second.

Sales Set-Up Overhauled By Paramount

Fifth Division Formed; O'Shea, Others Promoted

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.—Division of the Paramount sales forces into five instead of four U. S. divisions was announced here today by Alfred W. Schwalberg, general sales manager, at the start of the second day of meetings of Paramount New York and studio executives in Hollywood. This change in the sales structure is one of Schwalberg's first moves to meet the "expanded and streamlined" sales setup for the new Paramount picture production-distribution company, it was disclosed.

The promotion of E. K. (Ted) O'Shea from division manager to the post of assistant general sales manager, effective immediately, also was announced by Schwalberg.

Harry Goldstein, who has been Cleveland district manager, has been

Mexican Restriction On Newsreels Lifted

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—The government has ended a situation—attributed to departmental misinterpretation of the new film import, export and exhibition supervision law—that has blocked the entry into Mexico of American and other foreign newsreels.

The government has ruled that newsreel imports be subject to the former regulation—one permit per year for 52 newsreels. The new law requires all other pictures to have a single production permit and it was that phase that had been applied to individual newsreels.

Depinet Is Host To Rossellini

McGuinness Leaves MGM After 16 Years

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.—James Kevin McGuinness today completed a settlement of his contract with M-G-M and severed connection with studio he has served for 16 years as a writer, producer and executive. Contract, which had several years to run, was settled on terms giving McGuinness his participation in the M-G-M pension plan, although freeing him for any other affiliation he chooses.

McGuinness said he intends to make a motor tour of the country before making any other commitment. He originally was under personal contract to the late Irving Thalberg, and functioned as editor-in-chief on many M-G-M producers' pictures over the past seven years.

Sues Over Actress

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.—Republic Pictures is named in a suit filed here for $330,000 by Lewis Lewyn, producer, who claims Dale Evans, Western actress, broke a contract with him under the urgings of Herbert Yates, Republic president, Roy Rogers and others, who persuaded Miss Evans to appear as a leading lady opposite Rogers. Lewyn claims the contract was for a series of pictures that would have established Miss Evans as a star and that Yates had indicated acceptance of the scripts.

Seek U. K. Help on Currencies, Exports

London, March 1. — The Board of Trade is seeking the assistance of the British Foreign Office in the collection of foreign currencies on British film screenings under the Export Guarantees Act. It is also seeking Foreign Office help to stimulate film exports, similar to the help given other industries.

While no statement was forthcoming, it is understood that Harold Wilson, BOT president, has promised producers that the Foreign Office would do all it can to help.

Rank Discharges 550

the move was inevitable in view of the present economic situation in British production. Late last week, Rank said he hoped that it would not be necessary to issue any further lay-off notices and would not do so unless causes beyond his control demanded such action. He had agreed at that time to meet every two weeks with secretaries of the production unions to discuss developments.

When a laying off of 200 Shepherd's Bush studio workers threatened last week, some 350 protesting workers marched to the House of Commons to protest. Rank has now layed off over 3,000 production workers to date.

Film Exports Down

Rawstock shipments dropped from 454,905,051 feet valued at $6,781,822 in 1947 to 383,482,225 feet worth $6,653,873 in 1948. Exports of 35mm. positive, 16mm. positive and 8 mm. negative film were off, while shipments of rawstock in the 35mm. negative, 16mm. negative and 8mm. positive categories increased.

Exports of equipment dropped from $16,245,487 to $10,972,516.

Review

"El Paso"

(Pine-Thomas—Paramount)

PURPORTING to depict the turbulent outlawry and post-Civil War life in and around the then infant Texas city of El Paso, this is a sizeable, obstreperous Cinecolor Western which stretches familiar plot-work across an excessive amount of footage. It is one of the first to come from the producer team of William Pine and William Thomas in its switch to "big ones." In terms of production effort, cast, camera work and general approach, "El Paso" does indeed emerge as a contender for deluxe theatre playing time, and suggests the future will bring bigger—and better—offerings from the new Pine-Thomas team. Where this picture falls short of the "big one" mark, however, is in its rigid adherence to stock situations and its failure to lend depth and conviction to its characters. The film's future would appear to promise so-so grosses from the standpoint of discriminating patronage and robust business from the standpoint of the "hoss opera" and action patronage.

Director Lewis R. Foster's screenplay, based on a story by J. Robert Bren and Gladys Atwater, has personable John Payne in the role of a dashing attorney, an ex-captain in the Confederate Army, who leaves Charleston to consummate a brief bit of business in outlaw-ridden El Paso. He decides to remain in the Texas frontier town to introduce law and order and to win for himself the hand of ex-Southern belle Gail Russell. Sterling Hayden and Dick Foran are appropriately villainous as corrupt town officials who stand in Payne's way, while George (Gabby) Hayes, as a friend of the latter, contributes touches of very broad comedy. Henry Hull, as a dipsomaniac judge whom Payne sets right but who dies for his defiance of the corrupt authorities, is good in support, and so are Mary Beth Hughes, Eduardo Noreiga, H. B. Warner, Bobby Ellis, Arthur Space and others. The picture offers some eye-filling Cinecolored shots of the Southwest's wide-open spaces, gunfightin, brawling and, finally, a noisy sand storm as the background for an active showdown gun battle between the forces of good and evil.

Running time, 101 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 1.

business and to support a measure already introduced by Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr., which would cut the admission tax back to the pre-war 10 per cent and cut other excises back to their pre-war levels.

What the Republicans can do to carry out their policy is still a question. Martin said one way to get the excise tax cuts into law would be to have "the five Democrats on the Ways and Means Committee who favor excise tax reduction vote their convictions."

A statement by Martin, approved by the policy group today, declared that "wartime excises should be cut back at once to 1941 rates. All history tells us that no nation can carry wartime tax rates indefinitely in peace times."

per cent interest, which he will receive in the new RKO theatre company under the reorganization plan. Hughes said yesterday that RKO management is confident that stockholder approval of the reorganization will be granted.

Under the terms of an option agreement between Hughes and Atlas Corp., the latter has the right to meet all bids received by Hughes for his interest in the new theatre company. Also, if acceptable bids are not received, Hughes agrees to sell his theatre company stock to Atlas for a maximum price of $4,500,000. Last year he paid Atlas in excess of $9,000,000 for the 24 per cent interest in RKO he now owns. He will retain his interest in the new RKO picture company.

Exchange Raises

average of approximately $75 per week for head bookers.

Companies involved are Paramount, Loew, RKO Radio, 20th Century-Fox, Universal-International, Columbia and Republic. Separate "IA" negotiations will open in the near future for exchange workers employed by United Artists, which dropped out of the recent negotiations before an agreement was reached, and Monogram, Eagle-lion, Film Classics and National Screen. In the past, "IA" points out, deals signed with the smaller companies have followed the major pattern.

The three months of negotiations, which were studded with deadlocks and talk of work stoppages, were transformed finally into mediation meetings in the presence of Federal Mediation and Conciliation Commissioner L. A. Stone who, after four parleys, brought both sides to the basis of an agreement.

The union, it had been reported, originally sought a general increase of between 10 and 15 per cent, while the companies reportedly were disinclined at the outset to grant any increase in view of the need for industry economies. Hence, the increase agreed upon represents a compromise, it is said.

The "IA" negotiating committee, appointed by international president Richard F. Walsh, consisted of assistant international president Thomas J. Shea, chairman; vice-president Louise Wright and international representative Joseph D. Basson. Representing the companies were: Clarence Hill, 20th-Fox, chairman; Charles O'Brien, Loew; C. J. (Pat) Scollard, Paramount; A. A. Shubart, RKO Radio; G. J. Malafronte, U-I; H. J. Kaufman, Columbia, and Al Schiller, Republic.

SAG Warns Members On TV Contracts

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.—The Screen Actors Guild declared its intention of proceeding alone in its claim of jurisdiction over actors in television films, according to a report issued to Guild members today, though the way was left open for Eastern talent guilds to work out their own agreements.

SAG members were advised against signing television contracts without submitting them to the Guild for approval, or signing contracts for more than one year, and to make no commitments concerning theatre television.

Screen Writers Appoint Television Negotiators

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.—The Screen Writers Guild last night appointed a five-man negotiating committee to work out a basic minimum plan with the Television Films Producers Association to cover video writers.

Orders Dissolution Of Princess Medina

CLEVELAND, March 1.—The Medina Princess Corp., formed in 1935 as a pooling instrument for joint operation of the Temple and Princess theatres in Medina, Ohio, was ordered dissolved today by Common Pleas Judge Arthur Day.

Medina Princess directors had previously voted dissolution at a board meeting held here in January, providing that the theatres revert to the original owners.

Pickford, Selznick Talk Italian Deals

Mary Pickford, David O. Selznick and a number of other U. S. industry leaders are scheduled to confer with Italian producer-distributor-exhibitor Feruccio Caramelli during the next four weeks in connection with an Italo-American cooperative production program which Caramelli has drawn up. In making this disclosure yesterday, Caramelli, who is here from Italy pending his departure for the Coast on Saturday, reported that already he has virtually concluded with Miss Pickford a one-picture mutual production deal.

A distributor in Italy of United Artists, Selznick and M-G-M product, Caramelli said his plans call for production at his studios in Italy of three pictures a year, with American producers' participation to be in terms of actors, equipment, technicians, raw stock and, if necessary, blocked currency and screenplays. However, he said, American participation per picture would be limited to about 50 per cent and need not involve every one of the designated factors. Caramelli said that while in the U. S. he will purchase "several hundred thousands of dollars" worth of American studio and laboratory equipment.

Caramelli believes his "formula" embodies a solution to the difficulties which have been dogging Italy's production industry. Blending of Italian and American elements would, he holds, give a film good saleability in both Italy and America.

Pickford Option

day, Miss Pickford has no firm offer for Chaplin's stock but does have inquiries which are being explored currently. It is surmised that the inquiries are sufficiently promising to warrant the 10-day extension of the option in Miss Pickford's favor. Otherwise, the option reverts to Chaplin tomorrow, with the latter being given 30 days in which to conclude a sale of Miss Pickford's half interest in UA, also with a 10-day extension permissible in the event a deal is in negotiation but not concluded at the end of 30 days.

Trade opinion holds that a deal is more likely to be concluded after the option is transferred to Chaplin because the latter is willing to sell his own interest in addition to Miss Pickford's, who wishes to remain in the company with a new partner. Thus complete ownership could be acquired when the option passes to Chaplin, but not while it remains with Miss Pickford.

Harold Wirthwein, who has been assistant West Coast division manager, has been named Mid-Western division manager. His territory will include Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha and Des Moines, with headquarters in Kansas City.

The West Coast division, including Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Salt Lake City and Denver, will be under the division managership of George A. Smith who will have headquarters in Los Angeles.

James Donohue will continue supervision of the Central division, comprising Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Dallas, Oklahoma City and Memphis, with headquarters in Chicago.

Completing the division manager setup is Hugh Owen, Eastern division manager, with territory including New York, Boston, New Haven, Albany, Buffalo, Atlanta, Charlotte, Jacksonville and New Orleans.

Schwalberg further announced that Gordon Lightstone will continue as Canadian division manager.

Sale of short subjects and Paramount News will continue under the direction of Oscar Morgan.

Duke Clark has been promoted from district manager in the Central division to assistant division manager of the same division.

Henry Ginsberg, vice-president and studio head, and Zukor paid tribute to Balaban's leadership in addressing the 2,500 who attended today's session. Zukor, who received a standing ovation when introduced, said of Balaban:

"His entire make-up is to build up Paramount, not only financially but also to earn and retain the respect of the world. That's a big job and I think we should dedicate ourselves, each individual here, to support this man who makes Paramount his life's work."

Eric Johnston, MPAA president, was scheduled to address Paramount executives at a dinner to be held in the studio commissary tonight.

Brothers to appear in three pictures. Negotiations were consummated with William Cagney, president of Cagney Productions.

"White Heat," original by Virginia Kellogg, and "The West Point Story," a musical with U. S. Military Academy background, are two of the pictures in which Cagney will star. Both will be produced by Lou Edelman. A third will be selected later.

Warner also announced completion of a deal with William Cagney for the filming by that company of three pictures for Warner release. It is contemplated that one of these productions will star James Cagney in "A Lion in the Streets."

Now It's 'Little 5' And 'Big Three'

It's the "Little Five" now that Paramount has consented to a decree ending its theatre operations, an industry attorney pointed out yesterday.

The government anti-trust suit started out almost 11 years ago as an action against the so-called "Big Five" theatre owning companies and the "Little Three" theatreless companies. RKO joined the ranks of the latter last November. Now it's the "Big Three" and the "Little Five" remaining in the suit.

tion picture industry to help causes such as this," O'Connor said. "It has repeatedly made unbelievable contributions to worthy causes, contributions which cannot be appraised in terms of dollars only."

Skouras, explaining that there will be no theatre collections for the Red Cross 1949 fund appeal, urged those present to cooperate to the fullest in the campaign and to assist in enlisting the wholehearted participation of every member of the industry in getting in contributions.

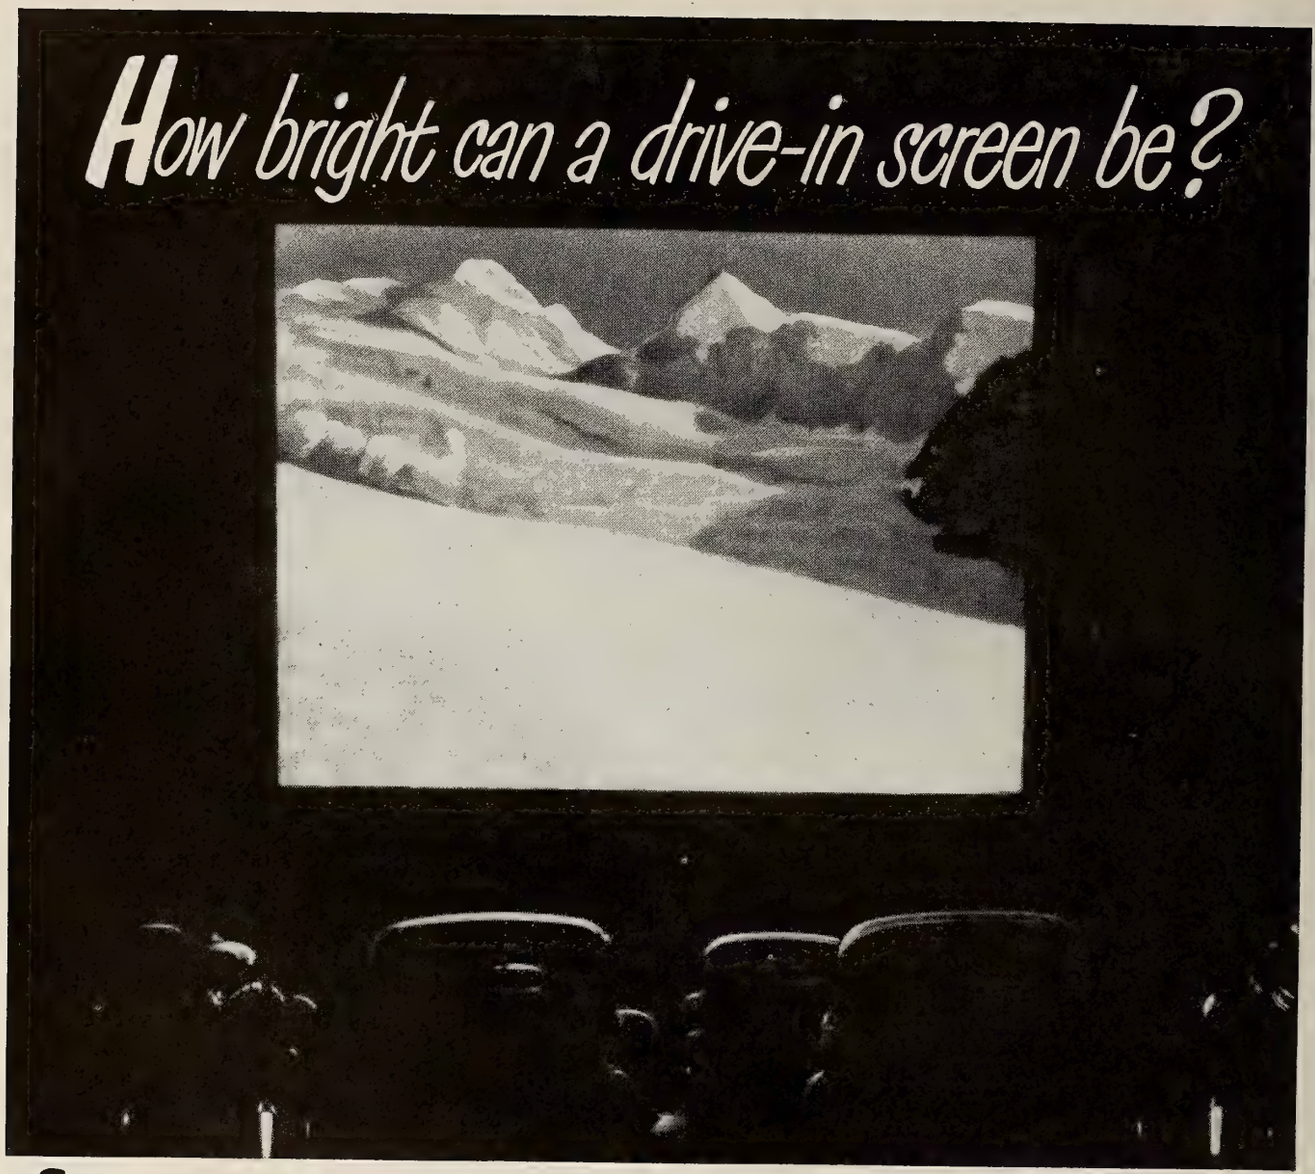
The 1949 Red Cross budget is $81,684,600, of which $21,684,600 is available from American Red Cross reserves, leaving $60,000,000 to be raised in the current drive. New York City's share of the national goal is $4,635,000.

See $500,000 Cut From NT Settlement

Contention that 20th Century-Fox stands to lose some $500,000 of the estimated $3,500,000 which has been offered in settlement of the National Theatres stockholder actions was voiced in New York Supreme Court here yesterday by attorneys for those minority stockholders who do not favor accepting, without qualification, referee Jacob S. Demov's recommendation that the proposed settlement be approved.

Opposition attorneys base their contention on the belief that lower levels of film company earnings are in prospect and would therefore reduce the prospects of 20th-Fox's benefiting to the full extent of $1,750,000 under the arrangement whereby a ceiling is to be placed on compensation to National president Charles P. Skouras and three other executives over the next seven years.

Stockholder plaintiffs charged in their actions that Skouras under stock option deals, profited $4,281,250, that executives Elmer C. Rhoden and F. H. Ricketson, Jr., gained $1,027,000 each, and that executive Harold J. Fitzgerald profited $513,000.

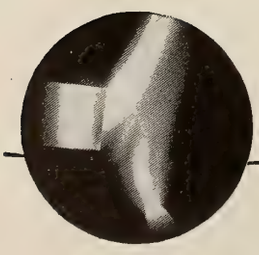


Hearings on Demov's report will continue today before Justice Ferdinand Pecora.

FTC Complaint Stalled

WASHINGTON, March 1.—A Federal Trade Commission examiner has taken under advisement the FTC's unfair advertising complaint against United Artists in connection with the selling of "The Life and Death of Colonel Blimp."

How bright can a drive-in screen be?



Use "National" Super-High Intensity Carbons and see!

THESE jumbo screens used in big, drive-in theatres require projection light of terrific brilliance. Otherwise, your patrons can't get that bright-screen sparkle they are used to in first-run, conventional theatres. They have to squint to see.

Give your patrons vivid, easy-to-see pictures by using "National" Super-High Intensity carbons in your drive-in theatre. These carbons give you brighter light than any other source of projection light obtainable. And, because "National" Super-High Intensity carbons produce light of almost perfect color balance, your color movies glow with rich detail.

The slight extra cost of "National" Super-High Intensity carbons is negligible when you consider the advantages in audience approval and bigger box office. Write for complete details.

The term "National" is a registered trade-mark of

'Must' Bidding Seen in Para. Pact with U. S.

Levy Also Sees Decree Imperiling Combines

That portion of the Paramount decree which directs the new distribution company to sell picture-by-picture and theatre-by-theatre in non-discriminatory fashion is characterized as "vague and ambiguous," and could be taken to mean the licensing of product on a compulsory competitive bidding basis, Herman Levy, general counsel of the Theatre Owners of America, asserted here yesterday in a report on the decree. Levy points out the U. S. Supreme Court, "in no uncertain language, discarded compulsory, competitive bidding."

Levy also notes that the consent document is worded in a manner that opens to question the legality of buying-and-booking combines. He referred to the decree section which enjoins Paramount from booking or buying features for any of its theatres through any agent who is known by it

U. K. Exhibitors Assail Quota

LONDON, March 2.—Restrictions in the importation of American films were termed the cause of the crisis in the British industry, the annual report of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association said today.

The government requirement that 45 per cent of all first-run features shown in the country must be British-made had disastrous results, the report said, and it recommended that the quota be cut to 25 per cent. Imposition of the quota, the exhibitor association report continued, allowed British producers to "churn out films" that did not appeal to the public.

Reviewing events that led to the present crisis which has put 40 per cent of the industry's technicians out of work, the report said that the "first serious jolt" came when the government imposed the 75 per cent tax on

Urge Court Accept NT Suit Settlement

Attorneys for National Theatres stockholders who are in favor of accepting referee Jacob S. Demov's recommendation that the proposed settlement of minority stockholder actions against 20th Century-Fox be approved, contended in New York Supreme Court here yesterday that it was a "surprise business boom" that brought stock option profits totaling $6,850,000 to National president Charles P. Skouras and three other executives. Under the proposed settlement, approximately $3,500,000 of the profits would go to 20th-Fox.

Attacking arguments which have been offered in opposition to acceptance of the settlement, the pro-acceptance attorneys told presiding Justice Ferdinand Pecora that Skouras and the other executives, Elmer C. Rhoden, F. H. Ricketson, Jr., and Harold J. Fitzgerald, were instrumental in bringing National out of "the red" between 1931 and 1941 by virtue of their "hard work." The stock option profits received, the attorneys continued, were not "bonuses" but rather were in the nature of promised remuneration contingent upon whether the executives succeeded in putting National "back on its feet."

Yesterday was the third day of hearings before Justice Pecora on Demov's report.

7% Foreign Revenue Drop, McCarthy Says

HOLLYWOOD, March 2. — Industry revenues from the foreign market in 1948 were only seven per cent below those in 1947, John McCarthy, Motion Picture Association of America international department head, told studio international department executives at Beverly Hill Hotel luncheon here today given by Joseph Breen, Production Code Administration director.

McCarthy, who spoke at length and detailed conditions prevailing in each country that exhibits American product, said the prospect for foreign revenue in 1949 is less promising. Eric Johnston, MPAA president, also spoke briefly at the meeting.

With the series of studio meetings held by Johnston and MPAA staff members nearing completion, members of the party are preparing to leave here. Edward T. Cheyfitz left for Washington tonight and McCarthy will leave Friday. Johnston plans to leave Sunday or Monday.

"Song of India"

(Columbia)

THE SPECTACULAR dangers involved in hunting wild game in the the heart of India provide several points of merchandising in "Song of India." The story is one of popular appeal, but developed in standard mold. Filmed in a sepia tint, it features Sabu, Gail Russell and Turnhan Bey.

Unrest caused among the inhabitants of a jungle province when it is invaded by a hunting expedition is the basis of the story. Heading the expedition are a prince and his fiancee, portrayed by Bey and Miss Russell. The village folks have lived in harmony for years with the jungle animals, and it is their belief that a person must die for every animal slain. Thus the first shot by the hunters brings reprisals. The task of opposing the hunters is taken up by jungle prince Sabu and the story soon becomes a contest between Sabu and Bey.

There are many conflicts, flights and chases before peace is finally restored to the province. Some catching scenery is provided as the camera moves through jungle trails and mountain tops. Albert S. Rogell produced and directed. The screenplay was written by Art Arthur and Kenneth Perkins, from a story by Jerome Odlum.

Running time, 77 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"I Am With You"

(Studio Films-Carlson Productions-Swedish)

THE personal tragedies and satisfactions experienced by a young Protestant missionary during the early phase of his tenure among the natives of Rhodesian Africa are set down with unadorned simplicity in this Swedish-made, English-dubbed feature which has been imported by Rudolph Carlson Productions for release to American theatres and by the Religious Film Association for distribution to churches, clubs, service organizations and fraternal and civic groups. Reportedly the first Swedish-produced feature with English dialogue to be scheduled for U. S. showings, "I Am With You" is having its American premiere at New York's Normandie Theatre.

Recounted without excessive emphasis on the non-mundane aspects of church work, the story is about Swedish pastor Rune Lindstrom, who, with his wife and his four-year-old son, leaves his homeland for Africa to assume the responsibilities of Nils Dahlgren, an elderly and kindly pastor who has earned retirement. At the outset Lindstrom is able to cope manfully with the climate, hostile natives and other instigators of hardship. But when his son dies from a snake bite and his wife succumbs to malaria, the burden of sacrifice becomes too heavy for him. He turns his back on faith, only to reembrace it with renewed understanding when an African native woman makes an exemplary display of religious strength in the face of circumstances similar to those which had tried the young missionary.

Performances are forthright in a cast which includes Carin Forsberg, Victor Seastrom, Ake Fridell, several African native actors and others. Gosta Stevens directed, from a screenplay by himself and Lindstrom. Dubbing is adequate.

Running time, 75 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

Congress Hears of Minn. Tax Bill

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Another indication of the readiness of states and municipalities to leap for local admission taxes as soon as the Federal tax is reduced or abolished appeared in the Congressional Record this week.

Sen. Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, called to the Senate's attention a resolution of the League of Minnesota Municipalities recommending to the 1949 state legislature the enactment of a bill authorizing "the council of any city or village in the state to levy a tax on admissions when the Federal admission tax is reduced or abolished, such local tax not to exceed the amount of the reduction in the Federal tax."

The resolution also called for repeal of the Federal tax "so as to leave that field of excise taxation for appropriate state and local action."

It declared that the financial plight of some municipalities is acute, and that the admission tax is "among the taxes best adapted to local administration because it is fair and easy to administer, because it provides for a minimum of inter-municipal competition, and because it is being increasingly and successfully used by municipalities throughout the country."

Noonan Will Discuss Bill

ALBANY, March 2. — Assemblyman Leo Noonan, who introduced a bill into the state legislature requiring that the original release date of motion pictures more than one year old be in all advertising, said here that he would be glad to confer with exhibitor representatives on amendments. He said Attorney Orrin Judd, representing MMPTA, has talked with him and cited several reasons why exhibitor organizations thought the bill unfair and unreasonable for small theatres.

Levy on Para.

to be also acting in such a manner for any other exhibitor, independent or affiliate. On this Levy states:

"It would seem that it would be most difficult for a buying-and-booking combine to operate either legally or beneficially for its accounts, under such a provision, or under the findings of the courts."

While at the moment TOA has no plan to renew its objections to competitive bidding at the hearing on the Paramount decree in New York Federal Court today, it was reported yesterday that the "Little Three," or one of them, might fight that type of selling when the court convenes.

Calls Provision 'Vague'

Levy regards as "unfortunate" that the wording of the provision on selling in the Paramount consent judgment is "vague and ambiguous," because it is "the point of greatest interest to independent exhibitors contained in the decree." He adds: "It would seem that no language should be used which could possibly be interpreted to mean that competitive bidding is the only method by which the distributor may license its pictures."

Levy notes that the new Paramount Pictures Co., which will "start out stripped of its present theatre holdings," will not be enjoined from subsequently acquiring houses, although not from other defendants in the case or from the New Paramount Theatres Co. MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Tuesday reported that the new pictures company has no plans to purchase theatre properties, although it is free to do so.

Approves Franchises

Levy voices approval of that portion of the decree which legalizes franchises for independent theatremen who are in competition with affiliates. "This," he said, "will be received warmly by many independents." The restriction on conditioning one licensing deal on another is limited to features, Levy points out, adding, however, that he doubts that the distributor would use shorts or newsreels in conditioning the sale of product.

The clearance injunctions against Paramount "may well be of great advantage to many exhibitors," Levy holds. In many instances they could mean the complete elimination of clearance, he adds.

bill religious, charitable, fraternal, hospital, welfare, civic or veterans organizations "shall no longer be subjected to criminal law when conducting or participating in Bingo games; for these groups, the penalty suggested is a civil action to recover the amount wagered by a person or persons with whom such wager is made."

Rosenthal said, "If passed, theatres can expect open and increased competition from the organizations conducting Bingo, while theatres will still be subject to the penal law when conducting any game of chance.

"Proposed measure is unsound and discriminatory," he said, adding, "why should Bingo, when played or conducted by non-tax-paying organizations be less harmful for the public than if under the guidance of a theatre The reasons for condemning lotteries remains the same."

The Senate bill "may very well be passed this week," he warned.

"Snowbound"

(Rank-Prestige-Universal-International)

THE Italian Alps provide the setting for an intermittently exciting and scenically picturesque post-war study in international intrigue in "Snowbound," which is from J. Arthur Rank's Gainsborough Studios in England. Robert Newton, Dennis Price, Herbert Lom, Marcel Dalio and Mila Parely are the principal players.

Villainy develops in the form of the treacherous capers of an erstwhile Gestapo chieftain hankering to start building the Fourth Reich. Curiously, it is not until very near the finale that the film lets its audience in on the motives of the ambitious Nazi and, for that matter, just what all parties to the complicated scheme of things are up to. Consequence of this is that the spectator, while treated to good melodramatics in individual sequences, is at times left to wondering what it is all about.

The mysterious characters are unveiled and all things are explained, plausibly enough, in a bang-up, highly-flavored conclusion wherein millions in gold, looted by the Nazis during the war and hidden in a ski-hut, is disclosed to be the objective of all concerned. The unsavory Nazi, a former British Intelligence officer and others are killed when the hut believed to be the hiding place for the gold goes up in flames. Another dramatic highlight is a nocturnal, torch-light search for a missing skier. Aubrey Baring produced and David MacDonald directed, from a Keith Campbell screenplay.

Running time, 85 minutes. General audience classification. For February release.

Radio networks salute U-I's "The LIFE of RILEY"

NEW YORK – Digger O'Dell, "The Friendly Undertaker" of NBC's "THE LIFE OF RILEY" radio show, who brings his funereal hilarity to the U-I comedy hit based on the show, will be featured on Fred Allen's coast-to-coast program March 6 in a specially written sketch plugging the picture.

This is the third national network program in as many weeks to salute the motion picture "THE LIFE OF RILEY." Other two are NBC's "Truth or Consequences," which is honoring a lucky Riley family with a "LIFE OF RILEY" week in Cincinnati during world premiere celebration, and the Groucho Marx ABC quiz show "You Bet Your Life."

TRADE VIEWS by W. R. WILKERSON

• WE HAVE BEEN impressed by the superlative quality and the excellent uniformity of the 20th-Fox product.

Congratulations are due Darryl Zanuck for the marvellous job he, his producers and studio personnel are doing in batting out one good picture after another.

While many of the studios were shutting down or curtailing output throughout 1948, Zanuck and his organization were turning out the highest number of successful pictures in the company history. And to date for 1949 release, judging by what we've seen, even this record will be surpassed.

Already "The Snake Pit," which Anatole Litvak and Robert Bassler produced, is setting a merry pace, and Lamar Trotti's production of "Yellow Sky," and "A Letter to Three Wives" which Sol Siegel produced, are right on top of the business barometer. Just out of the cutting rooms are such pictures as "Mother Is a Freshman," "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College," "Down to the Sea in Ships," "Slattery's Hurricane," "Sand," and "The Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend." Their respective producers are the late Walter Morosco, Sam Engel, Louis Lighton, Sol Siegel, Robert Bassler, and Preston Sturges. Productions of importance are coming from George Jessel, Fred Kohlmar, Otto Preminger, William Perlberg and Nunnally Johnson—so it can be seen that all of the Zanuck production staff is delivering in full force.

A glance over the 1948 list of releases shows how high the studio's current year's sights must be set to surpass it. Starting off with the Academy winner, Zanuck's own "Gentleman's Agreement," the roster included "Sitting Pretty," produced by Sam Engel, Photoplay's Popularity picture; "Call Northside 777," produced by Otto Lang; "The Iron Curtain," produced by Sol Siegel; "Street With No Name," produced by Sam Engel: "Apartment For Peggy," produced by Bill Perlberg; "Green Grass of Wyoming," from Robert Bassler; and the George Jessel musical, "When My Baby Smiles at Me."

Almost without exception these pictures made one or more of the Ten Best lists, but what is even more important in a period of declining theatre attendance, they kept black ink flowing in the ledgers of the exhibitor and the studio itself.

All-Industry Arbitration Parley Urged

TOA Is Prime Mover in Citing Decree's Omission

Theatre Owners of America's board of directors is slated to consider a proposal that the U. S. Department of Justice be called upon to summon an all-industry conference "so that all voices may be heard on a constructive and impartial arbitration plan," it was disclosed here yesterday by Gael Sullivan, TOA executive director. The TOA executive committee is expected to meet here within the next 10 days to set a board meeting at which the proposal will be acted upon.

TOA, Sullivan said, "regrets that so little progress has been made in developing an industry-acceptable system of arbitration." He deplored the fact that the Paramount-U. S. government decree "makes no reference at all to a workable arbitration plan that could stem the rising tide of litigation

NY COURT APPROVES PARA. SETTLEMENT

Is Unchanged, Despite Opposition; Motions To Intervene Are Denied

Paramount's consent judgment in the industry trust suit was approved without change by the New York Federal Court here yesterday, leaving only ratification by stockholders of the corporation necessary to permit its reorganization.

Federal Judges Augustus N. Hand, Henry W. Goddard and Alfred Coxe signed the decree document following almost three hours of efforts to modify it or prohibit its approval.

Extensive discussion of the film licensing section of the judgment, while not resulting in any change of phraseology, made it clear that the directive on selling theatre-by-theatre and picture-by-picture does not mean a system of compulsory competitive bidding. Exception to this provision had been taken by Herman Levy, general counsel for Theatre Owners of America, Edward Raftery and Louis D. Frohlich, for United Artists and Columbia, respectively.

18,000 Contracts For 20th in 9 Weeks

An all-time record for contracts sold on new product during the first nine weeks of 1949 has been established at 20th Century-Fox, it was disclosed here yesterday by A. W. Smith, Jr., sales vice-president.

Smith said that 82.84 per cent more contracts on new pictures were sold than in the same nine-week period in 1948.

Specifically, this means 18,000 contracts were signed since Jan. 1 against 9,900 in 1948, it is understood. These figures are for new product only and do not include reissues or old product.

Contributing to the sales record was the performance of "The Snake Pit," which has chalked up a new company

Insider's Outlook

By RED KANN

THE grapevine has been busy with reports about things to bloom at 20th Century-Fox these days. Yesterday along came Smith—Andy—to confirm what has been known, which is that Twentieth is doing more business today than at any time in its history, not even excepting Fabulous '46.

In the first nine weeks of this year, contracts sold represent an all-time record—82.84 per cent more on new product than in the same period of last year. Also, according to Smith, feature bookings are running 89.13 per cent ahead of last year to establish another all-time, incredible peak.

His calculations on "The Snake Pit" are interesting, too. One claim staked for it maintains this attraction has set new records for moveovers and holdovers since entering general release in January. Another, that its average run in the 174 key cities so far played is three-and-one-half weeks.

When they discuss picture values these days, circuit operators and a lot of other exhibitors readily acknowledge that Twentieth has been hitting the cylinders like clockwork. From October, 1947, to September, 1948, Motion Picture Herald designated Twentieth for 12 "Monthly Box-Office Champions," five of them among the top money-making attractions of the period covered; these were "Captain from Castile," "Forever Amber," "The Foxes of Harrow," "Gentleman's Agreement" and "Sitting Pretty." The other seven were "Call Northside 777," "Daisy Kenyon," "Green Grass of Wyoming," "The Iron Curtain," "The Street With No Name," "That Lady in Ermine" and "The Walls of Jericho."

From October of last year through February of this, the company already has had five in this classification: "Apartment for Peggy," "Road House," "When My Baby Smiles at Me," "Yellow Sky" and "The Snake Pit." It is interesting that no other distributor has more.

In Hollywood recently, competitive studio heads offered without prodding their opinion that Darryl F. Zanuck was doing the best all-around job in the production community. They praised him for his consistency in turning out attractions that were varied in appeal, approach and treatment and made it clear they were not confining their appraisal to musicals or semi-documentaries.

There has been, and even today is, an assortment of viewpoints about "The Snake Pit." Some continue to believe it went too far in subject matter designed for mass audiences. But in Hollywood, where there is occasional appreciation, at least, of new avenues in dramatic content, the conviction is quite widespread that Zanuck certainly was not lacking in courage when he decided to proceed. The rest of the story there is that the film is doing a smash business and may turn out to be Twentieth's top attraction of the season if the pace demonstrated thus far is maintained.

The point is no dissertation on 20th-Fox's production performance, past, present or future, can be complete without full recognition of the part Zanuck plays. He is responsible for the "A" product, plus and minus as the case may be. When he ends up with more plus than minus, he ends up precisely on the beam. So far, he's heavily plus and Twentieth is heavy with thanks.

One reason—and it's enough—why there has been no cheering over divorcement:

In 1948, it is understood 89 per cent of Paramount's net profit came from its theatres and 86 per cent of Twentieth's from its exhibition arm.

Samartano Is Named Loew City Manager

Joseph Samartano, manager of Loew's State Theatre in Providence, has been appointed city manager of Loew's Baltimore theatres (Century, Valencia and Parkway), succeeding William K. Saxton, who has resigned to enter a non-theatrical business. The Providence vacancy will be filled by Maurice Druker, of Cleveland.

RKO Foreign Drive Starts on Monday

RKO Radio's 1949 foreign sales drive will begin on Monday and continue for three months, ending June 4, it is announced by Phil Reisman, vice-president in charge of foreign distribution.

It will be known as the "Phil Reisman Drive," and will embrace all of RKO Radio's foreign offices.

and give the small theatre operator a tribunal where his grievances might be aired and adjusted."

TOA general counsel Herman Levy yesterday interpolated that he had been inclined to look for an arbitration provision in the signed Paramount decree, and also expressed regret that it was not included. He pointed out that the Department of Justice did not see fit to approve the arbitration proposals which had been offered prior to the decree's issuance.

Sullivan said the TOA board will consider the matter "in the hope that such a system may yet be created, with the approval of all segments of the industry." Pointing out that "TOA since its inception has taken a consistent and forceful stand in favor of such a system as an alternative to time-consuming and expensive litigation," Sullivan said it is "imperative that the small exhibitor have a source of relief where the time and cost factors are reduced to a minimum."

TV Labor 'War'

ers. "IA" is seeking, Walsh explained, to establish with NABET the same informal jurisdictional agreement which the former has concluded at Columbia Broadcasting with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL), and also with NABET's local in Detroit. The agreements give "IA" jurisdiction over employes who work in front of television cameras and those who project motion picture film for television cameras, and give IBEW and Detroit NABET control of employes who operate the television cameras and who work "behind" them.

The case is before the National Labor Relations Board. It was postponed on Jan. 26 to permit officers of NABET and the "IA" to meet and seek a solution that would be acceptable to the industry and provide harmony between the unions. The deadlock which has evolved centers, for the most part, around the 30 motion picture operators which represent NABET's total nationally in that category. Walsh feels that these and 15 NABET kinetscope operators rightfully belong under "IA" jurisdiction, and disputes NABET's contention that these are "exhorbitant demands." He pointed out that NABET is a union of electronic engineers. When a television scene is recorded on film, he said, "we naturally hold that our IATSE crafts are involved, but NABET seeks to extend its jurisdiction even into the developing, printing, cutting and editing of the film."

Walsh reported that whereas a year ago "IA" had in New York 15 television stage employes, it now has 110.

For anything less than a 32-hour week, theatre owners must pay 86 cents an hour, with the minimum of four hours for any person called to work, compared with 75 cents and two hours now.

The minimum rate for female cleaners is boosted from $14.50 for a 48-hour week to $29.75 for a 44-hour week, Brylawski said. He stated the theatre owners did not oppose the boost for cleaners, but did oppose the increase for other female workers and for minors, which will affect practical all ushers now employed in the theatres.

record for moveovers and holdovers since its general release in January, Smith said. The Darryl F. Zanuck production has averaged three and one-half weeks in 174 key cities where it has played, Smith added.

Production activity at the company studio has been stepped up, it is announced, with nearly a dozen films ready for early shooting. "Twelve O'Clock High," with Henry King directing, will have Gregory Peck in the lead, while Clifton Webb will star in "21 Bow Street," a Scotland Yard picture to be made in England.

Grosses Increase On 'Joan' Holdovers

Higher grosses on holdover weeks above opening weeks are reported by RKO Radio for Sierra Pictures' "Joan of Arc."

Now in its 16th week at the Victoria, New York, where the 15th week exceeded the 14th by more than 25 per cent, "Joan" is in its 10th week at the Karlton, Philadelphia and the Palace, Los Angeles. The Colony, Miami, reports a big 7th week. In Boston, after two record weeks at the Keith, it moved over to the Astor, to complete a second week well ahead of the first and is in for an indefinite run.

At the Palace, Montreal, "Joan" starts its fifth week, marking the longest run of any picture at that house. It is being held indefinitely.

RKO's Doyle Here

Walter Wanger on the selling of "Joan." Doyle said he was hopeful of a favorable price change. A July release is planned.

Doyle reported a severe pre-Christmas slump but said that business has now leveled off to about 25 per cent of the war boom. A remittance deal with the Australian government is now "approaching the inking stage," Doyle said, adding that it very likely would be the same deal as in 1948, under which remittances of 50 per cent of the base year of 1946 were allowed. Companies cannot use their frozen funds to buy or build theatres, but can buy government bonds and industrial stocks. Doyle sees no likelihood of RKO producing in his territory, but said the company has bought a processing laboratory which is capable of processing 5,000,000 feet annually. There is a reasonable need for new theatres in Australia, he said, but building is prohibited because of material shortages.

and A. C. Bickford, for Paramount, both admitted for the record that the provision on licensing is designed solely to prevent discrimination, and does not require compulsory competitive bidding, as opponents feared.

The provision "does not mean bids," Bickford flatly stated. To that, Judge Hand offered: "It isn't thousands of miles from it."

The consequence of this is that Paramount may engage in competitive bidding licensing but is not forced to do so and cannot claim that it is.

Another highlight of yesterday's session was the unsuccessful attempt by Columbia, UA and Universal to clear the way for their possible purchase of any of the theatre properties which Paramount must dispose of.

Raftery argued that the three companies heretofore had not been considered by either the courts or the government with regard to injunctions on theatre acquisitions and said he saw no valid reason for the order which enjoins Paramount from selling theatres to them along with the theatre-owning defendants. Judge Hand lent a sympathetic ear, actually expressing the opinion that he failed to see the advantages to the government of the injunction.

Wright's position was that to permit any of the distributor defendants to acquire Paramount's houses could mean merely transferring theatres from one distributor to another. This could "create the same type of situation that has brought about the suit," he complained.

Judge Goddard wondered how arbitration would figure in industry practices as a result of the consent judgment. Wright answered that arbitration is a "subsidiary matter" and will be taken up later, probably on a voluntary basis.

Robert J. Rubin, counsel for the Society of Independent Motion Producers, voiced objection to the court's sanction of the new Paramount Theatres Co. which will comprise more than 600 theatres. He said he "deplored" the creation of such a concentration without "restraining its activities," suggesting that the producers might be at the mercy of one group to gain access to theatre outlets. Rubin said he spoke primarily for the record, doubting that his remarks would mean a revision of the settlement.

To this Wright said that Paramount's divestiture spells out theatre competition in every area and that the producers always will have alternate theatres to whom they could license their product. Judge Joseph Proskauer, for Warners, inferred that the independent producers' "prosperity" is evidence that they were not being discriminated against, adding that they "never have trouble showing 'decent' pictures."

Much of yesterday's session was taken up by parties to outside, private suits which, they said, had a definite bearing on the Paramount judgment. Counsel for Robert Ball, operating the Penn, Ambridge, Pa., asked in effect that the court order the State Theatre in that city closed because it "is the fruit of the conspiracy." The State is operated by Paramount and the Notopoulos Circuit in competition with Ball's house.

Russell Hardy, for the Partmar Corp., a subsidiary of Fanchon and Marco, asked that Paramount be enjoined from evicting Partmar from the Paramount Theatre, Los Angeles. Paramount is the lessor and Hardy said the eviction stems from the fact that Paramount, under the decree, is prevented from selling pictures individually, thus its exclusive licensing contract with Partmar is not enforceable.

The court rejected all such claims and denied all motions to intervene in the Paramount decree settlement.

The Paramount consent decree, which was approved by the court yesterday, will be ineffective unless it is approved by the stockholders by April 18.

CINCINNATI, March 4—Tonight's the night all Cincinnati starts living "The Life of Riley."

Paving the way for tomorrow's world premiere and 4-state territorial kick-off to follow in Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucky, U-I's "The Life of Riley" bows in at the RKO Grand Theatre before a ten-dollar-a-ticket benefit preview audience.

It's the climax of a powerful five-week build up for "The Life of Riley" which hit a high note with Mayor Albert D. Cash's official proclamation of "The Life of Riley Week." The whole town's on the "Riley" bandwagon!

Cincinnati's leading stores saluted "The Life of Riley" with full-page newspaper ads and window-displays.

Enquirer, Times-Star and Post tied up with special news-making Riley contests.

WLW radio network, penetrating four states, devoted entire facilities to star interviews, spot announcements, continuous picture plugs.

Traffic Safety Council heralded "The Life of Riley" in a poster campaign throughout the city.

Every drug store window in town carried "The Life of Riley" displays in a city-wide merchandising promotion by Procter & Gamble, sponsors of "The Life of Riley" hit radio show on which the motion picture is based.

The lucky Riley family chosen on the "Truth or Consequences" radio show to live "The Life of Riley" in Cincinnati during premiere week made front-page news in the city's press.

Even the Grand Theatre was re-named "The Life of Riley Theatre" for the world premiere!

Tonight critics, columnists and radio commentators from the entire Midwest territory will be on hand to tell the nation's movie-goers about the gala preview festivities with William Bendix heading an in-person Hollywood caravan and a live broadcast of "The Life of Riley" hit radio show from the stage of the Grand.

It's a big night for Cincinnati... and for U-I showmen everywhere who are getting set to live "The Life of Riley."

On the air, in magazine and newspaper merchandising tieups, through every exploitation medium all through the picture's national release, the vast resources of Procter & Gamble, National Broadcasting Company and Universal-International will go on giving all America that "Life of Riley" feeling.

U-I wants you to live "The Life of Riley"!

The LIFE OF RILEY — Starring WILLIAM BENDIX as "RILEY"

Guardian of her most important "bath"...

COSTLY shots like this might be so much spoiled footage . . . save for the vigilance and knowledge of the laboratory man.

He makes sure that the dailies take their all-important bath . . . inspecting, testing, keeping constant check as the exposed footage runs through the developing, fixing, and washing tanks and driers.

To his skill and watchfulness . . . as film representing "box-office gold" literally slips through his careful fingers . . . motion pictures owe much of their well-earned reputation for technical excellence.

This skill is more effective . . . the burden of constant vigilance lessened . . . when he works with dependable film of superior quality. That's why he always welcomes the family of Eastman motion picture films.

Some Subsequents Shy On Bids for RKO Films

CHICAGO, March 6.—Discussions for a revision in RKO Radio's selling plan in Chicago, which would enable the company to recoup lost bookings in fourth and fifth subsequent-run theatres, will begin Monday in New York. Thomas McConnell, Allied States of Illinois attorney here, is to confer with RKO Radio executives and their attorneys for a possible adoption of negotiation-selling in the later runs, rather than competitive bidding selling which is now being used.

Wilbert Named Roxy Ad-Publicity Chief

Appointment of Christy Wilbert as director of advertising-publicity for the Roxy Theatre here was announced at the weekend by A. J. Balaban, executive director of the theatre.

Wilbert has held the post of advertising manager for 20th Century-Fox since 1945, having been in the company's advertising department for 13 years. He will assume his new duties today, succeeding Homer Harman, who resigned and who, after a vacation, will announce new plans.

Balaban Urges Stockholders Ratify Decree

Continuation of the litigation in the industry trust suit to an ultimate U. S. Supreme Court decision would have meant risks and uncertainties and possibly a court order seriously impairing the values of its theatre properties, Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, told the corporation's stockholders in a special letter accompanying proxy statements mailed over the weekend.

Paramount's acceptance of the consent judgment represented the "wisest course to follow," Balaban said, adding: "Your board and I recom-

Para. Theatres Can Add Video Outlets

Following divorcement from Paramount, the new independent theatre company will be free to own and operate four new television stations in addition to Station WBKB, Chicago, which it will receive from Paramount, company stockholders are advised in the reorganization proxy statement.

The new picture company will receive Paramount's stock interest in DuMont Television and, therefore, under Federal Communications Commission rulings limiting to five stations the number that may be operated under single or joint ownership, the new picture company, or DuMont, will be free to acquire only one more television station. DuMont operates stations in New York, Washington and Pittsburgh now and the new picture company will receive Station KTLA, Los Angeles.

Para. Dividends from Canadian Theatres

Paramount's 66.27 per cent of Famous Players Canadian's 370 theatres paid it a maximum of $2,154 000 in 1947 and a minimum of $811,000 in 1940, the company reports.

Reorganization Plan for Company Is Sent To Stockholders; Contemplates Separate Film and Theatre Companies Within a Year

The new Paramount independent picture and theatre companies will be launched with strong cash and credit resources, to be assumed by the new theatre company, which will provide Paramount Pictures, Inc., with approximately $30,000,000 in cash assets deriving from the present company, Paramount's plan of reorganization now being distributed to stockholders reveals.

United Paramount Theatres, Inc., the new independent theatre company, will have a $12,500,000 credit earmarked for acquisition of theatre interests permitted it by the Paramount consent decree, with a total of $18,000,000 in cash and government securities.

Approval of the plan of reorganization will be sought of company stockholders at a meeting to be held at the home office on April 12. Two-thirds of Paramount's 6,656,539 shares of stock outstanding must approve the plan for it to become effective.

Under the plan, Paramount's domestic theatre operations will be separated to form the new independent theatre company. Production-distribution operations, 370 Canadian and 14 foreign theatres and a division of Paramount's television interests with certain other assets will comprise the new independent Paramount Pictures.

The reorganization of the company, if approved by stockholders, is to be consummated by Dec. 31, next, with a March 3, 1950, deadline for start of independent company operations.

Paramount stockholders will receive one-half share in each new company

Para. Reorganization Plan Highlights

HIGHLIGHTS of the plan of reorganization for Paramount which will be voted upon by company stockholders on April 12:

Proposes formation of new United Paramount Theatres company with maximum of 647 theatres, to be headed by Leonard H. Goldenson.

New picture company, to be headed by Barney Balaban, to have all production-distribution assets, 370 Canadian and 14 foreign theatres and bulk of television assets. Company will be known as Paramount Pictures, Inc., and will have the right to acquire theatres in the future.

Stockholders to receive one-half share in each new company for each present share of Paramount stock held.

Reorganization to be consummated by end of this year with absolute deadline for independent companies' start by March 3, 1950.

1949-50 Prospects 'Encourage' Balaban

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.—Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, declared here at the weekend prior to his departure for the East that he has never been so encouraged over company prospects as he is for 1949 and 1950. He cited Paramount vice-president and studio head Henry Ginsberg for the long-range production program which he has set up.

Stockholders Sue To Void Cohn Pact

Columbia president Harry Cohn and the company's directors were named defendants in a minority stockholder action filed in U. S. District Court here on Friday in protest against the new salary and death benefit contract which was voted Cohn over minority stockholder objections at the company's Feb. 8 stockholders meeting.

Plaintiff is David Cohn, a minority stockholder who is said to have no kinship with Harry or Jack Cohn, the latter being Columbia's executive vice-president and also a defendant in consequence of his board membership. The action alleges the directors' approval of the Cohn contract was "a fraud on the rights of minority stockholders," and asks that a receiver be appointed to replace the board which is charged with being "incapable of handling company affairs because of the domination of Harry Cohn."

Columbia Directors Cite Harry Cohn

Directors of Columbia Pictures cited president Harry Cohn at their recent board meeting, passing a resolution thanking him as the executive head of the studio, and his production staff," for the quality of pictures recently completed, and expressing the board's appreciation for the schedule of pictures now in production and planning stages," the home office states.

Canadian Action on Television Is Due

OTTAWA, March 6.—The Canadian government is expected to reach a decision about the manner and method of procedure for video in Canada in a few days and this may mean that the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. can proceed immediately with the development of its television plans.

The opinion here is that a loan may be given to CBC for such purpose since one of the reasons advanced for the slow video progress here to date has been the heavy expenditures involved in television for a country like Canada with its comparatively small population and wide spaces.

The first television station would be located in Montreal or Toronto, or possibly both.

It is believed that one point which will be stressed in the development will be to make telecasts as distinctly Canadian as possible and not merely an offshoot of the U. S. video industry, with this entailing governmental control to a large extent right from the start, though private enterprise would enter the picture.

At present, the CBC has several applications for private television stations, and it is understood here that a co-operative scheme will be worked out whereby they could fit into the national system. It is certain that private stations would not be permitted to operate alone because it is feared that they would become units of American networks in time.

cline in bookings in the later runs, because those houses are by-passing the product due to a refusal to pay high rentals under a bidding set-up. Under negotiation, they could probably buy a film for less. The company, however, it is understood, has shown an upswing in rentals as a result of its sales plan adopted since the Jackson Park decree went into effect, and is generally satisfied with sales under the bidding plan for those theatres designated in first, second and third-run zones.

Using a similar zoning-bidding set-up, however, 20th-Fox negotiates with theatres in the later zones, and is receiving full-scope bookings on the majority of its product.

Canadian Exports Nearly $4 Millions

OTTAWA, March 6.—The Canadian government reports that exports of films declined to $370,000 in December, 1948, compared with $449,000 in December, 1947, but shipments advanced to a total value of $3,916,000 in the 12 months of 1948, against $3,305,000 in the previous year.

Para. Pictures Outgrossed Theatres in 4 of 9 Years

Comparison of earnings of Paramount theatres and Paramount production-distribution reveals that in the period from 1940 through the first nine months of 1948, picture company earnings exceeded theatre earnings in four of the nine periods.

The pro forma results, showing what the new theatre company and new picture company would have earned had they existed follows:

Year	Theatre Company	Picture Company
1940	$ 4,089,000	$ 2,313,000
1941	4,097,000	5,109,000
1942	4,562,000	8,563,000
1943	6,581,000	8,004,000
1944	7,838,000	6,905,000
1945	7,421,000	8,004,000
1946	20,498,000	18,701,000
1947	17,505,000	10,735,000
1948 (9 mos.)	10,976,000	4,495,000

The theatre company earnings above do not include undistributed dividends of subsidiaries and affiliates, which ranged from a minimum of $1,025,000 in 1941 to a high of $4,175,000 in 1946.

Picture company earnings likewise do not include undistributed dividends, which ranged from $16,000 in 1940 to a high of $951,000 for the nine months of 1948.

Big Income from Foreign Theatres

The new Paramount picture company would have received $11,016,736 in admissions and receipts during the first nine months of 1948 from its Canadian and other foreign theatre holdings which it will retain under the reorganization plan, the pro forma statement for the new company shows.

In addition, its nine months film rentals in 1948 would have been $52,627,810, and rentals and other income, $2,037,940, for a total of $65,-682,486.

Own Theatres Gave Para. 15% of Gross

Film rentals received by Paramount from theatres which will be operated by the new theatre company ranged from 11 to 15 per cent of total domestic film rentals and eight to 10 per cent of its world film rentals during the eight years and nine months to Oct. 2, 1948, the company reports. Film rentals paid to Paramount by theatres of the new company ranged from 25 to 32 per cent of the total paid by them to all distributors.

Physical Properties Of Companies Listed

All of the domestic theatre assets owned by Paramount will be transferred to New Theatre Co., less, of course, holdings to be disposed of, and all production and distribution facilities, and all theatre properties outside of the U. S., will go to the New Picture Co. upon consummation of the company's plan for reorganization. The television interests are to be divided. It breaks down this way:

NEW THEATRE CO. Will be permitted to retain up to 650 wholly-owned theatres, these to consist of 380 of the 449 theatres which the corporation now fully owns, plus the entire ownership of theatres, roughly 270 of them, which the company is free to acquire in dissolving partnerships.

Will take over operation of Television Station WBKB, Chicago, a subsidiary of Balaban and Katz.

Paramount discloses in its proxy statement to stockholders that 146 of its wholly-owned theatres are held by outright ownership, that is, by fee, will be operated on lease.

To Be Held Permanently

Among the properties which will be held permanently, free of encumbrances, all in fee, are: Paramount Theatre, San Francisco, with stores; State, San Francisco, stores; Radio City Theatre, Minneapolis, stores and radio studio; Florida Theatre, St. Petersburg, office building and stores; Florida Theatre, Jacksonville, office building and stores; Paramount, Los Angeles, office building and stores. Held on lease: State Lake Theatre, Chicago, office building and stores, and Olympia Theatre, Miami, office building and stores.

The Paramount Theatre, New York, may be operated on lease.

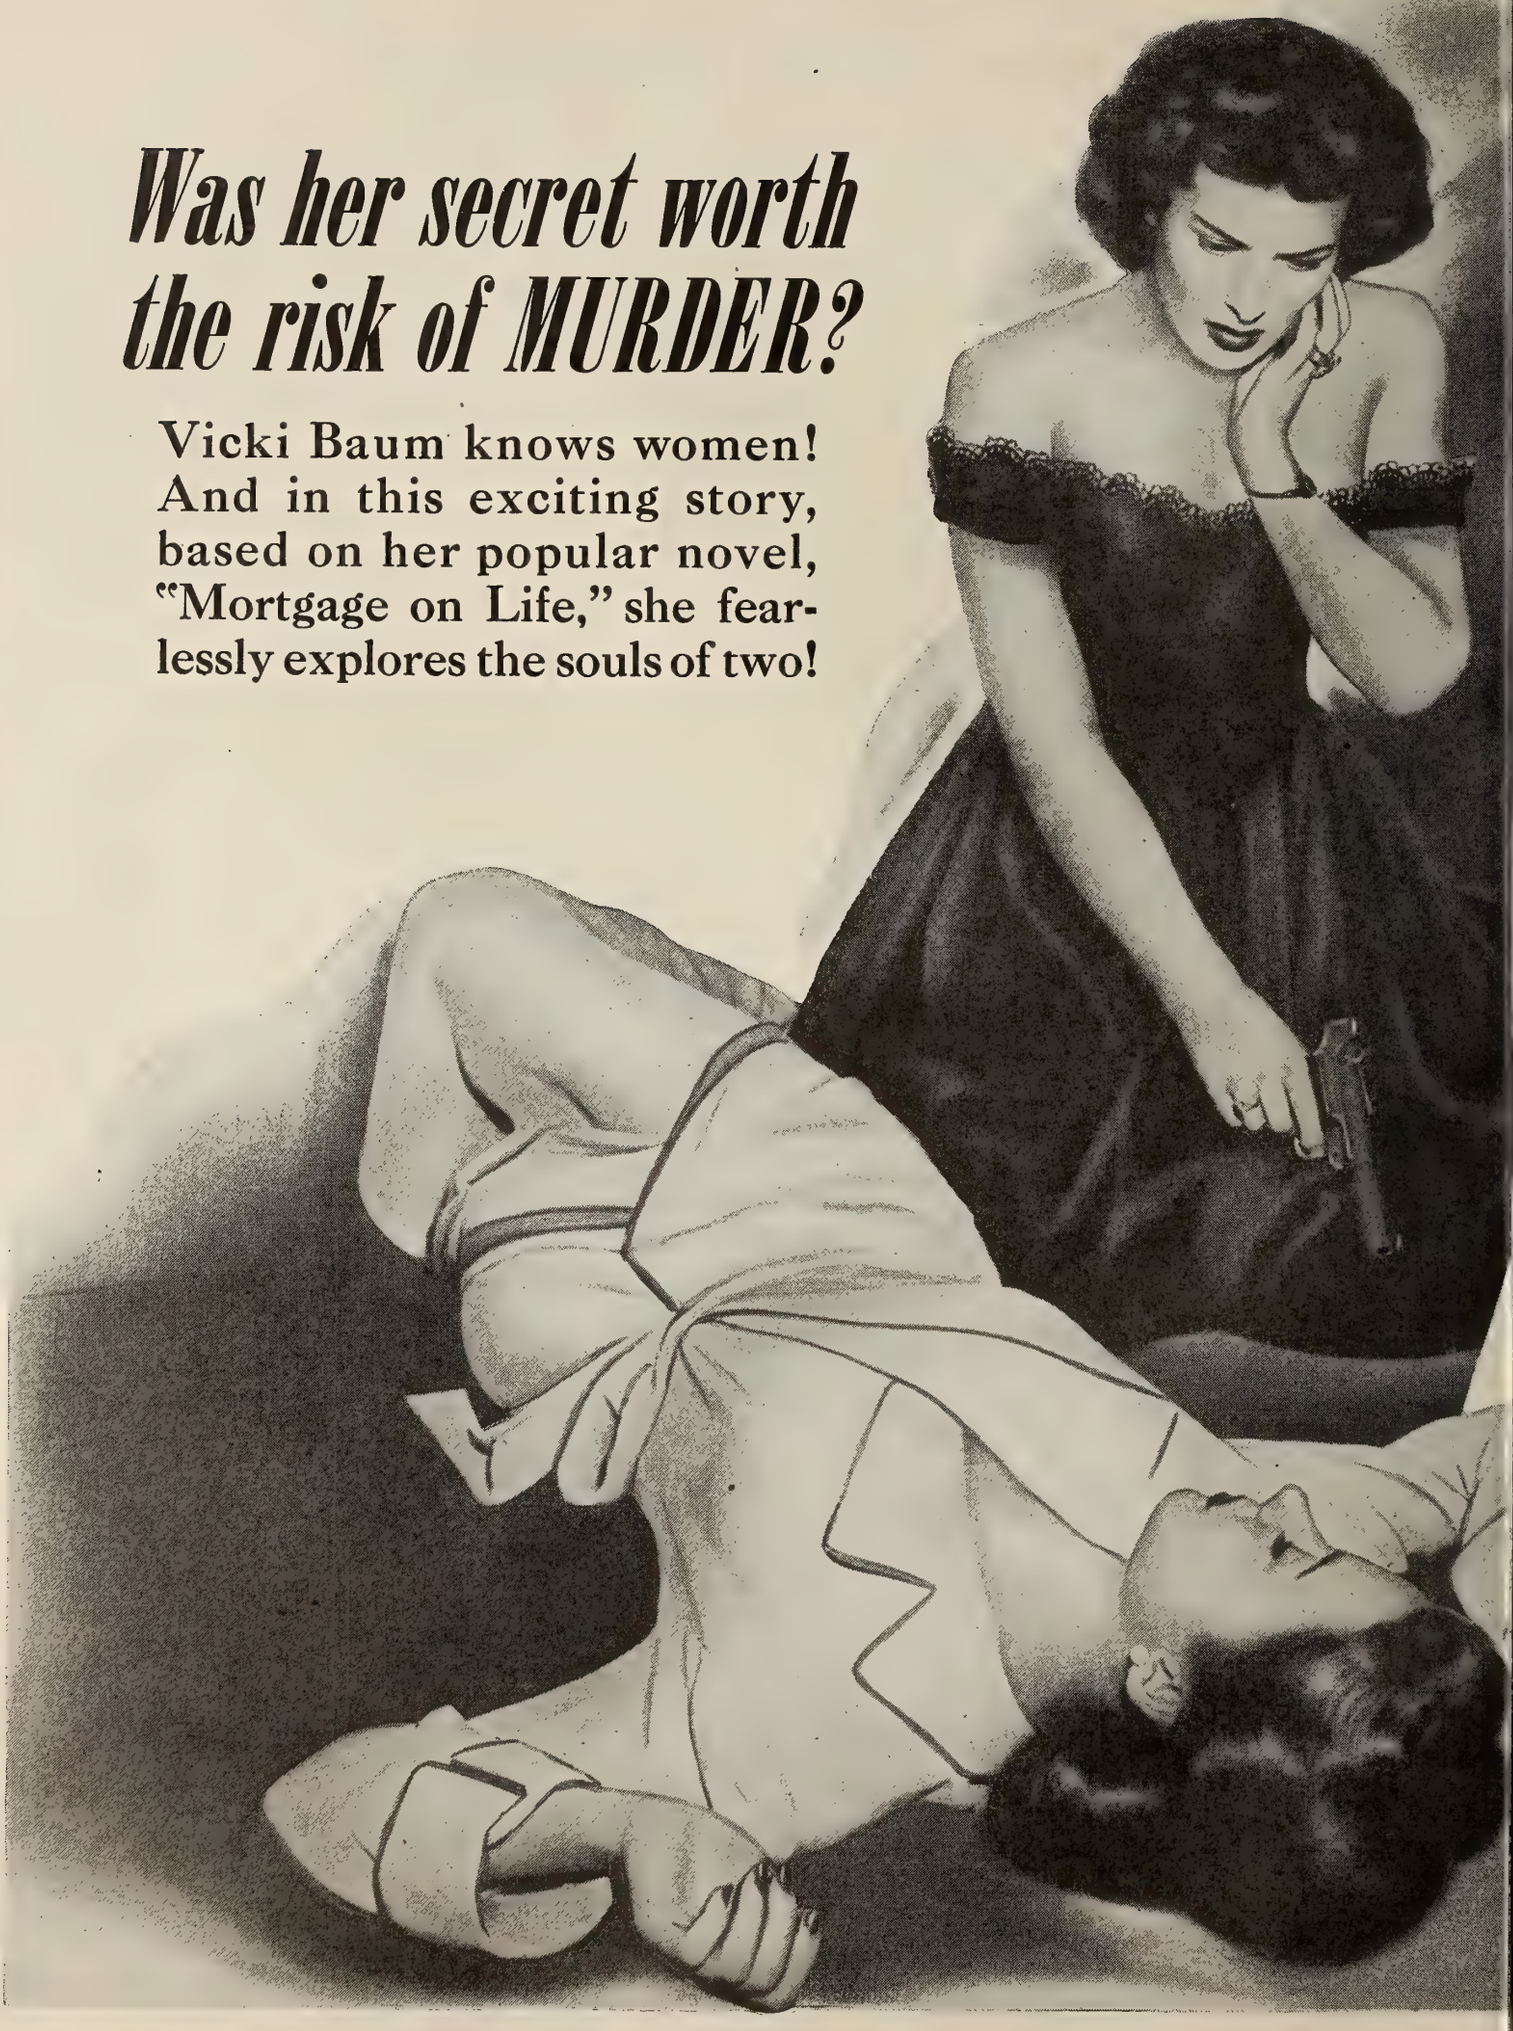
NEW PICTURES CO. Will continue the business of producing motion pictures and distributing them throughout the world with present physical assets. Will hold all of the stock of Paramount International Films which owns, among other assets, 66.67 per cent of the outstanding common stock of Famous Players Canadian Corp. The latter operates a circuit of 370 theatres in Canada.

Will hold all stock of Paramount Television Productions which operates station KTLA, Los Angeles, as well as all of the stock of Famous Music Corp. and Paramount Music Corp.

Will own 43,200 shares of Class A common and 560,000 shares of Class B common of Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, representing 29½ per cent of the total amounts of all DuMont outstanding.

Will Own Studios

Will own in fee the production studio in Hollywood which covers 26 acres and contains 19 sound stages.



Will own film processing laboratories in New York City, Long Island City, Hollywood and London.

Will have seven theatres in England, all leased to an English exhibitor, and additional leases on two more houses in London. Will have three theatres in France, one in Belgium and one in Lima, Peru.

Will have the 31-story Paramount home-office building in New York with the theatre which it houses going to New Theatre Co. on lease. New Picture Co. must dispose of the entire property within five years of the judgment.

New Para. Companies

for every share presently owned. Both new companies will have authorized capital stock of 4,500,000 shares, compared with Paramount's presently authorized 9,000,000 shares.

As previously reported, the new theatre company will be permitted to retain 380 of its presently wholly-owned 449 theatres and is authorized to acquire a maximum of 267 of its presently jointly-owned 955 theatres, indicating a total of 647 theatres for the new company.

Earmarked to Buy Out Houses

The $12,500,000 bank credit is earmarked for the acquisition of the authorized 267 presently partially-owned theatres under terms governed by the previously published Paramount consent decree.

Included in the theatre company assets is the WBKB television station in Chicago. The Paramount holdings in DuMont Television, consisting of 560,000 shares of Class B and 43,200 shares of Class A stock and television station KTLA, Los Angeles, will go to the picture company.

The Paramount Building in New York, together with the Paramount Theatre will go to the picture company which, however, must dispose of it within five years. The Paramount Theatre will be leased by the picture company under authorized conditions to the new theatre company.

The new theatre company will assume the obligation of repaying all sums borrowed up to $17,500,000 on the new bank credit agreement, including $13,000,000 inuring to the new picture company.

Share Anti-Trust Liabilities

The theatre company will share with the picture company liability under anti-trust judgments involving the present Paramount company and also will share equally the obligation to Barney Balaban, Paramount president, for convertible notes of Paramount held by him in the amount of $2,000,000.

Paramount stockholders will receive certificates of interest for their shares in the new picture company under a provision insisted upon by the Department of Justice to speed disposal of the securities and encourage new ownership of the two companies. The theatre company stock will be held in trust for owners by the Bank of New York and Fifth Avenue Bank, which is entitled also to withhold during the first two years 50 per cent of dividends paid on the stock by the theatre company, which will be paid to them only upon sale or conversion of their interest in the theatre company.

After two years, if certificates have not been disposed of and if more than one-third of the total still remains with the trustee, the later may hold 100 per cent of the theatre company dividends for the benefit of the certificate holders upon conversion of their interests. When two-thirds of the certificates have been disposed of the voting trust may be terminated.

Both Companies Enjoined

Both of the new companies will be enjoined from engaging in trade practices found illegal by the New York Federal statutory court and the U. S. Supreme Court, as detailed previously under the Paramount consent decree terms.

The new picture company, however, is not prohibited from acquiring theatres in the future under specified conditions and it is to receive the benefits of any more favorable decree which may be entered as to the remaining integrated defendants in the government anti-trust suit, these being Loew's, 20th Century-Fox and Warner.

Barney Balaban will head the new picture company which will have a board of directors comprised mainly of present Paramount directors. Vacancies on the board, however, will be filled by persons who have had no former association with Paramount until such persons comprise a majority.

The new theatre company is required to start life with a majority of its board members consisting of those who have had no previous identification with Paramount. The proposed directors are: John A. Coleman, broker and former chairman of the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange; E. Chester Gersten, president of the Public National Bank and Trust Co., New York; Leonard Goldenson, president of the new company; Walter Gross, Paramount theatre general counsel; William T. Kilborn, president of Flannery Bolt Co., Pittsburgh; Walter Marshall, president of Western Union Telegraph Co., and Robert O'Brien, Paramount secretary.

Strong Initial Working Capital Is Set For New Para. Independent Companies

Pro forma* consolidated balance sheets of the new Paramount picture and theatre companies reveal that the former will have initial net working capital of $72,378,497, and the latter, $11,096,473.

The picture company will have $81,446,738 total current assets, including $45,532,849 in film and other inventories and $30,016,543 in cash and government securities. Its total assets aggregate $120,044,630.

Picture company liabilities include $9,068,241 of current liabilities.

The theatre company's current assets amount to $19,202,550, including $17,852,771 in cash and government securities. Total assets amount to $69,277,198.

Current theatre company liabilities will amount to $8,106,077. Notes payable to banks will amount to $17,500,000.

Employee Investment Plan Is Abandoned

Reorganization of Paramount means the abandonment of its Employes' Investment Co. Plan by which about 45 top executives would have participated in profits through stock purchases. Stockholders had approved the "incentive" plan in 1947, but it was held up by minority holders' court actions against it.

Balaban Urges

mend unreservedly that you give your approval to it." The stockholders will meet here on April 12 to vote on the decree settlement; a two-thirds majority is required for ratification.

Creation of the voting trusteeship to hold stock in the New Theatres Co. is a burdensome arrangement, Balaban admits, but one necessarily agreed to by Paramount to effect the overall setlement, the Department of Justice having made it a condition to its agreement.

Hopes for Two-Year Trusteeship

While under the plan for reorganization the trusteeship could remain in operation for a maximum of five years, Balaban expresses the hope that it will be terminated in two. The trust will cease to exist when the number of shares it holds is reduced to one-third of the outstanding shares and the New York Federal Court is satisfied that there will be no "controlling influence" over either of the two new companies by any one affiliated with the other.

Under the plan for re-distribution of stock, present holders will receive one-half of a share in the New Picture Co. in addition to one certificate of interest for one-half of a share in the New Theatres Co. for each share in the present parent corporation. Certificates of interest will represent the capital stock of New Theatres Co. and may be converted into common shares by anyone establishing by affidavit that he does not possess any Picture Co. securities.

Some Dividends Postponed

The trust arrangement will postpone receipt of part of the dividends on stock of the New Theatres Co., Balaban advises stockholders. "But the postponed portions are your property, are held for your benefit and will be paid to you upon conversion of a certificate of interest into Theatres Co. shares, or a sale of such interest, or upon termination of the trust."

Balaban in reporting on the New Theatres Co., says it will be permitted to retain 380 of the 449 houses wholly-owned by Paramount. Additionally, it may acquire the entire interests of 267 of Paramount's partially-owned theatres, for a total possibly in excess of 600 wholly-owned, he says.

"The two new companies will be thoroughly sound business units," Balaban declares. "There is every reason to believe that the New Picture Co. will continue to maintain" leadership in production and distribution. "It will start in business with substantial financial resources and with an organization of men of proven competence and ability in the motion picture field."

Sees Excellent Prospects

Prospects for New Theatres Co. are similar, Balaban states. It will start with an excellent organization, will be financially sound and fully equipped to continue as successfully as Paramount's theatre enterprise.

"I firmly believe that each of them will possess substantial potential earning power," Balaban summarized.

Beyond preservation of asset values, Balaban pointed out, the accord with the government also frees Paramount from a 10-year-old suit that "has taken its toll, not only in legal fees and other costs, but in its constant encroachment on the time of our officers and other personnel."

Fabian Calls For Return to Fundamentals

Addresses Judges of 15th Quigley Awards

A return to the fundamentals on which the industry was built and achieved its success will solve its most pressing problems and will level its newer forms of competition, Si Fabian, prominent circuit operator, told a luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria here yesterday for industry advertising and exploitation executives who served as judges of the 15th annual Quigley Showmanship Awards contest, conducted by the Managers Round Table Department of Motion Picture Herald.

Martin Quigley, who presided at the luncheon, said that the annual awards contests not only "have exerted an influence in promoting better showmanship" but also have been

Seek to Lessen Unemployment

HOLLYWOOD, March 7.—Joint action by production management and talent and labor here to rectify conditions which are blamed for a reduction of Hollywood studio employment caused by increasing production by American producers abroad was mapped in a three-hour meeting here yesterday attended by Motion Picture Association of America president Eric Johnston, Paramount production executive Y. Frank Freeman, and a committee representing the Hollywood AFL Film Council, the Screen Actors Guild and the Screen Writers Guild.

The meeting was an outgrowth of the Film Council's proposal last month to mass the entire strength of

Fabian Commends Quigley's "Oscars"

The annual Quigley Showmanship Awards were referred to yesterday by Si Fabian, independent circuit operator, as "Quigley's Oscars."

Pointing out that the awards are for "meritorious showmanship," Fabian said in his opinion they are "just as important as the Oscars given in Hollywood for excellence in production."

Saul Rogers to Head B'nai B'rith Here

Saul E. Rogers, industry attorney and one-time vice-president and general counsel of Fox Film Corp., has been nominated to the presidency of New York's Cinema Lodge of B'nai B'rith to succeed S. Arthur Glixon, who has been elected to the presidency of the Metropolitan Council of B'nai B'rith. Election will be held on Thurday in the rehearsal hall of the Paramount theatre. Nomination is tantamount to election.

Nominated for vice-presidencies are Max Blackman, Warner; George Brandt, Brandt Theatres; Julius M. Collins, ASCAP; Harold L. Danson, Eagle-Lion; Harry Friedman, non-industryite; Marvin Kirsch, Radio Daily; Harold Hodes, Columbia; Milton Livingston, Universal; Louis A. Novins, Paramount; Robert K. New 75¢ Wage-Hour Bill Would Cover All Large Circuits

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Large single theatres and large circuits might come under the Federal wage-hour law for the first time if Congress approves an Administration-backed bill now being voted on in the House Labor Committee.

At present, most retail and service establishments are exempt from the wage-hour law, which sets a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour and calls for time-and-a-half overtime for firms that are covered. The bill pending in the House Committee would boost the minimum wage to 75 cents and would extend the coverage of the law.

One of the groups that would be

Mine Workers Claim Phila. Film Workers

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—The United Mine Workers yesterday claimed they had organized a majority of the 1,300 motion picture theatre employees in the Philadelphia area. The statement followed a Sunday morning rally in Turners Hall during which 500 theatrical workers voted allegiance to UMW District 50.

UMW leaders estimated that another 350 employees of this area's 80 film houses would back District 50, but claimed they were unable to attend the meeting. At the rally theatre workers voted to support the UMW as first choice in a bargaining election expected to be held soon by the state labor relations board.

Angelo J. Cefalo, regional director of District 50, said the other unions on the ballot would be the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees and an independent union.

[Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer] Cash Register - Musical

EXHIBITORS who agree that their theatres are places of entertainment and relaxation and who like to give the public that impression by providing pictures in keeping with that idea, have in M-G-M's "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" some screen fare made truly to their specifications.

This reviewer predicts that a few months hence such exhibitors will be penning letters to Motion Picture Herald's "What the Picture Did for Me" department reading pretty much like this:

Para.'s Assets Value Exceeds Book Listings

Holdings Worth Far More Than Decree Plan Shows

Actual values of assets of the two new Paramount companies far exceed their book values reflected in the company's plan of reorganization.

Some assets in effect are not carried at all. (Pictures already released, for example, are carried at one dollar.) Their reissue worth is considerable. Numerous theatres are listed at the original purchase price, whereas, for purposes of sale or as going concerns, they are actually worth many times the original investment.

As reported yesterday, the balance sheets show that the new Paramount Pictures Co. will have $81,446,738 total current assets, including $45,-

Para. Theatres Co. Is Free to Produce

United Paramount Theatres will be free to engage in production and the new Paramount Picture Company is not enjoined from acquiring theatres, subject to the restrictions of the Paramount consent decree and Federal anti-trust laws. But neither company has any plans for moving into its opposite field.

Leonard Goldenson, slated to head the new theatre company, made it clear at the weekend that the job of transferring interest in 955 theatres precludes any thought of possible production activities. He said that he has not begun any negotiations on splitting with partners, and will not until stockholders approve the reorganization.

Short Subject

"On Watch"

(This Is America-RKO Pathe)

An up-to-the-minute report on U.S. Armed Forces is presented in this brisk and interesting This Is America subject. Varied combat maneuvers of the air, ground and sea forces are shown, as well as the latest weapons and instruments in operation. Some of the film's highlights include training under conditions of the sub-zero arctic to steaming tropical jungles. Also shown are GI's standing guard in some of the trouble spots of the world. Intelligent preparation to insure "the blessings of liberty for ourselves and posterity" is a keynote of the film.

Running time, 17 minutes.

"Snake Pit" Named Best Picture of '48

Editors of 85 foreign language newspapers have voted 20th Century-Fox's "The Snake Pit" as the best picture of 1948, it was announced here yesterday by Sigmund Gottlober, executive director of the Foreign Language Press Film Critics' Circle. "Snake Pit" also took top honors as the best American film of the year, with Anatole Litvak qualifying as "producer of the year."

Olivia de Havilland, star of "Snake Pit," won as the best actress, Laurence Oliver takes the actor's award for his performance as "Hamlet," and Roberto Rossellini took the directorial award for the Italian-made, "Paisan." The awards, which also include "Red Shoes" as the best British-made picture of the year, and "Paisan" as the best Continental film, will be made Thursday night over New York's municipal broadcasting station WNYC.

Earthquake Hits Salt Lake Houses

Salt Lake City, March 7.—A medium-sized earthquake in Salt Lake City last night caused slight panic in one downtown theatre and shut off power at another. Utah Theatre patrons started to run as the building shook, but ushers leaped to the stage and quieted the panic, asking everyone to leave orderly. When the Capitol Theatre current shut off, patrons left without commotion.

Mono. Stockholders Meeting Tomorrow

HOLLYWOOD, March 7.—Steve Broidy, president; George D. Burrows, executive vice-president and treasurer; Harold J. Mirisch, vice-president, and Howard Stubbins, Pacific Coast franchise holder, will leave Los Angeles Wednesday for Chicago, where annual stockholders' meetings of Allied Artists Productions and Monogram Pictures will be held on March 12 at the Drake Hotel. Other members of the board are: W. Ray Johnston, Edward Morey, Arthur C. Bromberg, William Hurlbut, Herman Rifkin, Norton V. Ritchey and Charles W. Trampe.

Following the meetings Broidy will continue to New York to attend the premiere there of Allied Artists' "Bad Boy" at the Palace theatre on March 22.

Rangers at Premiere

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, March 7.—Texas Rangers, of the present and past eras, will be on hand here tomorrow for the premiere of "South of St. Louis," Warner Technicolor production, with the film's stars, Joel McCrea, Alexis Smith and Dorothy Malone, also here for personal appearances.

Sinatra, Esther Williams and Gene Kelly are tops. Metro had better give us more with Betty Garrett and Jules Munshin. Our audiences liked them. Buy it."

That about tells the story, but you need to know that Busby Berkeley directed this slick piece of entertainment and Arthur Freed produced it in a manner to appeal to the largest and most varied audiences.

The laughs, songs and dances are not all there is to it either. There is a fairly substantial story line, as such things go in musicals, and some engaging romantic business involving Miss Williams, Sinatra and Kelly at first, and eventually Miss Garrett, who can give with the songs and the comedy.

Sinatra and Kelly are a couple of baseball stars doubling between seasons as a vaudeville team. Miss Williams is the new owner of the ball club, for whom Sinatra goes whole-hog but whom Kelly runs afoul of in breaking training while indulging his weakness for night life. The feud and accompanying misunderstandings pursue them through the season and up to the pennant race when Edward Arnold, as a big time gambler, further complicates things by his efforts to break up a star double-play combination by conniving to remove Kelly from the line-up in order to win a bet on the series. Meanwhile, Miss Garrett literally has jumped out of the stands in romantic pursuit of Sinatra. With the help of more laughs, songs and dances the happy ending is served up as ordered.

Harry Tugend and George Wells did the diverting screenplay from a story by Kelly and Stanley Donen. The latter two, additionally, staged the musical numbers. Lyrics and music were contributed by Betty Comden, Adolph Green and Roger Edens. Musical direction is by Adolph Deutch.

Featured songs include "O'Brien to Ryan to Goldberg," "It's Fate, Baby, It's Fate," "Strictly U.S.A." and "The Right Girl for Me."

Production numbers, sets, costumes, color photography, all are tops.

It is a production that looks like Hollywood had never heard the word economy. And if there were more pictures like it Hollywood never would have to hearken to the word.

Give your audiences and yourself a treat. Buy it! Running time, 93 minutes. General audience classification. April release. SHERWIN KANE "Cover Up"

(United Artists)

THE adventures of an insurance investigator probing a small-town "suicide" has been made into an agreeable picture that takes some novel turns and keeps a brisk pace throughout. Cast names are reliable, headed by Dennis O'Keefe, William Bendix and Barbara Britton. All told, the film easily meets the demands of its classification.

When O'Keefe arrives on the scene, he is all set to wrap up the "suicide" case in a few hours. A little probing, however, convinces O'Keefe that the "suicide" is actually a murder, and thereupon he sets out to prove his contention. The only trouble is that he meets cold resistance from everyone in town, including Miss Britton, a girl he met on the bus and soon grew to like.

The original screenplay, by Jerome Odlum and Jonathan Rix, provides Bendix with an unusual role as the hulking sheriff who is more astute than he pretends to be. As it obviously becomes a case of murder, characters soon start covering up for everyone else, with suspicions cast in many directions. By the time the solution is reached, the audience learns the murdered man was an unmitigated scoundrel and the man who killed him was the town's beloved old doctor who had since died of a heart attack. Thus is explained the townfolks' "cover up," a reaction which may strike some people puzzlingly. Performances are good all around with others in the cast including Art Baker and Ann E. Todd as Miss Britton's father and kid sister; and Doro Merande. Ted Nasser produced and Alfred E. Green directed.

Running time, 82 minutes. Adult audience classification. For March release.

Sidney Lust Fears Video Competition

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Sidney Lust, veteran Washington theatre owner and national director of the Theatre Owners of America, has proposed that the motion picture industry and promoters of sporting events work together to block competition from television.

Lust, in a letter to boxing commissioner Abe Greene, declares he is sure that both theatres and sporting events have suffered attendance drops because television stations have been televising boxing and wrestling matches, basketball games and other events.

"We cannot afford to let our industry fall by the wayside because television people are allowed to televise all these different events (for little or nothing) and stand by and let this continue," Lust wrote Greene. "It should be stopped. The motion picture industry is not going to stand by idly and let this octopus put us out of business. While I want to encourage new developments, it may be possible that we can work hand in hand somehow."

Fabian Calls

"the stepping stones to greater responsibility and greater opportunity for many of the contestants.

Enumerating the problems and changes, both economic and legal, which confront the industry, Fabian called for a return to the fundamentals which "are the foundation upon which our business life was built."

Those fundamentals, he said, are the maintenance of comfortable, attractive theatres; the providing of great entertainment at reasonable prices, and "the showmanlike way in which we have exploited our pictures for our theatres."

Business Will Go Forward

"If we, as theatre men," Fabian continued, "will keep our plants in excellent condition, give better service, make them centers of the community and retain the glamor which the theatre has always had and, if Hollywood does its job properly by providing greater and better entertainment, always striving to exceed in quality the great things they have done, and if we, as showmen, will exploit these pictures to reach the maximum audience, our business will go forward, no matter the competition."

Fabian called attention to the work that needs to be done in rehabilitating and modernizing many theatres.

"We must see that our chairs, our carpets, our ventilating systems, our projection, our service, our rest rooms reach higher standards than ever before. We must instill in the minds of the people the idea that our theatres are more inviting even than their own homes.

Audiences Are "Shopping"

"As to the quality of pictures, it is evident that the American audience is shopping today as in every other line of business. Yet when a season's product includes such pictures as 'The Snake Pit,' 'Letter to Three Wives,' 'Johnny Belinda' and 'The Paleface' the audiences we attract approach in numbers those of the hectic war days when all you had to do was throw open your doors. People will pay to see great entertainment and Hollywood must do its job to provide it."

"In the matter of showmanship," Fabian continued, "we have done a great job but not great enough. There are still millions who go to the theatre very rarely or occasionally, but the millions of steady patrons we have made proves that perhaps we can get many of the millions who are not regular patrons.

"They may be converted by more enthusiastic exploitation through newspapers, radio and even television. Others may be won by greater community consciousness on the part of exhibitors, to the extent that the theatre becomes a center of community activities. We cannot live on the past glories of our wartime contributions. If we do not continue our community service we cannot maintain our position in the community."

"From a lifetime spent in this industry," Fabian concluded, "I tell you that we have nothing to fear from other forms of competition if we are willing to give the effort and energy, the hard work, it requires to make the fundamentals of our business accomplish the results they have heretofore."

Quigley said: "While we have in no way lessened our efforts toward the promotion of showmanship, the past year has not been a conspicuous one in this area of the industry's activity. Due to a long list of reasons, there has not been issuing in recent times from many key positions the kind of example that in itself promotes showmanship. There has been too much public discussion of what figures the books show and not enough discussion of what pictures the theatres show.

"Fortunately, however, there have lately been indications of an early return to that aggressive brand of showmanship which once made motion pictures the best promoted service before the world public."

Wage - Hour Bill

covered would be the employes of any retail or service firm engaged in Interstate Commerce and grossing more than $500,000 a year. Officials of the wage-hour law administration declared that they have no doubt that the courts would rule that theatre employes are engaged in interstate commerce, since the films move in interstate commerce, and therefore any theatre or circuit grossing more than $500,000 annually may have to comply.

An original version would have also covered all circuits with more than four theatres, regardless of how little they grossed each year. This provision has been dropped, however.

The bill also contains a section put in at the request of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employes to leave in effect certain weekly salary-guaranteed wage plans they now have with the studios on the West Coast. The bill would have thrown out all such plans, and IATSE vice-president Roy Brewer asked the committee to word the provision in such a way that the IATSE plan would stay in effect.

The company said it devised this plan "in an effort to protect its regular customers from undisciplined use of 16mm. product," adding: "Unregulated" showings of 16mm. film have already proved of detriment to recognized exhibitors, and the current "bootlegging" of top product is another of the dangers to exhibitors which this system of distribution will attempt to correct. Screen Gems will at all times maintain the closest control over the final exhibition.

Para. Assets

432,849 in film and other inventories and $30,016,543 in cash and government securities.

However, it was pointed out by Paramount executives that upon consummation of the plan for divorcement, the new picture company could start out with as much as an additional $25,000,000 in cash derived from the sale of properties listed on the books at a relatively minor fraction of that amount.

Paramount figures its stock in DuMont Laboratories has a market value of about $10,000,000. The company paid $160,000 for its holdings. Paramount also could realize up to a maximum of $7,500,000 from sale of theatres, whereas, company officials say, this figure represents perhaps three or four times the amount of the original investment.

Office Building Value Rises

Sale of the Paramount home office building in New York could bring the new picture company up to $12,000,000. The original investment was $7,700,000.

Additionally, the balance sheets do not take into account the millions in earnings which are frozen abroad and which will accrue to the picture company and the huge potential earnings of pictures destined for re-issue, including "Going My Way," other Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Gary Cooper films. Additionally, it will be entitled to 50 per cent of the yield from Cecil B. DeMille re-issues.

Also as reported yesterday, the theatre company's current assets amount to $19,202,550, including $17,852,771 in cash and government securities. Total assets amount to $69,277,198.

"Hidden assets" are present in the theatre company as in the picture company.

For example, the assets include Paramount's initial investments in theatre partnerships at $7,930,087. Paramount's share of the profits in both dividends and undistributed earnings in these affiliated in one year alone, 1947, actually exceeded this original investment. Paramount is to sell its interests in 688 jointly-owned houses with the expectation of receiving several times over the amount of money originally invested and the above comparison of investment with one-year's earnings justifies that expectation, the company feels.

Net Capital Gains in '48

In this respect it is interesting to note that the corporation realized a net capital gain of $1,596,000 during the first nine months of 1948. During that period the only large-scale transaction which Paramount is known to have engaged in was its sale of its interest in New England Theatres.

Under the plan for reorganization and disposal of theatres, both new companies will share amounts received for the theatres in the first year up to $15,000,000 with the theatre company entitled to all proceeds from theatre sales thereafter.

It was suggested by reporters that the new picture company might favor measures assuring that at least $15,000,000 worth of theatre properties would be sold in the first year so that it might obtain its maximum of $7,500,000.

This suggestion of a possible conflict was dismissed by company executives who maintained that their sole objective is to comply with the decree time schedule, that is, one-third of partnership houses to be sold in each of the next three years.

Yates Sees Upturn

in the wind which indicate that all is not completely dark," Yates said, citing the "encouraging political news from most countries in front of the Iron Curtain."

When Europe begins to regain "a greater percentage of productivity," the Republic president said, "there will be an increased demand for American pictures and a lessening of restrictions on quotas and blocked funds." He said he hoped that a "fair plan can be arrived at whereby the American motion picture industry can get more dollar return from these countries."

Economies Do Not 'Cheapen'

Republic is continuing a "forward policy of production, said Yates. "True," he added, "we have made drastic economies in operation at the studio, laboratory and distribution outlets. Yet, none of the essential elements that went into making pictures from the artists, artisans or from the construction standpoints were cheapened. Republic's policy has been one of economy, but this policy meant only dispensing with unproductive things, and did not call for tampering with basic production ingredients, or breaking the morale of our creative manpower."

The only way the industry can meet successfully competition from television "is by paying greater attention to our product and by giving the public more in entertainment value per foot of film per minute, penny-for-penny and dollar-for-dollar than any other form of mass entertainment," Yates admonished.

Sears Hits 'Sabotage'; Refuses 'River' Prints

Intended double-billing of Paramount's "Paleface" and United Artists' "Red River" by Fox Wisconsin Theatres was branded by UA president Gradwell L. Sears yesterday as "the most flagrant, dangerous and downright stupid abuse of exhibitor power in my recollection," in a press statement in which he announced that he would refuse to deliver prints of "River" to the circuit.

The two films were sold to Fox Wisconsin on flat rental terms by both distributors, it is understood. "River" to date has proved UA's biggest grosser in recent years. "Paleface" is one of Paramount's strongest box-office attractions this season.

"The exhibitor's threats of a freeze-out, direct and implied, do not deter me for one moment from this decision," Sears said.

The double bill was to open in three Fox Wisconsin houses in Milwaukee

Monogram to Invest $4-Millions in UK ProductionProgram

A production-distribution deal involving $8,000,000 has been concluded between Associated British Pictures Corp. and Monogram under the terms of which the equivalent of at least $4,000,000 of American money will be made available by Monogram, the latter said here yesterday. Word from London on Feb. 25 indicated that Monogram was expected to participate in a new ABPC two-year British production plan along with Warner Brothers, which has a substantial financial interest in ABPC.

Announced jointly yesterday by William Moffat, managing director of ABPC-Pathe, Ltd.; Robert Clark, ABPC director, both in London, and Steve Broidy, Monogram president, in Hollywood, the deal calls for expenditure of $8,000,000 for the production of eight pictures to be made either at ABPC's Elstree or Welwyn studios. The arrangements were brought to completion by Norton V. Ritchey, Monogram-International president, who returned here recently from London. In addition to the two

Alexander King, Named Head of CEA, Calls for Anglo-U. S. Film Amity

LONDON, March 8.—The likelihood of a compromise 30 per cent British film quota looms here in the face of disagreement between the British Film Producers Association and the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association. The former has been insisting on continuance of the new 45 per cent quota, while the exhibitors have shown themselves to be equally firm in their demand that a 25 per cent quota be enacted to replace the present law.

CEA maintains that a reduction in the quota is necessary if the shaky British industry is to be able to look to America for product. Sir Alexander King, whom CEA today elected president to succeed Dennis C. Walls, made a powerful plea at this evening's CEA banquet for goodwill between the American and British industries. A. B. Watts, a Cardiff, South Wales, exhibitor and an accountant, was elected CEA vice-president, succeeding Sir Alexander.

Fourteen More Films Reviewed by Legion

Fourteen additional films have been reviewed by the National Legion of Decency with four of them receiving a "B" classification. In that category are SRO's "The Fallen Idol," Film Rights International's "The Idiot," United Artist's "Impact," and Eagle-Lion's "Miranda."

Rated A-I are: Paramount's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," Monogram's "The Feathered Serpent" and "The Law of the West," Eagle-Lion's "Mr. Perrin and Mr. Traill" and "A Place of One's Own," and M-G-M's "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." Rated B-II are Universal-International's "City Across the River," 20th Century-Fox's "I Cheated the Law," Warner Brothers' "Kiss in the Dark," and Columbia's "The Walking Hills."

March 14 5th-Walnut Appeal Hearing Set

Hearing has been scheduled for March 14 in U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here on motions for and against Fifth and Walnut Amusement Co.'s bid for an appeal from a judgment entered last June in favor of major distributors in the Louisville circuit's $2,100,000 triple-damage anti-trust action.

Defendants, which include the "Big Five" and United Artists, Columbia and certain subsidiary companies, have filed briefs with the court opposing the plaintiff's stand that Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell erred in refusing to admit as evidence when the case was heard in U. S. District Court here, certain findings-of-fact and earlier court opinions submitted by Fifth and Walnut.

Serials - as - Features Trial Slated Here

A $650,000 breach-of-contract suit involving the question of whether 10 Columbia serials may be distributed in France as a regular feature is scheduled to be tried in New York Supreme Court here starting on March 14. Justice Felix Benvenga yesterday set the trial date as he denied the plaintiff, American-European Film Industries, a motion for a temporary injunction to restrain defendants Columbia International and Columbia Pictures Societe Anonyme Francaise from interfering with a 1947 distribution deal for the serials.

Plaintiff claims the deal granted the right to distribute the 10 serials as features, while Columbia claims it does not.

"The Green Promise"

(McCarthy Productions—RKO Radio)

TEXAS oilman Glenn McCarthy's first venture into motion picture production results in a country drama of wholesome family appeal. En route to its happy ending the picture has some lively dramatic flourishes, and throughout contains a reliable blending of comedy, sentiment and passing sadness. It seems fated for widest popularity in town and country situations. Merchandising possibilities are abundant.

The cast, headed by Marguerite Chapman, Walter Brennan, Robert Paige and Natalie Wood, goes smoothly through its paces, under the direction of William D. Russell, making the picture as agreeable as the title implies.

The original story and screenplay, fashioned by Monty F. Collins is about a farm family dominated by Brennan, an old-school farmer who resists the techniques of scientific agriculture, as advocated by Paige, a county agent. Thus, when Brennan's daughter, Miss Chapman, falls in love with Paige, tensions become aggravated. At the point when family differences seem widest, a violent storm blows up to lay waste to Brennan's farm. But the silver lining is in Brennan's consequent recognition of the wisdom of modern methods. Along the way, the story throws into interesting dramatic focus the activities of 4-H clubs, members of which set about restoring the ravaged farm in the finale.

Little Miss Wood, as one of four children, bobs mischievously in and out of scenes, playing her role to its precocious hilt. As her elder sister, Miss Chapman is always visually attractive and fills the demands of the romantic angle neatly. Other youngsters who romp about with exuberant talent are Ted Donaldson, Connie Marshall and Robert Ellis. A Glenn McCarthy production, produced by Paige and Collins, it has some photographic effects worthy of special mention.

Running time, 95 minutes. General audience classification. For March release.

MANDEL HERBSTMAN

"Tale of the Navajos"

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

"TALE OF THE NAVAJOS" can best be described as a dramatic travelogue in Technicolor, with story elements and details based on the lore and legends of the Navajo Indians. The film's locale is a sprawling reservation in Arizona, where some splendid natural scenery is caught by the cameras. As theatre material, its appeal is for specialized tastes of which exhibitor experience in individual situations is the best judge.

The story centers on two boys, one white and the other Indian, who go on a journey for the twofold purpose of finding new deposits of mineral needed for the tribe's craft, and to discover new pastures for its flocks. Along the way are unfolded fragments of the beliefs and ways of life of the tribe. Some of the dramatic situations in the picture arise when the boys meet up with a mystic owl, a raven, a coyote and evil spells. Explanations are given, in an off-screen narration by Edwin Jerome. The picture was produced by John A. Haeseler, from a story by himself and Harry Chandlee.

Running time, 58 minutes. General audience classification. For April release.

"The Last Bandit"

(Republic)

EIGHTY minutes of formula Western histrionics and incidents are served here in Trucolor under the guidance of associate producer and director Joseph Kane, a reputable specialist in the field of outdoor action films. An appropriate cast, topped by William Elliott and Adrian Booth, and featuring Forrest Tucker, Andy Devine, Jack Holt, Minna Gombell and Grant Withers, more than adequately purveys the flavor of combat and rivalry embodied in Thames Williamson's screenplay, which was based on a story by Luci Ward and Jack Natteford.

The tried-and-true Western plot involving rival brothers, one upright and honest and the other an unscrupulous villain, is reworked in "The Last Bandit," bolstered by a few relatively fresh twists including the mysterious disappearance of a frontier railroad train. Elliott and Tucker play the good and bad brothers, respectively, and Miss Booth serves as the romantic target of both with Elliott, of course, eventually the successful suitor. Outlaw Tucker and his henchmen rob a train of its cargo of $1,000,000 in gold by secreting the train after its capture in an abandoned mine. Express agent Elliott, however, catches on to the mysterious trick in time to overtake the crooks as they are making away with the treasure in a wagon. Many sequences of gunplay and other forms of fighting as well as some gorgeous Western scenery complete the structural framework of what should be a well-received standard Western.

Running time, 80 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, April 25.

Bingo Bill Dead

ALBANY, N. Y., March 8.—Probability that the Scanlan-Delgiormo Bill removing the criminal penalty clause for Bingo held under the auspices of non-profit organizations is dead for the current legislature is seen in the fact that the Senate version has been returned to the codes committee with an enacting clause stricken out.

NY First-runs Off; 'St. Louis' in Lead

Many New York first-runs are losing considerable ground at box-offices this week with the weather, for the most part mild and bright, apparently having a discouraging effect on theatre-going.

The only particularly bright spot on the "showcase" scene is the Strand where "South of St. Louis," with Desi Arnaz on stage, is expected to reach a peak first-week's gross of $65,000. Show opened at a record pace on Sunday, chalking up about $13,500 for the day.

Good, but not overwhelming, is "Three Godfathers" which, with Sammy Kaye and Harvey Stone on stage, probably will provide the Capitol with $70,000 in its first week. The third newcomer, "Moonrise," is fair enough with an estimated $17,500 in an initial week at the Globe.

"Little Women" will have its debut at the Music Hall tomorrow, replacing "Family Honeymoon" which, with a stage presentation, figures to wind up a second week with $113,500, which is rather slow. "The Fighting O'Flynn" probably will gross only $13,000 at the Criterion in its final six days (second week) and will be succeeded on Friday by "Criss Cross."

New Paramount Show

"Alias Nick Beal" is the Paramount's tenant today, after "Whispering Smith," with Henny Youngman, Buddy Rich and Mel Torme slipped to $50,000 in its third week. At the Astor, "Knock on Any Door" is doing good with $29,000 expected in a second week after grossing a substantial $40,000 in the first.

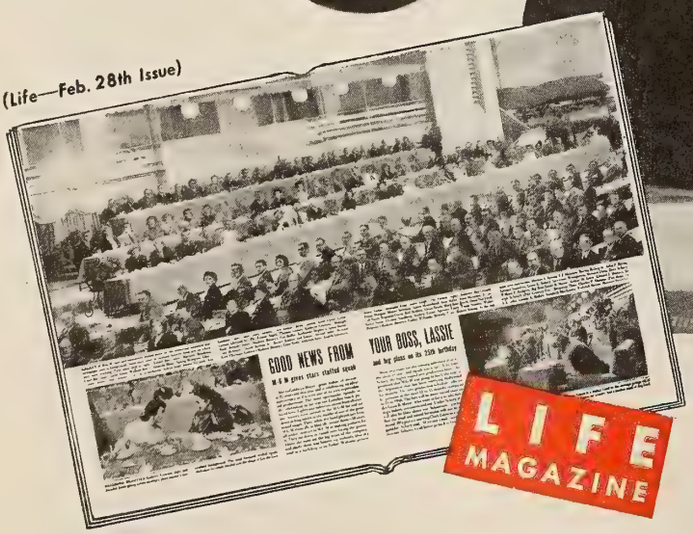
Much of the fire has gone out of "Command Decision" after seven weeks at the State. The seventh week's figure of $14,000 is not too disappointing though in view of the length of the run. "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" will bow in at the State today. "Red Pony" opened at the Mayfair yesterday following "Return of October," which grossed a very modest $14,000 in its second week.

'Joan' Still Strong

"Joan of Arc" is still strong at the Victoria where the 17th week's take should reach $17,000. "Down to the Sea in Ships," at the Roxy, with Rudy Vallee, Morey Amsterdam and the ice revue on stage is down to an estimated $55,000, in a second and final week. The Roxy's next will be "Mother Was a Freshman," opening on Friday with Cab Calloway and Phil Baker in person.

"Red Shoes," in a 21st week at the Bijou, and "Hamlet," in a 23rd week at the Park, are good for about $14,500 each. "Snake Pit" is holding up well at the Rivoli with $16,500 in view for the 18th week. "Portrait of Jennie" is due at the Rivoli on March 22.

Launch Ad Campaign For 'Africa Screams'



A national campaign, with $200,000 allotted to newspaper, magazine, radio and trade advertising, has been initiated by Nassour Studios to promote their production, "Africa Screams," starring Abbott and Costello.

The William Kester agency will handle the campaign, with Walter Blake as account executive. United Artists will release.

"Canadian Pacific"

(Nat Holt Productions—20th-Fox) Hollywood, March 8

PRODUCED independently on the scene of the story and with complete cooperation of the railroad of the same name, this Nat Holt production in Cinecolor proffers entertainment in the "Iron Horse" and "Union Pacific" tradition ornamented with the exploitable presence of Randolph Scott, Jane Wyatt, J. Carrol Naish, Victor Jory, Robert Barrat and Nancy Olson atop a large cast. The story, by Jack DeWitt, scripted by himself and Kenneth Gamet, is about the building of the Canadian Pacific through a pass in the Canadian Rockies, and of the people concerned in the tribulations which complicated that project, but the personal conflicts are as varied and violent as are to be found in purely fictitious films in kind.

The names, the circumstances of setting, and most especially the dazzlingly beautiful scenery backgrounding the action, are the elements to be stressed in exploitation. And in view of the fact that few railroad stories have been produced in the long history of the screen, all of them with box-office success, there is point in emphasizing the authenticity of the undertaking.

Scott portrays a two-fisted surveyor assigned to find a pass through the Rockies, and Jory enacts the unprincipled operator of a chain of trading posts who, to protect his trade from damage he believes the railroad will bring to it, plots Scott's and the railroad's destruction. His plotting includes everything from murder by ambush to wholesale slaughter by way of the incitement of Indian tribes to attack the railroad personnel. Jane Wyatt is seen as a railroad doctor and Miss Olson as a settler's daughter, both in love with Scott, who appears no more decided about choosing between them than the audience is until the last minute of the picture. The narrative, in common with others based on inflexible fact, tugs and strains at the leash in spots, and some of the characterizations are made to seem one-dimensional, but a wealth of action offsets these circumstances in most instances.

Harry Howard functioned as associate producer, with Lewis J. Rachmil in charge of production. Edwin L. Marin directed. Music written and directed by the gifted Dimitri Tiomkin fits the picture like a glove.

Running time, 90 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

WILLIAM R. WEAVER

"Homicide"

(Warner Brothers) Hollywood, March 8

UNWORN story utensils—a sunken cable used by bookies, a diabetic killer's dependence upon his insulin supply—impart novelty to this melodrama predicated on the contention that many a death written off as a suicide is in fact a murder. Robert Douglas, Helen Westcott, Robert Alda, Monte Blue, Warren Douglas, Richard Benedict, John Harmon, James Flavin, Cliff Clark, Esther Howard and Sarah Padden are the names available for billing. Produced by Saul Elkins and directed by Felix Jacobes, from a script by William Sackheim, the attraction measures up to the average established by Elkins in his contributions to the Warner schedule of releases.

Robert Douglas plays a Los Angeles detective unwilling to settle for the official pronouncement that an unemployed ex-sailor, found dead in a hotel room, committed suicide. Obtaining leave of absence in order to follow up his theory that a murder has been committed, he follows a thin lead—an insulin pill and a booklet of matches found in an adjoining room—to a resort where he meets Miss Westcott, a cigarette girl, who assists him in tracing the murder of the ex-sailor to the resort's diabetic bartender.

Undertaking to bring the killer to Los Angeles, the detective is temporarily outwitted by the latter, who prepares to slay him, but gains control of the situation by pointing out that he has thrown away the car keys and the killer cannot walk back to town in time to prevent his own death from lack of the insulin available to him there. A secondary phase of the story shows that not only the ex-sailor's supposed suicide, but also that of a dead man whose inquest he had testified under duress, was in fact a murder.

Running time, 77 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

INDIANAPOLIS

First-run business is running the gamut here this week. Three leading attractions, however, are doing better than average. Interest in the second round of the state high school basketball tournament and weather varying between winter and spring are factors. Estimated receipts for the week ending March 8-9:

ALASKA PATROL (FC)—CIRCLE (2,800) (60c-90c) With Frankie Carl's band on stage. Gross: $24,000. (Average: $18,000)
LET'S LIVE A LITTLE (E-L) and PAROLE, INC. (E-L)—LYRIC (1,600) (44c-65c). Gross: $5,000. (Average: $6,000)
THE SUN COMES UP (M-G-M) and HIGH FURY (UA)—LOEW'S (2,450) (44c-65c). Gross: $12,000. (Average: $11,000)
WAKE OF THE RED WITCH (Rep.)—INDIANA (3,200) (44c-65c). Gross: $12,800. (Average: $12,000)
YELLOW SKY (20th-Fox) and MISS MINK OF 1949 (20th-Fox)—KEITH'S (1,300) (44c-65c). On a moveover from the Indiana. Gross: $4,000. (Average: $4,500)

Murphy Here Mar. 17

Audie Murphy, most decorated hero of World War II and star of "Bad Boy," will arrive here March 17 to make a personal appearance at the Variety Club all-star benefit to be held at the RKO Palace March 22 with a special showing of the Allied Artists picture.

Halliday to Indianapolis

ALBANY, N. Y., March 8.—Robert Halliday, Warner booker here, has been promoted to head booker and office manager for Warner at Indianapolis.

Para. Club to Stage Show

An "Old Time Minstrel" show will be staged by members of the Paramount Pictures Club here on Friday evening at the Henry Hudson Hotel, George W. Harvey, president, announces.

Propose Another Unique Tax Slash

Washington, March 8.—Still another new wrinkle in bills to reduce the Federal 20 per cent admission tax—and to the minds of many, the best yet—has been introduced in the House by Rep. Keating, New York Republican.

His measure would eliminate the tax entirely on admissions of less than $1 and cut it back to the pre-war 10 per cent on admissions over $1.

Coast Production Jumps 5, to 26

HOLLYWOOD, March 8.—The number of pictures in production has leaped upward to 26, from 21. Six started and one was completed.

Production started on "Not Wanted" (Film Classics-Emerald); "Red Danube," M-G-M; "Joe Palooka in the Return Bout," Monogram; "Outcasts of the Trail," Republic; "Red Light," U.A.; "Sword in the Desert," U-I. The one production completed was "House of Strangers," 20th-Fox.

Holokan and Wetzel Open Supply Branch

CINCINNATI, March 8.—John Holokan and J. L. Wetzel have opened a local branch of the Theatre Equipment Co. A. Boudouris also is interested in the venture, which will market theatre and drive-in equipment, drink dispensers and similar items. Holokan and Wetzel also conduct a buying and booking service here, operating under the title of Globe Theatre Service.

Loew Int'l Consolidates

Loew International's publicity-advertising department, which has been housed for the past three and one-half years in the Capitol Theatre Building here, is now back at the home office in the Loew Building. Also returning to the home office is the narrated and titled films department, which had been located in the Mayfair Theatre Building. Both departments had been forced to move from the home office during Loew International's expansion, immediately following the war. Space necessary for their return was provided when station WMGM recently moved to new quarters.

Sugarman in New Post

Elias E. Sugarman has joined Furman, Feiner and Co., Inc., as assistant to president Norman B. Furman, and in addition he will supervise television activities of the organization. Sugarman has been for 20 years in executive capacities in advertising, publications, amusements and the handling of talent. For 12 years he was editor of Billboard.

Objects to Ticket Bill

ALBANY, N. Y., March 8.—Orrin Judd, attorney representing the Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatre Association, has filed a memorandum objecting to the McGowan bill in the state legislature which would require "partial or obstructed" to be printed on all tickets sold for reserved seats without a full view.

U. S. Cool to TOA's Bid on Arbitration

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Theatre Owners of America will have a very tough time trying to convince the Justice Department to summon an all-industry conference on arbitration.

While Justice Department officials are reluctant to be quoted on the matter, the consensus obviously was "our job is not to run the motion picture business."

One top official said he doubted "that we can or should, but that does not mean we might not wind up doing it."

Another official said that "we're busy enough trying to work out a judgment in the case without getting involved in schemes to work out an arbitration plan. Our only position is that the distributors should work out arbitration with those who are going to have to abide by it—the exhibitors."

When the TOA executives meet they will set a date for a board of directors meeting which will assay a proposal for an all-industry parley on a possible arbitration plan.

TOA, Shorts Rentals

stipulated $1 per picture up to at least $5. Sullivan indicated that he foresees a possibility of higher rentals from large houses, with ability-to-pay perhaps serving as a guiding factor.

Having received a "resume negotiations" recommendation from some 24 TOA directors, Sullivan will seek further conferences with the distributors' committee, headed by RKO Radio vice-president Robert Mochrie. The TOA executive director indicated that he is looking forward to meeting with the distributors' group again, either this week or early next.

The committee, which includes also distribution chiefs William A. Scully, Andy W. Smith, Jr., and A. Montague, last month gave Sullivan distribution's argument against the TOA bid for low rentals. The committee cited the high cost of producing the series. TOA has contended that production costs were permitted to run too high. Meanwhile, RKO Radio is still holding "Let's Go to the Movies," first of the series from release. The series is sponsored by the Motion Picture Association of America.

'Pride of Yankees' To Bow in Florida

The reissue of the Samuel Goldwyn production, "Pride of the Yankees," will have its first showing at the Florida Theatre, St. Petersburg, site of the New York Yankees' training camp, on Sunday. Team members will attend the opening after playing their first exhibition game of the season. The picture is scheduled to open thereafter in all theatres of the Paramount Florida circuit.

Opening of the picture in New York is being planned for the start of the major league baseball season here on April 13, but booking arrangements have not been completed yet.

Levine Gets 'Wench'

BOSTON, March 8.—National distribution rights to "The Wench" has been acquired by Joseph E. Levine of Embassy Pictures from Spalter International Pictures.

today, followed by 14 subsequent bookings. Although not identified, it is believed the initial three are key houses after first-run in the Milwaukee area.

Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, through a home-office spokesman, acknowledged that he was aware of the clash between UA and the circuit, but referred inquiries to Alfred W. Schwalberg, Paramount sales chief, who left the Coast by plane for New York and was unavailable for comment.

Executives of National Theatres, of which Fox Wisconsin is an affiliate, were not available here yesterday for comment. Harold J. Fitzgerald is president and general manager of the Wisconsin group.

Sears' full statement follows:

"The booking of 'Red River' and 'Paleface' on the same bill in Milwaukee is, in my mind, the most flagrant, dangerous and downright stupid abuse of exhibitor power in my recollection. To chew up top product and spit it out like so many melon seeds is sabotaging our industry. This kind of thinking is precisely what is wrong with the motion picture business.

"Mr. Balaban naturally can sell his pictures as he chooses, but I for one will not tolerate 'Red River' being ruined in any territory by being double billed with the season's other big picture.

"The exhibitor's threats of a freeze-out, direct and implied, do not deter me for one moment from this decision. I shall refuse to service this booking under any circumstances. Every producer, distributor and every fair-minded exhibitor will recognize the justice of my position."

tained a 10-day extension of the option and no further extension is provided for in her agreement with Chaplin, even in the event that serious negotiations are opened in the next few days and are in progress on Saturday.

On the transferral of the option to Chaplin, he will have 30 days in which to consummate a deal for Miss Pickford's half interest in U. A., with the right to a 10-day extension in the event negotiations are in progress but not concluded at the end of the initial period. Reportedly, when the option passes to Chaplin, his UA interest, as well as Miss Pickford's will be offered to prospective purchasers, in contrast to Miss Pickford's wish to retain a partnership interest in the company.

Up to this point, it is learned, prospective bidders for the UA stock have found the asking price too high.

West Coast Operator Files Trust Suit

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—The Markoy Corp., operating the Crown Theatre, Pasadena, filed an anti-trust suit in Federal court here against seven distributors, three circuits and three individuals, asking treble damages amounting to $1,050,000 for an alleged conspiracy to stifle competition by refusing the Crown first-run status.

The companies are 20th Century-Fox, RKO, Paramount, Universal, Eagle-Lion and Selznick Releasing Organization. Circuits are National Theatres, Fox West Coast and United Artists Theatres.

Industry Ranks 3rd In Television Field

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The motion picture industry ranks third, behind newspaper publishers and radio broadcasters, in an industry breakdown of firms owning or applying for television stations, the Federal Communications Commission revealed here.

As of Dec. 31, 1948, Motion picture companies had licenses, construction permits or applications pending for 27 stations, 6.6 per cent of the total stations authorized or applied for. Newspaper publishers accounted for 128, or 31.3 per cent and broadcasters for 66 or 16.1 per cent. Radio manufacturers, oil producers, real estate firms, educational institutions, and other groups trailed the film industry total.

Film industry firms and individuals in or trying to get into the television field include Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, Warner, Lufkin Amusement Co. of Beaumont, Tex., Van Curler Broadcasting Corp. (Si Fabian), Patroon Broadcasting Co. (Schine), and producer Edward Lasker.

intended to replace the motion picture theatre," Gold asserted, adding that the kind of film made for theatrical distribution is not the kind of entertainment for television. He said that technique for television "must be a television technique."

At current costs, he said, it can be proved that good films are available for video at lower prices than "many inferior 'live' shows." He predicted that if the "film production trend continues towards films produced expressly for television, ultimately top film shows will cost less than top 'live' shows."

Gold disclosed that the standard exhibition contract formulated by the National Television Film Council will be in final shape and ready for general acceptance by the television industry before the end of this month.

Frank Schreiber, head of station WGN, addressing some 400 delegates at the convention at the Palmer House, said that the motion picture industry has been hiding its head in the sands of Hollywood up to now. He said that "rather than cooperate with television, the film people have trembled with a kind of adolescent fear." Pointing out that "cooperation is more practical than hibernation," Schreiber declared "I hope that some day soon film executives will see television in its true perspective and realize the great benefits this new industry holds for them." "Because of its direct effect on operating costs," he said, "unionization in television will challenge our best thinking."

Adams to ABC Video

Adding to both its radio and television sales staffs, American Broadcasting announces that Wylie Adams, formerly account executive in charge of commercial network expansion has been transferred to ABC's television sales staff and Richard Hogue has joined the network to assume the duties formerly handled by Adams.

junction" of these arts and sciences, including both theatre presentation of television programs and the production of films for use as television program material, will be covered by technical reports, forum discussions, and demonstrations at the meetings, on April 4 and 5 in New York's Hotel Statler (formerly the Pennsylvania).

Reporting highlights of the sessions, Earl I. Sponable, president of the Society, also stressed that "vital developments" in other technical and scientific phases of the motion picture industry will be reported and discussed during the final three days of the convention. These include significant advances in high-speed photography, which will be dealt with in an all-day symposium on Wednesday, April 6, professional applications of 16mm. film and equipment, sound equipment, projection light sources, color printing and magnetic recording.

Opening the convention will be a forum on television and films, with Donald E. Hyndman as moderator and Ralph B. Austrian as chairman.

Surveys indicating that television will have "a forceful impact" on informal mass education, as well as indications of its probable effect on film-going and radio-listening, will be discussed by William F. Kruse of Kruse Associates.

TOA-SMPE Theatre Video Talks Loom

Efforts reportedly will be made by Theatre Owners of America executives to hold the next TOA executive committee meeting here on or about April 4 to enable a TOA executive group to confer on theatre television developments with representatives of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, which will hold its 65th semi-annual convention at the Hotel Statler here, April 4-8. Much of the SMPE convention will be devoted to theatre television, a subject in which TOA has expressed interest.

Balaban added that current enthusiasm for fine films is evident and "is cause for genuine optimism."

Zukor Says Divorcement Benefits New Pictures Company

HOLLYWOOD, March 8.—Declaring divorcement will be highly beneficial to the new production-distribution organization, Paramount board chairman Adolph Zukor, upon leaving here today for Tucson, said "the new company will be in a position to book films in the theatres most suitable for the exhibition of particular pictures, and at the same time to sell on the best possible terms. I am sure that our pictures stand to gain by this arrangement, especially when they have the strong drawing power we have seen in our new productions."

"Each of these pictures is able to stand on its own merits in the open market and is important enough to be sold individually as a quality feature," he said.

Al Schwalberg advertising-publicity head, and other Paramount executives from New York, left here tonight by plane for the home office.

U.K. Quota

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison was honor guest at the banquet.

Beginning with praise for the statesmanship which brought about the Wilson-Johnston pact and an end to the confiscatory 75 per cent British ad valorem film tax, Sir Alexander told the banquet gathering that all that was accomplished was subsequently catastrophically wrecked by the "excessive, unreasonable, unnecessary" 45 per cent quota. He charged that Britain's producers have defaulted on their own production promises which, Sir Alexander added, took the government for a ride and deluded its ministers into imposing a reckless quota.

"If (Britain's) producers could write as good scripts as alibis," Sir Alexander observed, "they'd be geniuses." Instead of friendship, the British producers foment hostility, he added, asserting that it was their vain pledges which led to relations with America that never have been more strained. Good films, regardless of nationality, entertain wherever they are shown, Sir Alexander held.

He called upon Britain's producers to cease sacrificing quality for quantity, and urged that the bickering conflict with America's industry stop. People cannot be legislated into the cinema; they can only be attracted, the new CEA president warned.

Encouragement of Americans to make pictures here was demanded by Sir Alexander. He urged the British industry to drop politics and hurry back "to where we belong, namely, in the show business."

Declining to enter into a discussion of the British film industry crisis, Morrison in his address issued a vague warning that the industry here will prosper only if all sections plan their affairs with the sober, responsible resolve not to waste manpower or money.

Odeon and Gaumont Dividends Are Cut

LONDON, March 8.—Odeon Theatres, Ltd., has declared a three and three-quarter per cent interim dividend for the year ending next June 25, against a seven and one-half per cent dividend last year.

Gaumont British has declared a one and one-quarter per cent interim dividend on its ordinary stock for the year ending on the same date, against a two and one-half per cent payment for the 15 months ending on June 26, 1948.

Rank to Be Guest of Young at Palm Beach

J. Arthur Rank will begin a vacation at Palm Beach, Fla., shortly after his arrival here from London on March 23. In Palm Beach he will be the house guest of Robert R. Young, head of Pathe Industries and Eagle-Lion. Rank also plans a visit to the West Coast before going to Washington for the scheduled meeting of the Anglo-U. S. Films Council on April 21.

Release Comedies

Laurel and Hardy one-reel comedies will be released in April for the first time in 8mm. and 16mm. sound films, Library Films announced.

Reviews

"Joe Palooka in the Big Fight"

(Monogram) Hollywood, March 8

THIS latest of the Joe Palooka series, produced by Hal E. Chester, rates rather as straight stuff, actionful, suspenseful and generally stimulating. There is fighting of both kinds, in ring style and "for keeps." The performances of Joe Kirkwood and Leon Errol as fighter and manager maintain the high standard which these players have established in those roles. It should account for itself on even terms with earlier offerings in the series.

This time, in Stanley Prager's screenplay, Joe gets knocked down by a sparring partner who thereupon starts a heckling campaign designed to promote himself a match with Joe for the championship. Greg McClure, the sparring partner, is in the employ of crooks headed by Taylor Holmes, and it is part of their plot to get Joe framed for a killing he did not commit. There is a fast accumulation of complications after this, winding up in a free-for-all which terminates in the exposure and apprehension of the gangsters.

Cyril Endfield directed skillfully, Bernard Burton was associate producer.

Running time, 66 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

"The Walking Hills"

(Columbia) Hollywood, March 8

RANDOLPH SCOTT and Ella Raines are the names available for marquee purposes, and their bearers wear them well, but the items that set this Western melodrama distinctly apart from the procession of basically similar stories recent placed in distribution are the terrific sandstorm in the closing sequences and the folk-singing of Josh White in the early and middle stretches. The storm is tremendously realistic and sweeps the narrative to a convincing finale. The Josh White solos, performed to his own guitar accompaniment, may be charged by the tone-deaf with slowing up the action but will be relished no end by the music-conscious majority. In the over-all count, the picture appears certain to command snug grosses. The fact that it was filmed in Death Valley may prove a profitably mentionable detail.

The script, by Alan LeMay, relates in surprisingly clear manner the story of 11 men and a girl who arrive at a desert spot where a gold-laden wagon train is said to have been lost beneath the rolling sand dunes (walking hills) a century before, and of the cross purposes which they subordinate to the common purpose of digging out the treasures. Scott and Bishop are former sweethearts of Miss Raines, John Ireland is a detective tracking down Bishop but willing to forget that fact in the interests of their quest, and Edward Buchanan is the one among them who knows the desert and its ways. Clashes occur in mounting severity as the digging drags on, and killings take place before and during the storm which brings events to a proper conclusion, which includes, in this instance, the finding of the gold.

Production by Harry Joe Brown makes excellent use of the Death Valley terrain as both setting and arch-villain, and direction by John Sturges averts the drag so often flawing pictures shot in the desert.

Running time, 75 minutes. General audience classification. For March release.

"Bomba, The Jungle Boy"

(Monogram) Hollywood, March 8

PRODUCED by Walter Mirisch, this first in a series of jungle adventure films is family entertainment in the full sense of the term, a straight story about a white boy grown to adolescence in the jungle and the things that happen to him, and to them, when members of a photographing expedition enter his world. The film is, in kind and in the scope of its appeal, an exemplification of Monogram president Steve Broidy's recent declaration of intent to swing studio production policy away from the lurid type of melodrama which community and club groups have been protesting and toward the family type of entertainment which they have been saying they want instead. It is an admirable film for purposes of testing the validity of those club and community declarations of preference, and rates exploitation pointed directly toward those quarters.

Directed with skill and understanding by Ford Beebe, the script by Jack DeWitt, based on Roy Rockwood's story of the same name, takes Onslow Stevens, a magazine photographer, and his daughter, Peggy Ann Garner, into the African jungle, where Miss Garner runs away from the expedition, following an incident in which Johnny Sheffield, a white boy living in wild state, and happily, with his animal companions, slays a leopard which has attacked the party. Sheffield gives her shelter and attempts to notify her father of her whereabouts, but is shot by the father and, in consequence, refuses to return her to the camp. A series of ensuing adventures, in which a wide variety of excellently photographed jungle animals figure, culminates in the return of the party to civilization and the jungle boy's decision to remain in his own environment. The attraction merits pin-point exploitation addressed especially to the family unit.

Running time, 71 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, not set.

The British Treasury was consulted throughout the negotiations, Monogram reports. The films to be made under the deal will be produced in "fullest cooperation between the three parties. American and British stars will be used, production and technical personnel will be drawn from both sides of the Atlantic, and the scripts will be written with an eye to international appeal."

"Besides its large share in the production of the pictures, Monogram will distribute them throughout the Western Hemisphere. The films will be handled in exactly the same way as the Allied Artists product," it was stated.

The first two pictures are now being prepared both in Hollywood and London, and actual filming, it is planned, will begin on the first picture in July of this year.

Cash dividends declared in 1948 were at the same rate as in 1947, $1.60 per common share, for a total of $19,808,104. Preferred dividends at six per cent totaled $369,942. Together these amounted to $20,178,046.

Payrolls totaled $159,700,000 in 1948, compared to $141,100,000 in 1947.

Rose - Montgomery Plan Film in Britain

LONDON, March 8.—David Rose, former Paramount managing director here, says he plans to produce in Britain a $1,000,000 picture which will star and be directed by Robert Montgomery. Title of the picture was not disclosed.

It will be the first of several he plans here, Rose said. While it will be made from an American script, Rose hopes that it will qualify for the British quota.

Weather Hit Business At Key-City Runs

$14,632 Weekly Average; 'Joan' Is Top Grosser

Heavy snows, ice storms and sub-zero weather in many sections of the country hampered theatre business last month with the result that grosses were well below those recorded for the previous month, according to reports on some 175 key theatres received from MOTION PICTURE DAILY field correspondents.

Average weekly income for February dropped to $14,632 from the exceptional high of $16,544 of January. Weekly average per theatre for February last year was $15,560.

Away out front last month as the leading grosser went "Joan of Arc," while "The Snake Pit," one of the two which tied for first place in January, fell back to second position. "Command Decision," despite its entry into general distribution as late as the last week of February, took third place by virtue of its immediate

Baltimore Honors William K. Saxton

BALTIMORE, March 9.—Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, Jr., headed more than 100 civic, political, business, theatre and film men attending a dinner last night in the Park Plaza Hotel at a testimonial to William K. Saxton, on completion of 20 years as a Baltimore showman. Saxton, former vaudevillian, has retired as city manager of Loew's Baltimore theatres.

Arrangements were handled by the Mayor's committee, headed by Jack Sidney, Loew's publicity director here.

'U' Will Make 30 This Year

WILMINGTON, Del., March 9.—Universal has scheduled 30 pictures for production this year, compared with 24 last year, Charles D. Prutzman, vice-president and general counsel, told the company's annual meeting of stockholders here today.

All directors of the company were re-elected at the meeting. They are: Robert S. Benjamin, Nate J. Blumberg, Paul G. Brown, J. Cheever Cowdin, Preston Davie, Matthew Fox, William J. German, John J. O'Connor, Ottavio Prochet, Prutzman, J. Arthur Rank, Budd Rogers, Daniel M. Shaeffer and G. I. Woodham-Smith. Prutzman presided at the meeting. He expressed confidence in the company's current outlook.

The meeting voted down three resolutions presented by minority stockholders Lewis D. and John J. Gilbert, both of New York, calling for each director to be required to own at least 100 shares of either class stock; calling for post-meeting reports to stockholders on discussions and balloting, and stockholder election of auditors.

Pickford, Sears and Kelly to Hollywood

Mary Pickford, co-owner of United Artists, left here yesterday for the Coast after a month's visit here. UA president Gradwell L. Sears is now en route west, and Arthur W. Kelly, executive vice-president, will leave for Hollywood at the weekend.

During her stay Miss Pickford had engaged in conversations relative to the possible sale of her partner's, Charles Chaplin's, 50 per cent interest in the company, option on which she has held, but which expires at the weekend. Miss Pickford received no positive offer for the stock, it is understood, and the option will revert to Chaplin.

Selznick To Be Here For 'Jennie' Premiere

Additionally, Variety will have first floor offices at the Astor.

WeitmanTakesOver Netter's Para. Post

Robert M. Weitman, vice-president of Paramount Theatres Service Corp., will replace Leon D. Netter as head of Paramount theatres in the South with Netter, as previously reported, in turn named general manager and executive vice-president of Florida State Theatres with full charge of all Paramount theatres in Florida, it was announced here yesterday by Leonard Goldenson, head of Paramount Theatres Service.

Weitman is to be a top national official of the new United Paramount Theatres which is to be formed with Goldenson as president.

Netter will replace Frank Rogers as head of the Florida affiliate; he has been ill. Upon complete recovery, Rogers and Netter together will be in charge of the Florida circuit. Netter had been in charge of all Paramount partnership interests in the South, and in addition, supervised Paramount theatres in New York City, Brooklyn and Philadelphia.

Weitman's new duties, in addition to representing Paramount in connection with its theatre interests in the South, will supervise Philadelphia houses and continue to direct supervision of the New York and Brooklyn Paramount Theatres.

Johnston is scheduled to speak before the Economic Club of New York today and will leave for Washington tomorrow evening.

Atlas Gained $17-Million on RKO Holdings

14-Year Annual Average Returns Exceeded 20%

Atlas Corporation's total profits on its long-term investments in Radio-Keith-Orpheum over the full 14-year period of the holdings amounted to more than $17,000,000, Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas, disclosed in the holding company's 1948 annual report issued yesterday. The total was an average return of more than 20 per cent per year on the average annual amount invested in RKO. Atlas still owns 317,812 RKO option warrants.

The remaining holdings of Atlas in RKO, consisting of approximately 24 per cent of the common stock, were sold during 1948 to Howard Hughes.

At Dec. 31, 1948, Atlas had a capital and capital surplus of almost $31,000,000, an earned surplus of more than $19,000,000, and an unrealized

Censorship Threat Critical in Jersey

NEWARK, March 9.—The threat of municipal film censorship in New Jersey is as great at present as it was when the bill to empower local police to act against morally-objectionable pictures was introduced in the state legislature several weeks ago. This was the report of George Gold, legislative chairman of Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey, to a membership meeting in the Newark Athletic Club today.

Gold indicated that an "all-out"

Insider's Outlook

By RED KANN

STATISTICS are flying all over the place these days. Eric Johnston is giving out with them in an effort to stem the impression of celluloid doom which the public, in part anyway, entertains about the industry. The irrepressible George Gallup continues at it and the redoubtable Elmo Roper, too, although one would think their performance in the national elections might put a cautionary brake on their assurance and positiveness.

Because there is so much guesswork and generality in a field lamentably lacking in marketing research, anything authentic becomes interesting to hop on although it can turn out to be disproportionately important.

As a case in point, there are those widely-accepted statistics on admission prices. It is to be doubted seriously if anyone can prove what he claims, but probably not to be doubted on the other hand is the feasibility of any challenge.

Someone might even get around to a challenge of what follows. These are figures whipped up from the RKO proxy statement and deal with that circuit's price averages over a five year and nine month span, plus a projected figure for 1948. Our mathematical fury shows this:

Year	Average in Cents
1943	41.35
1944	45.36
1945	45.68
1946	49.58
1947	52.37
1948 (9 months)	50.52
1948 (projected)	51.77

The RKO circuit, essentially, is a big-town affair with its predominant strength in Greater New York, of course. Moreover, most of its theatres are large, ranging from the 3,250-seat Albee in Brooklyn to the 540-seat Orpheum in Marshalltown, Ia., and are situated in cities with a high percentage of population density.

Nevertheless, these averages bear an obvious resemblance to whatever the actual and authentic national average might be, and which we do not know. But perhaps they are interesting chiefly because they represent the first, or one of the first, breakdowns of its kind and because RKO's theatre business is quite an enterprise. In the five years and nine months covered, it was a business which clocked off 495,516,689 in paid admissions and $234,902,640 in box-office receipts. The peak year, of course, was 1946, when 94,137,204 paid admissions piled up a $46,673,540 gross.

Imagine the gross income of the Paramount theatre empire in the identical period!

Now that "The Red Shoes" is well on its way toward one of the highest takes of any British film to play this market, Bill Heineman may sit back and wiggle a friendly remonstrating finger at a number of experts in and out of Eagle-Lion. When the film arrived, it was screened for a number of top figures in production, distribution and exhibition on both coasts. The principal reaction was that here was a beautiful picture—which unquestionably it is—that would not draw a dime. But, if it did, the dimes would have to come from so-called art theatre runs.

It is of record that Heineman thought otherwise, argued and persuaded his way into a straight commercial distribution policy and now finds his analysis to be correct. For "The Red Shoes" is earning dollars, not dimes, and a lot of them. At the close of its 20th week at the Bijou, New York E-L's share was $137,000, after advertising, and tickets for the 40th week were on sale. The two-a-day policy at $2.40 top prevails wherever the film has played, including 11 weeks in Philadelphia, 22 in Washington, 10 in Baltimore, 15 in Boston, 10 in Los Angeles, and 11 in Chicago, Cleveland and Miami thus far.

E-L talks about a $2,500,000 national gross. Whether it hits this or not, it is already established that the attraction is the company's most successful film to date and probably No. 1 on its 1949 parade.

Whisper from the corridors at Paramount: That Barney Balaban will be spending much of his time in Hollywood after the new production-distribution company is set up.

Italy Will Not Curtail Imports

Rome, March 9.—Minister Andreotti, in charge of entertainment, appearing before Parliament, reaffirmed the government's position for the free importation of films and against any quota, permitting the public to select either native or foreign productions.

MPA Negotiates for Release of Lire

The Motion Picture Association of America said here yesterday it is negotiating with the North American College for the exchange of blocked Italian lire for "around $1,000,000" which would be paid to film companies here.

The statement was made to correct published reports that the industry has arranged with the Roman Catholic Church for the release of $3,000,000 of impounded lire in Italy.

"The North American College, a Maryland corporation supported by American funds, desires to expand its facilities in Rome for the training of priests," the MPAA statement said. "Any transaction concluded would have to have the approval of the Italian government."

"At no time has the Vatican or the Archdiocese of New York been involved in the negotiations," the MPAA stated, correcting other phases of the published reports.

1st 'Joan' Opening In Europe April 8

LONDON, March 9.—London will be the first city in Europe to present Sierra Pictures' "Joan of Arc," it is announced by Robert Wolff, managing director of RKO in the United Kingdom, the British premiere taking place on April 8 at the London Pavilion.

The opening, to be attended by members of the Royal Family, will be for the benefit of the George V Fund for Sailors. Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Kent, will occupy the Royal Box. Presiding over this charity affair will be Mrs. Clement Attlee.

IRE Meet Hears New Video Developments

Use of a newly-developed method of extending television coverage by reducing interference between stations on the same channel is underway on a full time basis between the New York and Washington television stations of National Broadcasting Co. and between NBC stations in Cleveland and Detroit, it was disclosed here yesterday at the Institute of Radio Engineers convention at the Hotel Commodore.

The new method, known as television synchronization, was described by Ray D. Kell, head of the television section of RCA Laboratories. Kell said the effect of these operations has been to extend interference-free service to thousands of additional viewers in the "fringe" areas.

Another development reported was a new television antenna which will receive signals from only one direction at a time and, it is said, will improve reception of set owners in fringe areas which lie between stations on the same channel. This was reported by O. M. Woodward, Jr., research engineer of RCA Laboratories.

Films Are Best for Television: Roach

CHICAGO, March 9.—Hal Roach, president of the Film Television Producers Association, and Hollywood producer, today told delegates attending the first annual National Television Conference that Hollywood-produced films have considerable advantage over "live" shows on television.

"Hollywood has at its command the facilities and years of experience in all departments for turning out better productions on film than those produced in New York," Roach said. He stressed that Hollywood is enthusiastic about video, but is cautiously studying the medium before it participates completely.

Plan Ads for Those Who Share Patronage

Lynn Farnol, Eastern advertising-publicity manager of Samuel Goldwyn Prod., and Monroe Greenthal, advertising agency head, have developed a series of small underline ads designed for distribution locally by theatres to businesses which benefit from theatre attendance.

Theory of the advertising is that a theatre customer is a diner-out, a shopper, a transportation-user, a purchaser of newspapers, periodicals and numerous other things. The small ads, such as "Don't Miss the Latest Movies When You're in Town!" are to be offered for insertion or display in the enterprises benefiting from theatre attendance.

BOSTON, March 9. — Legislative hearings on House Bill No. 371 and Bill No. 1035, both intended to provide a state censor board, have been postponed to April 4.

Reviews

"Jigsaw"

(Tower Productions—United Artists)

WITHIN the framework of a murder melodrama, a dramatic preachment against racial bigotry is given in "Jigsaw," produced in New York by the Danziger brothers—Eddward J. and Harry. The film stirs up moments of brisk excitement and good suspense, but as a detective story, it may leave some questions unanswered for armchair sleuths. Franchot Tone is the top marquee name, with others in the cast including Jean Wallace, Myron McCormick and Marc Lawrence. Besides these, surprise appearances are made by a number of stars, including John Garfield, Henry Fonda, Burgess Meredith, Marlene Dietrich and Fletcher Markle, who directed the film for Tower Productions.

The story: a printer owning a small shop printing racial hate leaflets is murdered. A crusading columnist who was on the trail of the hate mongers, is also murdered. Tone is appointed as special prosecutor to probe the murders and he finds a hate group, never identified, as being behind the crimes. His investigations take him to a small-time ward-heeler, a swanky New York night club, a cocktail party attended by persons who believe in the "superior" race, and a socialite who is the brain behind the entire group.

The criminals are finally tracked down at an art gallery, and by the time the shooting is over, the scene, as one of the detectives observes in the film, is like the final curtain of "Hamlet," with bodies all over the place.

Tone's portrayal of the prosecutor is taken slowly and is effective, and the role of the columnist, played by McCormick, is also done in an easy-going manner. Lawrence as the ward-heeler, Winifred Lenihan as the socialite, and Miss Wallace, Betty Harper and the others make the most of their parts.

Running time, 71 minutes. General audience classification. Release date, March 11.

"The Quiet One"

(Mayer-Burstyn)

A PROFOUNDLY satisfying motion picture experience is in store for discriminating film-goers in "The Quiet One." In terms of theme it breaks new ground, for this documentary-styled drama tells the story of a 10-year-old colored boy who roams the cluttered streets of Harlem in confusion and rebellion. The product of a broken family and lacking affection, he soon turns his morbid thoughts inward to become "a quiet one." Photographed mostly in the slum sections of Harlem and at the Wiltwyck School at Esopus, N. Y. where the boy is finally put on the road to readjustment, the film throughout is marked by a striking visual authenticity. Very obviously it is not designed for standard houses, but just as obviously, it stands to keep the turnstiles of most art houses moving busily.

Donald Thompson plays the focal role of the neglected boy with touching effect. The haunting, empty expressions that flash across his face are a praiseful reflection on the directorial skilll of Sidney Meyers. Other characterizations, unadorned but intriguingly realistic, are offered by Sadie Stockton, as the despairing but coldly dutiful grandmother; Estelle Evans, the hapless mother; Clarence Cooper, the counselor; and Paul Baucum, the stepfather.

James Agee's commentary and dialogue have perception and simple eloquence and do much to enhance the film. A Film Documents presentation, it occasionally bares its technical crudity, but is superior to its modest budget. Janice Loeb produced, and William Levitt was associate producer. The original screenplay was by Helen Levitt, Meyers and Miss Loeb.

Running time, 67 minutes. Adult audience classification. A February release.

Hollywood

Hollywood, March 9

Samuel Goldwyn has signed Mark Robson, director of "The Champion," for Screen Plays, Inc., to a five-year contract. . . . John Wayne's performance in "Wake of the Red Witch" has prompted Republic to acquire another sea story, "Island of Lost Ships," which Joseph Kane will produce on a similar scale. . . . Anatole Litvak has been named winner of the Screen Directors Guild's third quarterly award for his direction of "The Snake Pit."

Georgia Safety Film Program Launched

ATLANTA, March 9.—With 300 exhibitors from Georgia and neighboring states in attendance, a luncheon at the Henry Grady Hotel here today launched the highway safety program sponsored by the Motion Picture Theatre Owners and Operators of Georgia.

Governor Harman Talmadge was honor guest and a speaker, with J. H. Thompson, MPTOOG president, presiding. Lt. E. S. Burke, representing the Georgia Safety Council, spoke on safety program and commended the cooperation of the exhibitors.

A series of shorts, to be made by the MPTOOG under the direction of the National Safety Council, will be shown in practically every theatre in the state, Thompson said. First film of the series is completed, with the entire group to be shown over a period of a year and a half.

House Unit Approves New Wage-Hour Bill

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The House Labor Committee today approved a bill which will probably bring large single theatres and large circuits under the Federal wage-hour law for the first time.

At present, most retail and service establishments are exempt from the wage-hour law. The new measure raises the minimum wage to 75 cents an hour and broadens the coverage. One of the new activities covered are retail or service establishments with more than $500,000 anual sales. Wage-hour officials say that they think they will not have much trouble getting theatres under the "Interstate Commerce" definition.

Challenges 'Varga' Film

CHICAGO, March 9.—Alfred Smart, president of Esquire Magazine, has stated that he will take legal steps to secure an injunction against the proposed filming of "The Varga Girl" reported to be scheduled by producer Monte Proser. Smart affirmed that Esquire was recognized by the Supreme Court as having full copyright to Varga material.

Rank to Attend Premiere

J. Arthur Rank, who will arrive here March 20, will attend the American premiere of his production, "Quartet," which is scheduled to open at the Sutton here on March 28.

appreciation in securities aggregating approximately $4,000,000.

Listing of securities in the Atlas portfolio includes the following film company common stocks: 50,000 shares of Paramount, with a market value listed by Atlas at $1,175,000; 317,812 of RKO, $258,222, and 91,700 of Walt Disney Productions, $309,487. Atlas carries also four per cent 1960 maturity bonds, with a current market value of $219,035.

Additionally, Atlas owns 800 shares of five per cent cumulative preferred stock and 49,180 shares of common of World Commerce Corp., the international trading organization through which the Motion Picture Association of America has succeeded in unblocking some funds which had been frozen abroad. The WCC holdings are valued at $85,000.

The Atlas affiliate, Ogden Corp., is listed as carrying 6,000 shares of Paramount common, with a market value listed at $141,000, and 4,000 of 20th Century-Fox common, listed at $77,500. Ogden's investment in City Theatres Co., which owns theatre real estate in New York City, consists of 750 shares (75 per cent) of the outstanding capital stock, the value of which is put at $100,000, according to the report.

Schine Decree

by March 28, the next scheduled date for court hearings here. Presumably additional time would be granted by the court, however, if the negotiations have not reached a conclusive stage by then.

The consent decree negotiations for Schine are being handled by Irving R. Kaufman, attorney. Presumably, they center upon divestiture by Schine of additional theatres and restrictions upon the exercise of Schine buying power and regulation of its theatres' clearances. These were main features of the case which were remanded to the District Court by the U. S. Supreme Court for further consideration.

fight by theatre owners will be necessary if passage of the bill is to be prevented. Forces supporting the bill, he reported, are extremely zealous in their endeavors to secure enactment.

Today's meeting, presided over by New Jersey Allied president Edward Lachman, was addressed also by organization attorney Arthur L. Abrams who explained to the theatre owners their rights and benefits under the Paramount-U.S. decree. A discussion of the pending New Jersey minimum wage law was also held.

Find TV Viewers Go To Films 25% Less

HOLLYWOOD, March 9.—Theatre attendance by a tested group of television set owners declined 25 per cent, according to a survey undertaken here by James Nicholson, Picfair theatre operator, who says the average set owner stays at home nights 68 per cent more than formerly.

Nicholson's survey covered 100 set owners in the Los Angeles area and its results, disclosed at the recent National Theatres conference held here, formed a major topic of discussion for the assembled theatre executives.

Alfred H. Morton, television director for 20th Century-Fox, warned NT theatre men not to be "misled into thinking that sports provide the bulk or most popular type of television program." He said that video viewers are more discerning in their tastes than the average theatregoer and that the average set owner finds present television film fare "poor."

SRO Sales Staff to Be Reorganized

Four Leave to Join Expanding Agnew Firm

A complete reorganization of the Selznick Releasing Organization sales force will be made, Sidney G. Deneau, SRO general sales manager said yesterday in consequence of the resignations of four sales executives who are scheduled to join Neil Agnew's Motion Picture Sales Corp.

Deneau confirmed the resignations of SRO division managers J. E. Fontaine, Eastern; Sam Horowitz, Midwest; Henry G. Krumm, Southern, and Manny Reiner, Latin America sales manager. All are expected to join Agnew, former SRO head.

Deneau said SRO will drop the di-

Dividends Off Less Than 1%

WASHINGTON, March 10. — Film company dividends in 1948 were less than one per cent below 1947, according to revised figures released by the U. S. Commerce Department today.

Back in January, the Department released "preliminary figures" showing publicly-reported cash dividends of film companies totaling $44,905,000 in 1948, about 18 per cent below the $54,641,000 reported for 1947. Today, the

Report Plan to Free Blocked Italian Lire

Proposals to abolish all import taxes and quota restrictions on foreign films will be considered Monday by the Italian cabinet, according to press reports from Rome.

Under terms of negotiations said to have been completed by Gerald Mayer, Motion Picture Export Association European manager, film importers would place in a special fund a specified sum in lire for each picture imported, with the producer then authorized to "unfreeze" a similar sum in dollars, according to the report.

Para. Has Bought Up 841,833 Shares

Paramount purchased last month on the open market 25,100 more shares of its common stock, bringing to 841,833 shares the total accumulated in its treasury under the stock-purchasing program instituted in November, 1946, by company president Barney Balaban.

Other recent monthly purchases follow: January, 27,500; December, 41,700; November, 21,500; October, 40,500; September, 32,500; August, 22,200; July, 31,000.

Schwalberg to Work Closer to Theatres

Paramount has plans for a closer, more intensified working relationship with exhibitors in selling its product, A. W. Schwalberg, sales manager, told the press at the home office here yesterday. He said the matter of cooperative advertising is being discussed but any program "would not be fair if it meant simply paying advertising costs for the exhibitor."

A. W. Schwalberg

Divorcement of its theatres will require more sales effort than before by Paramount, Schwalberg said, explaining that there will be more exhibitors to "contact." He said that the relationship between United Paramount Theatres and Paramount Pictures Co. will continue on the same basis despite the split-up—that of buy-

D. C. Wage Ruling Loses Jobs for 165

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Washington theatre owners have decided to discharge some 165 female ushers and about a dozen minor employes as a result of the District of Columbia wage board order increasing the minimum wage for these two groups.

The decision was taken at a meeting of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Washington. President A. Julian Brylawski said that the MPTO had warned the wage board that if it increased the minimum as much as it proposed the theatre owners would find females and minors too costly and switch to male workers. Now, he said, this has happened.

CBS Offers 82 Films To Video Affiliates

CBS Television has made available to its 31 video affiliates the first-run telecast rights in their areas to any or all of four film packages, totaling 82 features and short subjects, it was disclosed here yesterday by H. Grant Theis, manager of the CBS film syndication department.

Films include 52 British features produced by Pathe, Ltd., Grand National and British Lion, and present-

Reject Schine Decree Offer

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The Department of Justice has received and rejected the first proposal for a consent decree submitted by Schine Chain Theatres.

The proposals for settlement of the government anti-trust suit which has been remanded by the Supreme Court to the U. S. District Court at Buffalo are said to have been viewed as too mild to win Justice Department approval.

New proposals undoubtedly will be presented by Schine counsel, Irving R. Kaufman, in the near future but, in the meantime, the government now is planning to proceed with arguments in Buffalo District Court on March 18, the next scheduled hearing date, on whether Schine should be permitted to introduce new evidence in the case in connection with the court's re-

Ralph Goldberg Sues Majors, Tri-States

OMAHA, March 10.—Ralph D. Goldberg, owner of the State Theatre Co., has filed a suit for $900,000 damages in Federal Court here.

Named as defendants were the Tri-States Theatres Corp., and several distributors. The Goldberg petition alleges a "conspiracy" contrary to the Sherman and Clayton Anti-Trust Acts by refusing his theatre first-runs.

A.A.-Mono. Directors To Meet Tomorrow

HOLLYWOOD, March 10.—Steve Broidy, president; George D. Burrows, executive vice-president and treasurer; Harold J. Mirisch, vice-president, and Howard Stubbins, Pacific Coast franchise holder, have left here to attend board of directors' meetings of Allied Artists and Monogram at the Drake Hotel, Chicago, on Saturday. Other board members to join the group are Ray Johnston, Edward Morey, Arthur C. Bromberg, William Hurlbut, Herman Rifkin, Norton V. Ritchey and Charles W. Trampe.

Previous erroneous announcement indicated that a stockholders' meeting would be held at the same time and place. The annual stockholders' meeting is held on the second Wednesday in November, customarily in Hollywood.

NFS To Handle UA Prints in Memphis

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—United Artists has arranged with National Film Service for physical print handling at Memphis, William J. Clark, National executive vice-president, said here today. UA had been handling the Memphis territory out of its St. Louis and New Orleans branches. Memphis Film Service, a National affiliate, now takes over.

Youngman at Studio

HOLLYWOOD, March 10.—Gordon Youngman, RKO Radio general counsel, has established temporary headquarters at the studio in preparation for extensive legal work in connection with the company's pending divorcement and reorganization. His stay here will be for an indefinite period, although he will make occasional return visits to New York.

Press Unit Gives 'Snake Pit' Award

At a broadcast last night over New York's station, WNYC, the Foreign Language Press Film Critics Circle awarded Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Snake Pit" a citation as the "Best Picture of 1948." The award, made to Spyros P. Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox, was accepted by Ulric Bell, publicity manager of the company, for Skouras. Also honored were Olivia de Havilland, voted best actress for her performance in "The Snake Pit," and Anatole Litvak, co-producer and director of the film as best producer of the year. The foreign press selection also honored Zanuck as the only executive producer to win the award in two successive years. Last year his "Gentleman's Agreement" was chosen as best.

Others honored by the critics were Laurence Olivier, chosen best actor for "Hamlet," and Roberto Rossellini, best director for "Paisan." "The Red Shoes" was selected as the best British-made picture, and "Paisan" as the best Continental film.

S.P.G. To Vote on Future Affiliation

HOLLYWOOD, March 10.—Screen Publicists Guild last night voted to hold a mail ballot to determine whether to continue its present affiliation with the Painters Brotherhood or switch to the IATSE, or choose another affiliation.

The meeting heard IATSE's Roy Brewer outline advantages which he asserted would accrue from tying up with the "IA." The affiliation issue has had SPG membership divided for the past several weeks, following an IATSE-minded faction's protest against the Guild officers' waiving a seniority clause in a contract proposed by producers. The pact remains unsigned, with the Guild under producer notification that the old contract will be terminated in April.

"St. Louis" Premiere Held in Texas City

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., March 10.—U.S. and Mexican government representatives participated today in the "two-nation premiere" of Warner's "South of St. Louis" at the Capital and Queen theatres here.

With stars Joel McCrea and Alexis Smith here for the event, a day-long celebration began with a pilgrimage to Palmetto Hill battlefield, followed by parades, radio broadcasts and other special programs. Warner has set playdates for the picture in 200 surrounding cities within the next 10 days.

and Korea was deferred to a future meeting.

In retaining MPEA as its sole distribution agency, directors of the 10 member companies agreed to extend the period of joint operation until August 31, 1950. Present licensing contracts under which MPEA has been operating in these countries since 1946 terminate at varying dates between May and September of this year. Some doubt existed during the past few months on whether MPEA operations would be continued or curtailed.

Present at the meeting were: Norton V. Ritchey and William Sartori of Allied Artists; Abe Schneider, Jack Segal and Arnold Picker, Columbia; Arthur Loew, George Muchnic and Seymour Mayer, Loew's; George Weltner, Roger C. Clement and William Piper, Paramount; Phil Reisman and R. K. Hawkinson, RKO; Richard W. visional set-up in reorganizing and will replace the men who are leaving with district managers within 10 days. Paul MacNamara, Selznick vice-president and advertising-publicity head, arrived in New York yesterday, and Selznick may come here next week.

Agnew's M. P. Sales Corp. is on the verge of expanding into an organization similar to the one he set up at SRO. A minimum of four key sales divisions will be set up and physical distribution will be handled by James Clark's National Film Service. The company is rapidly lining up product, with the Abbott & Costello "Africa Screams," Franchot Tone's "Man on the Eiffel Tower," and Protestant Films' "Prejudice," and others, already on its schedule. Company's representation fee is three per cent of the gross. The company also will open a Hollywood office.

Leonard Case, SRO treasurer, announced that Reiner will be replaced in Latin America by Alfredo Holguin, who will headquarter in Mexico City, and Isidro Rosenfeld, with headquarters in Buenos Aires.

It was also announced that Victor Hoare will replace Louis Lewis, who resigned this week as SRO general sales manager for Britain and the Continent. Cleave Shepherd will continue for SRO as general sales manager for Australasia, and Fred S. Gulbransen has been named to handle sales in the Far East.

Would Cut Freight Rate

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The Flying Tiger Air Line proposes to slash by 25 per cent its rates for carrying motion picture film and other freight from the West Coast to the Eastern seaboard. In a proposed new tariff filed with the U. S. Civil Aeronautics Board, the line says it wants to drop its rate to $14.71 per 100 pounds, from the present $19.61.

$13-Million Eastman Dividend to Workers

Rochester, N. Y., March 10.—Eastman Kodak will distribute a wage dividend of approximately $13,000,000 on Monday, to 50,000 employees in the Western hemisphere, the company announced here today.

The wage dividend will be the largest ever distributed by the company, comparing with $11,600,000 paid a year ago.

The payment on Monday will bring the total to approximately $103,000,000.

Dividends Off

Department said that when the film companies revised their reports, the 1948 total was $54,205,000—a mere shade below the 1947 figure. This means the 1948 payments were the second highest on record. The 1946 total was $46,714,000.

Commerce officials said that much of the increase in the revised 1948 figure over the preliminary one came from dividends reported by the Stanley Co., a Warner subsidiary. Stanley reported late, its dividends not being included in the preliminary total.

Commerce officials usually figure that publicly-reported dividends account for about 60 to 65 per cent of total dividends, but they said that they believe the percentage is higher for the motion picture industry. If the 65 per cent figure were used, that would mean total film industry dividends in both 1947 and 1948 were in the neighborhood of $80,000,000.

consideration of divestiture and other angles, as directed by the Supreme Court.

The principal issue involved either in continued litigation, or in negotiation of a consent decree, is exactly which Schine situations are to be opened and what theatres disposed of in each. The Justice Department reportedly is taking a firm stand on the opening of all Schine situations where it believes competition to be at a disadvantage.

Schine attorney Kaufman, incidentally, headed the Justice Department's anti-lobbying unit until recently. He is well known here.

Schwalberg's Plans

er and seller. Affiliates sometimes are "our severest customers," he added, inferring that theatre subsidiaries were not always ready outlets for the Paramount sales organization.

Schwalberg said that he has yet to see the company's consent judgment in the industry trust suit and must consult the legal department, headed by Austin Keough, before mapping selling policies. He reported he plans a series of regional sales meetings in about 60 days for the purpose of discussing trade practices under the decree with the field staffs. Schwalberg pointed out that he had been preoccupied with the 10-day meeting of executives at the studio and other matters relative to his new position as sales chief, in explaining that he has not familiarized himself with the government settlement.

No Product for TV

He told reporters that business so far this year has been as good as, if not better than, the same period in 1948. Contributing to this, he added, are the showings made by "Paleface" and "Whispering Smith."

He disclosed that Paramount has no intention of selling product to telecasters.

Schwalberg was unable to clarify the muddled status of competitive bidding as provided for in the Paramount decree, here again reminding that he had not consulted the order and thus could draw no conclusions. However, while Paramount's plans in this regard have yet to be clearly formulated, it was recalled that A. C. Bickford, Paramount attorney, contended for the record in New York Federal Court when the judgment was presented that it does not make competitive bidding compulsory for Paramount. He did not say to what extent Paramount would license product in that manner, nor did he explain how else it might be licensed.

Double Bill Row

Although Schwalberg was not disposed to talk extensively about the double billing of United Artists' "Red River" and "Paleface," as planned by Fox Wisconsin, the indication was that Paramount would do nothing about it.

UA president Gradwell Sears earlier this week refused to service prints of "River" to the Milwaukee circuit on the grounds that showing two top-grossing films on one program "sabotaged" the value of both.

W. B. Murray, 59

William B. Murray, 59, head of the radio department of the William Morris Agency since 1932, died here yesterday from a sudden illness. Murray handled many stars of the screen and radio during his career, which included work for the Baldwin Piano Co., Judson Radio Corp. and National Broadcasting Co. Among his clients were Abbot and Costello, Fred Allen, Danny Kaye, Eddie Cantor and Al Jolson. Surviving are his wife, three sons and his mother.

Off-Street Parking Bill

ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—The State Senate today unanimously passed and forwarded to the Assembly the Desmond bill which requires theatres and other public places hereafter erected in New York cities to provide off-street parking facilities. Theatres would have to provide 200 square feet for each 10 seats.

Gorham and Shaffer

Plaque to Shaffer, who is manager of the Fox Atchison Theatre in Atchison, Kan., and the Special Overseas Award to Guellermo Echazu, manager of the Metro Theatre in Santiago, Chile.

Miss Gorham, a consistent contributor to the Round Table pages for the last three years, has won one Quarterly Award and two Scrolls of Honor. While women have won several lesser awards, Miss Gorham is the first to win the top QP Showmanship Award. Shaffer, also a long and persistent contributor, has won two Quarterly Awards. The Overseas Award goes for the first time to a South American showman. Echazu's campaigns were conspicuous in a market which receives little attention in the North American press.

At a luncheon which followed the judging, Martin Quigley, emphasizing the need for a return to showmanship, said:

"Fortunately there have lately been indications of an early return to that aggressive brand of showmanship which once made motion pictures the best promoted service before the world public."

Awards Promote Showmanship

He emphasized the influence which the Awards have had in promoting better showmanship and the part they have played in bringing the winners greater responsibilities and opportunities.

Si Fabian, head of the circuit bearing his name, was a guest speaker at the luncheon. Enumerating the problems and changes, both economic and legal, which confront the industry, Fabian called for a return to the fundamentals which "are the foundation upon which our business life was built." Those fundamentals, he said, are the maintenance of comfortable, attractive theatres; the providing of great entertainment at reasonable prices, and "the showmanlike way in which we have exploited our pictures for our theatres."

UA, Fox-Wisc. Row

together in any Fox Wisconsin theatre."

Earlier this week, UA president Gradwell Sears announced that the company would refuse to service prints of "River" to the circuit because the film was to be teamed with "Paleface." UA claims it was so informed by its Milwaukee branch manager who learned of the plan in telephone calls to the three Fox theatres involved and by matching his booking records with Paramount's. Sears said that the double billing constituted a "stupid abuse of exhibitor power," and that it would "sabotage" the value of the two films.

It was UA's understanding that the two pictures were to open last Wednesday at the Granada, Uptown and Garfield Theatres, which are the three key subsequent runs in Milwaukee. No announcement of the combination appeared in Milwaukee newspapers. Fox Wisconsin generally advertises its programs a day before opening. The clash with UA came on Monday night.

New Firm To Import

Formation of Armanac, Inc., a new foreign film distributor, is announced by A. R. Hourvitch, president. Initial release is an Italian film.

To Set Status Of Decree In Private Suits

5th-Walnut Appeal Today Embodies That Question

A singularly significant industry legal question is due to be answered in consequence of the Fifth and Walnut Amusement appeal hearing which is slated to get underway here this morning before Judge Augustus N. Hand in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The court will be asked to decide, in effect, whether the final decree in judgment in the government's suit against Paramount, et al, can be admitted in the industry's myriad private anti-trust actions.

Louisville's Fifth and Walnut, represented by attorney Monroe E. Stein of New York, will argue today that Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell erred on at least two counts when he

House to Consider Tighter Trust Laws

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The House Judiciary Committee is expected to soon announce a year-long, comprehensive investigation of the need for tightening and coordinating the nation's anti-trust laws, which have been applied so frequently against distributors in recent years.

Recommendations would not come until next year, under the plan being considered by Judiciary Committee Chairman Celler, New York Democrat.

Celler is scheduled to meet this week with top officials of the Justice Department, Federal Trade Commission, and other agencies interested in

Studio Jobs Decline; Expect March Rise

Hollywood, March 13.—Production employment hit a low ebb in January, according to a California labor statistics bulletin issued here, skidding from December's 75.2 per cent to 67.5 on the Labor Bureau's scale index which regards 100 as normal. Average weekly earnings dropped from $98.26 to $93.97. Expectation is that February figures will show even a lower employment level, with March witnessing a sharp rise if the present upward trend in production continues.

Want FCC Rule on Film Firms in Video

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Twentieth Century-Fox has asked the Federal Communications Commission to issue an order immediately declaring that film firms and other companies, including theatre circuits, found guilty of violating U. S. Anti-Trust Laws are not barred from holding radio and television licenses.

If it does not want to do this, 20th-Fox said, the Commission should at least immediately ask all interested parties for their views, so that a position can be taken relatively soon.

The company declared that the motion picture industry cannot plan its over-all future until it knows the answer to whether film firms will be allowed into television. For example, it said, film companies cannot go ahead with plans for theatre television.

ASCAP IS PRESSING U. S. DECREE TALKS

Thompson, Mandell, Mishkind Promoted

Three members of the field staff of Selznick Releasing Organization have been promoted to district managerships by Sidney Deneau, general sales manager, as part of the decentralization plan announced by him several days ago wherein he stated that SRO's sales divisions are being reduced to districts in order to create closer selling contact with exhibitors.

R. R. Thompson, former branch manager of Kansas City, has been appointed district manager with supervision over Kansas City, Des Moines,

Seeks Modification of 1941 Pact to Permit Theatre Collections

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Negotiations for modification of the 1941 consent decree between the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and the Department of Justice are being pressed and could be concluded within a few weeks.

A key phase of the negotiations, it is reported, involve Ascap proposals to meet the objections to theatre music fee collections by the Society, now prohibited by Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell's decree in New York District Court.

Presumably, if the proposals are acceptable to the government and the New York Federal Court, Ascap would be authorized to resume music

NLRB Election to Settle Coast Issue

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The National Labor Relations Board has directed a representative election within 30 days among set decorators in 10 Hollywood studios to chose between IATSE and the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, both AFL.

Studios affected are Columbia, Paramount, Warner, Loew, Universal, RKO, Samuel Goldwyn, Republic, Hal E. Roach, and 20th Century-Fox.

The dispute between the two unions for control of the studio set decorators has been one of the sorest spots

Thirty Bills in Albany Could Affect Theatres

ALBANY, N. Y., March 13.—Listing 30 pending bills in 11 categories which could affect theatres, the Albany Theatre Owners of America reports that it had moved against Bingo legislation "with the central committee" of four New York exhibitor associations and that "results were very favorable," two Senate measures removing criminal penalty for Bingo sponsored by non-profit organizations being recommitted.

TOA sees no hope of adoption of any of three bills repealing permissive local tax laws, which allow a five per cent admission levy. It warned that proposals of a minimum wage of 75 cents per hour "will affect every type of business" if passed, and said the Noonan advertising film reissue bill "is being watched closely, since enactment will be a gross hardship."

A few of the other bills listed by the TOA include the Mitchell-Morgan Act, passed by the Assembly, to permit an additional 50-cent charge by brokers for the delivery of theatre tickets; Schupler Bill, proposing a state theatre; Morrit Bill, for an automatic stay in proceedings reviewing revocation of license for stage shows; Gans-Tanken Bill for the inclusion of orchestras and bands in the law governing employment agencies.

'U' Board to Elect Officers March 24

Nate J. Blumberg, president, and J. Cheever Cowdin, board chairman, are among the officers of Universal who are slated for re-election by the board of directors at a home office board meeting scheduled for March 24. Other officers include Charles D. Prutzman, John J. O'Connor, Matthew Fox, William A. Scully, Joseph Seidelman and Edward Muhl, all vice-presidents; Samuel Machnovitch, treasurer, and Adolph Schimel, secretary.

Tradewise . . .

By SHERWIN KANE

PARAMOUNT officials make no secret of the determination with which they fought the Department of Justice's insistence upon the consent decree provision for the appointment of a trustee to hold and vote for several years the common stock of the new independent theatre company which will emerge from the decree and reorganization of Paramount.

They viewed it, correctly enough, as an unneeded precaution which would annoy and could penalize Paramount stockholders to the extent that their opposition to the plan of reorganization would be stimulated and market values of Paramount stock would be depressed.

The latter has happened. The former still is likely but discernible stockholder opposition to the plan, while it unquestionably will center more on the theatre stock trusteeship than on any other single provision of the decree and reorganization, does not at this time appear formidable enough to threaten rejection of the plan by the stockholders at the meeting set for April 12.

Without it, however, some dissatisfaction and criticism which it seems inevitably will arise at the stockholders' meeting, could not be generated.

In opposing the plan, Paramount officials pointed out to the Department of Justice that no trusteeship had been ordered for the stock of the new RKO theatre company when the government approved the RKO consent decree.

It may be noted here, too, that market value of RKO shares, unlike that of Paramount's, has not since been depressed nor is there any indication of serious stockholder opposition to the RKO divorcement-reorganization plan, perhaps in consequence. As a matter of fact, it is not unlikely that much stockholder opposition to the RKO plan has been silenced with the appearance in Paramount's plan of the theatre stock trusteeship provision.

Paramount's opposition to the provision was genuine enough to bring about a termination of consent decree negotiations with the government over the single issue of the stock trusteeship and, subsequently, to delay consummation of the negotiations for weeks after the principle of a trustee had been accepted but while the trustee's powers, particularly over stock dividends, were disputed.

The government remained adamant. It was determined to hang in its trophy room a nice specimen of total divorcement.

Now the trophy is frightening other prospective big game.

Many wonder why Paramount capitulated on the point it felt itself so strongly opposed to.

One explanation given is that Paramount had been for some time past completely reconciled to the inevitability of divorcement. Continuing the litigation not only would be hazardous, costly and disconcerting, even discounting the findings and still obscure recommendations of the United States Supreme Court, but even an ultimate victory in the courts for Paramount on the disputed issue of divorcement could turn out to be no victory at all, or at best a victory for the moment only.

That is because the temper of the nation's legislators, as well as that of most Federal courts, is weighted against integrated bigness and the possession of potential power to monopolize.

Who can say that an ultimate Paramount victory in the courts would not be nullified by new statutes enacted as a result of such a victory?

The decision to accept a settlement promised Paramount the best opportunity to protect and preserve for its stockholders the finest assets of both its picture and theatre operations. Better, it was reasoned, to employ the time gained by prompt settlement to reorganization and establishment of the sturdy independent companies than to hazard it on what might prove to be a futile victory, and thereafter be compelled to carry out dissolution under unguessed at conditions and restraints.

There can be no other conclusion but that, all things considered, Paramount stockholders have been well and ably served.

Says Tax Cut Is 'Vital' to Worker

Washington, March 13.—Rep. Kenneth Keating, New York Republican, who last week introduced a bill to end the 20 per cent admission tax on tickets costing less than $1 and to cut it back to 10 per cent on admissions costing over $1, has told the House that his bill is vital to meet "the problem of the reduced recreation which a workingman and his family cannot now enjoy because of the expense involved." Keating said his proposal would cost about $350,000,000.

"Champion"

(Screen Plays—United Artists)

HERE is a rough, tough, no-punches-pulled attraction about the fight-ring, centering around a character who has little to recommend him beyond his sheer strength. "Champion" is a strong attraction for those who want their attractions strong, including brutality in the climactic slugging match which some, no doubt, will feel goes beyond dramatic requirements. For a bead on what this show perhaps may do, theatremen might check their experience with the highly successful "Body and Soul."

"Champion" is based on a Ring Lardner story of the same title. It tells the history of Kirk Douglas, from low down on the economic ladder, and how he punches his callous and unrestrained way through pugilistic opponents, the "fight racket," and the lives of four women in his scramble to the top of the heap. He makes his grade beyond any doubts.

On the way, he leads on and marries Ruth Roman and abandons her, successfully makes up to the expensive Marilyn Maxwell and walks out on her, emotionally upsets Lola Albright and takes a powder there, and practically breaks his mother's heart. In his line of travels, Douglas shatters whatever idealism his crippled brother, Arthur Kennedy, had for him and walks out on Paul Stewart who made him. Maintaining his championship title in a return bout with John Day, Douglas reaches the end of his tether with a brain hemorrhage which results in death.

This highly-briefed story outline should be sufficient to convey that "Champion" is not a pretty picture. Whatever sympathy may have gone to Douglas at the outset is dissipated as the film unfolds, so that there is little or no audience pull for him. So ruthlessly does he batter his way toward his objectives that audiences in every probability will feel he has earned his just desserts.

There is, however, considerable dramatic power in the telling, Douglas gives a forceful performance which will draw added attention to his stature as a rising actor in Hollywood. Accompanying performances likewise are sound and believable. The melodramatic opportunities of the script, moreover, are met in realistic direction for which Mark Robson is to be credited. Production atmosphere, aided by arresting low-key photography in black-and-white, by Frank Planer, proves an important asset. The aroma of the ring undeniably has been caught with sharpness and authority.

Stanley Kramer produced, with Robert Stillman as associate. Carl Foreman wrote the incisive screenplay.

Running time, 99 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, May 20, 1949.

Critic Lauds Films Of Spiritual Worth

UNION CITY, N. J., March 13.—Countering arguments for less screen emphasis on religious themes, Jerry Cotter, stage and film critic of The Sign, national Catholic magazine published here, contends that "there can be no greater assignment for the motion picture than the appeasement of mankind's current hunger for hope and faith."

Cotter cites "Joan of Arc" as a "great picture" and "Monsieur Vincent" as an example of "how beautifully inspiring the screen can be." He deplores the "sad fact" that Catholic groups and individuals "do not support the movies and plays they should," adding that, despite that, "Joan" is a "heartening success."

"It is all well and good to come against trashy comedies and the gross materialism of many movies," he says, "but unless we are equally alert and enthusiastic about supporting the worthwhile releases, we are wasting our time."

9th WB Stockholder Suit

Marking the ninth such action to be taken since last Sept. 20 against Warner executives, Warner minority stockholder Lawrence B. Dattenheim filed at the weekend in U. S. District Court here a suit against United States Pictures, Warner Brothers, Joseph Bernhard, Robert W. Perkins, Milton Sperling, Harry M. Warner, Jack L. Warner, Morris Wolf, John E. Bierworth, Samuel Carlisle, Albert Warner and Samuel Schneider, alleging conspiracy in behalf of United to the detriment of Warners. Suit asks for an accounting on a production-distribution deal made in 1945 between the two companies.

Oklahoma Unit to Meet Today on Tax

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 13.—With public hearings on a bill providing for a state sales tax on all theatre admissions scheduled for Tuesday, the Theatre Owners of Oklahoma will hold a special meeting here tomorrow at the Skirvin Hotel to map plans to combat the measure, according to C. The bill calls for a one-cent tax on 10-cent admissions and ranges upward to five cents on all tickets selling at more than 40 cents.

Lincer Dies in Fla., With Fox 30 Years

Isadore Lincer, 65, transportation manager for 20th Century-Fox, died Thursday in St. Petersburg, Fla., it was learned here at the weekend. He had been with the company for nearly 30 years.

Lincer joined Fox Flms in 1920. He is survived by the widow Annie, and two sons, Gerard and Arthur.

He was one of the founders of the Roma Society, oldest Italian-American organization in the U.S. Among survivors is Roger Ferri, editor of the 20th-Fox sales department publication, Dynamo, in the New York office.

No Fear If Pictures Are Good, Says Wood

Discounting the pronouncements of gloomy prophets, Sam Wood asserted here at the weekend that "the only thing Hollywood should fear is not making good pictures." The producer-director is here from the Coast on a periodic visit for "conferences, some Broadway plays, and to search for material."

"If we make the type of picture which the public wants it will come in droves and if we make the kind it does not want it will stay away in droves," Wood added. "Give the public good, healthy entertainment, without political messages or sex questions and make the films real so that audiences can live them," Wood continued. He pointed out that this need in no way restricts the type of picture whether it be a costume drama, a period piece, a contemporary drama or comedy.

Wood believes that television will be a boon to Hollywood, making upon it the greatest demand for good pictures. Turning to present-day conditions in Hollywood, he saw little basic change, but asserted that people now are more conscious of the necessity of avoiding waste. He also asserted that Communist elements which had insinuated themselves into the picture business "now have largely been eliminated." In this connection, Wood commended the efforts of Roy Brewer, IATSE international representative in Hollywood, "who has slugged it out with the Communists and has them licked."

Wood recently completed "The Monty Stratton Story" for M-G-M. His plans call for three more for M-G-M in the next two years, with one in between for Columbia. He will return to the Coast early in April.

H. E. Edington, 59, Producer and Agent

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—Funeral services for Harry E. Edington, 59, veteran producer, studio executive and talent agent, were held here yesterday at Forest Lawn. Edington, former executive producer at RKO Radio during 1941-42 and independent producer for Universal, died at his Beverly Hills home Thursday following a heart attack.

A member of the board of Walt Disney Productions, Edington in recent years had been acting as a talent agent, the phase of the film business which he first entered. Among his early clients were Greta Garbo, John Gilbert, Marlene Dietrich and Claudette Colbert. The widow, two brothers and a sister survive.

NLRB Coast Issue

in the Hollywood labor picture. It was that dispute which directly touched off the March, 1945 strikes.

The board's decision is a victory for IATSE, which requested the election. The Painters' Union has pending before the board charges of unfair labor practices against studio employers, and had asked the Board to put off any election until the unfair labor charges were ruled on. The board's action was approved by four of its five members —chairman Herzog did not participate.

The board's opinion admitted that it did not "as a general practice" direct an election while unfair labor practice charges were pending, but said that this was a discretionary matter with the Board and was not required by law. It pointed out that two other unfair labor practice charges by the Painters Union had been dismissed by the regional director, and that when one of these was appealed to the NLRB general counsel, the latter upheld the regional director.

"Saraband"

(Rank—Eagle-Lion)

AS an historical British drama, J. Arthur Rank's "Saraband" sports some highly impressive Technicolor backgrounds and settings, which provide a visual delight. As a story of thwarted love and court intrigue, it, however, only occasionally flares into exciting drama. For the most part it is leisurely paced, with many conversational pieces. The cast is a reliable one, headed by Stewart Granger and including Joan Greenwood, Francoise Rosay and Flora Robson. All told, the picture's virtues weigh in its favor, making it more than satisfactory product for discriminating patrons.

The screenplay, fashioned by John Dighton and Alexander Mackendrick, revolves around Miss Greenwood, a girl forced for reasons of politics and ambition into a loveless marriage with a decayed and aging prince. The years bring neglect and humiliation to Miss Greenwood. Eventually she meets Granger, a dashing young soldier of fortune and the two fall in love. There develop the obvious difficulties, with Granger finally meeting death. Against these main outlines, the plot moves through a series of clashes, jealousies and intrigues.

Granger and Miss Greenwood are ably cast in the leads, while Miss Robson provides an acid vignette of a conspiratorial, once-beautiful countess. Good support is offered by Peter Bull as the prince who succeeds to the British throne, and Miss Rosay, his mother. An Ealing Studios Production, it was produced by Michael Balcon and directed by Basil Dearden.

Running time, 95 minutes. Adult audience classification. Release date, not set.
